POLITICS IN SOMERSET

W. W. Smalley a Republican State Senatorial Possibility.

SO IS FRELINGHUYSEN

Thompson is Said to be Back of Bound Brook Man While Col. Frelinghuysen Prefers Himself.

All is not serene in the Republican camp in Somerset county and there is apt to be a factional clash over the senatorial plum. Joseph Frelinghuysen, of Raritan, who did not have to go to Kentucky to be dubbed "colonel," the Governor having done the trick by making him a member of his official staff, is out for the self-same Joseph for the nomination. Arrayed against him, it is said, is none other than Lewis A. Thompson, by virtue of many victories boss of the Republican forces in the county.

Thompson doesn't covet the prize for himself. His candidate it is said is W. W. Smalley, of Bound Brook, but the dear public has not been let in on the secret. Mr. Smalley is associated with L. D. Cook & Company, of Bound Brook and stands pat with the farmers about the county. If he gets in the running it is believed that he will give Frelinghuysen an opportunity to demonstrate his right and title to the "Colonel" which is prefixed to his name.

Robert Clark, Jr., of North Plainfield, has been mentioned in connection with the Republican nomination. But he will have none of it. The fact is that Mr. Clark has no time to devote to the duties of public office and it is reported that he has plainly told the leaders that he will not allow his name to be used in connection with the State senatorship.

What stand North Plainfield will take regarding the contest is not known. From Bound Brook comes word that Mayor Smalley will be with the Frelinghuysen forces but his honor is putting in ten hours a day developing Rockview Heights and has no time for politics just now. He has not committed himself. Wise politicians, all politicians are wise in their way, say that there is no likelihood of the mayor being with the Thompsonites.

EXEMPT HEADS MEET.

President Littell Meets With the Officers.

D. W. Littell, president of the New Jersey State Association of Exempt Firemen; V. W. Nash, president of the Plainfield association, and Secretary E. T. Humphrey, of Nutley, visited the Paterson association on Sunday, to hold a conference with Secretary John I. Spittel, chairman of the executive committee, in reference to matters pertaining to the State organization.

Considerable business in connection with and of importance to the State Association was transacted. The Paterson Call says: "The visitors left Paterson at a late hour, well pleased with their visit, and promised to return in a few weeks for a more extended business, as the storm prevented them from viewing the points of interest to be found in Paterson. The visitors were delayed in reaching the city on account of washouts on the trolley roads and did not arrive until a late hour."

Praise Y. M. C. A. Leaders.

The monthly bulletin of the New Haven Y. M. C. A. says: "The boys from Plainfield, under the care of Mr. Robbie, are having a most delightful time at Camp Tuxis Island. The leaders are all enthusiastic and well-fitted for the work. Mr. Robbie is fortunate in securing as one of his leaders Mr. Allen, the general secretary at Meriden, who is especially interested in boys and is experienced in physical work.

Lawyer for Scatundo.

John Scatundo, the young Italian who made a murderous assault on John Stillger, of Dunellen, with a pistol in Albert Rajotte's brickyards two weeks ago, has retained John P. Owens to defend him. Mr. Owens will try to secure his release on bail. The boy is in jail at New Brunswick, awaiting the Grand Jury's action on a charge of felonious assault.

Full Day at the Shore.

If you go with Trinity Reformed Church Sunday school and Marconnier chapel, to Asbury Park on Thursday, you will never regret it. You will be in the best of company and the committee has planned for a full day at the shore, leaving there at 7 o'clock in the evening.

Sentence Suspended.

Archie Davis, who was arrested Saturday evening in the borough for intoxication and disorderly conduct, was brought before Recorder Doud last night. The judge suspended sentence upon him because of former good conduct.

TO ASK REDUCTION OF SCADUTO'S BAIL

LAWYER READY TO FURNISH $5.000 BAIL FOR PEDDLER MURDERER.

Luigi Scaduto, the fish peddler murderer, who shot Lorenzo Fauci to death on North avenue two months ago after a dispute over business rivalry, is likely to be released from the county jail at Elizabeth, where he has been committed to await the action of the grand jury, under reduced bail before the end of the week.

John P. Owens, counsel for Scaduto, will appear before Justice J. Franklin Fort at Elizabeth on Thursday to apply for a reduction of the bail in which Scaduto was held from $10,000 to $5,000. Justice Fort has set a hearing on the matter for 11 o'clock that morning. Mr. Owens is very hopeful of securing the reduction.

"If the bail is reduced," he said yesterday, "the bond will be furnished at once. An Elizabeth Italian, whose name I do not feel at liberty to make public at this time, stands ready to go on Scaduto's bond the minute the court orders the reduction."

Mr. Owens says none of the officers need fear that Scaduto would try to jump his bail. The prisoner and his lawyer are confident of making out a perfect case of self-defense, and both of them say they are anxious for as speedy a trial as can be arranged. It is not likely that Scaduto will get his trial until late in October or early in November.

SPECIAL REPORTS FOR COMMON COUNCIL

SEWER AND MACADAMIZING COMMISSIONERS HAVE COMPLETED THEIR TASK

The Sewer Commissioners, R. A. Meeker, J. W. Murray, Jr., and S. P. T. Wilbur having assured the Common Council that they would have their reports completed in time, it is expected that the document will be presented at the August meeting on Monday night. They have been spending considerable time in consultation on the matter of assessment for benefits and damages. The commissioners are not permitted to divulge the result of their work until it is made public at the Common Council meeting.

The macadamizing commissioners are also expected to present their report at the August meeting, and if accepted the work of improving certain streets heretofore designated will be started soon.

An important matter to be taken up at the meeting will be that in reference to the Richmond street sewer, which has already been presented by the chairman of the street committee. It is the desire of the committee that this work shall be taken up and pushed as rapidly as possible as a better system of surface drainage is a great necessity in the east end of the city. This was shown again on Saturday after the heavy shower. Richmond street in several places was inundated and underneath the Richmond street bridge the trolley cars and carriages met with considerable difficulty.

It was Councilman William S. Tyler's idea to have the Richmond street sewer matter progress with the Plainfield avenue sewer project, but it has been impossible to consider the West End sewer matter at this meeting. It will undoubtedly be taken up soon, but the committee does not feel justified in withholding one for the other when the necessity is so great. In connection with the Richmond street matter the plans also call for the improvement of Cedar brook, whereby that stream will be deepened and widened so as to obviate existing troubles in high water. With the unanimous consent of the property owners, this improvement can be made in the near future, and the committee hopes to secure it.

Thrown from Trolley.

Mrs. D. C. Paterson, of 143 Johnston avenue, is detained at home the result of a trolley accident on Saturday night. She was returning home and asked the conductor to let her off at Johnston avenue. Instead he carried her a block further before the car stopped. Before she could step on the ground the car started off throwing Mrs. Paterson to the ground. Her injuries are not considered serious.

Charges Theft of $4.

On the complaint of Mrs. Anna McGuire, of West Third street, Justice Mosher issued a warrant this morning for the arrest of May Saxton, a young girl, living in the neighborhood, charging her with stealing $4 from her. The girl has not yet been apprehended.

SLOT MACHINE CANDIDATE

Justice Hand Bound to be Known as a Seeker For Shrievalty Honors

OLD-TIME DEMOCRAT.

Squire Announces His Candidacy and Divulges Scheme of Plan of Campaign.

To the crop of candidates for county nominations that has sprung up in the past month a new and imposing figure was added yesterday. Until the addition was made all the aspirants were Republican; lethargy and somnolence seemed to have enthralled Democracy.

Justice Hezekiah Hand broke the spell. He announced, with modest and appropriate remarks, that he was a candidate for the shrievalty nomination. Rumors of the judge's honorable aspiration had reached the ears of a Daily Press reporter, and he asked his honor if the report was true.

"I will be frank," said the Justice. "I am a candidate for the shrievalty nomination. I heard there was such a nomination to be made, and after careful consideration, from several standpoints, I arrived at the conclusion that I would not refuse it if it was offered to me. I am in the hands of my friends."

The judge's face took on a thoughtful expression.

"I have not got very much money, and I hope they wont think their time has been wasted."

He made a rapid change of expression.

"By gum! if I do get in I'll give the county a taste of real office-holding. I'll have two deputy sheriffs on every block, and a special custodian of the ice box.

"The first thing I'm going to do in my campaign for the nomination is to have 1,000,000 pasters put in slot machines all through the county. Every time a chunk of gum drops out my name will strike the chewer. There is an awful lot of gum bought in this county and I expect that thousands of jaws, among young voters and the girls who influence young voters will move to the rhythmic swing of 'Heze-kiah-Hand, Heze-kiah-Hand.' A man whose name is often on people's tongues is bound to go far."

The reporter left the judge thoughtfully chewing an imaginary bit of gum.

CELIBACY AND FRESH AIR.

The Greatest Foes of Consumption, Says Dr. Millman.

Over thre hundred delegates from this country, Canada, Australia, Ireland, Denmark, Scotland and England, members of the Independent Order of Foresters, convened yesterday at Atlantic City, in the rooms of the Atlantic City Lodge of Elks. Previous to the regular session there was a reception to Dr. Oronhyatekha, the Mohawk chief, who is Supreme Chief Ranger, at the Hotel Rudolf, the headquarters of the Supreme Council.

Dr. T. Millman, the Supreme Medical Examiner, in his address warned the Foresters against the steady increase of tuberculosis, stating that of the applications for insurance 21 per cent. were rejected, and of all deaths 18 per cent. were due to tuberculosis.

Promised to Leave Town.

Harvey F. Hayes, a painter and paperhanger, who has been away from town over two years and who was arrested by Chief Marshal Weiss on the complaint of Hayes' wife that her husband was drunk and abusing her, was given a hearing last night before Recorder Doud.

His wife again appeared against him and after hearing the case, the Recorder sentenced Hayes to thirty days in the county jail. Upon promising that he would return to his trade in Summit, which he showed was prosperous, Hayes was released by Doud on the grounds that if he returned here again he would have to serve the sentence which had been imposed.

Off to Camp.

William Thorn, George L. Apgar, George Morton and Arthur Robinson left this morning for Swartswood Lake, Sussex County, where they will establish "Camp Restawhile," for two weeks. Clarence L. Thorn will join them Saturday.

Bill Schorb Hurt.

William A. Schorb, Jr., of 117 East Front street, tripped on a piece of carpet at his home on Thursday last, causing him to fall. He struck his head against a table, cutting quite a gash in the forehead, which bled profusely.

F. O. E. Initiation.

Plainfield Aerie, No. 866, F. O. E., will hold its regular meeting this evening in Elks' Hall at 8 o'clock. A number of candidates will be initiated.

NEW BANK TAX SCHEME

To Trace Ownership of Shares Which Heretofore Escaped Taxation.

A TRENTON PLAN

Assessor Would Not Be Denied, and Outwitted Bank Officials Who Sought to Shield Stockholders.

Through a clever movement made by John P. Dullard, president of the Trenton board of assessors, the bank stock of New Jersey, much of which has heretofore escaped taxation, despite the State law, will now be assessed, and the various municipalities will have their incomes increased accordingly.

The tax law prior to the passage of an amendment last winter provided that "it shall be the duty of the officers of every bank to give the assessor of the taxing district on his application a true statement of the names and residences of its stockholders on the twentieth day of May in said year, as shown by its stockbooks, and of the number of shares held by each," etc.

This was interpreted by the State Board of Taxation to mean that a bank should furnish to the assessor of the taxing district in which the bank was located a complete list of its stockholders and their residences, and in the light of this interpretation the State board had a rule which read: "That it shall be the duty of the assessors in each taxing district in which a bank is located, the shares of which are held by owners in any other taxing districts, to notify the assessors of these other taxing districts where such owners reside, that such bank shares are taxable in such taxing districts."

This plan of reciprocity, which was designed to prevent bank stock from escaping taxation in those cases where the bank and the owner of the bank's stock were located in different districts, was never a complete success because the banks throughout the State did not construe the law the same as did the State Board of Taxation, and would not furnish the assessors of their taxing districts with a complete list of their stockholders. The contention of these banks was they were not obliged to furnish the assessor of the district in which a bank was located with anything more than a list of the stockholders assessable in such assessor's district. This is the view that was held by three of Trenton's banks, and as a result the Trenton assessors were not in a position to either comply with the State board's rule or to expect much reciprocal consideration from other assessors.

The legislature last winter passed an amendment to the law in question. This amendment made it quite clear that the bank could not be required to furnish a complete list of the stockholders to the asseors in the taxing districts in which the banks were located. This amendment, which was really a substitute for the old law, provided that "it shall be the duty of the officers of every bank to give the assessor of each taxing district, on his application, a true statement, under the oath of the president, cashier or treasurer, of the names and residences of its stockholders in such taxing district, on the twentieth day of May, in said year, as shown in the stock books, and the number of shares held in each."

The new law made a compliance with the reciprocal rule of the State Board of Taxation out of the question, and the Trenton assessors found themselves in a position where they could not expect to receive even the partial reports they had been in the habit of getting from other assessors. It was then that Mr. Dullard hit upon the plan. He had a circular letter printed, which he sent to every one of the more than one hundred and fifty banks in the State, making aplication under the new law for a list of the Trenton stockholders of each bank, together with the number of shares of the stock of such bank held by the Trentonians.

Thus far all but two of the banks have made reply. The result has been the return of just 350 shares of stock of out-of-town banks that was never before assessed against Trenton taxpayers. The assesors have sent out an additional letter to the assesors in taxing districts where banks are located inquiring the assessed valuation of the bank stock in these districts and the replies thus far received indicate that the additional 350 shares that are to be assessed this year for the first time will have a total assessed valuation of $30,000. The other assessing bodies of the State will undoubtedly follow up the plan, and Paterson and other municipalities will thereby increase their ratables and add to their income.

SMITH CHASED HIS WIFE

Then She Had The New Market "Millionaire" Arrested.

PUT UNDER BONDS.

$200 to Guarantee Good Behavior—Mrs. Smith Fled in Fear After He Made Threats Against Her.

Bubble troubles and financial embarrassments are not the only sorrows of William B. Smith's life. The New Market "Croesus" has just collided with marital woe and the law. The latter has compelled him to file a bond of $200 as a pledge that he wont chase Mrs. Smith around in anger any more, or put unkind threats against her into execution.

Smith, it is said, chased Mrs. Smith with anger in his heart and naughty words on his lips last Friday. Mrs. Smith escaped capture, but she had the pursuer arrested and arraigned before Justice VonMinden.

The unpleasantness between Smith and his wife grew out of the former's rebuke of one of his children. The latter, a girl, was playing in the yard of the Smith house Friday afternoon, and did something to arouse her father's ire. He rebuked her with energy and much force of expression. Mrs. Smith did not like his way of correcting the child, and interfered.

Smith, it is said, turned on his wife and directed the force of his wrath on her. He made some threats that frightened her and she fled down the street. Smith went after her. He was overhauling her when a group of men interposed and halted him. They quieted the angry "millionaire," and he returned home.

Mrs. Smith swore out a complaint and Constable Pierce served it. It is said the constable and Smith had a lively run-in, but the "millionaire" appeared in court when he was wanted on Saturday.

The justice told Smith he would have to furnish a bond to guarantee his good behavior. Smith put it up himself.

It was said that he made up his mind to swear out a complaint against Pierce but the matter was smoothed over.

WATERMELON SOCIAL.

Sons of Temperance Have a Jolly Good Time.

Under the auspices of Howell Division, No. 97, Sons of Temperance, an entertainment and watermelon social was held last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Keoyer, of East Third street. During the evening there were readings and recitations by Mrs. Gobbins, of Westfield, and Mrs. Samuel Terry, of this city; vocal and piano solos by the Misses Lydia and Hattie Edgar. After the entertainment watermelon was served and a social time followed. The committee in charge consisted of Mrs. Samuel Terry, Mrs. W. E. Keoyer and Mrs. Gibbons.

Yerkes' Memorial Volume.

The Yerkes' Memorial book is being distributed among the members of the First Baptist church. It contains the complete account of the life, death, funeral and memorial services of the Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes, together with a photograph taken in 1863, and his last one, and pictures of the original church and the present edifice, accompanied by letters of condolence received by the family from clergy and laymen.

Half Dead in Swamp.

Clinton Freed, a bartender at a Phillipsburg hotel, was found in an unconscious condition lying in a swamp near the Lehigh and Hudson Railroad just below Belvidere last evening by Thomas O'Neil, a railroad employe. The man was more dead than alive. When found his body was almost naked and he was lying with his face nearly submerged in the water.

Harold A. Ryno Dead.

Harold A. Ryno, the six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Ryno, of East Second street, died this morning at the home of his grandfather, Albert Ryno, at Alton, after a short illness. The funeral services will be held from the home of the grandfather at Alton Thursday morning at 11 o'clock.

"WILLIE" DEEGAN MAY BE RELEASED SOON

STAR TWIRLER HAS BEEN VIOLATING HIS AGREEMENT.

There is evidently trouble ahead for "Willie" Deegan, the star twirler for the local team. His performance on Sunday against the Jersey City Eastern League team was far from satisfactory, and Manager Daab is feeling sore over the result of the contest.

Deegan has evidently been doing too much pitching during the past week, having twirled in four games, consequently it was not surprising that the Jerseys shattered his reputation Sunday. They proved that a pitcher must be at his best at this time at the rate they are slamming the ball to hold them in check, and Deegan in his overworked form had nothing left that was at all puzzling and his curves were driven to all parts of the lot.

After Sunday's game and the fact that Deegan has been barn storming during the past week in violation of his agreement to keep in form for these games will most likely result in Deegan's release and the engagement of a pitcher whom Manager Daab can depend upon. The Jersey hitting was the hardest that has been presented by any club that has faced Manager Daab's players this season and it would probably have still been in progress had Manager Daab permitted Deegan to serve up the twisters. He made a change in his box men after the fifth inning, substituting Beck for Deegan. The West Hoboken pitcher won a hard game on Saturday against Westfield, but in spite of his work on the previous day he performed well against the Eastern Leaguers and held them to three hits and cut out the scoring in the last four innings.

C. A. MARSH SPEEDING TO MOTHER'S FUNERAL

CORPORATION COUNSEL NOW ON THE OCEAN—EXPECTED HOME WEDNESDAY

Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh, who was called home from Europe by the fatal illness of his mother, is now on his way to this country. He is expected to reach New York tomorrow, and the funeral of Mrs. Marsh has been put off until Thursday to enable him to attend it.

Unless a wireless message reached him aboard ship, Mr. Marsh does not know his mother is dead. He left Europe last week, in response to a message apprising him of the critical nature of Mrs. Marsh's illness.

The death did not change Mr. Marsh's vacation plans very materially. Although he originally intended to stay abroad until September, he decided later to return home on August 5, and so cabled his family recently. The sudden recall only cuts about a week from his trip.

J. W. Murray, Jr., Re-elected.

The Union County Board of Registry and Elections met at Elizabeth this morning for re-organization. John L. Crowell, of Rahway, was elected chairman, and John W. Murray, Jr., of this city, secretary. This was the only business transacted and the board adjourned to meet subject to the call of the chairman.

Bolt Hit Lincoln Home.

During the heavy thunder shower on Saturday night, a bolt of lightning struck the home of Mrs. Rufus Lincoln, on West Eighth street, making a good sized hole in the roof. An aged woman and child were in the house at the time and received a severe shock.

Francis S. Moran Dead.

Francis S. Moran, the four and a half year old son of Mrs. Margaret Moran, died last night at 8 o'clock. The cause of death was dysentery. The funeral services will be held from the parents' home, on Lincoln place, tomorrow afternoon at 4 p. m.

Back From Camp.

Neils Neilson, one of the leaders at Camp Tuxis, where the Y. M. C. A. boys are spending their annual outing, returned from the camp yesterday after a week's stay. He says the boys are having a great time and growing healthier every minute.

Stricken With Appendicitis.

Miss Mattison, of the Board of Health office, returned Saturday from her vacation, and while preparing to return to work yesterday, was taken suddenly ill with appendicitis. This morning she was removed to the hospital for an operation.

Board Meeting Postponed.

Lack of a quorum prevented the usual meeting of the borough Board of Education last night. Only four members showed up and the session was put over until Thursday night.

N. J. ARCANUMITES KICK

Delegates From Plainfield Councils at Jersey City Conference.

ONE RESOLUTION.

Statement to be Presented at Session of Grand Council to be Held at New Brunswick Friday, Aug. 11.

D. W. Littell and Salmon C. Baker, representing Plainfield Council, No. 711, and E. E. Bates and Lewis Skillman, representing Greenbrook Council, Royal Arcanum, attended a meeting of New Jersey Councils held at Jersey City yesterday afternoon for the purpose of discussing matters relative to the new rates recently adopted by the Supreme Council. There were forty-two State Councils represented either in person or by letter and the session was a lively one.

It was the opinion of nearly everyone present that the new rates will prove disastrous to the order and there was general disapproval of the Supreme Council action. This took the form of a number of resolutions offered by several members, all of which were referred to a committee of seven for revision and to be condensed into one resolution for presentation to the Grand Council at the meeting to be held at New Brunswick on Friday, August 11.

It was the suggestion of Mr. Littell that the committee be comprised of seven instead of five members, and the local Councils were recognized through the appointment of Salmon C. Baker and E. E. Bates to membership. Mr. Baker revised the numerous resolutions and the other members of the committee unanimously agreed to the changes.

The members were very pronounced in their views against the adoption of the new rates by the Supreme Council and decided to do all in their power to secure a revision of them. Several speeches were made by the officers in which the future welfare of the organization was discussed pro and con.

FIREMAN DIED IN HOSPITAL.

Fatally Injured on Jersey Central Freight.

Joseph Loughland, of Tyrone, Pa., employed as a fireman on the New Jersey Central freight engine, was fatally injured at Skillman about 9:25 o'clock last night while making a regular trip. Particulars as to just how Loughland was injured are not obtainable. He was brought to this city on the 10:25 train and died before he reached the hospital.

The body was taken charge of by Undertaker George W. Cole, and will be shipped to the late home at Tyrone. The man is survived by his parents and a brother.

An Unruly Auto.

While E. M. Slocum, of the Newark Billposting Company, accompanied by a party of friends, were coming to this city yesterday afternoon in Mr. Slocum's automobile, the steering geer of the machine got out of order while running along the Springfield road and before the auto could be stopped the whole party was taken some distance into a large field alongside the road. There was no damage and the occupants escaped uninjured, but greatly frightened. They arrived here after some delay. The women in the party returned home by train, the men taking the machine to Newark.

William R. Buckley Promoted.

William R. Buckley, of South avenue, for the past six years receiving clerk at the local freight office of the New Jersey Central has been promoted to a position in the company's head office in New York with Freight Claims Agent W. H. Druse. The advancement came as a reward to Mr. Buckley for faithful services since he has been with the road.

Death of Elsie Brokaw.

Elsie Brokaw, the three-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Brokaw, of Duer street, died last night at 11 o'clock. Funeral services will be held from the parents' home and will be private. Interment will be made in the M. E. cemetery.

Death of Carrie K. Wood.

Mrs. Carrie K. Wood, the wife of Charles Wood, of East Sixth street, died this morning. Funeral services will be held at her late home, Thursday at 8 o'clock and St. Mary's church at 9 o'clock. Interment will follow in St. Mary's Cemetery.

Auto Trippers Back.

Marcus Hoyt, William Doud, Jas. Taylor and R. H. Allen returned from an auto trip through New England in Mr. Hoyt's machine this morning. They left last Saturday.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

William Sanford is rushing his trolley loop waiting room and lunch place to completion. The roof was put on yesterday and the windows and doors will be placed today. The lack of shelter was much felt by patrons of the road during the rain storms of the past three days and both the company and Mr. Sanford have been criticized over the delay.

The newly organized Watchungs will play their initial game Saturday, against a local combination composed largely of old New Market players. The Watchung battery will be Randolph and McMahon.

Arthur Vail shut up his North avenue store for good yesterday and will devote his undivided attention to the loop place hereafter.

Erwin Lance, of Plainfield, has been spending several days with Mr. and Mrs. Linden Apgar.

Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Gray have been entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Charles Erwin, of Newark.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Archer, of Jersey City, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Terry.

Miss Alice Fenner has returned from a visit to relatives in Pluckamin.

Ellis Carman is visiting in New York State for a few days.

Harry Vliet has entered the employ of William Davis.

Earl Ising has resigned his position with Arthur Vail.

Raymond Huff's dog was killed by a train yesterday.

J. M. Ising is visiting relatives in Pennsylvania.

Charles Petcoff spent yesterday in Raritan.

Miss Hattie Giles is ill.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD

The annual union excursion of the local Sunday-schools and several of the Westfield schools to Asbury Park and Ocean Grove goes out Thursday morning. As this is the one excursion of the year from town, nearly every one goes and this year's outing should be no exception to the rule.

Miss Mary Jahn who has been suffering for several months past from a severe sprain of her right arm, is undergoing treatment from Dr. Taylor, a well known specialist of New York.

Mr. and Mrs. John Stiliger and children, who have been visiting Mr. Stiliger's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Stiliger, have returned to their home in Brooklyn.

The Misses Hayes, of the borough, who have been enjoying a trip of several weeks visiting points of interest in the West, have returned home.

The electric light fuses which were burned out during the shower Saturday night have been repaired and the lights are again burning.

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Shepard and family, of "The Gables," are summering at Old Forge, in the Adirondack Mountains.

Mrs. Augusta Miller has been entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wooster, of Rahway, over Sunday.

Miss Lillian Fancher, of the borough, has returned from a week's stay with out-of-town friends.

J. M. Uhler and family, of Fanwood, are spending August among the Massachusetts' hills.

Misses Florence and Nancy Wade are enjoying two weeks at Asbury Park.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

A large willow tree on the lawn of William E. Smith was struck by lightning Sunday afternoon. The bolt after striking the tree was seen to descend into the water of small lake on whose bank the tree stood. Mrs. Smith was near the tree at the time but was not injured.

The heavy rains of the last three days have saved the farmers' corn crops from being a total failure. The crop, however, has been much damaged by the long drought.

The mill pond being out for necessary repairs to the watergates, a number of persons who are fond of pond fish have been catching fish.

Mrs. M. Gravatt, of Scranton, is visiting friends in town.

GOVERNOR STILL AT SEA GIRT.

Mr. Stokes Attends Religious Services.

Edward C. Stokes, the Governor, changed his mind at the last minute on Saturday and decided to remain over Sunday at the "Little White House." As a result there was another religious service on the lawn Sunday morning. General H. P. Bope marched the Pittsburg Boys' Brigade over from Camp Edwin W. Hine, headed by the band and field music, and the services were conducted by Rev. W. C. Jones, the chaplain of the Homestead Battalion of the Boys' Brigade.

The band played the hymns that were sung and the boys joined heartily in the responsive readings. Governor Stokes sat on the porch with a few guests, and took an active interest in the service. One of the Pittsburg boys took suddenly ill while the service was being held, and Governor Stokes insisted that he should be taken into the cottage for treatment. The surgeon attended him, and by night the boy was all right again. General Bope greatly appreciated the kindly consideration of Governor Stokes, and spoke of it yesterday.

EAST RAHWAY STEEL CO.

Continental Co. to Build Large Plant.

The official announcement is made that the Continental Iron and Steel Company, which has purchased the Lufbery estate in East Rahway, will commence the erection in two weeks, of a large plant, which, when finished, will give employment to several hundred hands. It is hoped to have the affair in working shape by early snowfall. The Pennsylvania Railroad Company is believed to be the real backers of the enterprise, and it is thought steel rails will be made there for that and other similar corporations. All the dealings have been conducted with the greatest secrecy.

A street running through the property will be abandoned by the city of Rahway and closed to accommodate the location of several buildings.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

Rugg & Cline, the West Third street coal dealers, sell only the best coal, well screened and full weight.

E. F. Dorman, of Park and North avenues, represents the best life and accident insurance companies. Let him talk to you about them.

The Hotel Waldorf on East Front street invites your patronage. It has superior accommodations for either transient or permanent guests.

Boice, Runyon & Co., the Park avenue coal dealers, are taking orders now for next winter's supply. The firm would like to get your order.

When you want any sanitary plumbing work done consult A. H. Enander, of Watchung avenue. He will do your work right and reasonable.

If you want to be sure you are getting the best milk, cream, butter and eggs trade at Brokaw's creamery on East Front street, and you will never be in doubt.

If Saturday's storm damaged the elcetric light wires in your house or store, notify Allen B. Laing, or North avenue. He will send experienced workmen to attend them at once.

The savings department of the City National Bank invites your account. It offers a good rate of interest and every inducement to put something by for a rainy day. This institution also has an up-to-date system of lock boxes and safety deposit vaults.

Since Charles Stranzenbach has assumed charge of the Crescent meat market on Watchung avenue its patronage has increased 100 per cent. This is due to the fact that everything he sells is of the very best and that his wagons deliver orders promptly to any part of the city.

L. Moraller & Son, of Park avenue, are jewelers of experience. They have a faculty of getting just what the people want and just at the right time. If you have a few moments to spare drop in their store and see their new summer novelties. Their repair department is one of the best in the State.

While out shopping don't forget the great bargains being offered at Hill & Shupp's store. The firm in closing out its stock is selling everything at a sacrifice and you will find many things there that you need. The goods are the best to be found on the market and you may never have such an opportunity again.

FOR CAMPERS.

Choose a high camp site.

Never leave camp without extinguishing fire.

Be sure to dig a trench in which to build your cooking fire.

Have a separate fire for warmth and a separate fire for cooking.

Dig a pit in which to throw all cooking refuse.

Don't forget to take along fly dope.

When you abandon the camp finally crose a couple of branches over the place where fires have been; then all who come will know it is abandoned.

Up the Hudson.

On Thursdays, July 27, August 10 and 24, the Pennsylavnia Railroad Company will run its usual midsummer excursion to the "Upper Hudson," under personal escort. Special excursion tickets will be sold on these dates for regular trains arriving at Jersey City prior to 10:05 a. m., good to return on same day on any regular train leaving Jersey City after arrival of steamer. A stop will be made at West Point, giving those who disembark an hour and a half at that point, and enabling them to view the United States Military Academy. In order to insure an early return, no stop will be made at Newburgh, although the steamer will run to a point off that city and there turn. Round-trip rates: Princeton, $2.00; New Bunswick, Metuchen, and Perth Amboy, $1.00; Rahway, 80 cents; Elizabeth, 75 cents; Newark, 50 cents. Proportionate rates from other points. 7 18 oaw td

The Historic Hudson.

The Hudson River has a renowned reputation in more ways than one. Its business interests are more widely known than any other stream, while for excursions and outings it has no equal. There are sights galore—the palisades—the U. S. Military Academy at Sing Sing and interesting Newburg. The scenery in every direction is superb and the steamers which convey the excursionists are commodious and comfortable. On August 3d the New Jersey Central is going to run one of its popular low-rate excursions up the Hudson, the rate for the round trip to be $1, children 50 cents, and special train leaving Plainfield at 8:46 a. m., will connect at Jersey City station with famous steamer "St. Johns" for the trip. Don't forget date or train time. 7 29 4

Miss Abbie VanCleef, of West End avenue, has returned from a visit with her father at East Millstone.

Harvey D. Goodwin, of Scotch Plains, has entered the employ of B. J. Schreiner, of Second street, the pharmacist.

Mrs. George F. Randolph of Brooklyn, who has been visiting Mrs. A. C. Randolph, of North avenue, has returned home

Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Latourette, of East Fifth street, left for Westerly, R. I., this morning, to visit their daughter for a week.

Westfield will be here on Saturday and its up to the Daabsters to make it four straight.

Show your loyalty to the home team by attending the game on Saturday and cheer for the Daabsters.

The fans who were quick to believe that the Plainfield-Westfield series was fixed are rapidly changing their minds.

It was mighty hard for the Westfield fans to cheer their team on Saturday, while Plainfield was administering the third defeat.

With the exception of the first game, Westfield has made a change of players in every contest. That was Plainfield's fault last year.

The Westfield Standard on Saturday remarked: "It may be a different story after the game." Another disappointment. It was the same old story.

Harold Weekes, the well-known Columbia football player, has just purchased a seat in the New York Stock Exchange for $80,000. Athletics must pay at Columbia.

In the three Plainfield-Westfield contests, the locals have made twelve runs to five for their opponents, twenty-nine hits to their eighteen and seven errors to their eight.

It is reported that the Westfield rooters are planning to drape their private box at Recreation Park. It was a disconsolate and woe-begone looking lot of rooters that occupied the box Saturday.

"Billy" Beck came to Plainfield without a reputation, in fact no one here ever heard of him. Today his clever work is the talk of the town. His performance on Saturday won for him a legion of friends. All batters looked alike to him.

It looked at one time as though it would be necessary to call the fire department to Recreation Park to extinguish the fire at the extreme end of the field. It would have served a double purpose in helping Westfield to put out the locals.

Umpire Merity was questioned on Saturday regarding his decision in the Plainfield-Westfield contest of July 22 at Crescent Oval, and he said that two or three years ago there was a rule which covered the play in question, which would make the ball a dead one, and besides that he was not sure but that the ball touched Stallings. Considering the quickness with which a decision has to be made after a play, it is surprising that more errors are not made. Mr. Merity looked upon the objection made to his decision as a technical one and while he regretted that it should have caused any dispute, he still maintains that he is human, like other mortals, and therefore liable to err. However, he says that he has always made it a strict rule to give a decision exactly as he sees it and not change from it.

GOLF.

C. B. Morgan, of the Plainfield Country Club, will spend tomorrow afternoon and Thursday morning on the course of the Englewood Golf Club in an attempt to break the record.

The recent rains has made it possible for the greens committee to make several new holes on the greens at the Plainfield Country Club, thus allowing the grass to grow about the old ones. The rains have greatly benefitted all of the local golf courses.

The standing for the golf committee cup to and including July 29 is as follows:

TENNIS.

The match play between the Park Club and the Cedar Brook tennis team could not be finished on Saturday because of the rain. In the first match in doubles, G. Faber and Barlow, of the Park Club, defeated Letson and Hall, in two sets, 6—4 and 8-6. The second match was between Koons and Miner, of the Cedar Brooks, and C. Dupee and W. West, of the Park. These teams were evenly matched, the scores resulting 5—7, 6—4, and the third set stood 6—5, in favor of Cedar Brook, Miner to serve, when rain put an end to the play. This match will be played off at some time during the week, and probably the matches in singles will also be played at the same time. No matches in singles were played at all, Saturday.

ROYAL ARCANUM RATES.

Special Session of Supreme Council to Consider a Revision.

Supreme Regent Howard C. Wiggins, of Rome, N. Y., announced that he had received a request from the constitutional number of supreme representatives requiring him to call a special session of the Supreme Council of the Royal Arcanum. The time and place of holding the special session will be announced as soon as suitable and satisfactory arrangements can be made.

The first of August assessment is now due, and it is understood to be the intention of a number to stop paying their assessments at this time. Some did not pay the July assessments. The insurance is as good today as it has ever been, and will continue to be so until the first of October, for the increased rates do not take effect until that time. It is the belief of very many members that when the Supreme Council meets there will be a change in the plan, making a more equitable division of the burden. There will be an increase of rates, no doubt, but it is believed that the increase will not be so great and that it will be more equitably distributed.

SURVEYING JERSEY'S COAST.

Professor Haupt to Suggest Improvements to the Inlets and Harbors.

Professor Lewis Haupt, an engineer, of Philadelphia, is making a survey of the New Jersey coast line for the New Jersey State geological survey, with a view of suggesting improvements to inlets and harbors. Professor Haupt has suggested the building of reaction jetties, like those used on the Mississippi. This method has been successfully employed at Longport, near Atlantic City.

During the last ten years there were 170 casualties on the New Jersey sea within the range of the Atlantic City light, while in that time the much dreaded Cape Hatteras district had only twenty-five. The loss on the New Jersey coast in that time was $2,000,000. The coast line has grown out a mile in some places on the northern boundary, and there have also been many changes along the South Jersey lines.

FALL FROM TREE FATAL.

Elizabeth Man, While Cutting Limbs, Tumbles and Fractures Skull.

Elizabeth, August 1—Robert William Hutz, forty years old, married, whose home is on Rebecca place, Elizabeth, was killed yesterday morning by a fall from a tree on North Broad street, here. He was in the employ of the street department, and was ordered to remove some limbs of the tree that were broken by Sunday afternoon's storm.

He had a saw with him, and just as he cut through a big limb over his head it collapsed so quickly that he was unable to get out of the way, and was struck by it and knocked off the tree. He tumbled head first to the ground and fractured his skull. He was picked up unconscious, and the General Hospital ambulance was summoned. He died while on his way to that institution.

RAHWAY VALLEY ROAD SOON TO RUN TRAINS

IT WILL BE OPENED FROM SPRINGFIELD TO CENTRAL ROAD ABOUT AUGUST 15

By the midde of next month, if present plans do not miscarry, the township of Springfield is to be connected with the rest of the world by a steam railroad. Trains are to run on an hourly schedule over the Rahway Valley Railroad between Springfield and the Aldene station of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, where connection can be made for Elizabeth and points East and West on the main line of the Central. The running time from Springfield to Aldene will be twelve minutes. Trains will run as far as the Baltusrol Golf Club, where a station is to be built at the intersection of Bryant avenue and Baltusrol way, about 800 feet from the clubhouse.

The Baltusrol station is now being built; also a station at Springfield. The Springfield station will be about 1,500 feet south of the schoolhouse, on the road leading from Springfield to Westfield.

The station at Baltusrol will be in keeping with the design of the clubhouse. Every effort is now being made to have the railroad ready for use by August 15 and the work of grading from Springfield to Summit is going on rapidly, for the railroad company expects to run trains into the Summit depot by October 1 next.

Two new coaches have been purchased, one a combination. Although the road will not open for regular service until the date mentioned, the first passenger train to go over the line is to leave Springfield on Thursday, August 10, when the Sunday-schools of Springfield and Millburn will go to Asbury Park on an excursion.

The completion of the Rahway Valley Railroad from Aldene to Summit means that the Central Railroad of New Jersey, Philadelphia and Reading, Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and the Lackawanna Railroad will have direct connection within sixty miles of New York, an important feature for the handling of freight, as well as for the transferring of passengers.

AMUSEMENTS.

The tremendous success of the Boer War at Brighton Beach has done away with the experimental ideas of the Brighton Beach Development Company.

Two million dollars will be spent in constructing a mammoth amusement resort which will not only include two gigantic spectacles but will embrace a number of sensations surpassing those now at Coney Island.

A hall of permanent industrial exhibits will be one of the features on the Brighton Beach Pike which is to be carried from the main entrance to the Boer War Arena to Manhattan Beach. No admission will be charged on the Pike which will be a mile long when completed. A three ring circus and an animal arena will occupy a portion of the seventy-five acres of meadow land now being reclaimed by the Brighton Beach Company.

Gen. Piet Cronje.
Commander-in-Chief of Boer Army now in the Boer War Show at Brighton Beach.

Captain Arthur W. Lewis has planned a national drama which will occupy twenty-four acres of land. Work will be carried on the new resort throughout the winter when several hundred men will be employed.

The Brooklyn Rapid Transit will build a new station and special lines connecting Coney Island with Brighton. The Brighton Beach Park will be a permanent amusement exposition similar to the St. Louis World's fair. Venetian canals will course through the grounds. An electric and observation tower will form part of the great gateway at one end of the Pike.

The new resort will be ready for the opening of the 1906 season in May.

A Spinsters' Convention.

Under the auspices of Mt. Zion A. M. E. Church, a "Spinsters' Convention," will be held at the church on Thursday night, August 10, at 8 o'clock. Announcement is made that old maids will be transformed into beautiful young maidens before your own eyes. An excellent cast of characters has been selected, comprising most of the active members of the church. Mrs. E. B. Maynard is chairman of the affair.

FINAL BORINGS ON N. Y. N. J. TUNNEL

ARTIFICIAL CROWN TO BE MADE FOR PIER PILES BY PLUGGING SHAFT.

Somewhere in the neighborhood of but fifty feet of material remain to be bored through before the south bore of the New York and New Jersey Railway company's tunnel between Fifteenth street, Jersey City, and the foot of Morton street, New York, is completed to the bottom of the shaft on the east bank of the North river.

From now on, however, the work will be of a somewhat tedious nature, as a substitute for the piling which is directly in the course of the bore underneath of the French line pier must be provided, to preserve the pier intact.

A strong cement deposit will have to be made in the path of the boring shield, and when this is hardened it will require to be treated in the way of boring through much as rock would be treated in the process of tunnel building. The arch thus made will then form an absolute safe foundation for the shortened piles and the pier superstructure.

After the south tunnel is completed the boring shield will be brought over to the Jersey shore and put to use digging out the terminal approaches.

It has been definitely decided that the terminal buildings on this side of the river will include a large power house in the recently acquired site bounded by Provost and Henderson and Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets, Jersey City. Material for the commencement of the building operations will begin to be delivered in the course of a few weeks.

To all intents and purposes the north bore of the tunnel is in a finished state, with, of course, the exception of the approaches at either end. The track is laid and the electrical wiring and signal systems installed. Only about ten pounds of compressed air pressure is now being maintained in the bore, but even this will be unnecessary when the approaches are completed.

So far advanced is the enterprise as a whole that it is practically a certainty, according to the engineers, that passenger trains will be running through the tunnels in considerably lese than tow years from now.

NOT AFTER SENATE SEAT.

Governor Stokes is not Eligible to Succeed Senator John F. Dryden.

Trenton, Aug. 1.—Perhaps it is due to the season of gossip now prevailing, or perhaps it is owing to the current talk about a contest between big railroad and traction interests in politics, that discussion has arisen regarding the eligibility of Governor Stokes to the United States Senate.

There are opposite arguments advanced. One is to the effect that the constitution absolutely prevents the selection of Stokes, no matter how anxious he might be to exchange Trenton for Washington, and how willing the legislature might be to promote him. It really looks as though the constitutional provisions acted as a bar. They say that the Governor cannot be elected to any office in the State or under the United States government by the legislature during the term of office for which he was chosen.

In opposition, it is asserted that if the Governor resigned some months ahead of the date for the Senate election and was succeeded in the regular way by the president of the State Senate, he would become the same as a private citizen and could accept any position that was offered, whether by appointment or election. But the wording of the constitution is that the Governor shall not be elected by the legislature to any office during the term for which he was elected. That language certainly seems definite. Mr. Stokes was elected for a term of three years, and it will not terminate until January, 1908. Even were he to resign and vacate the Governorship, it is argued that the term for which he was elected is binding until 1908. The next election for United States Senator will take place in January, 1907.

While this strong argument rather puzzles and staggers those who favor Stokes, it has not driven them out of the controversy. They raise all sorts of ingenious and evasive points. They claim that if the Coby proposition, indorsed by the Essex County Republican committee, should maintain generally in the State next year, and each county was to have the people designate their preference for United States Senator, and Stokes was to be the undoubted choice, it would be superior to the constitution. The will of the people, runs the argument, is always to be obeyed. As a matter of fact, if this is the best that can be advanced, it looks as though Governor Stokes would remain where he is, so far as the Senatorship is involved, until after the election of 1907. There is no harm, however, in listening to any opinions that the discussion may produce.

Even nature shed tears at Westfield's plight on Saturday.

Says the Czar in reply to a note from the clergy: "Never will I conclude a shameful peace." It would be hard to conceive of a peace compact that would be more shameful to Russia than the present state of war is to Nicholas' country.

Although the official returns of the census are coming in slowly, it is quite certain that Plainfield will be well toward the top of the list so far as percentage of gain in population is concerned. What is more, the class which this increase represents is hardly surpassable.

It should not take a month to paint the city flag pole at the head of Park avenue. The top mast was taken down sometime ago but has not yet been replaced. It should be restored without further delay and when it is the weather vane and the points of the compass, which were paid for with school childen's pennies, should be placed in their proper position at the top.

District Attorney Jerome, of New York, who begins every legal battle with a wind fest through public print and then turns the case over to an assistant to lose, is at it again. He is going to run the show all by himself and gives the Tammany ring notice that he will not be a headliner for their circus. In other words he is going to appear before the public in the greatest single ring show of the fall campaign.

The Democratic newspapers are saying that present indications in the field of political activity are that this is to be a people's year in New Jersey. Well, that is good. The people in New Jersey for the most part are Republicans and the State will be safe.—Elizabeth Journal.

After reading what Mr. Root and Mr. Bonaparte have said about Pennsylvania Republicanism and its effect, we can assert that there are exceptions sometimes to the Journal assertion.

What Everett Colby has the courage to do others can afford to do. But the fact is that even the best of men shrink from leading any fight for reform. They are right thinking and right intending and that is as far as it goes. In the end Colby may sacrifice any chance he has for political preferment but whatever the outcome the good he will do by boldly advocating true political principles will be remembered long after he has passed from public gaze.

STOKES STATUE UNVEILED.

Honor for First President of Asbury Park Camp Meeting.

The statue of Rev. E. H. Stokes, D. D., LL. D., first president of the Camp Meeting Association, was unveiled at Asbury Park Sunday afternoon. The American flag that was draped about the stone was removed by A. H. De Haven, member of the association while the assemblage sang "Nearer, My God, to Thee."

Gov. Stokes, a distant relative, presided at the exercises, which opened with singing "Hover Over Me, Holy Spirit." Following Rev. J. H. Alday, D. D., read a passage of Scripture and Bishop J. N. Fitzgerald, D. D., offered an invocation. Rev. A. E. Ballard, D. D., then led a responsive reading.

The oration was made by Bishop Henry Spellmeyer, D. D.

To Fight Liquor Law.

Ocean Grove's one mile limit prohibition is to be attacked by the Hotel Keepers' Association of Asbury Park, N. J. This organization met last night in secret at the Hotel Brunswick, Asbury Park. Mayor Frank L. Tenbroeck, proprietor of the West End Hotel, is a member of the association, but he did not attend last night's meeting and explain just why his crusade against liquor selling was inaugurated at the height of the season.

SUES EQUITABLE'S BOARD OF DIRECTORS

ATTORNEY GENERAL BEGINS ACTION AGAINST PROMINENT MEN.

Suit was begun yesterday in the Supreme Court by the Attorney-General of the State of New York against the Equitable Life Assurance Society, of New York, and the fifty prominent men who composed its Board of Directors up to a few months ago.

The action is brought on behalf of the people of the State in the public interest.

Attorney-General Mayer asks the Supreme Court for the following relief:

That the individual directors account for their management and disposition of funds and property.

That they be compelled to pay back any money acquired to themselves or lost or wasted through violation of their duties.

That those guilty of misconduct be removed.

That the surplus be credited to and distributed solely among the policy-holders.

The trial of this suit cannot take place before October at the earliest, and even then it probably will be much longer delayed by demurrers and technical moves.

ENLARGE SINGER PLANT.

When Addition is Completed It Will Be Largest Shop in the World.

A contract for a big addition to the Singer Manufacturing Company's plant at Elizabeth, has just been let to Milliken Brothers, of New York.

The building will be a wing on the north side of the present building, now the largest industrial establishment in New Jersey. It will have a frontage of 685 feet along First street and a depth of 80 feet, and will be six stories high. The addition will be constructed of brick, and the contract calls for its completion in six months. Milliken Brothers have the contract for the whole structure. When completed the Singer factory will be a little city by itself, giving employment to about 10,000 persons. There are about 7,000 working there now. It will thus be one of the largest employers in the world.

The reason for this new addition to the plant is to be found in the fact that the company has several new machines which it wishes to put on the market, but has not the room in which to manufacture them just now. The demand for their present machines also makes more space necessary.

JEROME'S POSITION.

Will be Independent Candidate for Renomination.

District-Attorney William Travers Jerome issued a declaration of political independence yesterday afternoon, announcing definitely and unreservedly that he desires to be re-elected District-Attorney of the county of New York, that he will accept the nomination by petition signed by the legal 2,000 electors of the county, irrespective of party and without regard to the wishes of any political leader.

He announces that he does not desire and never has desired the nomination for Mayor and has no wish to hold that office, and defies the party organization by stating that "groups of men and frequently single men have control of the executive machinery of party organizations and stand between the public servants and the voters."

CHANCELLOR'S VACATION.

Vice Chancellor Bergen Acting as Statutory Master.

Chancellor Magie has gone away on his vacation and will be out of the State, excepting two days, until the middle of September. He will come to Jersey City Chancery Chambers, August 14 and 15 to sign such orders as he cannot delegate power to any one else to do.

Before leaving the Chancellor filed in the Court of Chancery his appointment of Vice Chancellor Bergen as statutory master, in which capacity he will act until the Chancellor's return. Under this appointment Vice Chancellor Bergen can sign any paper the Chancellor can, except final decrees.

Vice Chancellor Bergen wants to go away on vacation August 15, so on the day before the Chancellor will replace him with one of the other Vice Chancellors.

WILSON'S EXPLANATION.

Secretary of Agriculture Confers with the President.

Secretary of Agriculture Wilson went to Oyster Bay yesterday by invitation of the President to discuss the scandals in his department.

After the conference the Secretary said regarding the exposures:

"They are mere fly-specks on a plate glass window when you compare them with the integrity of my department. We farmers make mistakes, of course, but most of us are honest. I believe that blunders rather than downright intentional wrongdoing, define the limits of the guilt of the subordinates in the Agricultural Department who have come to grief.

Plays Republican Club.

A number of young Republicans of Plainfield have formed a combination to boom Judge Runyon of that city for Senator with the avowed purpose of continuing that course whether the county leaders desire it or not. All of which sounds very brave and big but these same enthusiasts will take their orders when the time arrives whether the candidate selected by the bosses is Judge Runyon or not. There is nothing so subservient and servile as the average Union County Republican. He will bow the knee and bend the neck at every call from the organization and is so partisan that he would support and advocate a thief for a legislature position, rather than cast a vote for the ablest and most public-spirited citizen named on any other ticket. These who are counting on the Republican chances being affected in Union County this fall from any factional troubles might as well save themselves the trouble of figuring out such a theory. — Summit Record, Democratic.

Conjuring With Fowler.

Speculators are busy with the future of Representative Fowler. They are lining him up as the only opponent to Senator Kean five years hence, and, growing weary of this lay, they seem to imagine he ought to get into the race for Governor against Frank O. Briggs and William M. Johnson. Fowler, however, is attending to his regular business and probably never gives a thought to bulling the political market in this way. He will continue to hold his seat in Congress until a more powerful rival can defeat him in his district convention.—New York Press.

FOOTBALL IS UNCHANGED

Rules For 1905 Practically the Same as Last Year.

BETTER INTERPRETED

Referee Must Stop Stealing of Ball After Runner Is Held—Ten Yards Penalty for Side Line Coaching.

The official text of the football playing rules for the coming season fully bears out the predictions made earlier in the year that there would be no changes of importance in the system of play during the fall of 1905. Despite the hue and cry for a more open game, which was raised after the season closed last year, and the multitude of suggestions that were so freely offered on all sides, the game will still be recognizable when the teams take the field in the fall. Forward passes and all epoch-making innovations so freely predicted earlier in the year are still slumbering in the minds of their inventors. A close analysis of the rules of 1904 and 1905 fails to disclose anything in the way of a change in the methods of play differing from those in vogue last season.

In a foreword regarding the changes the rules committee states that "the changes in the football rules for 1905 for the most part bear upon the more strict interpretation rather than anything that will affect the detail of the play itself." This is amply borne out by a perusal of the rules corrected to date. Yet it cannot be said that no advance was made during the months that have elapsed since the pigskin and armor were laid away last November. Many minor details have been strengthened and points made clearer for both players and officers of the game. Probably the most important work of the committee was the incorporation of a notice in Rule 20, following Clause C, which states that "in order to prevent the prevalent stealing of the ball, the referee shall blow his whistle immediately when the forwrd progress of the ball has been stopped."

This action was taken owing to the increasing tendency among players to struggle for the possesion of the ball after the runner had been stopped, and if properly enforced by the referees at big games will go far toward relieving the play of undesirable spectacles. It can be said also that an equally rigid enforcement of other sections of the playing rules will do much toward removing the just cause for a demand for changes in the style of play that prevailed in 1904. That the officers of play already have ample power to enforce fair and sportsmanlike tactics has been repeatedly demonstrated.

Another change of considerable importance is that which legislates against players who make it a point to be out of bounds when the ball is put in play. This has been accomplished by the insertion of a claus in Rule 10 which provides that no player shall be out of bounds at the time when the ball is put in play, save as provided for in the case of the player holding the ball for a place kick. Another new feature is the insertion of the words "other than the snapper-back" in Rule 6, Clause D, which now reads: "If any player of the side in possession of the ball other than the snapper-back makes any deliberate attempt, by a false start or otherwise, to draw the opponents off-side, the ball, if then snapped shall not be regarded as in play nor the scrimmage as begun." This will overcome the conflicting clauses B and D as they read in Rule 6 last season.

As an aid to a cleaner and faster game legislation has been aimed at violations of the rules regarding the putting in of a substitute and coaching from the side lines. In the case of the latter a team whose coach, substitutes or others interested give instructions or suggetsions from the side lines will be penalized ten yards instead of the five yards of last year. Rule 27, Clause F, fully covers these points, being as follows:

"There shall be no coaching, either by substitutes or by any other persons not participating in the game. In case of accident to a player one representative of the player's team may, having first obtained the consent of the umpire, come upon the field to attend to the injured player. person other than the players, the officials the representatives above mentioned or an incoming substitute shall at any time come upon the field of play. Breach of any part of this rule shall constitute a foul, and be punished by a loss of ten yards to the side whose man infringes." The rule relating to the substitution of one player for another this season contains a note to the effect that the incoming player or substitute must report to the referee before lining up with his team.

In order to make definite what a captain might request in the way of giving of time, a note has been appended to the rule which states that the linesman shall notify the captains of the time remaining to play not more than ten nor less than five minutes before the end of each half, to the effect that there is no objection to the linesman giving the approximate time to the captain who asks for it at any time during the game. He may not, however, be asked for this time more than three times within the last five minutes of the half. These and one or two other changes of still minor importance constitute the changes in the football playing rules for 1905 and to the average spectator at the big games this autumn there will be no visible difference over that of the preceding fall.

SUSPICIOUS DEATH.

County Physician Declares Woman Took Poison by Mistake.

Mrs. W. E. Britt, of Atlanta, Ga., died at Reinle's sanitarium at Summit on Saturday, under circumstances so suspicious that the physician summoned to attend her refused to grant a burial certificate until the case had been investigated by the county physician. Reinle is not a physician, but conducts a sanitarium for the treatment of consumptives and his treatment, it is said, is entirely a diet of milk and vegetables, with the additional novel theory that confinement in a room under this treatment is more beneficial than the generally prescribed fresh air.

Mrs. Britt, it is said, suffered also from melancholia, and had been a patient at the place for some time. On Saturday one of the nurses found her unconscious, and when the physician arrived the woman was dead. It is said that it was clear that death was due to an overdose of chloral, and the doctor insisted on turning the case over to County Physician Westcott.

After an investigation Dr. Westcott decided that the woman had taken the overdose through mistake, and not with suicidal intent. She had been accostomed to using the drug, because of sleeplessness. Letters found among her effects indicated that her husband is also an invalid in Atlanta, and that because of the illness of both his financial condition was being severely strained.

The woman had about $500 worth of jewelry, and was about twenty-seven years of age. The body was shipped to Atlanta, yesterday.

Pennsylvania's Governor Seeks Aid in Proposed Divorce Plan.

Governor Pennypacker, of Pennsylvania, has requested Governor Stokes to co-operate in the assembling of a congress of delegates from the various states to meet at Washington with a view of adopting a draft of a general law covering divorces. If the plan should go through it is proposed to have the law reported to the Governors of the several states for submission to their respective legislatures.

Governor Stokes has taken no action upon the matter, but his present impression is that without the authority of the legislature he is without power to accept the invitation of Governor Pennypacker, who is acting under authority of an act of the Pennsylvania legislature passed last March.

SUMMIT GAINS 1,543.

Linden and New Providence Grow Large Since 1900.

Census bulletin No. 9, issued yesterday gives the figures for three Union county municipalities. It shows Summit's population as 6,845, an increase of 1,543 since 1900.

Linden township has 1,096, an increase of 477, and New Providence, 754, an increase of 189.

Newark's Population 283,289.

Newark's population, as officially declared by Census Supervisor James P. Hall to the Secretary of State yesterday, is 283,289. This represents an increase of 37,219, or fifteen and one-tenth per cent. over the federal census of 1900, when the returns gave that city 246,070.

THE FORUM.

Borough Death Rate.

Editor, The Daily Press:

Owing to the many deaths in the borough this summer I would state that in the year 1870 there were more deaths in the township, (now the borough,) per capita than this year. I have seen several funerals in two days within a radius of 384 feet from my home, 33 Linden avenue, one of which was my daughter, eleven months old. What was the cause then? What is it now?

SHADOWS SOCIETY WOMAN.

Mrs. Wetmore Causes Amateur Detective's Arrest.

Mrs. Katherine H. Wetmore, a society woman, of Allenhurst, who has a winter home at No. 37 Madison avenue, New York, caused the arrest of Werdon A. Smith, a negro, in Jersey City, yesterday afternoon. She said Smith had been shadowing her for several days, and that she was afraid to go out alone.

In the police court the negro asserted that he is employed by lawyers to shadow the Wetmores; that the lawyers were retained by Major James B. Wetmore's first wife, from whom he was divorced, and that his mission was to learn the state of Major Wetmore's health.

TANGLED IN MATRIMONY.

Charles E. Heyward, of East Orange, Twice Married.

By a decision handed down by Justice Keogh, of the Supreme Court, of New York, a South Dakota divorce obtained by Charles E. Heyward, of East Orange, has been declared irregular and his marriage to Mrs. Annie V. Secor, formerly the wife of Horace V. Secor, Jr., a New York lawyer, is therefore not in accordance with law. The decision will also invalidate the divorce of Mrs. Secor in 1902, who, when she had been married fifteen years and had a daughter twelve years old, procured a divorce in Sioux City.

Old Preacher Dead.

Rev. Henry M. Brown, the pastor of the Methodist church at Cranbury, and one of the oldest preachers in the New Jersey Conference, died yesterday afternoon of acute indigestion. He had been a member of the conference for 59 years, and already arrangements were being made by his friends to fittingly observe the anniversary of his sixtieth year in the ministry.

Ex-Assemblyman Drops Dead.

Valvular disease of the heart caused the sudden death at Montclair yesterday of John F. Post, of Pompton, formerly a member of the New Jersey State Assembly from Morris county. He was talking to a friend when he collapsed. Mr. Post was born at Pompton in 1842.

WEST PLANTS TREES

PRAIRIE LANDS BECOMING DOTTED WITH TIMBER GROWTH.

Bureau of Forestry Advises the Planting of More Trees and Greater Care in the Selection of Kinds.

The agents of the bureau of forestry detailed to investigate planted groves and natural timber in the eastern half of the two Dakotas and the western third of Minnesota have completed their field work. The results of their investigations will be embodied in a report which will be published as soon as the data collected can be tabulated and definite conclusions drawn.

Throughout the region investigated a good deal of tree planting has been done to meet the requirements of the timber culture act or for protective purposes. Local benefits have been gained by this planting, and a study of the results gives a good basis for suggestion looking towards still better results in the future. The species most generally tried are those which grow naturally in the river bottoms of the region, together with some which have been introduced from Europe. They are cottonwood, boxelder, green ash, silver, maple, white willow and white elm. These trees have some admirable qualities, but are in some respects unsuited to the region.

The ideal tree for planting on the prairie is one which is able to resist extremes of drought and temperature, is free from insect enemies, makes a rapid growth, and is at the same time valuable for both protective and commercial uses. Some of the conifers or evergreens have these characteristics in a high degree, and enough planting of certain species of pine, spruce and larch has been done to prove their superiority. For future planting in this section the bureau will probably recommend the substitution to a large extent of cone-bearing trees for some of the species which have been in common use.

In the past the timber value of trees was a secondary consideration. Trees were planted for their protective value and for ornament. But by a proper choice of trees a direct profit can also be reaped. A species which meets commercial requirements will, in most cases, answer all other demands. This additional commercial benefit in tree planting the bureau will emphasize in its forthcoming report.

The region examined is prairie land, very fertile, and for the most part devoted to profitable farming. But the hot, dry winds from the southwest are very injurious in summer, while the crops are maturing; in the long winters the piercing cold winds from the northwest are a menace to live stock as well as a source of great discomfort. Hence windbreaks along the south, west and north sides of farms, buildings and inclosures contribute largely to the welfare of farm life. It is of the first importance that the kinds of trees composing these windbreaks should be those which will most quickly reach the size demanded to furnish efficient protection, and at the same time permanently hold their ground and perform their office. In addition, they should yield good commercial returns. The careful consideration which the bureau has given to this side of the question should make its recommendations of great value to the farmers of the extensive region studied.

Dandified Disraeli.

A contemporary of Disraeli in his memoirs records this impression of that famous dandy's personal appearance. Usually he wore a slate-colored velvet coat, lined with satin; purple trousers, with a gold braid down the outside seam; a scarlet waistcoat, long lace ruffles falling down to the tips of his fingers; white gloves, with brilliant rings outside them, and long black ringlets rippling down over his shoulders. When he rose in the house he wore a bottle-green frock coat, with a white waistcoat, collarless, and a copious supply of gold chains.

MAYOR OF PORTLAND.

Hon. George H. Williams, Chief Executive of Exposition City, Has Held Many Offices.

Portland, Ore.—When Portland cast about for a mayor to represent the city during the Lewis and Clark exposition Hon. George H. Williams, then 80 years old and one of the most picturesque men in Oregon politics, was chosen. It seemed a great sacrifice to ask of a man of his age, but the venerable statesman readily accepted the cares of public office. Perhaps to a man who was the first chief justice of the territory of Oregon, then United States senator, attorney general under President Grant, and the latter's nominee for chief justice of the supreme court of the United States, the duties of mayor of Portland did not seem exacting. While Mayor Williams' administration has been satisfactory to the majority of citizens, a wave of reform which swept over the western city resulted in his indictment by a reform grand jury on the ground that he had neglected to enforce the laws against gambling; this because the city administration had been allowing certain gambling houses to run under a license system by which the depleted coffers of the city were replenished with money that was spent in various public ways. Not a shadow of reproach has tarnished Judge Williams' name, and it was with general relief that the citizens received the news that the circuit court had quashed the indictment against him. Judge Williams is now 82 years old, hale and hearty, serene in spite of bitter attacks, vigorous in mind and dignified in men, a gentleman of the old school who will show to Portland visitors this summer the courtesy inbred in the statesman of 50 years ago.

HON. GEORGE H. WILLIAMS.
(Former Cabinet Officer, Now Oldest Mayor in United States.)

CHICKEN COOPS ON STILTS

Indians of Arizona Elevate Them as Protection Against Floods and Coyotes.

Phoenix, Ariz.—In the driest deserts of Arizona dwell the Papago Indians. They are very good Indians and quite civilized, living in mud houses and doing their cooking in outdoor kitchens in circular inclosures protected from the wind by grass mats fastened to stakes and with a fire in the middle.

One peculiarity of these Indians (who by the way are such formidable warriors that even the Apaches are afraid of them) is that they elevate many things upon stilts. Their mail boxes are on stilts to keep them out of the reach of the coyotes, which will eat a letter if it has been handled by human beings, and also because of the annual floods. It rains in that region only about once a year, but then—how it does pour! The heavens seem actually to open, and immense areas are temporarily converted into lakes.

To keep them out of reach of the floods and the coyotes the Papago chicken coops are elevated high in the air—15 or 20 feet—and at night, when it is time to go to roost, the fowls fly up and find perfect safety in their lofty eyries.

Beckolith a New Mineral.

Dr. Moroslewicz, professor of mineralogy at the University of Crakow, announced at the general meeting of the Mineralogical society of Vienna recently that he has discovered a new mineral, to which he has given the name of Beckolith, in honor of the Vienna mineralogist, Prof. Frederick Beck. He asserts that it does not correspond to any of the mineral combinations so far known, but resembles mostly combinations of garnet, having similar regular crystals, and contains many rare earths, which form 75 per cent. of its volume. The chief components are cero, lanthano, and didymo oxides, and it may be of use for the manufacture of chemical products, especially for the light industry. The discovery was made during a scientific exploration in southern Russia. The rock in which it was found is called marinpolith.

NOTICE!
"In behalf of your proprietory article called AZIENZA CREAM, as a remedy for diseases of the skin, I desire to add my appreciation of its wonderful properties as a cure in a case of Bone Turner or Abscess of five years growth on my husband's back, which I have cured in less than five weeks time by constant application, and now it is as well as any part of his body. It was cut out once by a specialist and had again grown to a large size, was as hard as a bone and of a very dark purple color. The AZIENZA at once allayed the pain and began to soften it, and in less than eight days, by my pressure upon it, suddenly to my surprise it discharged a quantity of pus, impregnated with a hard, cheesy substance. I kept it open and caused it as it discharged and every day would dress it with a plaster of AZIENZA CREAM, until it was entirely healed up. I cannot speak to highly of AZIENZA CREAM and its merits. For inquiry regarding this case you may apply to Mr. and Mrs. James Embury Ave., cor. Hiller, Ocean Grove, N. J. Signed, July 12, 1905: Mrs. C. W. James, Mr. C. W. James." Leading Druggists, 25c-50c

Feminine Snapshots

Oriental Spirit Among Western Women

Very carefully I have thought the matter over, and, on the whole, the woman that makes me the weariest of all is the wife who panders to the vanity of a man for what she can get out of him. Lately I was talking to—that is, I was listening to—a woman, who, after the old time manner of her sex, filled and thrilled me with domestic details. Along with a story that is told always goes one that is untold, and this untold one revealed to me how the wife flattered her husband to the top notch and thereby wheedled out of him extravagant sums for her own spending. By pandering to his masculine vanity she was able to gratify her own vanity. As usual with women of the oriental type, her aspirations were toward the noble height of costlier clothing and more display of mere vulgar wealth than her women acquaintances could afford. She told me of some young canary birds that she had allowed to take their first flight from their cage in the dining room. Her husband was present on this important occasion and she said to him: "Just see! You can tell in a minute which of these birds is the male. Look at him! There he goes, as if he owned the earth—strong, fearless, proud, wanting to fight everything and everybody—while the little female is as meek and quiet and peaceable as can be, ready to give up everything to him. Ain't it natural-like?" Whereupon the infinitely gratified and infinitely gulled husband declared that it was just as natural as life. So it was, for that wife herself had the brains of a canary—no more. If she had had the brains of a fully developed woman she would not have tried to wheedle her husband into extravagant spending in the first place, and in the second place she would not have had to resort to the tactics of a slave or a dog to obtain what she needed.

Kindly note these recent items: The lovely, famous and fascinating Countess of Warwick lately toured England, making campaign speeches in the interests of organized labor and of woman's rights. One of her demands is a vote for every man and woman over the age of twenty-one. Item second: Miss Ruth Belle Young has won a prize from Columbia university for an essay on the subject of the relations of the United States with the Latin American republics. (Women cannot understand politics.) Item third: One of the infamous "mashers" for whom New York city is notorious the other day walked up to a strange young woman and threw his arms around her. The girl turned like lightning, hauled off with her fist and hit the fellow a blow that knocked him down, he falling backward and fracturing his skull against the curbstone, and the judge said she served him exactly right.

It is very satisfactory to know that in our republic a girl may still work her way through college and be liked and respected by all her classmates, even though some of them are millionaires' daughters. That is the case with Miss Lucy Esther Macdonald, who was lately graduated from Smith college. She was class president during her senior year.

There can be no Osler club formed among women, for not enough women can be found to acknowledge they are over sixty.

Chief among the blessings of the feminine sex today is that it has play for the powers it possesses, whether they are small or great.

If you are obliged to say disagreeable things to either grown people or children practice the art of saying them as gently as possible. Respect the human dignity in all that wears human form. Think of the manner in which you would be willing to have others speak to you under such circumstances.

One of the important movements among women at present is the very general organizing into unions of those who work at trades. When women in the trades organize and hang together as men do the wages of the feminine sex will rise all along the line. The Women's Trades Union league is doing brave work in this respect. One of the newest trades organizations among women is that of the finishers and buttonhole makers on garments of all kinds.

A club of fine old boys has been organized in Brooklyn to prove Dr. Osler wrong in his alleged remark that a man should be put gently out of the swim after he is sixty years old. The club admits no man under sixty, and its members expect to prove that a fine young chap of threescore and past is as good a man as one of thirty. Well, it's time men were waking to the importance of keeping young. There is no more unpleasant sight on this planet than a decayed and decrepit old man.

Mutsuhito, the wonderful emperor of Japan, is what he is largely because he was educated under the supervision of a remarkable woman, his mother.

TWO CENT STAMPS NEEDED FOR CARDS

SOUVENIRS OF WOOD OR LEATHER DON'T GO WITH UNCLE SAM.

The news report that 20,000 postal cards had been held up after being mailed at Atlantic City because of insufficient postage led to an investigation as to conditions at the local post office. Here it was said that there were a correspondingly smaller number of such cases, though they did occur. The larger number of deficient postage matter still remains letters, however.

Cardboard postals of the ordinary size even if decorated on the back, will go still for the regulation one cent, but for wooden ones or leather souvenir postals a two cent stamp is required. The Post Offices all over the country have received much stricter rules about these postals of late since they are sent in such large numbers, and although anyone is liable from time to time to get one of the leather or wooden ones for a cent stamp a risk has been taken as to the knowledge of the clerk at the sending office. Lots of things pass in the rush occasionally.

Souvenir postals already mailed but with insufficient stamps on them will after awhile find their way to the dead letter office unless the person to whom they are addressed gets busy on the notice being sent and sends on the necessary stamp, when they will be forwarded. No wonder lots of people are heard complaining daily that so and so at the shore did not write or even send a postal. Probably it was sent but the postage affixed only took it half way.

As regards the indecent souvenir postals sent so frequently through the mails and local authorities have not been so much bothered as in some places. If these are noticed to be improper or too suggestive the clerk is supposed to suppress them as the penalty is very strict providing for the sending of indecent or obscene matter through Uncle Sam's mails. It makes no difference whether the souvenir is detected at the sender's end or the receiver's end so long as it is not proper. No amount of postage will forward it then, but down it goes to Washington to be ignominiously buried. Prosecution is also liable to follow in cases where the address of the sender is affixed to a particularly objectionable card.

The increase in the sale of the one cent stamp since the post card craze reached its height has been proportionately great. A rough estimate was that four times the usual amount of stamps had been sold here since the craze came in. With the large number of the nobby leather and burnt work wooden souvenirs now to be procured it looks as if the pink two cent stamps will again be necessarily affixed by all persons wishing their thoughtfulness to be appreciated by their friends. Besides pink is a much prettier color and there are more two to be had off hand than ones. So girls save your pennies.

CARE FOR YOUR BOOTS.

Always keep footwear on trees when not being worn, and your shoes will be in good condition until the end.

If you do not want to spend 60 or 75 cents for trees to fit each pair, the next best plan is to stuff the toes well with tissue paper, putting in enough to take out the wrinkles.

After taking off a pair of shoes air them for half an hour before putting on the trees, and rub the dust out of the leather with a flannel rag, or brush if the cloth does not thoroughly clean.

A good friction polish that contains enough oil to keep the leather soft should be put on every two or three days when the shoes are constantly in use.

Tan shoes require more polishing and cleaning than black ones, and it is necessary to frequently wash them with soap and water to get off the stains that the friction polish does not remove.

Occasionally a little oil put on vici and calf helps to keep the leather elastic and soft, and at the same time makes the shoes as near waterproof as is possible.

If your shoes have been wet through in a rainstorm put them on trees or fill them with tissue paper as soon as you get home. When they are dry rub them generously with an oil, to soften the leather then put on the friction polish and the shoes should look the same as they did before the wetting.

To clean spots and dirt from canvas and buckskin shoes use the prepared powders and fluids that can be prepared powders and fluids that can be purchased in any of the stores for from 14 to 25 cents. Pipe clay put on dry with a stiff brush and then brushed out leaves the white canvas or duck as clean as when they were purchased.

Suede kid is cleaned with prepared powders or fluids and is easily done at home. The only way to remove stains and dirt from satin or silk footwear is with naphtha or gasoline, and instead of cleaning just the soiled spot the entire shoe should be rubbed to keep the entire material from looking spotted when dry and ready for use.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Mrs. W. W. Warnock, of Craig place, is visiting relatives at Englewood.

LITERARY.

The August number of the Atlantic has been carefully planned to be a summer fiction number of the first interest. The editors hope that the suggestion of such titles as "The Clammer," "In Swimming," "An Apology for the Country," "Above the Clouds at Metequi," may be found cooling and seasonable. The fiction of the number, "The Clammer," "The Pilgrim Chamber, "The Baritone and the Office Boy," and "We," C. D. Stewart's clever parody of Rudyard Kipling's much discussed "They," will be especially attractive to lovers of stories, while the essays of the number, "The Romance of the Milky Way," by Lafcadio Hearn, "In Swimming," by Arthur Stanwood Pier," "The Breaking in of a Yachtsman's Wife," by Mary Heaton Vorse, "Un Conge sans Cloche," by Agnes Repplier," "Above the Clouds at Metequi," by Anna Seaton Schmidt.

LAKE HOPATCONG'S LEVEL.

Water is Nearly Three Feet Below High Mark.

As is usual at this time of year, the level of Lake Hopatcong has fallen considerably below high water mark. It is now about two and a half feet below the high level and about two inches below the point reached at this time a year ago.

There is no occasion for alarm. No damage whatever is being done because of the lowering of the lake, which is yearly anticipated, because of the drawing off of water through the Morris and Essex Canal, while the rainfall is comparatively small.

FIRMNESS WITH CHILDREN.

In too many households there are noisy, unruly, quarrelsome children, who make themselves a nuisance from morning till night.

Their parents look forward to the time when they can be put to bed and they may get rid of them, and yet who are more to blame for the condition of things than the parents themselves?

It is only children who have been sadly managed or carelessly brought up that make themselves bugbear to their elders, says an exchange.

Of course, allowance must be made for difference in disposition. Still, when children are disagreeable and a nuisance it is almost always because they are mismanaged.

When they are naturally inclined to be bad tempered and mischievous there is more need for them to be wisely managed.

Children that are delicate or ailing require a great deal of kindness, but a firm hand as well, or they will become unbearable cranks.

How often it is the case that children are naughty because they are thirsty or hungry, or because they have been allowed to eat all day or been fed improper food?

Sleep is another very important factor in a child's life, and late hours bring about ill temper.

Children's clothes should always be loose enough to allow perfect freedom in all their exercise and play.

Tight bands and collars must never be put on their dresses.

You must remember that children do not understand. They have only a vague sense of discomfort, and they express it by being restless and ill-tempered.

Let a child once understand that father and mother will grant his wishes if they think it is reasonable and wise to do so, and you are sowing the seeds of reason and logic in the young mind which will help him over many rough places in after years.

Be decisive with your children. When you say no, mean it, and when you say yes or make a promise abide by it.

Children will soon learn that they may trust you and that all the whining in the world will do them no good if you have given your word. You will inspire respect and confidence in them, and that is the secret of your influence over them. It lies with you to make them a burden to yourself and all with whom they come in contact or to encourage in them by such god training the qualities that will help to make life pleasant for them and their friends and companions through life.

Mrs. Cormack Caulfield and daughter, Miss Mary Caulfield, of West Front street, sailed last week for Ruscommon, Ireland, to visit her mother and other relatives. She expects to be gone three months.

—For the convenience and comfort of the operators at the local telephone office, Manager C. W. Runyon has had a large electric fan placed at one end of the long switchboard where each one will get the benefit of the breeze. Before the fan was directly overhead and was of little benefit.

CLOSED PORTALS.

Arrangements are being made by the Elks of Montclair for a fair which is to be held by the lodge during the week beginning October 16. The funds derived from it will be used for the building of a clubhouse and home for the lodge in Montclair. The building planned will cost about $40,000, and several thousands of this amount have already been raised. Among the features of the bazaar will be the prizes, among which are mentioned a $2,500 automobile in which stock will be sold; an Oldsmobile, a $1,000 piano and a valuable billiard table.

COMPLAIN OF BOYS' BEHAVIOR AT POOL

RESIDENTS SAY THEY SWEAR SCANDOUSLY—SUNDAY BATHING QUESTION

Complaints of the conduct of the boys who frequent the new swimming hole have begun to be heard among the residents of the neighborhood. Demands for more stringent policing and regulations at the pool are being made.

It is said that the boys fill the air with profanity and obscenity on their way to and from the pool, annoying the residents of the properties over which they travel. A woman rebuked a very small boy for using had language a few days ago, and the torrent of abuse she evoked amazed her by its depth and power as much as it scandalized her, and other residents have had similar experiences.

The Sunday bathing question is also a source of discussion. Nearly a hundred boys and men were at the pool last Sunday, and the steady travelling back and forth gave the neighborhood an un-Sabbatarian look.

It is suggested by several of those interested in this aspect of the case that the Sunday bathing be restricted to certain hours. It is said that Sunday-school attendance suffered last Sunday. Some girls were at the pool last Sunday and the purists want this feature of the good-conduct problem looked after.

JOURNALISTIC OPINION

Good Fishing.

Fishing in these waters is better this season than has been known for several years. Boat owners along shore have all their boats out nearly every day and Sundays and holidays the bay is covered with the fishing parties. This sport is one of the real attractions in Perth Amboy.—Perth Amboy News.

A Disgrace to Atlantic City.

The recent tormenting and childish public performances with regard to the paving of Atlantic avenue simply disgust the business men and taxpayers of Atlantic City. The damage being done is beyond estimate. Atlantic avenue business people are not the only sufferers. The whole resort suffers with them.

On Saturday last, and on Sunday as well, the avenue was a soaking litter of black filth, such as would be a disgrace in a stable yard. Arriving visitors, including hundreds of daintily-shod women, were forced to wade in foul mud. Crossings were deep in slime, and elsewhere wagons splattered the mess on the dress of pedestrians.

There is brought to mind an old but appropriate parable about killing the goose that laid the golden eggs which Council appears never to have read.—Atlantic City Journal.

G. O. P. Club Meeting.

A meeting of the Plainfield Republican Club will be held tonight. The session will be held in Central hall as usual.

—Lovers of fine Maryland muskmelons will find them at Neuman Brothers. They are rich in flavor and all are specially selected for the best trade.

PORTO RICAN DELEGATE IN CONVENTION MAKE DEMAND FOR SELF GOVERNMENT

San Juan, Porto Rico, Aug. 1.—Delegates from 82 municipalities of the island of Porto Rico have formulated a protest against the present scheme of the United States for its West Indian colony.

The convention called itself a municipal league. Smaller leagues have been organized throughout the towns of the island, so that the delegates claim that there is now an endless chain of protestants. Mayor Robert H. Todd, of San Juan, is the leader of the movement.

In the main, the league wants to elect the members of the upper house of the colonial legislature. At present this body is called the executive council and is composed of six Americans and five Porto Ricans. All are appointed by the President of the United States, with the confirmation of the senate. The lower branch, or house of delegates, is entirely elective. All are natives.

If the upper house were an elective body the leaders in the league admit it would also be entirely composed of natives. In other words, the Porto Rican wants to legislate for himself, although he is part of neither a territory or a state. The league states that it proposes to memorialize congress to amend the Foraker act, which is the present constitution of the island.

PROPER MIXTURE OF SAWDUST AND GASOLINE MAKES WET DIAMOND FIT TO PLAY ON

The threatening aspect of the clouds overhead kept many people away from Wiedenmayer's Park, Newark, Saturday afternoon, and for awhile even the ball players themselves doubted whether they would be able to pull off a contest. A severe rain storm in the early morning hours flooded the ball park enclosure and when Manager Burnham and the groundkeeper later visited the grounds they at once realized that heroic measures were imperative. Fortunately there was a supply of sawdust on hand, eleven barrels of it having been carted to the park. Securing several gallons of gasoline the fluid was mixed with the sawdust and this mixture was spread about the diamond promiscuously. Matches were touched to the inflammable mixture and soon the entire diamond was literally ablaze. The sawdust and gasoline combination did the work more satisfactorily than was even hoped for, and when the Newark and Rochester players went out on the diamond at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon the field was in fairly good shape. The base lines were comparatively dry and there was but little mud in evidence, though pools of water here and there bore evidence that a severe storm had visited the park.

Bolt Hit Barn.

Lightning struck the barn on William Coddington's place, Mt. Horeb, Sunday night. The place was stocked with grain, but no live stock, and the barn was totally consumed. The barn is one of the largest in the county.

Fire Alarm Break.

In cutting down trees at the electric light station this morning the workmen caused the one blow that sounded on the fire whistle. One of the trees broke the wire.

PERSONAL.

Neaf Apgar has been at the bedside of his sick mother in New Germantown, N. J., for the past few days.

Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Harder, of Madison avenue, returned home last night from their summer outing.

Charles P. Titsworth, of Madison avenue, has returned from a two weeks' cruise with George Babcock in Long Island sound.

Mrs. F. M. Ward and son, of Fairview avenue, will sail for Europe this afternoon on the Cunard liner Campania. They will be gone about six weeks.

NINE PERSONS HURT AS TROLLEY CARS CRASH

Head-on Collision at Second Street and Leland Avenue Result of Blockade.

MILD PANIC FOLLOWS

Motormen Stick to Their Posts Until the Last Moment — Injured Treated by Dr. Pittis and Then Sent Home.

Filled with scores of passengers from this city and other places, two of the Public Service's largest trolley cars collided head on just east of Leland avenue at 5.15 yesterday afternoon, slightly injuring nine persons and creating a mild panic. The conveyances met with a terrific impact and both were badly damaged. That loss of life did not occur is in all probability due to the heroism of Motormen Lyons and VanDoren who remained at their posts and sought by every possible means to avert the crash. The injured are:

GEORGE BALL, Scotch Plains; severe bruises.

MRS. GEORGIANA BOYDEN, Trueli Court; injured about the head.

J. J. BROWN, Hotel Iroquois; general contusions.

MRS. GEORGE H. GUINN, Carlton avenue; contusions and shock.

WILLIAM HOPE, Raritan; contusions and cuts about the head.

JAMES KANARY, South Second street; bruises and cut fingers.

PETER LINZER, West Second street; cuts about the head and contusions.

MRS. U. G. PIERSON, Richmond street; general contusions.

MRS. SOPHIE WILLIAMS, Hudson street, New York; cut by flying glass.

Several physicians were summoned from this city and Dr. Albert Pittis was the first to respond. He attended those most severely hurt after which they were removed to their homes, most of them in the police patrol which was early on the scene. Of the list given above Linzer, Hope, Mrs. Guinn and Mrs. Williams suffered the most and will be detained at home for at least several days. The first three of these made an attempt to escape and leaped to the ground just as the crash came. They were thrown heavily and beside landed in the path of the flying debris. Mrs. Williams was treated by Dr. Pittis and was able to continue her journey home.

The accident was due to the breaking of an axle on a small box car carrying supplies from the Westfield barns to this city. It left the tracks at the switch marking the entrance to the double track beginning between Netherwood and Leland avenues. The regular cars were unable to pass and Superintendent Philip Maguire ordered the crews to transfer passengers. The first westbound car to arrive at the switch was No. 1706, of the closed style in charge of Motormen H. E. VanDoren and Conductor John Henry. It remained at the point a few moments while the transfer was made and then started back on the same track. It had just gotten under full headway on the long curve near Leland avenue, when open car No. 1201, with Motorman Lyons and Conductor McDowell, of Newark, appeared just ahead of it running west at a high rate of speed. Both motormen jammed the brakes down hard but No. 1201 was going too fast to be checked and it hit the other with a jar that almost threw both from their trucks. VanDoren and Lyons held on until the last minute and then jumped, otherwise both would have been caught in the wreckage.

The vestibule of No. 1706 was demolished and the entire front of No. 1201 was pushed in. In addition nearly every window of both was broken and the motors were slightly damaged.

Assistant Superintendent Burke, of the Elizabeth-Plainfield division, was on No. 1201 and assisted in the work of caring for the injured and straightening out the tangled schedule. Traffic on the through line was delayed about an hour.

Funeral of an Infant.

The funeral services of Percival Kirkman, aged three years, was held from the home of the parents, No. 1 Watchung avenue, yesterday afternoon, at 2o'clock. Rev. Mr. Schneegas, of the German Reformed church, officiated and the interment was in the Methodist cemetery.

SAVED HIMSELF FROM GOING UNDER WAGON

BOY THROWN FROM WHEEL CLINGS TO A SHAFT.

Presence of mind saved William Hand, 12 years old, a son of Fred Hand, of East Second street, from going under the wheels of a wagon on West Front street yesterday afternoon, when his bicycle skidded and threw him.

Young Hand was riding in the car tracks near the corner of Madison avenue when his front tire slipped on one of the rails. His wheel shot in one direction and he was thrown in another. He was thrown against the side of a horse drawing one of the Coriell brass foundry wagons. As he struck, the boy caught hold of the shaft and hung on with all his strength. The driver pulled up in a hurry and Hand jumped away. He would have been run over but for his grip on the shaft.

He was somewhat shaken, but not hurt. The wheel was undamaged.

FOURTH GAME SATURDAY.

Westfield Sees Championship Leaving It.

The fourth contest in the county championship series of ten between Plainfield and Westfield, will be played on Crescent Oval, and as the Daabsters have taken three straight, the Denmanites are growing desperate. The Westfield supporters are having a sad awakening from their pleasant dreams that they would continue to float the championship pennant from the staff in Recreation Park, and in the words of Manager Denman there will be something doing before Saturday. Westfield has got to score a victory and with Mr. Denman's promise that such a thing will come to pass, there is much anxiety on the part of the Westfield fans over the approaching contest.

It need not surprise the fans to see a whole new team representing Westfield on Saturday, with the exception of the battery. Mr. Denman believes that "Red" Waller and "Paddy" Cotter are good enough, but the rest of the team is far from coming up to his expectations and he realizes that to get in the game he will have to make some changes.

Manager Daab will have the best players obtainable, and if Deegan does not fill the bill there are others who will. "Billy" Beck, who justified the claim of his friends last week, will probably be given a chance to repeat the performance on Saturday and as he has fully recovered from his illness, he can be counted on to hold Westfield down. Everyone agrees that the down-the-line aggregation should have been shut out last week, but for an unfortunate decision, and Beck will again try for a whitewash. The lineup of the Plainfield team will be the same as last week, but Westfield's team will probably be changed considerably.

Mr. Denman says that he will have a new first baseman, centre fielder and short stop in Saturday's game, in the places of McCormick, McGoey and Patience. He further says that Westfield will take the next contest. Mallen, of the "hot air" variety, will not play on the coaching lines.

GOES TO PANAMA.

R. A. McIntosh Secures Good Position on Canal.

Robert C. McIntosh, son of H. R. McIntosh, of 811 College place, superintendent of motive power for the New Jersey Central, has secured a position in connection with the construction of the Panama Canal, and will sail for the isthmus soon. He will have charge of the machinery used in the construction.

Mr. McIntosh is a graduate mechanical engineer. He is a member of Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T., and Mecca Temple, Ancient Arabic Order, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine.

Former Assemblyman Meeker Hurt.

Former Assemblyman E. A. Meeker, of Elizabeth, met with an accident at Long Branch Friday, while riding in his big red car, which has just been made public. His chauffeur turned the corner of Morris and Third avenues too abruptly, striking the curb. The machine came near toppling over and threw Mr. Meeker out with considerable force. The injured man has since been at his apartments at the Imperial Hotel. He sprained his wrist and his body was badly bruised.

A Dime Sociable.

Under the auspices of Friendship Lodge, Daughters of Rebecca, a dime sociable was held at the home of Miss Anna Ketfenring, on Race street, last night. The women had a jolly time. The committee in charge of the affair consisted of: Mrs. P. H. Latourette, chairman, Mrs. J. B. Higgins and Mrs. A. Kittenring.

FATALITY ON THE RAIL

Thirteen-year-old Thomas Murphy Horribly Crushed Beneath a Coal Train.

DIED AT HOSPITAL,

Accident Witnessed by a Woman Who Summoned Assistance—Victim the Son of Timothy Murphy.

As a long Eastbound freight rumbled by her home about 3:45 o'clock yesterday afternoon, a woman who lives in a house overlooking the Jersey Central tracks near New street, saw a boy sitting on the edge of a big gondola car. He was swaying with the motion of the train. Suddenly he dropped from sight down the side of the car. When the train rolled by she saw a quivering bundle lying across the track.

She shrieked to George Leland who was on the sidewalk and he bounded up to the tracks. He found Thomas Murphy, the thirteen-year-old son of Timothy Murphy, a laborer, of 213 Spooner avenue, going into the valley of the shadow. The boy was beyond hope.

His right leg was cut off, the other was crushed, his left arm was fractured and torn, his skull was fractured, and he had internal injuries serious enough to kill him alone. Despite his terrible injuries the boy was semi-conscious.

Leland tried to lift him, but found the task too much. He ran down the track and secured the assistance of William Galloway, who was unloading ice at the Central Bottling works, Central avenue. Together they carried the boy to the bottling company's office. Manager Westcott called out the ambulance, and fearing that the hospital vehicle not being ready for service, called for the patrol wagon also. The ambulance was ready, however, and carried the boy to Muhlenberg Hospital.

He was still partially sensible when taken into the examination room, and managed to give his name. A few minutes later he lapsed into unconsciousness, and died at 4:30 o'clock.

As soon as the boy was brought into his office, Manager Westcott sent word of the accident to the boy's home by one of his men. Mr. Murphy reached the hospital before the lad died.

Young Murphy was one of a crowd of West End boys who have made it a practice of jumping coal and freight trains for two years or more. The police had frequently warned him to quit the pastime but without avail and he was on the road nearly every day. The train on which he was injured was boarded by himself and several others at Grant avenue, but none of his companions knew just what caused him to lose his grip and fall beneath the wheels.

The funeral services will be held from the parents' home tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock and from St. Mary's church at 9:45, where a solemn high mass will be said. Interment will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

To Press Claims.

Lawyer William G. DeMeza has been retained by J. C. Brown and Mrs. Harry Hadley to press claims against the P. S. C. for injuries received in the head-on collision on Second street yesterday afternoon.

TEN-YEAR-OLD GIRL, ALLEGED THIEF, FREED

JUSTICE DIDN'T BELIEVE SHE COULD REACH SHELF WHERE MONEY WAS.

Ida Sachar, ten years old, the daughter of Jacob Sachar, was arraigned before Justice Mosher this morning, charged with stealing $4.35 from a pantry in the house of Mrs. Anna McGuire, of West Third street. Eugene McGuire, the fifteen-year-old son of the complainant, swore to seeing the girl return to the house after his mother had sent her away with a half dozen eggs, and reach up in the closet, where Mrs. McGuire testified the girl saw her put the missing money after making change, and take something out.

The child was put on the stand in her own defense, but not sworn. She denied taking the money, but acknowledged going back into the house. She said she wanted a drink.

Fred J. Huff, lawyer for the girl, demanded the girl's release on the grounds that the story was entirely unbelievable. He said she couldn't reach the shelf. The boy had testified that the shelf was about the heighth of the girl's neck.

The justice said he didn't believe the girl could reach it, and that she was too young to hold, anyway. He accordingly dismissed the complaint.

CANADIANS TO PLAY IN GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP

WILL COMPETE WITH AMERICAN CRACKS IN CHICAGO.

There are 127 entries for the national amateur golf championship, to begin on Tuesday on the course of the Chicago Golf Club at Wheaton, Ill. The thirty-six hole qualifying round is to be split into two eighteen hole rounds, played on Tuesday and Wednesday, an arrangement that would permit 200 to start without congesting the course.

In class the entries leave but little to be desired, for of the tried timber only Findlay S. Douglas, John M. Ward, C. H. Seely, Archibald Graham and A. G. Lockwood are missing from the Eastern set. H. Chandler Egan, the titleholder, who proved successful in defending his Western amateur championship will attempt the same feat in the national, and his cousin, Walter, is also engaged. The list also shows last year's runner-up, Fred Herreshoff and the two bronze medalists, D. P. Fredericks and W. T. West. Former amateur champions included are Walter J. Travis, Louis N. James and C. B. Macdonald. Among likely candidates, too, are E. M. Byers, twice runner-up; G. A. Ormiston, A. L. White, the Intercollegiate Golf Association champion; Percy R. Pyne, 2d, W. P. Smith, James M. Rhett, Thomas M. Sherman, Dr. Simon Carr and Jerome D. Travers.

Canada will be represented for the first time, by invitation of the United States Golf Association. George S. Lyon, of the Lambton Golf Club, who has just won the Canadian amateur championship for the fourth time, is to lead a team in the Olympic trophy contest which precedes the championship, and the invitation of the U. S. G. A. has been extended to make the trip more interesting. The Canadians with Mr. Lyon will be former champion, W. A. H. Kerr, F. H. Martin, Hamilton Golf Club, and Douglas Laird, Toronto Golf Club, and also of the Princeton team.

Daughters of Rebekah Active.

Esther Lodge, Daughters of Rebekah, of Elizabeth, has extended an invitation to Miss Eva VanDusen, of Manasquan, president of the order in New Jersey, to be present at the convention of lodges of this vicinity on September 1. An invitation has also been sent to Friendship Lodge, of this city, to be present on that date It has been accepted.

Funeral of Elsie Brokaw.

Funeral services over the body of Elsie Brokaw, who died Monday night, were held yesterday afternoon, at 5 o'clock, from the home of her parents Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Brokaw, of Duer street. Rev. Robert Love officiated. Interment was made in the M. E. Cemetery.

Francis S. Moran Buried.

Francis S. Moran, the young son of Mrs. Margaret Moran, of Lincoln Place, who died Monday night, was buried this afternoon at 4 o'clock from his mother's home. Interment was made in St. Mary's Cemetery.

Oak Tree A. A. Affair.

The Oak Tree A. A. will hold a festival and dance on VanCourt's lawn on Tuesday evening, August 15.

Mrs. J. W. VanSyckel, of Whitehouse, is visiting her sister, Mrs. J. Philip Kirch, of East Fifth street.

ROBBER GANG CAPTURED

Man They Held Up and Beat Leads Police to Their Sleeping Place.

FOUR DESPERADOES.

Somerville Authorities Believe Them to Have Committed Several Robberies in the Past Few Days.

After they had robbed and beaten him into insensibility Edward McManus, a resident of the Chimney Rock section brought about the arrest of four desperate highwayman this morning at Somerville. One of them is Dennis Harrington, of Somerville, who was paroled from the state reformatory a year ago and the others gave their names as James Duffey, John Reynolds and Martin Nixon but refused their addresses. All are young men and have every characteristic of the criminal type.

McManus was on his way home last night when the four set upon him in a dark section of the road and started to rifle his pockets. He gave them battle but in a few minutes was knocked insensible. They relieved him of money and a watch and then threw him into a ditch. He remained unconscious until early this morning when he was aroused by rain dropping on his face.

Though weak and stiff in every joint McManus searched the road and located the tracks of the gang which he followed up. They led him to Finderne and then to a barn owned by Edward Radel. Without thought of his danger he entered the place and came upon all four of his assailants sleeping in the hay mow. Carefully moving out again he secured enough nearby residents to surround the place and then hurried to Somerville for police. Two patrolmen were sent to the scene and the quartette was pounced upon before they were fully awake. One of them escaped but was caught after a lively chase during which two farm wagons were pressed into service.

In the barn the police found plunder which showed that the four were the men who robbed the home of E. W. Sterling at Finderne, Sunday night and made a second attempt last night but were driven off. A large number of whiskey bottles were also located in the barn and the fact that the Commercial hotel at Somerville, was robbed last night, has caused this crime to be fastened upon them. The police believe they are guilty of numerous other hold-ups and robberies and will make complete investigations before they are brought before the grand jury.

ALL THE CRAZY ARE NOT AT AMBOY

FORCE OF HABIT LEADS COUNTY SOLICITOR INTO FUNNY ERROR.

County Solicitor Willis, of Middlesex, has been so accustomed to handling Perth Amboy lunacy cases in court that it is getting habit with him to think witnesses in such cases are from Perth Amboy. Yesterday the husband of Anna Eliza Hanson went upon the witness stand in court at New Brunswick to tell why he cannot support his wife in the asylum.

"You live at Perth Amboy, do you not?" asked Mr. Willis.

"No, I live in South Plainfield," replied the witness.

The County Solicitor was much surprised.

The County Solicitor had two lunacy cases yesterday morning. Amy Patron, a Hungarian girl, aged 25, of Perth Amboy, was made a State charge. Chief of Police Burke, of Perth Amboy, testified that she had been in the county but a short time and in the country but a year and a half.

Anna Eliza Hanson, of South Plainfield, was made a county charge, she having lived in the county thirteen years and her husband testifying that he made but $45 a month and had six children to support.

Library Directors Meet.

The directors of the Plainfield Public Library passed a resolution, at its regular monthly meeting last night thanking O. T. Waring for his transparency of the Falls of the Yellowstone. A letter was read from the mayor appointing Dr. Leonard Waldo, William H. Larrabee and J. H. Case for directors to serve for three years. Officers were elected.

The Health Board Meeting.

The August meeting of the Plainfield Board of Health was postponed from yesterday until this afternoon at 4.30 o'clock, owing to the absence of some of the members from the the city.

NEGRO MURDERER CAPTURED BY LOCAL POLICE

Charles Long, Found Peacefully Ploughing Field on New Market Farm.

HE IS BROUGHT HERE

Chief Kiely and Patrolmen Higgins and McCarthy Make Arrest—Will Get Reward—Takes His Arrest Calmly.

Charles Long, the negro murderer, was captured by Chief of Police Kiely and two of his men this morning. They surrounded him in a field in New Market, where he was peacefully plowing, and placed him under arrest without a struggle. He acknowledged his identity and was taken to Trenton this afternoon. The three officers will divide $500 reward, the $250 originally offered having been increased at the beginning of the week to that figure.

Detective McCarthy and Patrolman Higgins were the officers who helped the Chief make the capture.

Chief Kiely received word yesterday morning that the negro was again in the South Plainfield neighborhood, and he went out on the trail. No trace of the fugitive was found, but the Chief learned enough to convince him that Long was actually in the neighborhood. Before he returned to the city last night he learned from Henry Van Nuis, a New Market farmer, for whom Long had worked, and whom the negro regarded as his friend, that the murderer was back in the district. The Chief had an idea that Long might turn up at the Van Nuis place, and a message he received this morning vindicated his detective instinct in that direction.

The word was to the effect that Long was actually at work on the Van Nuis farm. The Chief commandeered one of P. L. C. Martin's fast touring cars, and with the three officers, shattered speed rules in a dash for New Market. George McIntyre was the auto expert who drove the machine. This was at 8.15 o'clock.

Van Nuis confirmed the message, and told them that Long was at work in a field. The negro crept into the Van Nuis barn last night, and showed himself when the farmer entered the building early this morning. He said he wanted to go to work.

"I'll be safe in the fields," he said.

Van Nuis set him to plowing.

The officers found him quietly turning furrows in a field about a half-mile distant from the house. A covert of trees lay to the back of the field, and the ends of the furrows pointed in that direction.

The officers crept around the edge of the field like Indian stalkers using a thick fringe of bushes to shield them from Long's view. McCarthy was posted at the head of the last furrow turned, with orders to spring on Long as he reached it. Kiely and Higgins hid in the woods with drawn revolvers to block his one and natural avenue of escape.

As Long reached the end of the furrow McCarthy jumped on him. The negro went down and the Chief and Higgins sprinted from cover to McCarthy's assitance. Long was overpowered so quickly that he had no chance to resist.

A search failed to reveal anything in the shape of a weapon on him. He made no attempt to deny his identity. In any attempt denial would have been useless as every point in the description sent out by the Trenton police was met. He had on the very clothes in which he fled from the house in Trenton on the day of the murder. He was manacled and hustled to the station house here.

When the officers and their prisoner reached the headquarters they found Acting Chief John J. Cleary, and Detective Clancy, of the Trenton police awaiting them. They heard this morning that Long was in the neighborhood again, and speeded here in an automobile. They arrived too late to join in the chase, and a good deal of disappointment and chagrin tempered their satisfaction over the capture.

"I didn't want to lose him a second time," said Capt. Cleary. "But I am certainly glad he is caught. We have a large colored population in Trenton, and I made up my mind to get that man as an example to the lawless element. We would have increased the reward to $1,000 if necessary, and brought the State into the chase."

Long did not look like a desperate murderer, and his demeanor was cheerful. He is a man of slight build and not at all dangerous in appearance. Although he complained of hunger, he did not show any evidence of the great strain and physical

BAND MASTER MILLS TO CONDUCT CONCERT

THREE SOLOISTS FEATURE AT THE PARK FRIDAY NIGHT.

Talent in abundance will be at this week's band concert to be held at Concert Park Friday night. For the first time since he has been conducting them locally, Bandmaster LaVere will turn over his baton to F. A. Mills, the head of a well known music publishing house, and he will have with him three of the best singers in his employ, "Billy" Redmond, "Billy" Murray and Lew Leever. They will introduce several new songs and give trio effects on the choruses. Mr. Mills has been furnishing most of the vocalists for the past two years and has always taken a great interest in the Plainfield concerts.

For the third time this season, John S. Leick will also contribute cornet solos at the concert. He is one of the best artists that has ever appeared in the city and many musicians declare he will yet be the successor of the late Jules Levy. Next week Mr. Leick will be at Proctor's Newark theatre.

MRS. CRAWFORD BURIED.

Rev. Dr. Schenck Officiated at Services in Newark.

About twenty relatives and friends from Plainfield attended the funeral services of Mrs. William A. Crawford and her infant child, which were held from the home, No. 90 Eleventh avenue, Newark, yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, of which Mrs. Crawford was a member, officiated, reading appropriate Scripture selections and making a short address in which he spoke of the Christian life and character of the departed, which was so suddenly ended.

There were many floral tributes from relatives and friends, including a large wreath from the members of the Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church.

The interment was in Fairmount cemetery, Newark, and relatives dropped flowers into the grave after the remains were lowered.

BUSY CLEANING UP.

Street Men Getting Rid of Traces of the Big Shower.

Ever since the big rainfall that ushered in the week, the entire force of city street workers has been busy cleaning up the muss left by the torrents of water that swept over the roadways. No serious after result was left by the heavy downpour but a lot of mud and silt has been left in catch basins, culverts and gutters, and they all have been cleaned out. The top dressing in many places was washed away, but this is easily replaced and its loss is regarded as a minor evil in street work.

Probably the deepest and widest lakelets left by the rain were at Plainfield avenue under the railroad bridge and at New and Fifth streets. The water at those places backed up even more than in the East End, popularly regarded as the center of trouble in rainy times.

Direct to the Shore.

If you go with Trinity Reformed church Sunday-school and Marconnier chapel to Asbury Park tomorrow, you will always have cause to remember it as one of your best outings. The weather promises to be fine with a refreshing sea breeze that will do you lots of good. Train leaves here at 8 o'clock in the morning and returning leaves the shore at 7 o'clock.

His Territory Clipped.

Philip Maguire, of this city, who was made division superintendent of the P. S. C. trolleys for this division last year, has been shorn of a big bit of his territory. He is now superintendent of only the Plainfield lines, his territory ending at the city line. His salary has ben clipped to conform with the reduction in territory.

Cop Shooting Prizes.

The prizes offered to the cops for shooting on the revolver range are on exhibition at police headquarters. The percentages are being figured up and will be announced in a day or two.

Back to Ireland.

Thomas Leary, of West Fifth street, will shortly return to Ireland, his native country, to live. He will go into business there. Mr. Leary has sold his residence here, and his household goods will be sold at auction.

Successful Operation.

Miss Mattison, who was operated upon at the hospital yesterday for appendicitis, is reported today as doing well, with no unfavorable symptoms.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Work on the Sanford building, within the loop, is progressing rapidly. Today the frame of a four foot projecting roof was started. In conversation with a reporter for The Press yesterday, Mr. Sanford said: "My main object at present in erecting a building in the loop is to live up to my promise to the company of erecting a suitable waiting room. Of course it will be a small place, just about large enough to hold a trolley carload of people, but I will fulfill my object of seeing the place conducted in a mannerly way, and not that anyone unknown shall handle it. In time, of course, changes will come about, but while my five year lease is good, I will look after the place. There will be a lot of space left after the waiting room is finished. With this I am at liberty to do whatever may be to my advantage." Mr. Sanford hinted that he may start soon to build another place inside the loop, and knowing he controls a great deal of land in the vicinity, it would not at all be surprising if Sanford would build a real estate office and form a land improving company. He hinted besides that he may have an office there to sell milk wholesale, keeping the cows on his own premises, which are most capacious. Arthur Vail, who has been waiting for some time to follow Sanford's move, and who has erected a stand as a lunch-counter opposite the loop, thinks that he has won his point, inasmuch as Sanford will not compete with him. By Vail's good business it would seem that he was right in thinking so.

Wesley Blaine, the board of health inspector here, has been heard to say that the sewerage system in Plainfield is defective, since when the water in Green brook is low, a stench arises on all sides from it. This could be stopped only by running the sewers into a place where the refuse would flow off easily, and at a great expense to Plainfield.

Eva Scheurman, the young daughter of Charles and Mary Scheurman, who died Saturday morning from dysentery, was buried Monday morning from her parents' home. No minister officiated. Interment was made in the Coontown cemetery.

Arthur Vail has engaged a number of small boys to sell papers for him in the heart of town. This has been made necessary because of his move to the loop, which is too far away for people to go to get a paper.

Barney Siriski, who intends remodeling Arthur Vail's old store, started work by building a trench for his new place in the adjoining vacant lot. George Wiggin has received the contract for the building.

The Watchungs will lineup against the rejuvernated New Markets on Saturday. "Cliff" Randolph, of the old Whittier H. S. team, will pitch for Watchung.

A party composed of George Huff, Jake Snell, John Kinney and Ray Huff spent the day fishing yesterday at Boynton Beach.

Joe Giddes, Jr., has resigned his position with William Dealaman, the grocer, and is now working for Dory Apgar.

Work on the Roach house is advancing rapidly. Eganey has finished half the tinning work on it, already.

Frank Rinehart is nursing a broken finger, which he received in the Levering & Garrigues works.

Ernest Peters will spend his vacation next week at Nyack, N. Y., and in Connecticut.

Mrs. Henry Vail, of Elizabeth, is spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. L. Snyder.

The Misses Peters, Kirchner and Blank spent yesterday at Cranford with friends.

Edna Vail, who is on a two weeks' vacation, will go to Asbury Park in a few days.

The regular monthly meeting of the Common Council will be held on Monday.

Will Giddes, who has had a bad case of dysentery, has recovered.

Percy Ising is coaching the W. D. tennis team in a masterly way.

P. M. Ising is visiting Charles Ising at Harrisburg, Pa.

Sylvester Rinehart is now working at Rajotte's brickyard.

An excursion will leave here Sunday to Bellwood Park.

Edgar Starker and Joe Giddes are in Cranford today.

Will Herlich is suffering from dysentery.

Edgar Starker is driving for Apgar Brothers.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD

The arrest of Margaret Healey for being drunk and disorderly Friday of last week, gave Chief Pangborn the honor of introducing the patrol wagon for the first time in the 'Plains.

With weather conditions favorable the local Sunday-schools should take a large crowd with them on their annual excursion to Asbury Park and Ocean Grove tomorrow.

With the series standing three to 0 against them, the Westfield team will make a desperate attempt to make good Saturday afternoon in the game at Crescent Oval.

The monthly observance of the Lord's Supper will be observed at the close of the morning sermon at the Baptist church Sunday.

Miss Irene Gatiles, of Willow Grove, has been spending several days with Miss Anna Bruchman, of Mountain avenue.

Miss Lily Frazer, of Newark, is spending a week with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William Hull, of Front street.

Fanwood Bucket and Engine Co. holds its regular monthly meeting tonight in the company rooms.

The mill pond is again filling up after repairs to the gates have been made.

Ocean Breezes by Telephone.

The superlative of comfort has been reached; the Simple Life simplified. To sit in as little costume as desired at the window of your room in a great seaside hotel, while the breezes from the broad Atlantic pour coolness and vigor about you is a delight and joy. Add to all this a telephone at your elbow by which you can call up your friends in St. Louis, Chicago, Kalamazo or Paterson, and tell them how comfortable you are, and assure them that being "Swept by Ocean Breezes" is all that is claimed for it, that indeed is the apotheosis of the modern, the ultimate of luxury and convenience. The great Oriental Hotel at Manhattan Beach has just planned to make all this possible to its patrons. Its owners have arranged with the New York and New Jersey Telephone Co. to install a telephone in each of its rooms, as well as at various other convenient points throughout the hotel. This system will include something like four hundred stations and is one of the largest private branch exchanges in a resort hotel in the world. The service will be rendered through a private switch board in the hotel, and will be what is known as the common battery, which means the latest, most convenient and exact of telephone practice.

The constructive work of installing such a system is enormous, but for this occasion the telephone company has put an exceptional force at work and expects to have all the telephones in and working soon.

The outside service will be rendered through the Coney Island Central Office of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Co., and through that company reaches the long distance lines, so that any guest from his room in the hotel may at any hour, day or night, communicate with any of the million or more stations of the Bell system throughout the country. The broker can keep in touch with his interests at the various market centres and the Congressman has Washington or the State capitals within range of his voice, deals may be consumated, affairs of State adjusted, history made, and those nearer and dearer matters of home life, kept within the government of one's own hands, and all this while enjoying to the uttermost the benefits of this attractive ocean resort.

Col. Dietrich, of Arlington avenue, is sojourning in Virginia.

Rev. C. L. Goodrich is spending his vacation at Squirrel Island, Maine.

Mrs. Frederick M. Ward and son, of Fairview avenue, sailed yesterday for Europe. They will return September 1.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

George F. Brown, of Somerset street, can sell or lease you the best property at your own figures.

If you buy your coal of V. W. Nash, of Park avenue, you will get the best at the lowest market prices.

E. B. Maynard's barber shop on North avenue, is noted for being one of the best in the State. The work is also the best.

J. A. Koch's meat market at East Second street and Watchung avenue, is modern in every respect and only the best meats and fish are sold.

There is one good reason, among many, why you should patronize the Stillwell Milk and Cream Co., at East Second street and Watchung avenue, and that is the product is the best and the price is the same the year round.

A Blaze of Beauty.

The Valley of the Lehigh is one of the most delightful places of refuge at this sweltering time of year. The name alone is enough to conjure up—if not an invigorating mountain breeze—at least a vision of grand mountain scenery. Not only is it an ideal country for a summer vacation, but it repays a hundredfold the time given to the most fleeting visit. Many points of supreme interest, in fact, are within the reach of a single day's excursion from New York. Notable among these is Mauch Chunk.

Both from historic interest, this being the place where anthracite coal was first discovered and mined in the United States, and on account of the wonders of the natural scenery, Mauch Chunk alone is one of the most remarkable localities in Eastern America. The whole trip is charming in the highest degree. First one traverses the beautiful rolling country of Western New Jersey, studded with splendid groves and picturesque old farm buildings. Beyond Easton the railroad runs along beside the Lehigh River and the old canal and the scenery becomes more varied and striking. At last Mauch Chunk is reached where it lies hidden in the heart of the hills.

The feature of the greatest interest at Mauch Chunk is the old "Switch-back Railroad." Built in early times to bring the product of the mines down to the barges, it has of late years been used solely for the recreation of visitors. It affords a thrilling ride. From the summit of a mountain commanding a view of the wide region bounded by distant mountain ranges, the car starts gradually until, gaining speed from its own momentum, it rushes along wildly, through the forests, by old mines and mining settlements, across high pasture-lands, and along the hillsides until at last the circuit of eighteen miles is completed and the car has returned safely to the foot

The New Jersey Central will run a popular excursion to Mauch Chunk on August 6, 1905. Round trip $1.50. Special train leaves Plainfield at 9:20 a. m. and there is sufficient time at Mauch Chunk for a day of rare enjoyment. 8 2 4 c

The Historic Hudson.

The Hudson River has a renowned reputation in more ways than one. Its business interests are more widely known than any other stream, while for excursions and outings it has no equal. There are sights galore—the palisades—the U. S. Military Academy at Sing Sing and interesting Newburg. The scenery in every direction is superb and the steamers which convey the excursionists are commodious and comfortable. On August 3d the New Jersey Central is going to run one of its popular low-rate excursions up the Hudson, the rate for the round trip to be $1, children 50 cents, and special train leaving Plainfield at 8:46 a. m., will connect at Jersey City station with famous steamer "St. Johns" for the trip. Don't forget date or train time. 7 29 4

Kharitina Ivanovitch's Fate.

From time to time the war despatches have mentioned briefly a soldier's bride who was fighting by his side. Next Sunday's New York World tells for the first time the thrilling true story of Kharitina Ivanovitch and how she met her death. Miss Anna Steese Richardson writes "A Day with a New York Lady Grafter," and there are short stories by O. Henry, N. P. Murphy and Conan Doyle. Next Sunday's New York World will be a mighty entertaining paper.

According to a report the fielding of the West Ends, of Somerville is not up to the standard.

Armbuster, the new Boston American catcher, is making good and has batted for .368 since he joined the Hubbers.

Manager Denman declares that he will have a team that will beat Plainfield on Saturday. Several changes are looked for.

Conroy has played every position on the New York American team this season, the battery excepted, and played them well.

The New York Nationals have a fair chance of winning every series this season. Thus far the Pittsburgs are the only team to hold them level.

The supporters of the Westfield team, it is said, are anxious to see the aggregation win a game. Not a victory in three weeks is discouraging.

It is said that even George Johnston cannot find any comfort in the Westfield Baseball Association, and he has prepared to back the team, too.

Westfield money is as scarce as snowballs in August. Once in a while a supporter shows up with the long green, but he wants ridiculous odds.

Galbraith, the pitcher for the West Ends, Somerville, was in town yesterday calling on friends. He is looking for an opportunity to pitch a Wednesday game.

Russell, the catcher for the West Ends, of Somerville, broke his thumb while practicing before last Saturday's contest, and he will be out of the game for several weeks.

It must be admitted that the Plainfield and Westfield teams are very evenly matched, as the recent scores indicate, and any man that would ask big odds must be looking for a cinch.

The New York Americans lead their league in shut-outs administered. They have blanked opponents an even dozen times. They also lead the American league in home runs and double plays.

On Saturday, August 12, that fast bunch of ball players known as the All Cubans will be at Crescent Oval. On their first appearance here they defeated the locals 1 to 0. This time a reversal of the score is looked for.

The Philadelphia Inquirer has this to say regarding the recent Lambertville-Doylestown game at Lambertville, when "Red" Waller pitched for the home team: "On Wednesday we had our old rivals, Doylestown, and every rooter in town thought we had a 'cinch,' lead pipe at that, as the famous 'Red' Waller, of the Elizabethport Stars, was to do the trick in the box. But Mr. Waller was handled unmercifully and the visitors walked away with the game by 11 to 8. Up to the eighth inning things seemed to favor a victory for the home team, but an ascension (and a big one) took place in this inning, and when the smoke of the battle had cleared away six men had crossed the plate and the game was safe for the visitors. Seven hits for a total of seventeen bases were made off Waller in this inning, two home runs, one three-sacker, two doubles and two singles. That batting rally will never die out in the minds of the Doylestown rooters who saw that Lambertville victory. Perhaps 'Red' Waller has also a hazy recollection of the game in question."

AMUSEMENTS.

The big song hit of "The Rollicking Girl" is a mock ballad entitled "Friends that are Good and True," and it is sung with fine satirical effect by Miss Hattie Williams, who is Sam Bernard's chief assistant in this merry musical piece now running at the Herald Square Theatre, New York. Since May 1st, Miss Williams has had over 75 extra verses to learn for this song. New verses to comment and amusingly criticise timely topics have been added with such rapidity that Miss Williams feels uneasy if she doesn't have a series of couplets to memorize at least every other evening.

The busy season of the seaside resorts is now upon us, and for the next six weeks if the weather keeps at all fine, the sands by the water will be seething with people. Down at Manhattan Beach, which has taken a new lease of life since the opening of the boardwalk, preparations have been made to meet the expected throng. At Pain's Amphitheatre "Port Arthur" is being retouched and overhauled. A lot of new historical incidents have been interpolated in the battle which has grown better and better with every performance. Next Monday night the Japanese will celebrate. The special Peace Commissioner, the Ambassador to Washington and the Consul-General have been invited. It will be one of the gala nights of the season, and everything Japanese will be in order.

There's a whole train-full of fun this week at Keith's, where John F. Byrne, of the Brothers Byrne of "8 Bells" celebrity, has condensed the famous old French pantomime, "Le Voyage en Suisse," into thirty minutes, and presents it with a full company of acrobats, comedians and singers. It is a whole show boiled down to half an hour, with a laugh for every second. Others on the bill are Frank Bush, the original Hebrew story-teller; Clayton Kennedy and Mattie Rooney, in "The Happy Medium;" the popular minstrels Dan Quinlan and Keller Mack, in their own idea of "Jest Fun;" the Misses Tobin, refined musical artistes; the Young American Quintette of clever singers and dancers; Burke's remarkable troupe of musical canines; Del-A-Phone, mimic and whistler and Hendrix and Prescott, in a novel singing and dancing specialty.

Jefferson De Angelis, whose performance of Hawkins in "Fantana" continues to attract crowds to the Lyric Theatre, New York, says that man has no genius which compares with woman's capacity for coquetry. "It's born in 'em," says the comedian, and, in support of that theory, he relates the tale of a child he used to know. This child was the daughter of Governor Thomas, of Utah and, at the time of which Mr. De Angelis speaks, her mother was very ill. The family physician, a pleasant old fellow, called regularly, and never failed to exchange a few words with the youngster. One day he met her on the stairs, and, in passing, asked for a kiss, which was preemptorily refused. The doctor, whose mind was filled with more important things, promptly proceeded up the steps. He had gone but a short distance when he felt a tug at his coat tails, and, turning, saw that portion of his apparel in the grasp of the little girl. "Well," he inquired, smiling, "what is it dear?" "Doctor," lisped the six-year-old. "I said I wouldn't give you a kiss, but you're a very big man and I'm a very little girl, and if you really tried to kiss me I don't think I could help it."

There is a new chief in the Igorrote Village at Luna Park. Ever since the tribe of seventy-two dusky-hued Americans from Luzon left Seattle two months ago, trouble has been brewing among them because of the cast-iron rule of their then chief, Femoloey, the wealthiest and most influential man in the tribe, who was elected during the journey across the Pacific. Femoloey had proved a most domineering ruler for a people who acknowledged no hereditary chiefs and whose leaders have been elected by universal suffrage as far back as their traditions go. For some time, however, the spirit of revolt has been rife among them and finally they rose to recognize the chief's authority. Two or three members of the band stood by Femoloey and for a time it looked as if there would be war. The two factions at every opportunity made trouble. In their stone and spear fights they became particularly vehement and were on the point of engaging in a genuine conflict in which blood would have been let had not Dr. T. K. Hunt returned and sized up the situation. He immediately ordered that the difficulty be settled by the ballot and that the ancient custom of suffrage both for the chief and the "head woman" of the tribe should be gone through again. Feloa received thirty-two votes while Langasa was elected mother of the tribe over Gumay, the previous holder of the honor, by thirty-five votes.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Lyon, of Craig place, left yesterday on a short vacation trip.

DANCING IN CHURCH BUILDING SO SHOCKS CAMDEN RECTOR THAT HE WILL RESIGN

Camden, Aug. 2.—His feelings outraged because there was dancing in the Sunday school room of his church Saturday night and because it was kept up until midnight, Rev. Charles E. Burlchter announced yesterday that he would sever his connection with the Protestant Episcopal Church of Our Saviour. He fixes September 1 as the time he will step out. In a letter to his congregation he bitterly denounces the members for the dance and he has learned of other shocking things concerning the parish's history and says he does not wonder it has become a "by-word and a reproach" to many in the community.

BOY EATS FROM MANTELPIECE AS RESULT OF MEETING SNAPPING TURTLE

Greenfield, Aug. 2.—As Silas Young was working in a cornfield Monday he discovered a huge snapping turtle crawling from a hole where it had deposited thirty-two round white eggs. Young bridled the snapper, pocketed the eggs and started for home. He had not gone far before the snapper cleared itself of the bridle and fastened its snap jaws on the young man's leg. Young screamed and started for home on a run, but the turtle held on tight all the way. Finally it was released by prying open its jaws, and Young enjoyed a snapper potpie from a mantlepiece.

Y. M. C. A. AT STATE CAMP.

Governor Sees Report of Army Committee of Results at Sea Girt.

Trenton, Aug. 2.—Gov. Stokes's first Tuesday at the Statehouse, after his three weeks' tour of duty as commander-in-chief of the State's military forces at the annual encampment at Sea Girt, was a dull one. When asked if he would today name his commission to inquire into the whole subject of limiting franchises for public utilities and taxing all such utilities which use the public streets or highways, as authorized by the legislature which adjourned last March, the Governor replied that he expected to dispose of that matter in a few days.

The Governor had few callers outside of the heads of some of the departments of the State Government and less business than usual had accumulated on his desk. One of his callers yesterday morning was Adjutant-General R. Heber Breitnell, who showed him a letter which he had received from Edward W. Heame, State secretary of the executive committee of the New Jersey Young Men's Christian Association.

The letter was a report to the Governor on behalf of the army department of the committee regarding the work of the department at the recent Sea Girt encampment of the State's troops. The department was furnished with tents, furniture, ice and oil as required by the adjutant general, and when the guard was off duty the tent was constantly filled with the guardsmen, the visitors reaching 1,000 daily.

Stationery, newspapers from home towns, metropolitan dailies, besides the standard weekly and monthly periodicals, were supplied to the men and such games as checkers, quoits and chess were furnished them. Then there were phonographs and song services, all of which were greatly appreciated by the men. Everything was furnished without cost to the militiamen, except postal cards and postage stamps. Their mail matter was carefully handled, and the fact that 16,211 letters and postal cards were mailed at the association's tents shows how the men appreciated this feature of the association's work.

JOURNALISTIC OPINION

Modesty.

The Press does not like to be boastful but as a true prophet it doesn't accept any handicap from anyone.—Atlantic City Daily Press.

History May Repeat Itself.

Let's see. Colby and Lent were riding together. Didn't Black and Lentz ride together before the election last year? Colby should beware.—Passaic Daily Herald.

Hit Higher.

Since the authorities of Monmouth county have become so active in Asbury Park, visitors are requested not to hit a man's back below the belt line.—Trenton True American.

A Frightful Example.

By declining to accept railway passes, Secretary of the Navy Bonaparte is setting a frightful example for some of the politicians who could hardly hope to live without "passes."—Camden Democrat.

Kimonos Best.

If the Jersey judges who are about to adopt the silk gown habit follow the styles set by the federal courts, they will wear black silk kimonos modeled generously upon the lines of the Mother Hubbard. It is not as fetching as it might be, but Paris effects may be worked in later.—New Brunswick Times.

Play Ball!

Is this true? They tell us there is not in the local baseball club that esprit de corps essential for a winning team; that some of the collegians feel a "little above" one or two less fortunate members of the team. Better cut out this sort of business. Play ball. That's what the patrons want—good ball.—Ocean City Reporter.

The Governor's Dissipations.

With two banquets inside of four days and a growing proficiency in horsemanship the Governor's departure from the staid rules of civil life is complete and satisfactory. There is a growing hope in Trenton that the Governor will be entirely won over to "smart set" habits before the gay season opens in January.—Asbury Park Press.

The Bareheaded Fad.

Nature never intended that heads should have any covering that does not permit ventilation. It resents the practice of men wearing such hats by depriving the offender of hair. All fads that tend to make people get nearer nature result in good. They should to a reasonable degree be encouraged. The bareheaded fad is one of these.—Long Branch Record.

Lacking in Civic Pride.

Camden is still lamenting her insufficient census enumeration. If it was a botched job, as they claim, there is no one to blame but those to whom was entrusted the duty of enumeration. If her own citizens were not sufficiently interested to do an honest job, there is no occasion for tears just yet from outsiders, except it be of shame that they are so lacking in civic pride.—Woodstown Monitor-Register.

Product of Competition.

The 5 o'clock train from Philadelphia to this city on the Reading usually covers the 58 miles in 47 minutes. This is up to date travel over a model roadbed with the latest and best rolling stock. This straight and level track across the State is exceptionally favorable to fast travel. The track and cars are so nicely adjusted that reading a newspaper can be fully enjoyed. All the machinery of a railroad is so well designed and cared for that it can be run an hour and more safely at high speed. Such results are the product of competition and success. This line for years has been operated at a profit and a high standard has been aimed at. These conditions have been favorable to high development.—Atlantic City Union.

H. O. Newman, of West Fifth street, who has been detained at home by illness, is convalescing and will soon be able to return to business.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Pierrepont Beers Foster, of New Haven, Conn., will rejoice with them on the arrival of a little daughter born Tuesday, August 1. Mrs. Foster was Miss Elizabeth Bowen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Elliott Bowen, of this city.

Plainfield, N. J., August 2, 1905.

"Timely Topics Discussed by Plainfielders," which has been a feature of The Daily Press on Wednesdays, will be discontinued until fall. During September the column will be renewed and our readers may look forward to many interesting contribution by men of affairs on topics of local importance.

An exchange makes out a case against the census men in Elizabeth because the Journal, of that city, published the correct returns before they were announced by the Secretary of State. There are more ways than one in getting ahead of official red tape and the Journal was enterprising enough probably to find one. Under the law the county must pay the bills for collecting the census and when the cost is made known to the proper authorities it is not a hard matter to get at the figures on population. A fixed amount is paid the enumerator for obtaining the names and an additional fixed sum is paid the supervisor for tabulating them. We are not sure that the newspaper used this scheme of getting at the returns ahead of the official announcement, but it probably did.

When aroused to the awful conditions that existed within its borders as a result of the domination of what was probably one of the most perfect and at the same time the most dangerous political machines that was ever set up in any city, the people of Philadelphia arose in their might and after a short engagement asserted their right to govern themselves. The example has had a good effect and the fever to run things in the interest of the taxpayers and not for the pockets of a few men is spreading throughout the country. In the West as in the East, in various places the yoke of bossism is being thrown off. Just yesterday, over in New York the district attorney declared his intention to accept no nomination from any political party but to stand as an independent candidate of the people for re-election. His reason is that men elected to municipal office are prevented from performing the duties in the interests of the people but are expected to reward the heelers and take orders from a machine. The district attorney says incidently:

"My views and feelings in that matter do not amount to so very much, but the principle involved in this important thing is to break down the evil solidarity of the political machines, and to go over the heads of these groups of men controling the machines directly to the people. This is a very appropriate time, in my opinion, to make this test. Throughout the country just now there is a feeling of unrest. I have undoubtedly made many enemies, and have subjected myself to criticism that has been extremely hostile. What I hope in this matter is that my effort, whether it be successful or not will create discussion and determine whether the people of this country are politically free or not. That political conditions now give the people no choice in elections, except between two men, neither of whom they would have chosen individually had they the chance, must be apparent to any one who will examine the conditions. Little or no responsibility is felt by the average public officer elected by the votes of a party. As soon as he gets into office he begins scheming to hold it or to look around for promotion to higher office. And every man who does this believes that his subservience to the machine is necessary to hold his position in politics. A man who, without playing politics, can make an appeal to the voters directly, does, in my opinion, a public service. It is of far greater importance to the community than any individual benefit that he could render in the simple discharge of his duty."

Alleged Elopers Arrested.

Detectives from Providence, R. I., went to Newark Monday night, and proceeded to 13 Comes alley, where they arrested Paul Garossi, twenty-one years old, and Mrs. Sophie Chioffi, thirty-eight years old, who is said to have deserted her husband, Hippolito Chioffi, in Providence, and run off with young Garossi. The detectives said that Garossi was a boarder in the Chioffi home, and that when he and Mrs. Chioffi went away they took $300 of the latter's husband's money. They have been here since June 27, and their whereabouts were made known through a letter which the wife wrote to relatives in Providence. Yesterday morning the two were arraigned before Judge Sweeney in Newark, and held in $750 bail each for requisition papers.

2,150,000 in New Jersey.

ELIZABETH HAS 60,509.

Gain of 8,379 is Made in Five Years.

The population of the city of Elizabeth as shown by the official figures of Supervisor William R. Littell, who sent his reports to the office of the Secretary of State in Trenton yesterday morning, is 60,509.

This is an increase of 8,379 since the federal census in 1900, when the population was 52,130. In 1890 the population was 37,764.

The percentage of increase in five years is sixteen per cent.

Considering the fact that the city has within a short time lost the Crescent shipyards and the Worthington Pump works, taking a large number of people away to other places, the showing made is remarkably good.

Estimates of the population of the city made by the Journal recently placed the number of inhabitants between 60,000 and 61,000.

The population of the city by wards, with a comparison of the returns in 1900, is as follows:

	1905.	1900.
First ward	6,563	5,299
Second ward	4,617	4,015
Third ward	7,937	6,378
Fourth ward	4,264	3,931
Fifth ward	5,591	4,761
Sixth ward	4,444	3,611
Seventh ward	5,359	4,548
Eighth ward	4,872	6,178
Ninth ward	4,348	4,154
Tenth ward	3,718	2,699
Eleventh ward	4,003	3,334
Twelfth ward	4,793	3,222
	60,509	52,130

The comparisons show the actual changes in the downtown wards only, for the reason that in 1902 there was a redistricting of the city and the ward lines were affected from the Seventh to the Twelfth.

REFUSED TO WHITEWASH J. D.

Illinois Baptist Assembly Declined to Censure Gov. La Follette.

Springfield, Ill., August 2—The Illinois Baptist Assembly, which is holding a Chatauqua at the State Fair Grounds, amid a scene of excitement today voted down a set of resolutions which criticized Gov. La Follette for his bitter attack upon John D. Rockefeller last Sunday, when the Wisconsin statesman vehemently told the assembled Baptists that their fellow churchman was the greatest criminal of the age.

Moody with President.

Attorney General Moody spent all day yesterday in conference with President Roosevelt at Sagamore Hill. Mr. Moody did not leave the President's home until this morning, when he went direct to Washington. It is not denied here that the President and Mr. Moody discussed the scandals which have developed in the Department of Agriculture, and which led to the visit of Secretary of Agriculture Wilson to Sagamore Hill Monday. Mr. Roosevelt is determined not only to drive grafters out of the department, but to send to jail any employe against whom criminal charges will hold.

Meetings at Ocean Grove.

Anniversary meetings of the Woman's Home Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal church opened yesterday morning in the temple at Ocean Grove and will continue until tomorrow evening, when the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society will open a conference which will extend over the Sabbath. Deaconesses from the training school at Washington and others from the Western "homes" took part in yesterday's deliberations.

Ex-Governor Voorhees Out Again.

Ex-Governor Foster M. Voorhees, of Elizabeth, who was severely hurt some weeks ago, by his horse throwing him while out riding, and then falling upon him, was able to be out for the first time yesterday but had to hobble around on crutches. He transacted some legal business at his office, and then returned home. It will be some months before he regains the normal use of his foot, which was crushed in the accident.

PROTEST TO GOVERNOR.

Advertiser's War on Carrying of New York Consumptives in State.

The Newark Advertiser is vigorously continuing its war against the transportation of New York's consumptives through the State of New Jersey to the sanitarium at Otisville, N. Y.

The Advertiser publishes the following protest to the governor in its columns and requests its readers to sign and forward the same.

"To His Excellency, Edward C. Stokes, Governor of the State of New Jersey:

"The undersigned respectfully protests against the contemplated action of the New York city health authorities sending through the State of New Jersey, thousands of indigent consumptives, to be treated at the sanitarium to be established at Otisville, N. Y., thus endangering the health and lives of hundreds of thousands of the citizens of New Jersey.

"And respectfully demands that such action be taken immediately by the proper authorities of the State of New Jersey as will prevent the threatened action by the New York authorities and protect the health and lives of the citizens of this state."

PERSONAL.

J. C. Wyckoff, of Raritan, is visiting Charles Jensen, of Somerset street.

Miss Dorothy Clement, of Central avenue, has been visiting friends at Manasquan.

Edward Kelly, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kelly, of Codington avenue, is ill with dysentery.

A. E. Bryant, of Scranton, Pa., is the guest of Manager A. J. Coleman, of the local Postal office.

Circus Tomorrow.

In the magnificent menagerie of the Hargreave's shows which plays here tomorrow, are specimens of animals from every part of the Earth. It is one of the best collections of rare and strange beasts ever gathered together. Its crowning feature is Jumbo II, the largest elephant in captivity. This monstrous beast is higher than any other elephant ever seen in the country. He is taller by a foot than Jumbo, who created such a sensation when, he was brought to this country a decade ago. Jumbo II is not only the largest specimen of the elephant species that ever was exhibited, but also is the only elephant trained by a lady. He is put through a marvelous display under the direction of Miss Mabel Hall and this exhibition is alone worth the price of admission to the shows. In addition to this feature that cannot be duplicated by any other show there are a number of interesting zoological specimens that have never been placed on exhibition before. A visit to this department of Hargreaves' Shows is entertaining, elevating and instructive.

Badly Hurt by Fall from Coach.

Elizabeth, Aug. 2.—Funeral Director Thomas J. Higgins, of the firm of Higgins & Colgan, was badly hurt Monday afternoon while returning home from an interment of which he had charge at Mt. Olivet Cemetery. The coach on top of which he was riding broke a wheel and he was hurled to the pavement, the vehicle with its occupants passing over his body. He was picked up unconscious and removed to his residence, where he will be laid up for some time by his injuries.

Foresters Raise Salaries.

The session at Atlantic City yesterday of the Supreme Order of Foresters was devoted to a discussion of the treasurer's and financial committee's reports, which showed the order to be most prosperous. All the old officers were re-elected. Dr. Oronhyatekha had his salary raised by the Supreme Court from $10,000 to $15,000 a year, while the supreme treasurer's salary was raised to equal that of the supreme secretary and supreme physician, which is $6,000 a year.

ABOUT YOUR PET.

Don't pet it all the time.
Never torment an animal.
Even pets need a little rest.
Feed it regularly and sanely.
Air and sun its sleeping cushion every day.
Some cats eat cucumbers, but they usually die young.
Cats, though seldom seen drinking, drink a good bit.
All animals must have fresh drinking water all the time.
New Jersey peat makes a fine "bugless" bedding for "doggy."
Animals should not be encouraged to undue exercise on hot days.
Many a dog that needs but rest, food and water is set down as mad.
Birds are a great responsibility. They can't help themselves, being caged.
Consistency is a jewel; don't laugh at a fault one day and beat the culprit for it the second.
Cats have been known to be friendly to birds, though if it were our bird we should not encourage such an intimacy.
Many people have no idea how cats need cooked vegetables, and many a person who feeds puss on cream and fine meat would be shocked to see her fishing such necessities from neighboring garbage cans.

HIDING WITH A BEAR.

ARMY OFFICER AND HIS SCOUT MEET A DOUBLE FOE.

Hostile Indians and Fierce Dog Nearly Prove Their Undoing — Thrilling Episode of Indian War Days.

For more than a year after the Mescalero Apaches of southern New Mexico had taken the warpath they succeeded in eluding the troops sent against them. Secreting their families in almost inaccessible mountain gorges, they divided into small parties and made war upon settlers and detachments of soldiers.

Among the many attempts to discover the locations of these hiding places, the most notable one, perhaps, was made by an officer and a half-breed scout. Starting soon after dark, these men made their way on foot towards the supposed location of a village. Their progress for several hours was necessarily slow, as the country through which they passed was covered at the time with moving bands of Indians. Working their way slowly forward, crawling often upon their hands and knees, moving always cautiously, treading lightly, listening, scarcely breathing, and often swerving aside at the noise of the moving scouts of the enemy, they worked their way through the main chain of Indian sentinels and, just before dawn, halted and lay down by the side of a great cypress log. They had scarcely chosen this place for temporary concealment when the crying of a child in a little valley not far away, gave sure indication of the location of the village. As they lay listening a couple of warriors on horseback suddenly made their appearance. As they came near, the officer hastily moved around the end of the log to escape being discovered, and finding the log hollow instantly crawled into it. He was quickly followed by the scout, and the Indians quite unconscious of the presence of their enemies rode past talking and laughing. They were closely followed by a dog, and when the creature came near the log it suddenly began to sniff the air. Running eventually to the end of the log it began to bark furiously. The Indians halted at once.

In the meanwhile the officer had encountered a great, hairy mass of something that quite filled the opening before him. He tried to recoil from it, but the scout, anxious to escape from the dog, pushed vigorously towards him. Suddenly the hairy mass began to struggle forward, scratching and clawing as it went, and directly succeeded in forcing its way out through an opening at the farther end of the log.

When the animal appeared the Indians instantly gave chase and for awhile could be heard pursuing the creature through the forest. In the meanwhile the dog had abandoned its efforts to seize the scout by the foot and, forcing its way forward tried to reach his face. The scout permitted it to come, and when its body could be reached stabbed it to death with his knife. The Indians returned presently from chasing the bear and began to call the dog. Getting no response from the creature, and fearing that the bear had killed or injured it, one of the warriors crawled into the log to search for it. When the animal was finally dragged to the light the wounds discovered on its body instantly aroused the suspicions of the Indians and they quickly began anew to examine the openings in the log. One of the warriors at length aprpoached the opening from which the bear had escaped and, falling upon his knees, endeavored to look within. In the meantime the officer had dragged himself quite near the opening and now seeing discovery inevitable seized the Indian and pulled himself out of the log. A desperate struggle immediately began between the officer and the warrior. Fortunately the officer proved to be much stronger physically and, neither being able to reach his weapons, pounded the Indian into insensibility with his naked fists. In the meanwhile the other Indian, with rifle in hand, sought for a chance to shoot at the officer without endangering his companion. Intent upon this purpose, he failed to observe the scout who, having emerged from the log, hastened to cut him down with his knife.

As soon as the Indian whom the officer had seized returned to consciousness he was compelled to crawl within the log, after which the officer and his companion proceeded to fill the opening with sticks and brush, making a barrier difficult but not impossible to remove. When this had been accomplished they hurried away and, making a wide detour, succeeded in avoiding the Indian scouts and eventually rejoined their command.

WHY AFRICANS ARE BLACK.

Hue Attributed by Scientific Authorities to Gelatinous Substance Under Skin.

All the inhabitants of the west part of Africa are black. This complexion is owing to a gelatinous substance lodged between the cuticle and the skin. This substance, states the Political Magazine, 1781, is blackish in negroes, brown in olive-colored or swarthy people, white in Europeans and diversified with reddish spots in people who have extremely light or red hair.

Anatomy has discovered that in the negroes the substance of the brain is blackish, that the pineal gland is entirely black, and their blood is of a much deeper red than that of white people. Their blood is always hotter, and their pulse quicker.

Their hair, it is said, is curled because having to penetrate through a network of a more dense and tenacious substance it becomes twisted and cannot be lengthened out.

The perspiration of a negro when it is copious tinges the linen which wipes it off.

It it a mistaken notion that the color of the negroes is owing to the climate; since in Africa, under the same parallels, the eastern coast has no negroes, and even produces white people, and in America the heat of the sun and nature of the soil have never produced any negroes. White people never become black in Africa, nor negroes white in America.

TEMPER OF JAP SOLDIERS.

It Is Like That of Their Swords, Always Keen and Highly Sensitive.

There is something that marks the Nippon soldier from the rest of the fighting men of the world of to-day, writes Adachi Kinnosuke, in Leslie's Monthly. Better trained in the handling of modern arms, larger in stature, and certainly better fed and equally well drilled, there are a number of western soldiers who still can hardly cope with the Nippon soldier. The reason of it is simple. In Nippon, among our fighting men as well as in a number of other things we believe in quality and in temper; we do not believe in quantity, either of muscle or of stature. With the Nippon, the ideal—spirit, if you prefer to call it—is more than meat or raiment. The samurai of the elder days believed in keeping his blade at such a high point of sensitiveness and keenness that it would cut in twain a piece of wet paper floating down a stream. The masters of sword and the masters of jiu jitsu, and the masters of all other military arts in our land, believe in keeping their muscles tempered as keenly and in such a high condition of training as the edge of a samurai blade. It is the ideal of the old samurai—the historic yamato damashi of a thousand tales and traditions of countless years—that is working miracles in Manchuria to-day.

TARS SHIPSHAPE ON LAND.

Quaint Home for Aged Seamen Situated in the Outskirts of London.

One of the quaintest charitable institutions in the world, says the New York Herald, is the Royal Alfred Home for Aged Seamen, which houses 100 English mariners in the outskirts of London. It is supported entirely by voluntary contribution, and King Edward is one of the most regular subscribers to the fund. The main idea has been to make the place as homelike as possible, and to this end an effort has been made to preserve in large measure the environment to which the inmates are accustomed.

The dormitories are cut up into tiny cabins, as on shipboard, and in place of the familiar iron cots these veterans of the sea turn in at night in bunks and stow their clothes and other belongings precisely as they would on board ship. Day and night the hours and a half hours are struck on a ship's bell in the main hall, and even in the mess room the atmosphere of the sea is retained as an aid to appetite. The house governor is himself an old sea captain of 40 years' experience in commanding men, and his rule is entirely along nautical lines.

MAINE MAN'S PET CROW.

Tame Bird Displays Remarkable Intelligence and Domesticity.

It is surprising to see the amount of intelligence that can be shown by a crow, but a tame bird owned by Sherbrook Howard, of this town, exhibits it to a large degree, says the Bath (Me.) Independent.

Each morning the bird flies to his master's bedroom window and utters shrill cries to awaken him, but will never go toward the window again during the day. Whenever hungry he flies to the kitchen and keeps up a continual squawking until fed. He refuses to run away, and so far as known has never been more than a quarter of a mile from his adopted home.

A few nights ago several other crows from neighboring fields did their utmost to get him to fly away with them, but, preferring the home of his young master, Mr. Crow refused to stir.

The Charge.

"What do you think that man who is now under investigation for graft ought to be charged with?"

"It seems to me," answered Senator Sorghum, "that he ought to be charged with criminal carelessness."—Washington Star.

NOTICE!
"In behalf of your proprietory article called AZIENZA CREAM, as a remedy for diseases of the skin. I desire to add my appreciation of its wonderful properties as a cure in a case of Bone Turner or Abscess of five years growth on my husband's back, which I have cured in less than five weeks time by constant application, and now it is as well as any part of his body. It was cut out once by a specialist and had again grown to a large size, was as hard as a bone and of a very dark purple color. The AZIENZA at once allayed the pain and began to soften it, and in less than eight days, by my pressure upon it, suddenly to my surprise it discharged a quantity of pus, impregnated with a hard, cheesy substance. I kept it open and cleansed it as it discharged and every day would dress it with a plaster of AZIENZA CREAM, until it was entirely healed up. I cannot speak to highly of AZIENZA CREAM and its merits. For inquiry regarding this case you may apply to Mr. and Mrs. James Embury Ave., cor. Hiller, Ocean Grove, N. J. Signed, July 13, 1905: Mrs. C. W. James, Mr. C. W. James." Leading Druggists, 25c-50c

SUMMER BREAKFASTS.

Many people think it is unwise to begin a busy day with a heavy breakfast. Hearty food in the morning, they believe, clogs the system, making the blood flow sluggishly, unless the appetite has ben sharpened by a brisk walk.

A delicious breakfast, for a warm June morning is one of rice or unsweetened sago cooked in milk, delicate cornmeal muffins and coffee with whipped cream.

Fruit should never be omitted from the summer breakfast menu, and acid friuts, like pineapples, rhubarb or oranges, are especially desirable.

Some housewives have suggested that cereal for a summer breakfast be prepared the day before, set to cool in molds and served cold, with rich cream. This plan is not always advisable, however, for most cereals are more easily digested when hot. If the summer cereals are cooked in half milk and half water they are very nourishing. Rice, unsweetened, is delicious when cooked in this way, and is appropriate with strawberries. It is also a good dish dietically for summer.

Rich hot bread and pancakes with their syrup are now no longer wanted, and only the lightest of muffins and delicate rolls should take their place.

When one has been on an early fishing expedition or a long tramp, a more substantial breakfast will, of course, be required. A veal cutlet, broiled chicken, brook trout or a tender piece of steak should be added to the menu, to say nothing of the potatoes prepared in some delicate form. Before starting out on an early morning excursion a small cup of coffee and a wafer should be taken as a stimulant.

Sweetbreads can hardly be excelled as a delicate breakfast meat, especially when breaded or stewed in cream sauce. Eggs, of course, are a nourishing breakfast dish, but as the dull, enervating day of midsummer approach they are apt to pall on the appetite. They are at their best in the spring.

The breakfast salad has a character quite different from that served at dinner and supper. It should be merely an appetizer, which assists digestion. A few leaves of bleached dandelion, seasoned with salt, pepper and vinegar, tossed up with pieces of bacon, cut in dice shape, are a good appetizer with veal. Water cress should, of course, accompany steaks or chops. The object of a breakfast salad is to remove the greasy flavor of meat.

Above all things the housekeeper who wishes to tempt dull appetites must make the table look attractive to the eye. Almost any breakfast will taste better if served on a neatly arranged table with a centerpiece of some delicately colored blossoms in a clear glass vase, with a bit of ice on the cucumbers or other green things, and the table linen snow white.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

The dirtiest frying pan will become clean if soaked five minutes in ammonia and water.

It is well to remember that a pound of sugar is one pint, an ounce of liquid is two tablespoonsful and a pint of liquid weighs sixteen ounces.

An egg whisk made of wire set in a wooden handle is a necessity in every kitchen. It is required for clearing soup, beating whites of eggs or cream and to make chocolate froth.

A box of cedar dust should be kept in every kitchen. Should any disagreeable smell arise from cooking, put a little of the dust on to the hot part of the range, and the scent given out will purify the air immediately.

Directly a saucepan is empty and taken from the fire, fill it with cold water. When time allows add a piece of soda and boil out the vessel. Saucepans treated like this are easy to wash and always in good order when wanted.

The wooden pie plate is something new in cooking utensils. The pie is baked in it, in the ordinary fashion, and absorbs the grease, while leaving the crust light and porous. The pie bakes perfectly on the bottom. When done, it is slipped from the plate, which is then burned, to help bake another one, perhaps.

For potatoes au gratin, peel and slice the potatoes very thin and arrange them in layers. Then turn over them a cupful of hot milk, and bake for half an hour. Just before removing from the oven sprinkle the top well with grated cheese and allow them to brown.

Crushed fresh fruit of any kind is a good addition to cottage pudding. Make a hard sauce and stir in the fruit.

To make a delicious marmalade that will combine raspberries and currants allow one quart of each of them. Mash and rub through a sieve to remove all seeds. To each pint of pulp allow one pint of granulated sugar. Place the sugar in a kettle with just enough of water to dissolve it, and boil until it cracks. Put the fruit in a second kettle and boil carefully until it is reduced about one-half. Add the sugar syrup and boil until the marmalade will form globules without spreading when dropped on paper. Pack in small jars and cover with paraffine.

Ominous Number.

"13' arrests for the illegal sale of liquor in Asbury Park? Can the number be an ill omen? Does it mean that there are many more to follow? Where now are your prophets?—Asbury Park Journal.

"THE OREGON PONY."

STORY OF FIRST LOCOMOTIVE EVER USED IN STATE.

The Progress of Invention Has Made the Old Engine a Back Number, But in Its Day It Was a Great Worker.

Portland, Ore.—Standing in the Machinery, Electricity and Transportation building at the Portland Lewis and Clark exposition is a tiny locomotive, little larger than an automobile. The four wheels of the locomotive appear slightly larger than barrel hoops, the boiler is about as big as an apple barrel, and the whole engine is only 13 feet long.

This little engine, which bears the title Oregon Pony, was the first locomotive used in Oregon. The pony, as almost every visitor takes occasion to remark, is "not so much to look at." But in its day it was a great engine to work, and its history is so entangled with the history of early days in Oregon as to make it worthy of more than passing attention.

The Oregon Pony was born in the year 1861 at San Francisco, and immediately entered upon its life labors, going into commission as a portage connecting steamboats on the Columbia river at a place where for seven miles the rapids made it impossible for boats to pass.

It was the discovery of gold at Canyon City, Ore., that made the pony a necessary factor in western transportation, and the story of that discovery in itself forms an interesting tale that few people know.

At about the time of the outbreak of the civil war a party of emigrants, making their weary way over the mountains, crossed a stream which led into a lake. In the bed of the stream they found a yellow metal, which, they discovered, could be flattened out into a thin sheet by laying a chunk of it on a wagon wheel and pounding it with a hammer. The emigrants were interested and left a blue bucket to mark the place where they had picked up the yellow metal, and when they met some miners they told of their find. The search for the blue bucket began in a hurry. The bucket never was found, but the men who went in search of it found other streams as rich as the one which the bucket had been left to mark. Certain holdings there are named the Blue Bucket mines.

OREGON'S FIRST LOCOMOTIVE.
(Primitive Engine That Did Great Work During Gold Fever.)

Canyon City has been called "the last stand of the Argonauts." Thither flocked the "forty-niners" from California, pioneer gold seekers who had sought the rainbow's end in many places. The "forty-niners" made the trip overland, but when the news of the new find reached San Francisco hundreds of people set sail from the city for the north in the sailing vessels that then plied the Pacific coast. The ships brought the gold seekers to Portland, then a struggling town of about 2,000 inhabitants.

Beyond Portland ocean vessels could not sail, and immediately the Oregon Navigation company was formed to put in commission on the upper Columbia steamboats of a light draft which could navigate the stream. The company built steamboats to carry passengers and freight from Portland to the Cascades, a little more than half way to The Dalles, which point was then, and still is, the head of navigation and other boats to ply the water above the Cascades. Between the end of one steamship run and the beginning of the other was a stretch of seven miles of rapids, where no steamboats could navigate on account of the rocks which blocked the channel.

At first the steamboat company built a wagon road, and made the portage of gold seekers and their goods by team. But the road was a poor one, and the rains washed part of it away every little while. The difficulty was overcome temporarily by building a track with oak rails over which was laid a thin covering of strap iron. And it was for service on this track that the pony was built.

The pony was found to be the very thing needed. The engine was not too heavy for the rails, and was so small that she took the curves without difficulty; and she could make the seven miles in an hour, which was not at all bad. The first run was made on May 10, 1862, and for two years the faithful pony ran up and down with her load of passengers and freight. By the end of this period the iron rails from the east had arrived and been put in place, and a new engine, bigger and stronger, took the place of the pony. The pony being now of no use, was sold to David Hewes, of San Francisco, for $1,000, and entered upon a prosaic existence hauling sand to fill up San Francisco bay. In 1872 the pony was retired from active service. Mr. Hewes agreed to send the pony to the Lewis and Clark exposition, and stipulated that after the close of the fair the engine was to be given to the state of Oregon. This will be done.

AGE IS BESTING SAGE

VETERAN MONEY-LENDER TO QUIT BUSINESS LIFE.

But Abandon Wall Street? Never!—What the Face of the Man Who Believes in Hard Work Reveals.

So many times has the report gone out from New York that Russell Sage, the aged money lender of Wall street, was going to retire from business, that like the cry of "Wolf, wolf," by the boy in the fable, the public has ceased to give the statement credence. By this time the report can be relied upon as true, at least in part. The 89 years of the veteran broker are beginning to tell on him, and he is gradually abandoning the routine of his daily business life, which has been for a generation the wonder and joke of his acquaintances.

Mr. Sage is the largest individual money lender in the world, and has been for half a century, a conspicuous figure in Wall street. Now he is to relinquish his active business life, but abandon Wall street, as has been announced in some quarters, never! Russell Sage will never wholly desert Wall street until the breath has left his body. Its life is a part of his life. Its excitement and tumult have kept his blood aglow with the fervor of youth at an age when other men in more sober pursuits have been half blind groping for an open grave.

Russell Sage is stubbornly reluctant to yield even to the inexorable demands of time. His spirit of combativeness still defies the infirmities of the flesh. But he is forced to yield. The past few weeks have taught him this.

Russell Sage believes in and exemplifies the gospel of hard work. Work has been his hobby. The lack of relaxation has narrowed his life. Whether through habit or through pre-natal influences, Mr. Sage cares nothing for books, music or the drama.

Several years ago a New York phrenologist examined his head and gave a very flattering reading of his "bumps." But the head suggests very little to the average man or woman unless it be sadly misshaped, with a character in conformity. The face is an open book. We read instinctively the character of an individual in the lines of the face, the expression of the eyes, the contour of the mouth. Here is what a critical study of Mr. Sage's face reveals, as seen by George Nox McCain:

"The eye of Russell Sage denotes truthfulness; it also marks a man of great ambition and of great desire to make money. It is the eye of one who has exceedingly keen perceptive faculties. It is also the eye of a man who is instinctively religious. This may seem a remarkable deduction, but no one trait expressed in Russell Sage's face is more distinctly outlined than that of inherent religious feeling. It is shown in the deep-set eye, the width of the middle ear, the length of face from the tip of the nose to the top of the forehead.

"Russell Sage is slow to anger and his eye is the reverse of a boaster. The coarse, bushy eyebrows indicate a coarse, rugged nature; not an unlovely nature, crookedness, of lying. It is a face which marks keenness, the driving of hard bargains, and great will power.

"Russell Sage has been ambitious. He has also been a dreamer. The success he has achieved in acquiring great wealth indicates that his ambitions and his dreams have been along that line. A deep-set eye marks the dreamer; the eyes close together, one who can keep secrets. Oddly enough, too, whatever men may say of his companionable qualities, Russell Sage has always had a desire to please and win the regard of men.

"According to the pysiognomist, if his outward life has not always indicated these traits, it is because he has permitted circumstances to thwart his natural desires. All told, Russell Sage has a good face, albeit there shows in it a predominance of coarse lines which might have been softened had Russell Sage cultivated literature, music or the kindred arts."

But he had no time for this. Newspaper readers will remember the storm of indignation which swept the country a year ago over a magazine article by Mr. Sage, in which he opposed the annual vacation of the toiler. And yet Mr. Sage only voiced his firm belief when he expressed himself in these words:

"I think the vacation habit is the outgrowth of abnormal or deprived business methods. I fail to see anything legitimate in it."

CAUSED GIRL'S DEATH.

Barret Accused of Forcing Child to Go Beyond Her Depth.

Bridgeport, Aug. 2.—Joseph Barrett in the City Court was held for trial for manslaughter on a charge of having forced Lillian Brabner, a fourteen-year-old girl, to go into deep water at the Seaside Park bathing pavilion on July 19, where she was drowned.

Martha Colter testified she and four other girls, including Lillian Brabner, were bathing at Seaside Park and were lying on the sand near the edge of the water when Barrett and a young man named Butler walked along.

"Butler asked me," said Miss Colter, "to let him teach me how to swim, but I told him to go away and leave me alone, and he did." Then, she says, Barret made the same proposition to Lillian Brabner, which was also refused. Later, she said, Barrett seized the Brabner girl by the wrists and forced her into deep water.

Barrett had difficulty in reaching the shore, and did not know that the girl was drowned until after he was told by some one at the bathing pavilion.

GOOD-BY TO THE MOSQUITO.

New York and New Jersey Putting Them Out of Business.

New York, Aug. 2.—Destruction of mosquito larvae by petroleum and the weeding out of shrubbery in moist places in and about the Long Island and New Jersey coast resorts has almost eliminated the pests, according to reports collected by "The Herald."

Experiments with oil begun two or three years ago appear to have been entirely successful. The sprinkling of pools with crude oil has been re inforced by systematic ditching at many points, which has completely obliterated the damp spots where the mosquitoes were in former years bred by the million.

Leon Abbett a Candidate.

Ex-Assemblyman Leon Abbett announced yesterday that he is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Congressman from the Xth District of New Jersey. The district is now represented by Allan McDermott, who, it is said, has decided not to run again, but will devote his attention to his law practice and private business. Assemblyman James Hamill is also a candidate for the Congress nomination.

Monument to Late M. A. Hanna.

Cleveland, Aug. 2.—Word has been received by Samuel Mayer, of the Havana Monument Commission, from August Saint Gaudens, of Windsor, Vt., the sculptor, that his plans are prepared and that he is working on his clay model. When the clay model is completed the commission will go to Vermont to inspect it. If it meets with approval the actual work of construction will begin with out delay.

Garret A. Hobart to Wed.

Auburn, Me., August 2—The engagement is announced of Miss Caroline Frye Briggs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank P Briggs, of Auburn, and granddaughter of Senator William P. Frye, to Garret A. Hobart, of Paterson, N. J., son of the late Vice-President Hobart.

NEGRO MURDERER CAPTURED

suffering through which he was supposed to have passed. He joked and laughed with the officers.

He told the chief that he was only in Dismal swamp the first night the hunt for him there began. He said he was warned of the officers' approach and fled to the back country. He said he had been in this vicinity all through the search. The farmers, he said, were friendly to him, and helped him. It is known that Long was liked while he worked in this neighborhood, and his appearance was not that of a man who had suffered much for food.

A representative of The Daily Press spoke to him as he sat in his cell.

"You've had a hard time, haven't you?" he was asked.

"Yes, sir, pretty hard," he answered.

"How do you feel?"

"Pretty well, but I'm mighty hungry."

An officer stopped the conversation. He said it was against the rules.

Chief Kiely had Long's appetite satieted. He sent Doorman O'Gorman out for a rousing meal of steak, bread, vegetables and coffee. Long ate it with a gusto that bore out his complaint of hunger. He was allowed to smoke a cigar after it, and as the smoke rolled up in his cell he looked perfectly contented.

No attempt was made by the local police this forenoon to get a statement from the negro regarding the murder. The Trenton police have a full case against him.

J. P. Owens was among those whom the police allowed to see Long. When the latter learned he was a lawyer he asked Mr. Owens to represent him. The attorney took the case.

MAYOR TOOK $10,000.

Paterson's Chief Executive Has Disappeared.

William H. Belcher, mayor of Paterson, was charged today with obtaining $10,000 through false pretenses by the unauthorized use of passbooks of the Manchester Building and Loan Association, of which he is president. The charge is that this money was obtained from trust companies.

These acusations were made by Commissioner of Banking and Insurance David O. Watkins, of Trenton, and placed in the hands of Col. John J. Shaw, assistant prosecutor of Passaic county, and if Mayor Belcher, who has been missing from his home in Paterson for the past two days, returns, he will be confronted by them. The charges against Belcher followed a detailed report of the bank examiners, who have been at work on the case for several days.

Friends of Belcher say he is at his summer home in the mountains back of Midvale, and that he went there because of his health; but others say he is not at his mountain home, and it is expected a search will be instituted for him.

A Former Freeholder Remembers College.

The final accounts of the estate of the late Jacob J. Vreeland of Rocky Hill, were passed and allowed in the Somerset County Orphans' Court Saturday. The property is worth about $40,000 and the residum of the estate is left to Rutgers College, New Brunswick.

The testator died in February, 1901. He was a former freeholder of the county. There was much litigation in the estate here and in the Prerogative Court at Trenton. A counsel fee of $200 was allowed Horace Coddington, proctor for Jennie W. Kenyon, one of the beneficiaries; $100 to Bartine & Beekman, proctors of the executors, Jacob Vreeland, Jr., and $100 to John E. Elmendorf, the proctor for Rutgers College.

Firemen Dedicate New House.

Rahway, Aug. 2.—The Eagle Hook and Ladder Company of Avernelle, was duly dedicated Monday night by he twenty members who compose the company, incorporated about a year ago. The officers now in charge are: Chairman, B. F. Ellison; vice chairman, J. H. Wendelkin; secretary, E. Ehart; treasurer, E. A. Stulz. The building, a two-story structure, has been erected by the company members.

Death of Mrs. Fairweather.

Mrs. Jessie W. Fairweather, widow of Charles Fairweather, died yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. William Nicholson, of Prescott place. She was a native of Scotland and had lived in Plainfield but a short time. The funeral will be held from Mrs. Nicholson's home Friday afternoon at 2:30.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

There will be a business meeting of the W. C. T. U. in the rooms on Madison avenue, tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Rev. Dr. E. E. Jackson, of the Mt. Olive Baptist church, has declined a call to the Waverly Place Baptist church, New York. He returned yesterday from a trip to Albany.

CITY JOTTINGS.

—Miss Dayton, of the Plainfield Business College, is filling Miss Mattison's position at the Board of Health office, during her illness.

—A special for tomorrow at Neuman Brothers' will be twenty-five baskets of fancy Maryland melons. They have been carefully selected for the local trade.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Harry M. Brent, of Dewey, Indian Territory, formerly Miss Kate Messler, of German Valley, is visiting her sister, Mrs. J. Philip Kirch, of East Fifth street.

VACATION DAYS.

Frank Vail, Aaron Thompson and Arthur Vail are fishing today at Boynton Beach.

SMITH A MIDSHIPMAN.

Springfield Boy Admitted to Annapolis.

As a result of the competitive examination, held in May, Congressman Charles N. Fowler nominated William W. Smith, as principal; A. S. Whitney, of Plainfield, as first alternate, W. McI. Wolfe, of Chatham, as second alternate, and Robert F. Gray, of Summit, as third alternate, for appointment as midshipman at the U. S. Naval Academy from the Fifth Congressional district of New Jersey.

These young men all took the mental examination, held by the Government at Annapolis, on June 20, and passed with high ratings. William W. Smith, having also passed the physical examination, has been admitted to the Academy as midshipman.

Chicken Thief Gets Thirty Days.

"Conjunction" Jones, whose chief claim to notoriety is that he always happens in conjunction with other things, was given thirty days by Judge all this morning in the Court of Common Pleas, Elizabeth, on a charge of stealing a number of chickens from Mrs. Mary Galbraith, of 524 West Third street, and selling them for fifty cents each. He was not represented by counsel and he took his sentence philosophically.

Infant Son Dead.

Lawrence Flaherty, the seven-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Flaherty, of 219 Pond place, died this morning at the King's Daughters' baby camp on the mountain, following a severe attack of dysentery, where he had been under treatment. This is the third child lost in this family in the last two and a half years. Arrangements for the funeral have not yet been made.

Time of Funeral Changed.

The time of Mrs. Carrie K. Wood's funeral at St. Mary's church tomorrow morning has been set for 8:30 instead of 9 o'clock as previously announced. The change was made necessary because of Thomas Murphy's funeral, which takes place at 9:45.

ONE OF THE MISTAKES

that many people make, is that of not saving money. Save only a little, perhaps, but save some regularly. It will soon grow to a large amount with 3½ per cent. interest added.

DIME SAVINGS INSTITUTION

WE DON'T HUNT RABBITS WITH BATTLESHIPS—

Nor attack forts with pistols—not because we could not kill rabbits with a 12-inch gun, for we could: and not because we could not take a fort with pistols, for that is conceivable:—but because we try to fit our means to our purposes—and in these instances we would have rather conspicuous misfits.

In advertising we don't use a page of space to secure a furnished room—nor an inch of space to fill a store with customers—not because the page ad. would not secure a furnished room, for it would: and not because an inch of space could not draw a store-full of customers, for that is conceivable:—if we offered gold pieces to all comers: but because we try to use publicity in a rational way.

A merchant would not expect to lease or build a big store-building as cheaply as a small one, but it sometimes happens that he imagines he can keep the big store full of buyers with the same expenditure for publicity as he would make for the smaller store. Nobody knows just why the merchant is ever seized with this aberration—but unless he quickly throws it off he finds himself "taking the count," with the sheriff holding the watch.

To fill a big store every business day, with buyers is the same problem as that of filling the little store, or the any-size store; the solution, in any case, being "adequate (sufficient) publicity," and, incidentally, no store ever had this—and charm of store-keeping is partly in the fact that no one has yet sounded its possibilities—as no store has been advertised as fully and persistently and aggressively and enthusiastically as it might have been.

LONG CONFESSES CRIME

Negro Murderer Tells of His Flight After Killing Rival.

IMPLICATES FARMER

Prisoner Says That Nelson Warned Him to Hide—Fugitive Ate at His Home.

Flanked on either side by Acting Chief Cleary and Detective Clancy, of the Trenton police, and handcuffed to each, in a big touring car, Charles Long, the negro murderer captured by Chief Kiely, Detective McCarthy and Patrolman Higgins in New Market yesterday morning, started for Trenton yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

After a swift trip, interrupted only for a short time by the puncturing of a tire, the officers landed their prisoner in a Trenton station house at 5 o'clock. At 7 o'clock Long was arraigned before Judge Harris and unhesitatingly pleaded guilty to the charge of murdering Matthew Cunningham. In the crowd in the court room were many negroes who denounced Long.

His demeanor as he started for the city where he will have to expiate his crime was as cheerful as when the three officers brought him to the station house after the capture. Whatever it was that made him so indifferent to his capture, he had an added reason for cheerfulness when he started for the state capital. He was given a meal big enough for three ordinary men, and he cleaned the platters to the last bit on them. Just before he was taken from his cell, Chief Kiely gave him two goodly portions of something for his stomach's sake, and the expression of geniality and contentment that was on the "desperate" murderer's face as he stepped into the automobile was a model for respectable citizens to copy.

From the time word of Long's capture was brought to the city the sidewalk in front of the jail was crowded and when the Trenton officers and their captive appeared on the street they were the center of a curious mob of increasing proportions. The more curious pressed closely about the trio, and some of them tried to touch Long's garments. One daring relic-hunter tried to tear a piece from Long's coat tail. Officers from headquarters were compelled to scatter the crowd.

A lot of small boys chased after the automobile as it started down the street, hungrily feasting their eyes on "The Black Demon of Dismal Swamp." They clung to the rear wheel until the corner of Park avenue was turned. Then the unromantic chauffeur whipped up his gasoline and left the outlaw worshippers behind.

Long's delivery into the hands of the Trenton officers was attended by only the barest formalities. Justice Mosher endorsed the warrant for his arrest issued by the Mercer County authorities and Chief Kiely immediately turned the man over to Chief Cleary.

As soon as Chief Cleary got the murderer into his office, he put him through the third degree and got a full confession and statement. Long told the story of the murder, of his escape and of his wanderings. He said the crime was the result of his jealousy over the woman with whom he was enamored. This is his story:

"After the shooting I made my way out the back door and went down Pennsylvania avenue. I passed the driving park and made my way to Bound Brook, which place I reached Sunday, and from there I went to New Market, where I arrived Thursday of the same week. I traveled by night and walked in fields, avoiding the railroad and highway. After I reached New Market I went to the farm of Franklin Van Nuis and told the owner of the crime that I committed in Trenton. Van Nuis said that it was too bad and stated that he was sorry. He sent me to Wilson's farm that same afternoon and I worked Thursday, Friday and Saturday pitching oats and making fences. I was back from the fence near the center of the field Saturday afternoon when Nelson came rushing out and shouted: 'Charley, get to the woods.' (This was the time when detectives gave the fugitive a chase.) I suspected detectives were after me, and I ran to the woods, remaining there until 8 o'clock.

"After this I came back to Nelson's house and had supper. Nelson's daughter Vera waited upon me. I don't believe Mr. Nelson knew I was there, because I learned he was not at home. I left there after supper, about 9 o'clock, and took the roads during the night to New Brunswick, sleeping under a tree on the wayside. I didn't sleep much, and heard several autos pass by. I wandered again back into the woods, not

UNION COUNTY, 116,000

Census Returns All in Excepting Those of Rahway and Cranford.

PLAINFIELD LEADS

Biggest Gain in Population During Last Five Years Was Made Here — The Figures.

With the exception of Cranford borough and the city of Rahway, all the returns of the census in this county are now in the hands of the Secretory of the State and they indicate that the total population of Union county is today about 116,000. Taking the rate of increase for Cranford at the same as that between the years 1890 and 1900, Cranford's population is figured out to be approximately 3,500 and the City of Rahway, approximately, 8,500. If these figures are correct the total population of Union county today is 116,815. This represents an increase of 15,462 over the total population of 1900 when it was only 99,353.

Elizabeth's gain is more that that of any other city or town in the county, it being 16 per cent. with the exception of Plainfield where the ratio was 20 per cent. The population as shown by the returns received to date in the county are as follows:

YOUNG GYPSY QUEEN, BETROTHED HERE, WEDS

ROSY-HARRISON BECOMES A BRIDE IN NEW YORK STATE CAMP.

Middletown, N. Y., Aug. 3.—Queen Posey Harrison, the gypsy monarch who was betrothed in Plainfield early last year as the old queen lay on her deathbed in camp there, became the bride of Thomas Harrison, hre yesterday. For weeks tribes of gypsies have ben journeying to this city to attend the great event, and fourteen are represented at the encampment.

The crowning of the bride occurred on Tuesday night when Davey Wells, who had worn the crown for several years, transferred it to the new queen. She was the recipient of more than $1,000 in money and jewelry.

Queen Posey is an attractive woman of twenty-two, is the daughter of Nailor Harrison, of Madison, N. J., was born in London and has always lived a gypsy life.

The crown was used when Janta Stanley was made queen in England fifty years ago. Among the gifts was a shield made of silver coins bearing the initials of every queen who has worn the crown.

Miss V. Z. Foote to Wed.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Vina Z. Foote, who is well known here and Dr. C. W. Root, both of New York. The wedding date is Tuesday, September 5. Miss Foote conducts the largest directory for trained nurses in the country. There will be no change in the management of the directory.

Circus Here.

The Hargreaves show arrived in town this morning on time. A street parade was held at noon. The Toozoonin Arab troupe was a prominent feature of the cavalcade.

JULY'S HEALTH RECORD

Only Six Cases of Communicable Disease During the Month.

SANITARY CONDITIONS

House-to-House Inspection Being Continued—506 Places Visited—Reports for the Month.

According to the reports presented at the monthly meeting of the Board of Health yesterday afternoon, it was shown that the sanitary condition of the city is good. There was a decided decrease in the number of cases of communicable disease during the month of July. Only six cases were reported and there were no deaths. There were three cases of scarlet fever, one of typhoid fever and two of tuberculosis. At present there are but two cases of contagious disease under quarantine.

The work on the house-to-house inspection is being continued. Much trouble has been experienced by unnecessary delays on the part of several plumbers. However, 506 houses were inspected with the following results:

Total number of houses inspected, 506; privy vaults found, 203; cesspools found, 86; privy vaults which required cleaning, 71; cesspools which required cleaning, 14; abandoned privy vaults not filled, 83; abandoned cesspools not filled, 36; abandoned wells not filled, 3; driven wells found, 68; dug wells found, 9; defective plumbing systems found, 19; unsanitary cellars found, 31; chicken yards found, 75; privy vaults too near well, 18; cesspools too near well, 13; houses apparently overcrowded, 0; accumulations of garbage, 17; accumulations of ashes, 15; accumulations of ashes mixed with garbage, 12; accumulations of manure, 24; accumulations of manure mixed with garbage, 3.

COUNCIL TO EXAMINE ASSESSORS' BOOKS

SPECIAL MEETING TO BE HELD THE MIDDLE OF THE MONTH.

The local Board of Assessors having completed the rounds of the city and made the proper record of the various assessments, the Common Council will arrange to hold an adjourned meeting about the middle of August to examine the books. Chairman Tolles, of the finance committee, expects to receive word from the board when it will be convenient for such examination and the date will then be fixed.

Although the assesed valuation of Plainfield is not known at the present time it is confidently believed that it will be $10,000,000 this year. Last year it was something over $9,000,000 and the great amount of building since the last assessment is expected to bring the amount up to the figures mentioned.

In addition to the large number of dwellings built during the past year, there nas been extensive improvements made in the business part of the city, and more are planned, including the buildings to be erected by the Plainfield Trust Company and C. W. McCutchen on Park avenue. Other improvements are being planned for East and West Front street in the business section.

Besides these things, there are many new families moving here and not a few contemplate improvements which will benefit the city in the course of another year. After the Common Council passes on the books they will be sent to Elizabeth and when they return here the tax rate for the coming year will be fixed.

ESCAPED FROM ASYLUM.

Minnie Force, of this city, Fled From State Institution Yesterday.

The authorities at the State asylum for insane, Morris Plains, telephoned to police headquarters yesterday afternoon that Minnie Force, a young girl of this city, had escaped from the institution yesterday morning. Details of the escape were not given.

Miss Force's home is at 309 Arlington avenue. It was supposed that the girl would make for this city in as straight a line as she could follow, and Chief Kiely told all the night men, before they went out on duty last night, to watch for her.

The Methodists' Excursion.

If you want to enjoy a good outing go with the Methodist church Sunday schools of Plainfield, the borough and Dunellen on their annual excursion to Asbury Park, on Thursday, August 10. It will be a great day for the Methodists.

VOORHEES W. LAING SUCCUMBS TO CANCER

EDWARD A. LAING'S FATHER DIES AFTER FEW WEEKS ILLNESS.

Voorhees W. Laing, father of Edward A. Laing, the stationer and newsdealer, died this morning about 11 o'clock, at his home on East Front street, from cancer of the stomach and liver. Mr. Laing was taken ill a few weeks ago and an exaimnation disclosed his trouble. He was removed to the hospital where it was thought an operation might be performed, but owing to the proximity of the growth to the liver, it was found that this would be fatal. He was then taken home and given such treatment as would tend to allievate his suffering as much as possible. During the past few days he gradually grew weaker and slept himself away.

Mr. Laing had lived in Plainfield all his life. He was a painter by trade and for several years he conducted a paint store in Park avenue. After his son started in business, he gave up painting and assisted in the store, remaining there until his illness compelled him to give up. He is survived by a wife, a son, Edward A. Laing and a daughter, Miss Ethel Laing. Announcement of funeral will be made later.

MORE TROLLEY VICTIMS.

Directory Man Among Those Hurt in the Collision.

James R. Wand, of the Wand Directory Company, was among the passengers on the closed trolley car which collided with an open car near Leland avenue, Tuesday night, and he was hurt in the stomach. Mr. Wand was standing on the back platform between the iron guard rail and the end, and the collision pitched him forward and backward. He was on his way to his home in Woodbridge, and he continued his journey without medical treatment.

Other passengers who were injured were Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Hadley and their young son, of West Front street. It is reported today that all of the injured persons are improving. In nearly every case they have employed counsel for the purpose of settling their claims against the Public Service Corporation. As yet the responsibility for the accident has not been fixed.

TRINITY'S EXCURSION.

Thirteen Cars Required to Convey Happy Crowd to Asbury Park.

Attended by almost perfect weather conditions, the excursion of Trinity Reformed church and Marconnier chapel, drew away from the North avenue station shortly after 8 o'clock this morning. The train consisted of fourteen cars, thirteen of them well filled with members of the two schools and their friends. They composed one of the largest crowds that has gone to Asbury Park this sason.

Frank Webster, of Duer street, was the conductor in charge and he had an efficient crew to care for the excursionists. The return trip will commence at 7 o'clock tonight and the train should arrive in town about 8.30.

Phantom Alarm.

Two blows sounded in the fire alarm shortly after five o'clock yesterday, and box 12 rang up on the fire headquarters tapper. The apparatus hustled to the box, but there was nothing doing. Chief Doane tried to find out what caused the blows. In the other two houses only the gong tapped twice, and no box was indicated. It is suspected that the P. S. C. trolley men at work along the line, crossed the wire in some way.

Funeral of Thomas Murphy.

The funeral of Thomas Murphy, the thirteen-year-old boy who died Tuesday as the result of injuries received on the railroad, were held from St. Mary's church this morning. Father Bogan conducted mass which was largely attended by relatives and friends. Four playmates acted as pall bearers and carried the casket to the grave in St. Mary's cemetery.

Death of Young Daughter.

Marjory Smith, the five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Smith, colored, of East Sixth street, died last evening. The funeral will be held from the parents' home Sunday afternoon and interment will be made at Hillside cemetery.

Bert Moore in the Chorus.

Herbert W. Moore, of Grove street, will leave on Saturday for Chicago, to join the Florodora Company, which opens the first of next week with the new comic opera, "The Duke of Duluth."

—Maryland melons are the features of Neuman Brothers' big display. Twenty-five baskets just arrived to go on sale tomorrow.

David Carr and daughter, Miss May Carr, of Newark, are visiting at the home of Henry Leifke, of West Front street.

2 MORE FOR C. J. FLEET

"Somerville" and "Cranford" to be Added to Road's North River Craft.

SWIFT FERRYBOATS

Now Being Built at Wilmington—A Description of the Vessels Which Are to Be of Finest Type.

The Harlan & Hollingsworth Company, of Wilmington, Del., is now at work on two new ferry boats, that will soon be added to the New Jersey Central's fleet in the North river. They are to be known as the "Somerville" and the "Cranford," and will ply between Communipaw and West Twenty-third street. With their completion the Central will have the finest array of boats of this class sailing New York harbor.

The "Somerville" and "Cranford" will be double decked and propelled by triple expansion engines, driving screws, one at either end. In length they are to be 207 feet, breadth 65 feet, draft 11 feet and will have a seating capacity of 600. There will be two cabins on the main deck and from these, wide stairways will lead to a large salon on the upper deck, outside of which will be a spacious deck extending continuously around the boat, affording an excellent promenade and view of the river.

The cabins are to be finished in light oak, floored with tiled linoleum, and have numerous windows, assuring an extra allotment of light. They are also to be fully equipped with life boats, life preservers and fire fighting apparatus in comformity with requirements of the United States rules and regulations.

N. J. EXEMPT FIREMEN FIGHT FOR RECORDS

PRESIDENT LITTELL BEGINS LEGAL ACTION AGAINST SECRETARY.

A case of annual interest to the members of the New Jersey State Exempt Firemen's Association will be heard before Judge Fred Frambach in the District Court, Hoboken, today, when P. J. Murray, of that city, will be the defendant in an action brought by the association to recover books, minutes, seals and other papers held by him. Mr. Murray was secretary of the association for two years, retiring this year, and when his successor was elected, he failed to turn over the books and papers, as required. It is said that he has on several occasions promised to do so, but each time has failed.

Since the election of D. W. Littell, of this city, to the presidency of the association, he has made every effort to settle the matter out of court, but failing, decided to take legal action.

V. W. Nash, Jr., as counsel for the State association, has charge of the action against Mr. Murray, and will appear against him today. It is reported that another action against Mr. Murray is now pending and will be taken up after today's hearing. Mr. Murray is a clerk in the office of the tax assessor in Hoboken and has been quiet prominent in that city. He gives no reason for his failure to present the books and papers to the secretary-elect, but is expected to explain his action today.

ROBBED HIS BENEFACTOR

Borough Baker the Victim of a Man Whom He Befriended.

DROPS FROM SIGHT

Simon Schafiora, After Gaining Employment from H. A. Voehl by Hard Luck Tale, Takes Money and Jewelry.

Henry A. Voehl, the Somerset street baker, had his faith in humanity rudely shattered last night, through the sudden disappearance of Simon Schafiora, a stranger who recently won his sympathy to the extent of getting a job and a good home. Schafiora dropped away yesterday as quietly as he came and when it was an established fact that he had taken "French leave," a hurried inventory showed that he had also taken the following: $35 in cash belonging to Mr. Voehl; a watch worth $65 belonging to another employe, and several scarf pins, one of them worth $7, the property of various members of the household. The borough police and County Detective Totten were quickly notified but he had evidently arranged his plans to a nicety and had gotten well out of the danger zone.

Schafiora came to the Voehl place a month ago and told a thirty-third degree hard-luck story that excited the sympathy of all within hearing. The proprietor found him work in the bake shop and give him a room in the upper part of the building. Two weeks ago when he complained of being sick he also made arrangements to have him sent to the hospital but he refused to go and was allowed to remain in his room. This gave him an opportunity to reconnoiter when the family were all busy and he waited until last night when the opportunity came to get the money and jewelry. Voehl says "No more strangers for his."

BAND CONCERT ARTISTS TO VIEW CITY AND BOROUGH

WILL AFTERWARD BE ENTERTAINED AT DINNER BY MAYOR SMALLEY.

Messrs. F. A. Mills, "Billy" Redmond, "Billy" Murray and Lew Leever, who are to be at the band concert tomorrow night, will arrive in Plainfield early tomorrow afternoon for the purpose of making a tour of the city. Although all four have been in town off and on for several years their visits have always been at night and they could see but little of it.

The quartette will be met at the North Avenue station by Bandmaster LaVere and George Voehl and will be taken in the latter's automobile through the residential sections. At the conclusion of the trip they will be entertained at dinner by Mayor N. B. Smalley at his home in Washington Park. Councilman M. C. VanArsdale, the treasurer of the band concert fund, will be a guest at the dinner also.

The programme for tomorrow night's concert will embrace a number of Mr. Mills' compositions and in detail will be as follows:

March—"A Selection by Andy," Mills; medley overture—"Mills' Hits," Mills; concert waltz—"Heidelberg," Mills; vocal solo—(a) "Fretty Mary," Mills, (b) "Good Bye Sweet Marie," Mills, William Redmond, assisted by Messrs. Leever and Murray; grand medley of war songs, Beyer; cornet solo—"Levy Athan Polka" Levy, John S. Leick; selection—"Popular Humpty Dumpty," Recker; vocal solo—(a) "Happy-go-Lucky is the Way to Be," Silver, (b) "Yankee Doodle Boy," Geo. Cohan, by request, Billy Murray, assisted by Leever and Redmond; an Arabian Interlude—"Arabola," Hendrix.

Mr. Maguire's Explanation.

Philip Maguire, of the Public Service Corporation, denies that his territory has been clipped or that his salary has been reduced. He says that he still holds the position of assistant division superintendent of the local lines, the main line and Rahway line, and the only change is that instead of having his office in Westfield, it is located at the Watchung avenue stand. He did not care to move to Westfield nor did he like the idea of being so far away from his office. Thomas Burke will be located at the Westfield office, acting as an assistant to Mr. Maguire and he will look after the company's interest at that end of the line under the latter's direction.

Frank Putnam, of Putnam & DeGraw, cut his right forefinger very severely while cleaning his bicycle yesterday. The finger caught in the chain. The wound was dressed by a physician.

TAINTED INSOLVENCY?

Correspondent Argues That Charles L. Hyde is Not in Enviable Position.

REVIEWS THE CASE

"X. Y. Z." Tells of the Proceedings in New York—Judgment for $50,000 Stands Against Plainfielder.

From a prominent resident comes a communication regarding the Charles L. Hyde bankruptcy matter. As stated in The Daily Press a few days ago, Charles L. Spier and others made an unsuccessful attempt to have the founder of Tuxedo Park declared insolvent. The petition was dismissed but a judgment for $50,000 recovered against him in a New York court still remains unpaid and Mr. Hyde says he has started proceedings to have it wiped out. The communication follows:

Editor, The Daily Press:

Some days ago there appeared in your paper an item in regard to the bankruptcy proceeding against Mr. Charles Hyde. A casual reader would have inferred that the whole matter was a trifling squabble over money and that Mr. Hyde was entirely in the right. The facts, however, are in the right. The facts, however, are all a matter of record and cannot be brushed aside.

The action of Spier against Hyde & Garrison was begun in the New York Supreme Court, the highest court of original jurisdiction, several years ago. A judgment was rendered against the defendants, but, on appeal, the Appellate Division reversed this judgment and ordered a new trial. The case was then tried for the second time before Justice O'Gorman and an interlocutory judgment rendered for plaintiff. In his decision the judge says: "The contract pleaded as a defense was obtained from the plaintiff by false representations of material facts made to the plaintiff by the defendant, Hyde. Such representations were untrue and were deliberately made with knowledge of their falsity and with the intention to mislead and deceive the plaintiff." This interlocutory judgment was affirmed (with some modifications) by the Appellate Division, and Justice Hatch in his opinion says: "We reach the conclusion .... that the court was justified in finding that the defendants were guilty of a breach of their fiduciary relation," (See 92 Appellate Division Reports, page 482.)

The rights of the parties having been decided, the case was sent to a reference to determine the exact amount due and on the coming in of the report a final judgment for $50,600 was entered against Mr. Hyde. All these facts appear of record in the judgment roll filed in the County Clerk's office, Equity, on May 31, 1905.

Mr. Hyde may still appeal from the final judgment to the Court of Appeals, but his failure either to pay the judgment or to give security to pay in the event of affirmance, leaves the finding of fraud in full force. It is said that he has stated that he will never pay this judgment and perhaps he never will, but he certainly ought to have no public countenance in his efforts to beat his creditors, and his personal friends ought to know just where he stands. "Tainted money" may be a matter of opinion and taste, but tainted insolvency is an old story and no respectable man should countenance it.

Trees Seventy-Five Years Old.

Many residents have noticed with regret the cutting down of the large shade trees in West Second street in front of the Public Service Corporation to make room for large poles and heavy wires. Some of these shade trees are very old and have been admired for their beauty and shade. George Watts, the West Front street butcher, has secured two or three pieces of the trunks and will convert them into chopping blocks at his market. Yesterday in examining one of the pieces he counted the rings and computed that the tree from which it was cut was seventy-five years old.

Firemen Going to Brooklyn.

Captain William Townley, of the local firemen's baseball team, completed arrangements yesterday for the return game to be played with the Brooklyn fire laddies. It will take place at Brooklyn on Tuesday on the National League grounds at Fourth avenue and Third street. The local delegation will leave here on the 12.03 train and those who contemplate going are requested to be on hand at that time.

Births, Marriages, Deaths.

During July there were reported ten marriages, twenty-four births and twenty-seven deaths in Plainfield, according to the Board of Health report. Seventeen deaths were from intestinal disease.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

No agreement or understanding, as far as anyone can find out, has yet been reached between the railroad and the councilmanic committee appointed to approach the Central people on the Chestnut street crossing matter. The committee is composed of Councilmen Schneider and Randolph. The citizens are beginning to ask questions regarding the delay.

Henry Kirchner, Jr., was among those injured in the trolley collision in Plainfield Tuesday afternoon. His thumb was sprained and he suffered a number of contusions. He was on the open car, but did not jump. A few weeks ago Mr. Kirchner's father was injured in a trolley accident in the borough.

An addition for the serving of refreshments is to be made to the trolley waiting room at the loop. It will be a separate room, but will open directly on the waiting room. This will increase the space for the accomodation of passengers.

Local anglers are disappointed and put out by the order stopping fishing in the Raritan. The anglers have been ordered from the stream because of damage that has been done to waterside properties by careless fishermen.

The loss on the First Baptist church, which was struck by lightning during the storm Saturday night, is being adjusted by the Germania and Westchester Insurance Companies. Howard K. Bird is the agent for them.

The bolt that struck the Baptist church Saturday played a curios prank with a picture that hung in the lecture room. It melted the wire so thoroughly that not a trace of it could be found, but left the picture untouched.

Brune Wolfe, the eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wolfe, of Walnut street, died yesterday morning. Dysentery was the cause of death. He will be buried in South Plainfield today.

The force at Levering & Garrigues' plant is the largest that has ever worked there. One hundred and eighty men are working.

Theodore Hubbard stumbled yesterday against a barrel in Kuldoshes' grocery store and sprained his ankle.

New switches are to be laid at the trolley loop. The present ones do not work satisfactorily.

John Adelman, of Newark, is visiting friends in the borough.

Paxton VanArtsdale is out after his recent illness.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD

The capture of Long, the Trenton murderer, by the Plainfield police yesterday, is a great relief to the residents about Alton, as every strange negro who passed that way since the search has been on was looked upon with suspicion.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gray, who have been boarding for several years with Mrs. Gray's mother, Mrs. Ann Dobbins, have rented Henry C. Meyers' cottage on Prospect avenue, and will begin housekeeping the coming week.

Scotch Plains and the borough presents a deserted appearance today, as everybody, both old and young, who could get away, went with the union excursion to Asbury Park.

Miss Violet Aller, who has been spending two weeks with her uncle, Thomas Whitenack, has returned to her home at Somerville.

Today is circus day in Plainfield and the local small boy who missed the excursion today has a balm for his wounded feelings.

Only the usual monthly routine business was transacted at the meeting of the Bucket and Engine Co., held last night.

George Archibold, of Westfield, has been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Archibold, of Washington Valley.

The local ball team has a game scheduled for Saturday with the Berkeley Heights team.

William Jamison started today for a two weeks' stay at Asbury Park.

Twilight Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., meets in weekly session tonight.

There is some talk of organizing a local tribe of I. O. R. in town.

JERSEY CENTRAL PLANS AT ELIZABETHPORT

CONTEMPLATES IMPROVEMENTS ALONG WATERFRONT AT GREAT EXPENSE.

The Central Railroad of New Jersey presented a petition to the Elizabeth City Council Tuesday night for permission to lay another single track across First street, at Broadway, to connect with the freight yards along the sound shore.

In the petition it was pointed out that the Central Railroad has in contemplation extensive improvements along the waterfront, involving an expenditure of a large sum of money which would enhance, it was declared, the value of taxable property and give employment to a large number of men.

The work was described as "a general plan of improvement."

It was pointed out that new docks had already been built along the Sound shore and to further facilitate improvements it was necessary to realign the tracks and to maintain additional tracks along Broadway between the points mentioned. The communication stated these improvements were necessary for the better handling of the company's fast increasing freight business at Elizabeth.

In discussing the matter with a newspaperman yesterday, W. G. Besler, vice president of the Central Railroad, said that the improvements referred to were the development of the ideas expressed to him some months ago and published at length in the county papers. These ideas involve the building of additional docks and a vast increase in trackage and freight handling and storage facilities along the water front. After the presentation of the petition to the Elizabeth City Council Tuesday night, a request was made that a committee from Council arrange with Mr. Besler for a conference looking toward the settlement of several matters of importance to the city now in dispute. Probably the most important of these is the matter of grade crossings.

PERSONAL.

Miss Clara Smith, of Duer street, returned yesterday from her annual vacation.

Miss Ann Holcombe, of Flemington, has been spending a week with relatives here.

J. E. Hoagland and daughter, Miss Lizzie Hoagland, of Three Bridges, are visiting friends in town.

Mrs. F. S. Work, of Prospect place, who was recently operated upon at Muhlenberg Hospital, is improving nicely.

William Hill, of East Second street, has been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William G. Hill, of Flemington.

Union County Common Pleas Court.

In the matter of the application of Ann E. Chapin to have a mortgage cancelled of record. Order to Show Cause.

It appearing by due proof that the said applicant, Ann E. Chapin, did, on the twenty-eighth day of March, Eighteen Hundred and Eighty-Two acquire by deed of warranty from Elias R. Pope and Hannah E. Pope, his wife, and Carman Parse and Eliza A. Parse, his wife, certain lands in the City of Plainfield, County of Union and State of New Jersey. And it appearing further that said lands had been acquired by the said Elias R. Pope and the said Carman Parse from Charles N. Hildreth, by deed dated May 1, 1876, both of which said deeds are recorded in the Register's office of the County of Union; And it appearing further that the said Charles N. Hildreth on the twelfth day of February, Eighteen Hundred and Seventy-Four, executed a mortgage on said premises to Ayres Codington, William Mc Nabb and Augustus Codington, partners as A. Codington, Mc Nabb & Co.; Cora O. Meeker and Robert Anderson, partners as C. O. Meeker & Co.; Morgan Bird, Theodore W. Young and Abraham S. Young partners as T. W. Young & Co.; Alfred D. Cook and Robert Cook, partners as A. D. Cook & Bro. and James S. Carman to secure the sum of Four Thousand and Twenty-Eight Dollars and Forty-Five Cents, which said mortgage is still open upon the records of the County of Union. And it appearing further that the said Ann E. Chapin has been in uninterrupted peaceable possession of said premises since the twenty-eighth day of March, Eighteen Hundred and Eighty-Two, and that no demand has ever been made upon her for payment of any part of the principal or of any interest on said mortgage and that she believes that the said mortgage has been paid and satisfied and should be cancelled of record. It is thereupon, on this twelfth day of July, A. D., Nineteen Hundred and Five, by virtue of an act entitled, "An act providing for the cancelling of record of mortgages by order of a circuit judge or law judge of the County," approved March 10, 1891, ordered, that the said mortgagees show cause before me at the Court House in Elizabeth, on the sixth day of September, next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, why the said mortgage should not be cancelled of record; It is further ordered that this order to show cause shall be served on the said Robert H. Cook by leaving a copy at his usual place of abode within five days from the date hereof and that the same be served on the said Ayres Codington, William Mc Nabb and Augustus Codington, partners as A. Codington, Mc Nabb & Co.; Cora O. Meeker and Robert Anderson, partners as C. O. Meeker & Co.; Morgan Bird, Theodore W. Young and Abraham S. Young, partners as T. W. Young & Co.; Alfred D. Cook, partner of R. H. Cook; and James S. Carman, by publishing the same at least once a week for not less than four weeks in the Plainfield Press and in the Plainfield Courier-News.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

W. S. Terhune & Son, the real estate dealers, would like to consult with you if you are interested in realty bargains.

A fine cut chewing tobacco of quality is Hess' Backbone, sold by M. C. Dobbins, Park avenue. Big variety of natural leaf brands.

J. Hervey Doane, the Park avenue jeweler, has had years of experience in his business and can always be depended upon to sell reliable goods.

Dudley Miller, the Park avenue druggist, is making a specialty of milk-weed cream for sunburn. It greatly improves a poor complexion.

John Herrmann, the Somerset street stair builder, would be pleased to have your order. He is a man of experience and will guarantee any job he undertakes.

The painting and papering done by Charles Conover & Co., of Elmwood place, stands the test every time. It will be to your advantage to consult this firm.

The best place in town to enjoy a plate of ice cream is at G. Mastondonato's parlor on Liberty street. It is served in a cool spot and amid pleasant surroundings.

If you have in mind the improvement of your residential grounds, visit the Belleview nursery or drop them a postal. They are selling their big stock of trees and shrubbery at rock bottom prices.

The H. E. Gayle Hardware Company has the reputation for fair dealing, and when you want anything in the hardware line, cutlery, kitchen utensils or builders' materials go to this store and you will get the best at the lowest figures.

Kolb's candy specials are the talk of the town. All his chocolates, caramels and bon bons are made fresh each day and only of the purest materials. Candy and ice cream may be ordered by 'phone 295-R and they will be delivered promptly.

Before going away on your vacation, visit J. P. Kirch's smokers' emporium on North avenue and get a box of his cigars intended for holiday use. They are made of pure tobacco leaf and are put up so they will not take too much room in a suit case.

When you want a juicy and tender piece of meat, or fresh fish go to Roth & Co.'s market on East Front street, and you will get it at prices that will appeal to you. The firm has the reputation of selling only such meats and fish as can be guaranteed to be all right.

It makes all the difference in the world where you buy your clothes, and for that reason persons particular about their appearance generally go to Weinberger's store on West Front street. His stock of men's and boys' clothing is the best. The styles, quality and prices will suit you.

A Blaze of Beauty.

The Valley of the Lehigh is one of the most delightful places of refuge at this sweltering time of year. The name alone is enough to conjure up—if not an invigorating mountain breeze—at least a vision of grand mountain scenery. Not only is it an ideal country for a summer vacation, but it repays a hundredfold the time given to the most fleeting visit. Many points of supreme interest, in fact, are within the reach of a single day's excursion from New York. Notable among these is Mauch Chunk.

Both from historic interest, this being the place where anthracite coal was first discovered and mined in the United States, and on account of the wonders of the natural scenery, Mauch Chunk alone is one of the most remarkable localities in Eastern America. The whole trip is charming in the highest degree. First one traverses the beautiful rolling country of Western New Jersey, studded with splendid groves and picturesque old farm buildings. Beyond Easton the railroad runs along beside the Lehigh River and the old canal and the scenery becomes more varied and striking. At last Mauch Chunk is reached where it lies hidden in the heart of the hills.

The feature of the greatest interest at Mauch Chunk is the old "Switch-back Railroad." Built in early times to bring the product of the mines down to the barges, it has of late years been used solely for the recreation of visitors. It affords a thrilling ride. From the summit of a mountain commanding a view of the wide region bounded by distant mountain ranges, the car starts gradually until, gaining speed from its own momentum, it rushes along wildly, through the forests, by old mines and mining settlements, across high pasture-lands, and along the hillsides until at last the circuit of eighteen miles is completed and the car has returned safely to the foot

The New Jersey Central will run a popular excursion to Mauch Chunk on August 6, 1905. Round trip $1.50. Special train leaves Plainfield at 9:20 a. m. and there is sufficient time at Mauch Chunk for a day of rare enjoyment. 8 2 4 c

The Hoboken team will play the Manhattans at St. George Cricket grounds on Sunday.

Every local fan will want to be on hand Saturday to see the Daabsters take the fourth contest.

The Newark Eastern League Club will play the Elizabeth Y. M. C. A. team at Elizabeth, tomorrow afternoon.

Manager Denman is having Plainfield's experience of last year. New players in every game. It is an expensive habit.

With four or five new men on the Westfield team it will scarcely be recognized. Mallen, however, will be on the coaching lines.

George Allen will do the catching for the West Ends, of Somerville, while Russell, the regular man, is laid up with an injured thumb.

"McGoey is to walk the plank." These are the words of Manager Denman. He played a perfect fielding game and occasionally got a hit.

There are persistent rumors that Pat Powers will succeed President Harry Pulliam, of the National League, at the expiration of his term this year.

There will be no amalgamation of the two big leagues next year, if John T. Brush and Frank Farrell have their way. Both are opposed to the scheme.

It makes no difference to the locals what changes are made on the Westfield team, they will still continue to win with their brilliant fielding and good hitting.

In the game between Philadelphia and Chicago on Tuesday the Quaker City team used fourteen players, including three pitchers, winning by a score of 7 to 6.

The Daabsters are helping "Red" Waller to lose his reputation days and he is no longer recognized as "the best pitcher on earth," a title given to him by his friends.

Edward Golden, night operator at the Western Union office, is an enthusiastic baseball player and fan. He manages and plays on the Hopewell team, which has an enviable record this year.

GOLF.

A special event scheduled for the Plainfield Country Club on Saturday, August 12, is a golf ball sweepstakes.

C. B. Morgan is now one of the scratch men at the Plainfield Country Club. His recent work shows steady improvement.

E. B. Shoemaker now leads for the Golf Committee cup at the Plainfield Country Club, and judging by the improvement of his game, he will probably hold it for awhile.

Liquor Dealers to Elect.

Local liquor dealers will elect delegates to the twenty-first annual convention of the Liquor Dealers' Protective League of New Jersey, which will be held at Turn Hall, Paterson, Thursday, September 14. The Patersonians will spare no trouble or expense to give a hearty reception to the delegates. There will be about four delegates representing this city, as each society is entitled to five delegates for each twenty-five members.

JOURNALISTIC OPINION

Why Remarkable?

A remarkable fact in connection with the Colby-Lentz fight in Essex county is the almost universal sympathy of the Republican papers of the State with the Colby movement.—Paterson Press.

Where Do They Get It?

Where they get the intoxicant is not for us to say. Perhaps they bring it with them in their hip pockets, but the fact remains, nevertheless, that drunken men are no longer an uncommon sight here.—Asbury Park Journal.

Performs As Well As Promises.

The Democrats in New Jersey expected to win in the last State election upon its promises of taxation reforms. The people, however, knew that the Republican party is the only party that performs as well as promises—Elizabeth Journal.

Street Railways Are Different.

A water supply is one of the utilities that may as well be owned by a city as by a private corporation. The same may be said of a lighting plant, but when it comes to street railways, the proposition takes on a different phase.—Trenton State Gazette.

Another Growing City.

The Camden Post-Telegram congratulates Gloucester City on its "big" increase in population. Gloucester has grown just 1,215 in five years. That's very good for South Jersey. Come to think of it, Perth Amboy started out with a small beginning and now she leads the county.—Perth Amboy News.

Properly Classified.

No, best beloved, those pretty little fish, resembling a bit of celluloid set with rhinestones, that wash across your dimpled knee while you are taking your morning tub are not the centropristes nigricannus, but are the young of the clupea harengus. Always come to us when you want any information as to the free studies in natural history furnished by the water department.—Trenton True American.

Colby's Fight.

Assemblyman Colby is making a protracted fight even in this sultry weather against the Republican machine in Essex county. He wants to be Senator and if elected will fight hard for limited franchises for corporations and against their encroachments and domineering influence. Mr. Colby has the voters with him but the machine does not seem favorable to him. He may not win this time but there is a growing feeling that what he advocates is right and must in the end prevail.—Mount Holly Herald.

Queer Results.

Over in Pennsylvania a Bucks county farmer directed his hired man to plant cantaloupe seeds, and he is now getting a crop of cucumbers. This season he is considering the advisability of telling his man to plant pumpkins in the hope of raising watermelons next year. That hired man reminds us very forcibly of the New Jersey voters who elect Democratic office-holders in order to bring forth reform. The crop is too often different. The public receives cucumbers where it expected cantaloupes and must be content with pumpkins where it hoped for watermelons.—New Brunswick Home News.

LITERARY.

Lindsay Denison, writing in Collier's, issue of August 5, reviews Thomas W. Lawson's recent open-air campaign in the Central West, and concludes by saying that the public listened, but they did not sell. He says: "The Ottawa Chautauqua received Mr. Lawson as it had received the other lecturers who had addressed it: Governor La Follette, Mr. Jerome, and Clarence Darrow. It was an assembly ready to be instructed in the ways of finance by one who knew the game. They were not ready to commit themselves to him. They regarded him as one who offered food for thought, not action. They were quick to applaud catching applications of the Lawsonese diction, sound patriotic sentiments, and mild denunciations of the crime of accumulating great fortunes. It was the day of the turning down of the Kansas State Refineries bill by the Kansas courts; the people were sore—but not sore enough to offer to shed their stock and bonds, much less their blood, in Mr. Lawson's battles.

Running for Office.

"Running for Office," a rural musical comedy set to music by George M. Cohan, will be presented at the new Plainfield theatre on Labor Day, matinee and night. The success of this great political comedy has been the lavish manner in which it has been presented. Mr. Cohan this season has embellished it with a number of new songs and as heretofore a competent company of singers and dancers has been secured. "Running for Office" differs somewhat from the usual musical comedy as it sparkles with bright lines, lively music and pretty girls.

Miss May Voorhees, of Carlton avenue, spent the past week in New York.

Mrs. William Symons, of East Front street, has returned from a visit with her parents in Vermont.

Edward Mosher, Jr., of Elmwood place, who has been very ill with typhoid fever, is now able to be about the house. He expects to go to Asbury Park soon to recuperate.

ASKS AN ENJOINMENT OF HUDSON TUNNELING

BOARDING-HOUSE KEEPER RESORTS TO COURT TO STOP BLASTING

Trenton, Aug. 3.—Because her seven boarders have threatened to leave her Mrs. Kate Ratz, of Shippen street West Hoboken, has asked the Court of Chancery to enjoin one of the greatest engineering feats of the age, that of tunneling the Hudson River by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. Mrs. Rutz's boardinghouse is on the lot adjoining that in which the John Shields Construction Company is sinking the tunnel shaft.

She complains that the blasting which, she charges, is kept up day and night, prevents her and her boarders from enjoying their proper sleep; that smoke from soft coal used in a blacksmith shop connected with the work, dirties her home and soils clothes that are hung out to dry. All these things, Mrs. Rutz says in her bill, have so annoyed her seven boarders that they have threatened to leave in a body unless the condition of affairs is remedied.

Therefore, Mrs. Rutz has had recourse to the Court of Chancery to keep her boarding-house and family intact. She asks that the Shields company be enjoined from doing any blasting, either day or night, because she says the foundations and walls of her house have been damaged by the shock.

EDNA JACKSON LUCKY.

Favorites in Spinaway Stakes Were Interfered With.

Saratoga, N. Y., August 3—Senator P. H. McCarren was a lucky man yesterday. His two-year-old filly, Edna Jackson, was the second best horse in the valuable Spinaway Stakes, but thanks to rough riding and crowding her most dangerous opponent, Running Water, was nearly knocked down, and she won. The stake was worth $15,000 gross, with $12,000 as Enda Jackson's share.

No more unsatisfactory race has been run this year. The first spirit-ruffler was the withdrawal of Last Cherry, the heavily backed second choice. She was backed from 6 to 1 to 4 to 1, and then she would not go to the post. She acted like a crazy horse in the paddock, and after she had thrown Jockey Knapp three times, her trainer, Tom Welsh, asked to have her withdrawn.

The request was granted by the stewards. All money bet on her was lost.

KITCHEN KNOWLEDGE.

Coarse salt and vinegar will clean enameled ware that has been burned or discolored.

Do not drop dirty, greasy dish towels in hot soapsuds. It only sets the grease. Wash them first in lukewarm water.

An old bookcase set on the kitchen table, back to the wall, makes a very respectable imitation of a kitchen cabinet and saves many steps.

The range should be so located as to escape a draft sweeping over it. A gas range should always have a firm connection. A hood placed over the range is a great ventilator.

When tins are hard to wash, where food was burned on, like baked fish or oat meal, put the dish on the stove, filled with cold water and a half a teaspoonful of baking soda, and let it boil, and your dish will wash, and the odor of fish will be gone.

The Governor for Senator.

The eligibility of the Governor of New Jersey while in office as a candidate for United States Senator would seem to depend on circumstances. The United States Senate is the sole judge of the qualifications of its members, and it jealously asserts that prerogative. If a State legislature should elect a governor of the state to the United States Senate, that body would undoubtedly seat him notwithstanding any provisions of a state constitution making the governor ineligible. There is hardly any question of eligibility so far as the Senate is concerned. But there is an effective bar to such action in the oaths taken by the governor and by members of the legislature when they assume office. They solemnly swear to obey and support the state constitution. That instrument says: "Nor shall he (the governor) be elected by the legislature to any office under the government of this state, or the United States, during the term for which he shall have been elected governor." Both the governor and the members of the legislature are thus bound by solemn oath and could not violate that oath without utter dishonor. Governor Griggs vacated his office in the middle of his term to accept the office of Attorney-General of the United States. The State constitution says that "in case the governor * * * shall accept any office under the United States government, or this state, his office of Governor shall thereupon be vacant." This refers to appointive offices. Governor Griggs had the constitutional right to accept the Attorney-Generalship, and by that act his office of governor was vacated. The formality of a resignation was not necessary. Governor Abbott was a candidate for United States Senator, but the term of the Senator to be elected began after the expiration of his term as governor, and the election occurred after he had left office.—Newark Advertiser.

Plainfield, N. J., August 3, 1905.

Where were the Middlesex county authorities when the murderer Long was spending his days in that jurisdiction? Aren't they a little ashamed of the fact that police officers of Union county conducted the search and captured the fugitive in their territory?

Just ponder over these figures a moment. The increase during the last five years was in Elizabeth, sixteen per cent.; in New Brunswick, fifteen per cent., and in Newark, fifteen per cent. In Plainfield it was twenty per cent. Draw your own conclusions.

On few mornings recently has the police court room been large enough to accommodate all persons directly interested in cases being heard by the recorder. The band stand could be used if the rain would hold off for an hour or so each day.—Perth Amboy Chronicle.

And yet Perth Amboy boasts of its population.

There is nothing yellow about the New York Times although it devotes a column and a half of its front page today to tell about Mrs. Clarence Mackey's successful fight to become a member of the Roselyn school board. Mrs. Mackey is no different from any other woman probably excepting the fact that she spends more money on gowns than the freeholders do to run this county, and is a leader in that class which is dubbed by a foolish world "smart society." Some will ask, why then give so much prominence to her campaign for office? And this query will come from the very people who will eagerly read every line of the story even if they do not look at another item of news in the paper.

NOT A CANDIDATE.

Could Not Accept Nomination For Assembly.

One of the most acceptable candidates mentioned for the assembly in recent political talk was R. B. Cissel, of the Tenth ward, Elizabeth, but all hope of his running may be given up in the light of the following letter to the Journal from him yesterday morning:

"Editor Elizabeth Journal—Through the columns of your valuable paper my name has been mentioned as a possible candidate for the assembly nomination on the Republican ticket of Union county.

"By thecourtesy of your paper I desire to thank those who have so honored me by mentioning my name, but at the present time my business relations are such that it would be impossible for me to do justice to the people of Union county, and therefore unfair on my part to stand as a candidate for such a nomination.

"I am not, at present, in a position to consider political honors, but will continue to do what I can consistently to further the interests of the party in Union county and State of New Jersey. Very truly,

"R. B. CISSEL."

A story comes down from Westfield to the effect that Lloyd Thompson, town clerk of Westfield, will be in the field for a nomination. According to this story, Randolph Perkins, Westfield's mayor, who was elected to the assembly to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Assemblyman Embree last November, will have to hustle if he would win, as Thompson's friends express a determination to make good for their loss at the primaries when Perkins secured the nomination by a narrow margin.

Biggest Bass Yet Caught.

Rannie Drake, of Washington, N. J., caught a bass, said to be the biggest bass ever taken in New Jersey waters. It was caught at Swartswood Lake. It weighs seven and three-quarters pounds, is twenty-five and one-half inches long and seven and one-half inches wide.

Mr. and Mrs. James Chamberlain, of West Third street, are the parents of a young daughter, who came to their home Monday.

DISCUSS INSURANCE.

Foresters Agree to Issue No Incontestable Policies.

Atlantic City, Aug. 3.—A lively debate occurred at yesterday's session of the Foresters when the question of the payment of the life insurance on those members who had committed suicide came up. Within the last three years 105 members of the Foresters committed suicide, representing a total life insurance of $135,000. A motion was made by George West, of Winipeg, supported by Dr. Penn, of Washington, to make the policy of suicides incontestable after they had been running for ten years or more, which was defeated, and the Foresters refused to issue any incontestable insurance.

It was agred to increase the insurance on suicide policies, the rate made being in proportion to the number of years the policy had been running.

It was also agreed to levy a tax of one cent a month on every member of the Independent Order of Foresters throughout the world for the additional support of the orphan's home. This will bring in a revenue of over $27,000 a year, which shows the large membership of this order.

The orphans' home is on Foresters' Island, which was formerly the property of Dr. Oronhyategha, the supreme chief ranger of the order, who gave the property and buildings to the order. Years ago it was used as a reservation for Mohawk Indians. Both Protestant and Catholic religious instruction is given the children.

PLANS FOR STATE CAMP.

Governor Believes Entire Guard Should Visit One Annually.

Trenton, Aug. 3.—Governor Stokes and Edward W. Gray, his private secretary, returned to this city from Sea Girt yesterday morning, and the Governor was at the State House for a short time looking after executive business. He left at 1.14 a. m. for Ocean Grove to preside at the unveiling of the monument to the Rev. Dr. E. H. Stokes, the founder of that town.

Governor Stokes said yesterday morning that the camp was very successful. While no official announcement has been made, it is understood that the Governor, as the result of his observations at Sea Girt, favors a camp of the whole division of the National Guard annually, which would make the camp last five weeks each year.

The Governor has asked all of his staff officers, who served this year by detail, to again take the same positions next summer, and they have accepted.

Mrs. Joseph Schultheiss and family, of Weehawken, are staying at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Goodwin, of Manning avenue.

REPUTATION SAVES SON.

Young Burglar Had Confessed to Crime and Previous Conviction.

An appeal made to the judge for clemency because of his dead father's standing in the community saved William P. Wilson, an eighteen-year-old burglar, from a jail sentence yesterday. Wilson pleaded guilty to breaking into the home, last week, of David H. Townley, School Commissioner of Elizabeth, and stealing silver worth $155. The prisoner also admitted being convicted of a robbery in New York.

Prosecutor English informed Judge Vail, in the Union county court, that while Wilson's crime was a State's Prison offence, he came from a highly respected family in Elizabeth and his father had been a counsellor at law and for many years an honored member of the Union County bar. In view of these facts Judge Vail said he would be lenient and sentenced Wilson to the State Reformatory.

Tweed's Son a Suicide.

Stamford, Conn., Aug. 3.—By a death certificate filed with the Middletown Registrar yesterday it became known that George Y. Tweed, forty years old, son of "Boss" Tweed, of New York, committed suicide or was accidently killed in the Connecticut Hospital for the Insane on July 14.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Watson, of East Third street, are entertaining the former's parents from Middletown, N. Y.

Had Been Convicted in the Case of Martin Mahon.

Albany, August 3.—William A. E. Moore, husband of Fayne Strahan Moore, who achieved joint notoriety seven years ago by blackmailing Martin Mahon at the Grenoble Hotel, in New York city, was pardoned yesterday by Governor Higgins. Mahon was the proprietor of the New Amsterdam Hotel.

Moore was sentenced in December, 1898, for twenty years. Several prominent citizens of Cleveland, Ohio, where he used to live, including Governor Herrick, signed the petition for his release. Governor Higgins was informed that Mrs. Moore is now living prosperously in Paris. A good position is waiting for Moore as soon as he leaves prison.

LICENSE IN ASBURY.

Bradley Favors Petition to Council for Limited Sale of Liquor..

With the sentiment of Asbury Park's Common Council, individually expressed, in favor of granting licenses for the sale of liquor within the corporate limits, the organized hotel men, disappointed in not being able to push their project through at Tuesday night's session, are exhausting every effort to gain their point at next Monday's session.

It is the conviction of those who are heading the license movement that the psychological moment has arrived to accomplish the overthrow of what they term the prohibition fetish, and they declare that their exertions thus far have been attended by marked success.

Strangely enough, no one has appeared to lead the opposing factions who favor prohibition. Even James A. Bradley, "the founder," has recently departed from the position that has so long been his and announced his belief that a limited license law such as is prayed for by a portion of the citizenship would have a salutary effect upon the morals of the community and make for temperance. This statement from the man who has ever been considered the bone and sinew of the total abstinence faction came as a surprise to the latter and a most welcome addition to the strength of the liberals.

WATTERSON ON ARISTOCRACY.

All Right in Europe, But Thinks American Article Below Proof.

Colonel Henry Watterson, who, with his family, had been sojourning in Europe since the early part of last November, was a passenger by the White Star liner Oceanic, which arrived at New York from Liverpool yesterday. The redoubtable Kentuckian returns with the conviction that the aristocracy of Europe is of a better quality than can be found here.

"Abroad," the Colonel said, "they have something to fall back upon—blood, pedigree and achievements that have made history. Here the differences in the quality of the so-called aristocrats seems to rest on the difference in the amount of money which the claimants for such distinction possess—a difference which ranges all the way from the manufacturer of poor whiskey to Standard Oil.

VICE PRESIDENT ILL.

Fairbanks Compelled to Leave a Reception at Sault Ste. Marie.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., August 3—Vice President Fairbanks was seized with an acute attack of indigestion at a reception Tuesday night and had to be assisted from a stand in the park.

He walked to the Iroquois Hotel and went to his room immediately. To all callers he sent word that he would be unable to see any one until morning.

This is the second time Mr. Fairbanks has been ill within a few months. While in Alexandria, Va., on Washington's Birthday it was announced that he was suffering from a severe cold.

John Nealon, of Lee place, is detained at home by an attack of paralysis that affected him Tuesday.

knowing where I was at times. I was awful tired and hungry, existing as best I could on green apples and some few berries I picked in the woods.

"During the latter part of my time I done much better, as I was able to get into a tomato patch. I then wandered the following night and reached the Raritan river at New Brunswick, but didn't cross. I got turned somehow and found myself on the Lehigh Valley railroad and went down near New Brunswick again. Tired and weary, I laid down under a tree to sleep, when I was attracted by the shouts of a man, and though he was in an automobile I managed to get my shoes on and started to run. He chased me a mile and a half through the woods, keeping up a continual fire with a revolver. After I eluded him I wandered backward and forward and was in South Plainfield Tuesday afternoon. I finally got into the woods again and back to the place I commenced, as I was unable to go any further on account of not knowing the country.

"I lived for over two weeks on nothing but apples and blackberries. Tuesday morning I secured the first square meal I have had since that Sunday morning. I stopped at a farm house and the farmer happened to be away and his wife gave me a piece of bread and butter and some meat. That meal tasted better to me than any that I have ever eaten.

"Yes, I knew they were all after me, and I could not live much longer on just apples and blackberries and that is the reason I went out of the woods today. I had to get something to eat."

After receiving the negro's plea of guilty, Judge Harris committed him to jail without bail to await the action of the Grand Jury. A few minutes later he was taken to the county jail.

Chief Kiely announced last night that the $750 reward will not be confined to his men. The chief said he would accept none of the reward himself, and intended to divide the money between all the men who had a hand in Long's pursuit. Acting-Chief Cleary, Detectives Pilger and Clancy, of the Trenton department, and the farmer who gave Chief Kiely the tip that led to Long's capture, will all be given a share of the money.

The reward was increased from $500 to $750 by the Trenton City Council, at a meeting on Tuesday night.

KNIGHTS FIELD DAY.

Brigadier-General Hitchcock Issues Orders For the Companies.

Arrangements for the annual field day of the Order of the Knights of Pythias of the State are now being pushed by the Uniform Rank and subordinate lodges. Grand Chancellor William G. Cowgill will issue his official orders in a few days, and the grand lodge committee on field day is hard at work perfecting plans for the annual gathering.

Brigadier-General William E. Hitchcock has issued the following special order to the various companies of the Uniform Rank:

Headquarters New Jersey Brigade, Uniform Rank, Knights of Pythias, General Order No. 1.

This brigade will assemble for field day at Newark, on Monday, September 2, 1905.

Line will form on West Park street, right resting on Broad street.

First sergeants will report to Assistant General John I. Main, at the Pagoda, in Military park.

Line will form at 10.30 A. M. sharp.

Line of march from Military Park north on Broad street to the junction of Belleville and Bloomfield avenues, where parade will be dismissed.

Trolley cars will be taken from this point direct to Hillside park, where all field day exercises will take place, including competitive drills which will be called at 3 P. M.

No officers will be permitted to enter in competitive drill in the ranks unless in private's uniform.

Colonels Alfred Crew and A. L. Bundy are hereby placed on the retired list of the New Jersey brigade, Uniform Rank, Knights of Pythias.

NO MONEY AT TURF.

Pittsburg Phil's Brother Decries Conditions.

Saratoga, N. Y., Aug. 3.—When a man has spent twenty years on the turf, and won a fortune at that, most persons would consider him a lucky man and think that he ought to stick to his money-making. But William Smith, a brother of the late "Pittsburg Phil," no longer finds the turf attractive, and he says he is done with it forever. "Brother Bill," as "Phil" used to call him, stood on the lawn at the Saratoga track this afternoon and told a reporter for The World that horse racing was only a delusion and a snare.

"There is no money in it," he said. "I won a fortune during the time my brother was on the turf, but I spent it. It's a case of easy come and easy go. Each year the game is harder to beat. Every year more men enter the field. There are more horses, and this decreases one's chances of success.

"Ten years ago a man could make some money on the turf. Then there were only a small number of horses in each race and there was only one horse owner to every ten now. It was during this period that all the wealthy plungers of today made their money.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Aug. 6.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—The first fruits for God.—Lev. xxiii, 9-14; Deut. xvi, 9-12. (Consecration meeting.)

God demands the first and the best of all we have to give. This principle was established forever in the laws of the Old Testament—"And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying, Speak unto the children of Israel and say unto them, When ye be come into the land which I give unto you and shall reap the harvest thereof ye shall bring a sheaf of the first fruits of your harvest unto the priest; • • • it shall be a statute forever throughout your generations in all your dwellings." Thus God gave His people a law which declared that the first fruits were always to be consecrated unto Him, and this law still operates in His kingdom today.

God wants the first fruits in every relation in life. He not only ordered that the agriculturist among His ancient people should bring the first fruits of His harvests to Him, but He asks of all men everywhere that they should first of all seek Him, and, having found Him, give to Him the first place in mind, heart and life. "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and His righteousness." "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thine heart, with all thy soul, with all thy mind and with all thy strength." "He that loveth father, mother, brother or sister more than Me is not worthy of Me." It is first place or none that God demands. Our best thoughts, our best words, our best deeds, are all to be dedicated to God.

Nor is there any injustice in God's asking for the first fruits. All belong to Him, and in only asking a part from us He is giving to us instead of our giving to Him. Where do the first fruits and all that follow come but from God? What farmer has the power to produce a harvest? None. God made the soil; He made the seed and placed within it the principle of life and reproduction; He sends the rain and sunshine that cause the grain to grow. God owns the harvest. Man has simply been the cultivator of the soil, and who ever heard of a landowner asking only the first fruits of the harvest and later the tenth of it and giving the man who cultivates it for him the remainder? Yet that is what God does for us. All we have He has given to us. He can justly demand it all of us, and when He only asks for a part of it we should give it to Him with good measure and a thankful heart that we have it to give. Moreover, he richly repays all those who are faithful in giving the first of all—self, talents and possessions—to Him.

BIBLE READINGS.

Ex. xxiii, 15-19; Deut. vi, 5; Prov. iii, 9, 10; Mal. iii, 10; Matt. vi, 33; x, 37-42; xxiii, 1-12; II Cor. viii, 1-5; I John iv, 19; Rev. ii, 1-5.

Noted American Evangelist.

Rev. Dr. Reuben A. Torrey is an ardent believer in Christian Endeavor principles and a strong supporter of the movement. His marvelous success in evangelistic work in Australia and England puts his name on every tongue. Dr. Torrey once made a journey of 3,000 miles to address a large Christian Endeavor convention on the subject of personal work. Toward the close of his speech he remarked that "in order to do effective personal work you must be baptized with the Holy Ghost." A Congregational minister made his way to Dr. Torrey at the close of the meeting and said: "Brother Torrey, I have not that power, but I need it. Will you pray for me?" The evangelist always seizes an opportunity when it presents itself. "Why not kneel down here now?" he suggested. They both did so and poured out their hearts to God while thousands of feet tramped past them and out of the building. The clergyman's ministry was transformed. He went to work, baptized with the Holy Ghost, and his church was crowded, while previously it had been half empty. Conversions followed in great numbers.

REV. DR. R. A. TORREY.

The Weekly Prayer Meeting.

The true society must work as well as pray, act as well as talk. But this article has to do with the importance of the prayer meeting, and I have no hesitation in saying that in all these nearly five and twenty years of Christian Endeavor there has never been a vigorous, aggressive, long lived society that did not keep up a vigorous weekly prayer meeting. The membership may have been very small, the circumstances discouraging, but the earnest, warm weekly meeting has maintained in vigor and usefulness many a society for more than a score of years.—Rev. Dr. Francis E. Clark in Christian Endeavor World.

A Welsh Idea.

The last Welsh national Christian Endeavor convention established a new feature, and a delightful one. This was a "sunrise ramble," which began at 6 a. m. The party of Endeavorers was taken to view "Little Switzerland," a beautiful region near Newport, the convention city. The ramble occupied an hour, and the Endeavorers returned with clear heads and bright eyes in season for the early prayer meeting at 7.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

3:15, C: "The First Fruits For God"—Lev. xxiii, 9-14; Deut. xvi, 9-12.

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, Ph. D.

The Hebrew was trained to give the first increase of all harvests and animals domesticated to God as an act of religious devotion. In the springtime no one might eat of the new grain parched or made into bread until the priest in the temple had offered on the altar by fire loaves made from the new grain grown in the land.

The purpose was to keep ever in mind that God is over all, the giver of food to His people, and that heart service of gratitude is His due, and the increase of all earthly goods being from Him is to be used for self and others according to His will in benefiting all possible.

This law of first fruits is parallel to the law of the tithe. The customs and observances of the temple ritual are very interesting and might well take time and our space for their consideration. But the application of the principle on which they are based and which has force for us at the present time is of deeper consequence and must receive our first care.

One of the facts at the basis of all religious life wherever found among men is the consciousness of human dependence for food on powers outside himself. Cultivation of the soil is not sufficient to insure crops. Powers of nature and the power above and behind and within physical nature must be favorable or there is drought, dearth and death. "Give us this day our daily bread" is the first cry of the man who recognizes his need and his Helper.

The next step is recognition of help received and gratitude for it, which is far more than gladness for the goods obtained. It is moral and personal, and so religious. It has no constraint in its feeling, but brings in some shape a gift to the Giver of all. It seeks not to purchase favor, but to express soul thanks.

This principle in human nature works ever the same results in all races and climes. In the simpler forms of society its action is full and constant. In the more complex circles of civilization its obligation is less clearly recognized and obeyed. But its claim is not less binding in our time than among God's people in ancient days. It holds the merchant and mechanic no less firmly than the farmer.

Emphasis is now laid on the obligation to give a tenth of the income to God's service. Many Christians are doing this. The movement is popular in League circles. It is especially to be commended to our young people just beginning to earn their own living.

Besides, it should be first the recognition to dedicate first fruits in every enterprise to God also. The prevalent practice is to defer giving largely until all personal needs are met and desires gratified. Multitudes excuse themselves from giving because they need all they earn for clothing, food and expenses of living. Not a few of our people expend more on entertainment and recreation than on all their church and benevolent offerings during the year.

Many defer their donations until wealth comes to them beyond all possible power of expenditure. The fault now being found with offerings from men of large wealth to benevolent enterprises would be escaped if there had been from the the time of first earnings a consistent effort made to get all gain, not only legally, but in recognition of the needs of other men and the claims of God. We are hearing the call of the Giver of all goods to give to Him first fruits, recognizing His rights at all times and over all to be used for the bettering of all His children.

Get the heart to do His will, and He shall strengthen the hands to get His gifts and give His goods to those who need, that all may unite in praising Him who gives life and health and all things.

Faith's Aid to True Living.

Faith in God brings an element of dignity, of assurance, of inspiration into life that fills the soul with high and noble aspirations. Doubt, or even lack of faith, throws a damper over the heart's inspirations. Ages of doubt have always been the ages when life has been inexpressibly saddened. Epochs of faith have always been times when people have risen in the scale of living. No man lives on a low plain who has Christian faith, faith in God, in immortality, in the permanency of the good, in the ultimate triumph of right and justice and truth. Such faith determines true living. Put such faith into a man's heart and you develop not only the business in the man, but the man in the business; not only the successful lawyer in the man, but the noble, successful, helpful man in the lawyer; not the active, shrewd politician in the man, but the statesmanlike man in the politician; not the minister in the man, but the man of God in the minister; not the Christian in the man, but the Christ man in the Christian; and then you have the highest type of true living on earth.—Rev. A. A. Pfanstiehl in Christian Work and Evangelist.

Fervor and Force.

Fervor and force as working elements in human character are closely related, yet they are distinct and in some ways even opposed. Fervor is energy of action. Force is continuance of action. Fervor is youth starting to climb a hill. Force is this same youth filled out to manhood and completing the climb. When these are united in the same character they make the perfection of working personality. Enthusiasm is the keynote of some characters, endurance of others. A man "thoroughly furnished" has both.—Henry Elliott Mott, D. D., in Christian Work and Evangelist.

"In behalf of your proprietory article called AZIENZA CREAM, as a remedy for diseases of the skin, I desire to add my appreciation of its wonderful properties as a cure in a case of Bone Turner or Abscess of five years growth on my husband's back, which I have cured in less than five weeks tim by constant application, and now it is as well as any part of his body. It was cut out once by a specialist and had a sin grown to a large size, was as hard as a bone and of a very dark purple color. The AZIENZA at once allayed the pain and began to soften it, and in less than eight days, by my pressure upon it, suddenly to my surpris it discharged a quantity of pus, impregnated with a hard, cheesy substance. I kept it open and c eaned it as it discharged and every day would dress it with a plaster of AZIENZA CREAM, until it was entirely healed up. I cannot speak to highly of AZIENZA CREAM and its merits. For inquiry regarding this case you may apply to Mr. and Mrs. James Embury Ave., cor. Hiller, Ocean Grove, N. J. Signed, July 12, 1905: Mrs. C. W. James, Mr. C. W. James." Leading Druggists, 25c-50c

DON'T MARRY A MAN—

Who loafs.
Who drinks to excess.
Who gambles.
Who has an ugly temper.
Who is jealous.
Who flirts.
Who is a coward.
Who lives above his income.
Who has money, but not much else.
Who is not sympathetic in sickness.
Who will not let you tell him his faults.
Who looks down on manual labor.
Who speaks scoffingly of sacred things.
Who has not a high ideal of womanhood.
Who is not particular about his language.
Who thinks more about his stomach than his heart.
Who is not willing to be the "head" of the house.
Who is a great deal older, or a great deal younger than you.
Who speaks slightingly or disrespectfully of any woman no matter what her sphere of life.
Who blames everything that goes wrong in the home on the women.
Who does not think that his mother is the best mother in the world.
Who does not think that it costs just as much, if not more, for a woman to dress properly as for a man.
Who thinks more about going to the theatre than sitting by his own fireside.
Who finds the "club" more attractive than home.
Who thinks his business affairs are too deep to confide to you. If they are, it is your business to make yourself so conversant with them that you cannot only understand, but sympathize when things at "the office" go particularly ill, or commend when they go particularly well.
Who is pleasant all day among his business acquaintances, but is irritable and ill-tempered at home.
Who thinks more about your beauty of face and form than your beauty of soul.
Who objects if you belong to a club or engage in church or charitable work.
Who thinks more about the impression his wife makes than the character she possesses.
Who is not willing to economize even to the point of self-sacrifice rather than go in debt.
Who does not want you to look your best at all times.
Who has ever deceived you even in the smallest thing.
Who thinks that because you are his wife, you have not obligations to your father or mother, and perhaps other relatives.
Who does not realize that, although a woman is a man's inferior physically, she is his equal and in some cases his superior, mentally.
Who admires you in every way, but does not speak well of your family.
Who is not ambitious to rise in the world.
Who would rather earn a name for himself than bread and butter for his family.
Who does not think that you are the sweetest, noblest, most lovable woman in all the world, and—
Who doesn't seem to you to be the cleverest, purest and best man that the Lord ever made.

THE PARLOR.

The self-toned room—that is, the room where everything is of one color—has the lead in the best houses below the bedroom floors. Two or three kinds of furniture of as many different colors jumbled up in the same drawing-room are out of the question now.

In a millionaire's new house the drawing room has a long expanse of perfectly plain ceiling, rounding down to meet a four-inch moulding of white and gold.

The walls between a two-fot high wainscoting of white enameled wood and the frieze are paneled with yellow self-toned stain brocade; the chairs and sofas are upholstered in brocade of exactly the same tint, and portieres and window curtains are made of the same material.

The frames of the curtains are white enameled. This is the general style of drawing room most in vogue now.

Plain ivory-tinted ceilings, devoid of ornamentation are practically the rule. The wide, elaborate frieze has gone out; so have the vivid contrasts of color in wall hangings and furniture coverings. Harmony is the main idea rather than that there shall be several thousand dollars' worth of covering in evidence.

The snowy gilt window cornices, mirror frames and curtain supporters once so fashionable have vanished. Only the panel curtain hanging straight down against the glass is now used in rooms of state, with the heavy curtains of brocade, tapestry or velvet as the case may be, next the room.

As a result of fashion's change in favor of simpler and quieter effects it is perfectly possible for people in most moderate circumstances to duplicate in comparatively inexpensive materials some of the costliest rooms in the country.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Giving the Old Man a "Square Deal."

When it comes to a fair and square business proposition, who ever heard of a better one than was made by a young man of Swedesboro? WOMEN'S VISITING CARDS.

Women are often in doubt as to the proper course to pursue in using visiting cards. Many suggestions have ben given in the columns of newspapers, and a few hints may be timely. The visiting card of a single woman may be the regulation size.

The prefix "Miss" must always be on the card of an unmarried woman, and if she has been out several years and is no longer a debutante it is proper for her to have her address on the lower right hand corner, and her reception day on the left. The eldest daughter of a family should have her card address "Miss Blank," while her younger sister's card should read, "Miss Anna Blank." Diminutives are never used by well-bred people, and for Margaret to have her card engraved "Maggie" is decidedly wrong.

In fashionable society husband and wife often have joint cards engraved. very often mother and daughter or two sisters adopt these "double cards." The joint cards for the first mentioned are larger than the single card used by the married woman, and should be engraved thus:

"Mr. and Mrs. Frederick E. Blank, 12121 Broad street."

Or they may bear simply the name with the address omitted. These cards are used by a bride for calling during the first year of marriage. After this they may serve to accompany joint gifts of the husband and wife, especially wedding presents. Sometimes a double card of this sort, giving the future address of the bride and bridegroom and their reception day or day at home, is enclosed with the wedding card.

The joint card of a mother and daughter or sisters is more often used. It is customary for a debutante during her first year in society not to have a card of her own, but to have her name engraved under that of her mother's. The address, of course, in the lower right hand corner. The card is used by mother and daughter when calling together, but not when either of them call alone. During the first year as debutante the young woman when calling alone runs her pencil through her mother's name.

If a mother introduces more than one daughter she has under her name on the card "The Misses Blank," or "Miss Blank" and "Miss Anna Blank," the younger one of the two, of course, using her first name. A card of this sort is sent out at the beginning of the season giving the day at home.

A widow retains her husband's name upon her card as long as she wants, though she may after a few years assume her Christian name. For two years and a half a widow should generally have a black bordered card. It is understood that a mourning card should never be carried unless black is worn.

A divorced woman, if she retains the surname of her former husband, has prefixed to it her maiden name. For instance, if she was "Miss Black," her cards should be engraved "Mrs. Black-White." If she drops her former husband's name she is known as "Mrs. Anna Black."

A MAN SHOULD

Rise when a woman enters the room.

Remain standing until she is seated.

Give her his chair if there is no other.

Rise when any person, man or woman, is introduced to him.

Open the door for a woman to pass through.

Hold it open and let her pass through first and hold it open for her if it opens from them.

Turn and walk with her, if he joins her on the street, and not stop her to converse.

Throw his cigar or cigarette away before he joins her, of course.

Not offer to pay her carfare unless he is her escort by intention, and not merely her companion by accident.

Remove his hat completely when greeting a woman or when his woman companion greets an acquaintance.

Take the curb side of the street when walking with either one or two women.

Assist his feminine companion in and out of a carriage, trolley, train or any conveyance.

Precede her in entering a theatre, hotel lobby, restaurant or any public place, except a church, when a woman goes first, unless there are no ushers, in which case he goes first to find seats.

Permit her to step into an elevator first, always. In getting out, if it is into a public place, he leaves first.

Invariably proffer his seat to age, infirmity or helplessness, in whatever guise they appear. This is not more good manners than the kindly instincts of a gentleman toward whoever is weaker than himself.

Offer his seat to any woman who sems less able to stand than himself—not because she is pretty, or smart, nor even because she is a woman, but for the reason set forth in the foregoing paragraph.

Remember that these observances are not foolish, meaningless subserviences to women, but that they make for that gentle courtesy and thoughtfulness which makes all human intercourse more pleasant.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

The Fisherman's Path.

One of our promnient citizens who occasionally takes fishing trips goes and comes the back way, unless he has good luck and then he returns by the most prominent thoroughfare.—Burlington Gazette.

WOMAN CHOOSING FOOD.

Appears to Order Meal in Restaurant Merely by Force of Suggestion.

Lots of women order their luncheons merely by force of suggestion. If you don't think so, says the Philadelphia Bulletin, watch the wavering ones sit down, look on the card, glance at their nearest neighbor's plate and then order whatever the latter happens to be eating. In a crowded luncheon room on matinee day one little round table seating four women bore out this statement. Two of the women refreshed themselves on cake and coffee. The third was putting away a savory clam chowder. A fourth came in, gazed appreciatively on the cakes, gazed appreciatively on the chowder and requested the latter. The first chowderer finished and departed and the woman who immediately took her place looked around the table and ordered cakes and coffee.

By this time the first two cake and coffeeites had finished and an uncertain-looking woman sat down on that side of the table. She looked at the two opposite, glanced at the card and said: "Bring me a clam chowder."

This is a fact, and there is every reason to suppose that nothing but coffee and cakes and chowder were served at that table all the afternoon, or at least as long as wavering ladies sat down at it.

COLLECTION-BOX CURIOS.

Theater Seat-Checks, Tobacco Tags and Divers Other Queer Things Contributed.

The recent discussion of ballot-box stuffing has not altogether diverted the attention of churchmen from the question of collection-box stuffing, says the Philadelphia Record. In one of the prominent churches of Philadelphia, where the weekly offerings of the congregation are inclosed in small envelopes before being dropped into the boxes, a collection is being made of the articles contributed by the ungodly, and it is already large enough to form the nucleus of a small museum. Among the things thus far found in the envelopes are smooth, mutilated and foreign coins, postage stamps, exchange tickets, theater seat checks, assorted buttons, campaign and other medals, tin tobacco tags, a cigarette, a Washington (D. C.) street car ticket, an iron ring, lozenges, chocolates, chewing gum, an umbrella tag, pieces of iron, lead and glass; candy, a belt fastener, a milk ticket, an aluminum check "good for one shave," rubber bands, matches and blank paper. Altogether there are over 200 of these "offerings," which are ultimately to be mounted and framed as a curiosity.

WEAR MINIATURE "ZOOS."

Tiny Animals of Metal Swing from Chains Worn by Society "Buds."

As the fresh and pretty "buds"—they wouldn't deserve that title, of course, if they were not in the stage of youthful prettiness—have no need of the contents of a "vanity box," not many of them are following the new fad of their elders in carrying such an article, says the New York Press. But there's an oddity about the adornment that has made the girls eager to find something similarly eye-catching. They have found it and it is far more bizarre than the "vanity box."

In the avenue the other day three blooming maidens, not together, wore gold chains dangling from wrists and depending from every chain were a dozen or so tiny animals in metal. There were miniature dogs, cats deer, lions and tigers; barnyard fowl, too. But some of the silver or gun metal creatures were such as never existed in the waters or on the earth or in the air. Approximately, one golden calf was seen. Another girl said beamingly that the silver dog at the end of her chain had been modeled after her pet French bulldog.

Forgery No Crime in Indiana.

The discovery has been made in Indianapolis that forgery has ceased to be a crime in Indiana, owing to the omission of its definition in the new criminal code, which was adopted by the recent legislature and went into effect a few days ago. The most careful searching of the printed act fails to disclose any definition of the crime of forgery or any penalties fixed for its commission, and it is the opinion of many lawyers that, inasmuch as the criminal code act contains a section declaring that "all laws within the purview of this are hereby repealed," there is no law in force by which such a crime can be punished. The omission was discovered by the class in the law college. The omission will affect persons now under indictment for the crime, as there is no law under which they can be tried, the old law having been repealed.—Washington Star.

'Tis Often Thus.

"Disappointed in her husband?" exclaimed Mrs. De Style in surprise. "Why, before they were married she used to tell me that he was a Greek god."

"She told me that, too," responded Mrs. Van Nobb, "but he turned out to be a regular Bacchus."—Pittsburg Post.

DEVICE KEEPS OUT MOTHS

Basket with Rubber Tubing on Edges Preserves Clothing from the Insects.

The moth-proof storage receptacle will soon be sought by every housewife, for with the advent of spring the winter woolen apparel and blankets, etc., have to be disposed of for another season. The difficulty with most of these devices, says the New Orleans Times-Democrat, is that they are not tight enough to prevent the entrance of moths and bugs. Boxes or chests with loose-fitting lids are not satisfactory, as the objectionable insects manage to discover the smallest crevice, and the apparent security is a mask for their undisturbed destruction. A western inventor proposes to overcome this difficulty by the use of a practically hermetically sealed receptacle, which he secures by the use of a packing of rubber gas tubing. This is placed inside the rim of the cover, and the tubing or packing being of such a size as to make a tight fit. Fastening is arranged through holes in one side of the tubing from which project nail points adapted to engage in opening in the cover. When made of canvas or other flexible material such a receptacle possesses the advantage, in addition to low cost, of not requiring much space for storage when out of use, and yet having all the merits of an expensive wooden chest.

PRETTY NEAR THE LIMIT.

Neighborly Request Which Might Be Regarded as an Approach to Effrontery.

"My dear Mr. Taylor," said Mr. Perkins, as they met on the street, relates the Cleveland Plain Dealer, "you and I have lived neighbors for five years."

"Yes."

"During that time I have kept a parrot, a goat, a dog and two cats."

"You have."

"My children have broken your windows, my goat has chewed up your Monday washing, and my dog and cats have disturbed your sleep o' nights."

"Yes, that is true."

"We have emptied our ashes over into your yard, borrowed your hoe and rake, broken down your alley fence and tried in various other ways to be neighborly."

"Heavens knows you have!"

"And now, my dear sir, to show us that you appreciate the situation of affairs, and have no ill feeling in the matter, I want to ask a favor of you."

"Go ahead!"

"I have four daughters, as you know, and all of them are now ready to take piano lessons. Will you kindly and as a neighbor come down to Greene's with me and help me to select a good toned instrument and guarantee my financial ability to pay him $10 a month on the installment plan?"

ANOTHER EGG TRUST.

But One That Will Hardly Affect the Price of the Commercial Supply.

Youngsters who go bird's-nesting will read with envy of the recent addition to the collection at South Kensington museum of the 10,000 eggs collected by the late W. Radcliffe Saunders, says the New York Herald.

This addition to the collection brings the total up to very nearly 100,000 specimens and fills many gaps. Even the 90,000 previously collected did not represent a complete set since many of these were duplicates and of the rarer sorts the number is so limited that every existing specimen is known to collectors as exactly as are the old masters to art dealers and experts.

Mr. Saunders' collection was one of the largest ever made by a private person, and large sums have been spent for a single specimen of the rarer sorts. He was as enthusiastic in his way as was any small boy who gathers his nests at the expense of torn clothing and barked knees, but he did most of his collecting through professional nest hunters, many of whom belonged to expeditions sent into Africa and other unsettled places to capture wild beasts for the zoological gardens.

The Knotted Flag.

The important part played by flags in all maritime affairs cannot be overestimated. Besides signaling, there are many other uses to which they can be put. Visitors to any of the big seaports, like London or Liverpool, may often have seen a vessel flying a flag with a knot tied in one corner of it. It is not generally known that this sign is used to attract the customs' officer, who knows when he sees it that the vessel wishes to ship or consume a quantity of bonded stores, i. e., tobacco, spirits, etc., his presence being necessary to break the seal before such stores may be utilized.

Fortunes in Cats'-Meat.

The cats'-meat man os almost exclusively a London institution. Certain rounds have been sold for as much as £300 as going concerns, and many such rounds change hands at a price for the goodwill of from £20 to £100. Several London cats'-meat men have made considerable fortunes.

The Sequel.

Old Friend—Hello, Bill, haven't seen you in ten years! The last time we met you were writing a book on "How I Got Rich Quick." What became of you after that?

Bill—Oh, then I wrote another on "How I Got Into Jail Quicker."—Detroit Free Press.

THE GOLDEN PLOVER

LONG FLIGHTS TAKEN YEARLY BY REMARKABLE BIRD.

Winters in South America and Summers in the Regions of the Arctic Circle Where It Rears Its Young.

Just think of traveling 16,000 miles a year every year of one's life. It would mean the equivalent of a trip from San Francisco to New York, two voyages across the Atlantic and back and a run down to Florida afterwards. Even with the assistance of express trains and ocean liners, one who did this amount of traveling year after year would hardly be termed a "stay-at-home," but if he had to do it with the aid of his own good muscles alone, he would need no other business to give him steady employment.

When we say that the golden plover "winters" in Argentina, we mean that it there passes the months which constitute our winter. As a matter of fact, it is the summer of the southern hemisphere, and when the plovers arrive there in September, they find the native birds either nesting or preparing to nest. But this activity has no effect upon the migrants from the north, which have already reared one family, and after a flight of 8,000 miles are inclined to take things easy for a time. Until March they are chiefly occupied in providing themselves with food, but in the early part of that month they hear the call which summons them once more on a long and perilous journey. Giving up their life of comparative ease, northward they start, through Bolivia, western Brazil and Peru. Then, whether they continue on through Ecuador and cross the Gulf of Panama, or whether they follow the isthmus, no man is sure; all we know about it is that later in the month they appear in Guatemala and Texas, reaching the latter place by flying straight across the Gulf of Mexico. In April they are found crossing the prairies of the Mississippi valley, and before the 1st of May they are going over our northern borders into Canada. By the 1st of June they have reached their destination, the inhospitable "barren grounds" above the arctic circle, or even hundreds of miles further north, where they take up the duties which they came to perform. Though the lakes are still icebound, and the ground still frozen hard, these plucky birds make their simple nests in the moss, and lay their four buffy eggs. In two months after their arrival, they have reared their families, and the homeward journey is begun. But they do not go home by the same route. First they pay a visit to Labrador, where they may be found at this season, in company with turnstones and Eskimo curlews, feasting on the crowberry, a juicy, black fruit borne in profusion by a species of heather, which grows over the rocks and treeless slopes of this bleak coast. The birds are very fond of this fruit, and eat such quantities of it that the flesh of the curlews becomes stained dark purple with the juice.

The plovers now become very fat and very strong, and are ready for their great journey to the southward. They leave the land of Nova Scotia and strike straight out to sea. They now have 1,800 miles of ocean between them and the first of the Antilles, and 600 more to their objective point on the mainland of South America.

Perhaps they stop occasionally on the way, for these plovers are good swimmers, and are sometimes seen resting on the surface of the ocean. But probably the voyage does not fatigue them very much, since when they reach the first land, and might alight as easily as not, they prefer to continue their flight, sometimes for hundreds of miles.

Well is it for them that they lay on so much fat before leaving Labrador, for the voyage to the Antilles is a trying one, and they arrive lean and hungry. Here, or upon the northeastern coast of South America, they make a stop of three or four weeks, perhaps, to recuperate. Then they suddenly disappear, whither, no man knows exactly, but later they reappear at the same time in southern Brazil and in the prairie region of Argentina, almost to Patagonia, and their long annual vacation begins once more.

How they find their way no one knows; no one knows even why this great journey is taken each year. What we do know is that the golden plover is one of the greatest travelers in the world.

BUSINESS COLLEGE SOLD TO INSTRUCTOR

PROF. A. S. HERR THE NEW PRINCIPAL —TWO NEW COURSES.

The Plainfield Business College, established by the late Dr. A. A. Phelps more than ten years ago, was sold today to Prof. A. S. Herr, who for the past two years has been its commercial teacher.

Prof. Herr brings to his new enterprise ten years of successful practice of teaching, backed by a thorough technical training, a practical business experience, and the culture derived from travel and a liberal education. Miss Virginia Grant, the new principal of the shorthand department, is a highly experienced specialist in her line, having been trained personally by John R. Grigg, author of the system bearing his name. She has had several years of practical office experience, and taught in the public schools. She is a Canadian and comes highly recommended from one of the large Jersey City business schools.

Two new courses will be added, mechanical drawing and telegraphy. The mechanical drawing will be in charge of Samuel W. Fish, chief draughtsman of the Manganese Safe Works. This will be a strong practical course and of great interest to machinists.

The telegraphic department will be fitted up with the best apparatus, and operators will be taught to record messages on a typewriter while receiving them, as it is now required in all first class offices. A. J. Coleman, manager of the local Postal Telegraph office, will be the instructor.

Young Plainfielders need look no further for the advantages of an up-to-date business training. The past year has been the banner one for this school, and every student who attended and is able to do fair work is now employed.

Lawyer Dodged Cops.

A local lawyer, not so old and inclined to conviviality, has just returned from a sudden trip to a summer resort. His journey to the vacation place was taken after a fight with another man in a local saloon, in which considerable punching and some damage was done. It is said the lawyer was to blame, and he heard the police were after him. He decided a trip to the shore for a few days would benefit his health.

The matter, it is understood has now blown over. At any rate, the the lawyer is back, and goes by policemen without shrinking.

At the First Baptist.

Rev. G. M. Shott, formerly pastor of the Scotch Plains Paptist church, but now of Yonkers, N. Y., will preach at the First Baptist church on Sunday morning. In the evening a service in the interest of the Netherwood Fresh Air Home will be held. There will be present children from the Home who will sing and speak and there will also be short addresses by Rev. E. M. Rodman, Miss Sara Curry, matron, and others. An offering will be received for the benefit of the Home.

Rescue Mission Meets.

At the German Reformed church tonight, at 8 o'clock, Rev. George B. Shaw, pastor of the Seventh-day Baptist church, will have charge of the regular mid-week service of the Plainfield Rescue Mission.

You'll Enjoy a Home at WOODLAND PARK, the most healthful and desirable residential section of Plainfield. High elevation, macadamized streets, city conveniences.

Exceptionally fine Building Lots at moderate prices. Titles insurable.

This is just the spot to locate and build a nice home.

NINE MAY DISBAND.

Morristown-Chatham Team Likely to Drop from League.

It is probable that the Morristown-Chatham team, of the Lackawanna League, will soon disband. For some time there has been dissatisfaction with the management of the club, and it is also understood that the organization is far from being in good financial condition. A. P. Konkle, the manager, who is also secretary of the league, is said to have declared that he would hand in his resignation as manager of the team.

An executive session of the directors of the club was held at Morristown Monday night, and it appeared that the organization was in a financian condition which made it highly improbable that it would be found impossible to pay the players. It is also said that there was much criticism about the way the manager handled the team, and it was on this account that Mr. Konkle declared his intention to resign.

The Morristown-Chatham team is now third in the league race. The rivalry and partisan feeling has been strong in the various league towns, and the expenditure to secure good players appear to have been too large to meet expenses. Phillipsburg recently dropped from the league because the venture was not a paying one, and the Madison team was taken in to replace it. As yet it is not known what action will be taken to fill the vacancy should the Morristown-Chatham team disband.

It is a known fact that other clubs in the league have been paying fancy prices for players and the patronage at the games has not been large enough to warrant it.

VACATION DAYS.

Miss Ethel Van Winkle, of Central avenue, leaves tomorrow to spend the month at Gladstone, Somerset county.

Louis O. Burton, of West Second street, has returned from a two weeks' vacation spent in southern Maryland.

Sheriff Takes Race Horses.

Sheriff Carman, of Middlesex county, has served a writ of attachment issued by Supreme Court Commissioner Alan H. Strong on application of Former Judge Samuel W. Vandevort, of Camden, upon Cyrus Roberts and seized four horses found in his possession at the driving track in Highland Park. The horses were brought to New Brunswick by Roberts from Camden and are said to be race horses. One of them is known to be a trotter. The affidavit upon which the attachment was issued set forth that Roberts owed Judge Vandevort $175 on a contract and $85.75 interest thereon less $15 paid on account. It is alleged that Roberts received the amount due on contract from the sale of horses which he failed to turn over to the complainant, but appropriated to his own use.

Rushing Printing Presses.

The Potter Printing Press Works is now enjoying a period of great prosperity, the works being as busy as can be in turning out printing presses of the web type. Several men are now in various parts of this country and Canada erecting these presses and new orders are constantly being received. The full force is employed and the work is being rushed as rapidly as possible.

How He Recovered Jewel.

J. W. Mosher, of 515 Madison avenue, lost a gold brooch, consisting of two gold hearts linked together, with a large diamond in the centre. He advertised his loss in The Daily Press, and Miss Catherine Leal, of 222 Madison avenue, a reader of the paper, found the brooch and quickly returned it to the owner, receiving a liberal reward. Did you ever try a Daily Press want ad?

Their Wedding Announced.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Beulah Salome Cline, of Clinton avenue, and Thomas Montgomery McCallum, of Sherman avenue. The ceremony was performed by Rev. John MacMurray, former pastor of the Monroe avenue church at his home in Jersey City on July 26. Mr. and Mrs. MacCallum will make their home in this city.

Died from Dysentery.

Eva Michaelson, the one year and ten months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max Michaelson, of Warren street, died last evening after a five days' suffering from dysentery. Funeral services will be held from the parents' home this afternoon and interment will be made in the cemetery of the local Hebrew congregation beyond Bound Brook.

ARMED CHINESE SOLDIERS COMING INTO NEW JERSEY

Governor Stokes as commander of the national guard, yesterday granted, through Adjutant General Breintnall, permission to a company of Chinese soldiers to enter New Jersey armed and equipped. The order has no bearing on the peace conference or the Russo-Japanese war, and no strenuous times are anticipated, as it is merely a company of cadets who are going into camp at Ocean City.

Frederick Poole, chaplain of the Christian League Chinese mission of Philadelphia, wrote to the adjutant general for permission to take the cadets to Ocean City with arms and full equipment for a week's camp beginning Saturday. The company numbers thirty. The request was presented to Governor Stokes and the permission was immediately given.

DIED FROM FRIGHT.

Dogs Responsible for Death of Young Girl.

Two barking dogs are responsible for the death of Miss Lizzie Schultz, of Hasbrouck Heights, N. J. The girl was literally scared to death by them, being so frightened that a few hours after her experience she died, despite the efforts of a physician to restore her impaired heart action.

With a neighbor, Mrs. J. T. Bulmer, Miss Schultz was on her way to Dr. Conover's office on Monday night, Mrs. Bulmer's child being ill. As the two women hurried past the home of William Hess, at Burton and Madison streets, the two big dogs barked savagely in unison. Miss Schultz clung to Mrs. Bulmer tremblingly. That they could not see them added to her terror.

At his office Dr. Conover noted the nervous condition the pale face and weak condition of Miss Schultz and gave her a stimulant. She returned home, and was so weak that her father, Frederick A. Schultz, summoned the physician, but the doctor was unable to assist her, and at 2 a. m. yesterday, as the result of the shock, she died.

Miss Schultz's family resides in Jefferson avenue. Her father holds a responsible position with the Mattson Rubber Company.

KANE PROTECTED.

Gets Ten Days' Extension and Walsh Has Time in Which to Move.

The dispute between Aleck Kane, the house wrecker, and Thomas L. Walsh, over possession of the latter's store on Park avenue, in the row of houses to be demolished for C. W. McCutchen's new building, has been settled. Kane has been granted a ten days' addition to the twenty-six days allowed him in which to level the buildings, and this covers the seven days that the Walsh lease has yet to run.

The question over the ownership of the fixtures in Walsh's store is still unsettled. Kane says his bill sale covers everything in the building. Walsh says the fixtures are his, and that the Trust Company had no right to group them with the buildings.

WITTE ARRIVES.

Russian Peace Envoy is Now in New York.

His Excellency Sergius Witte, senior Russian envoy in the peace negotiations with Japan, arrived in New York yesterday afternoon on the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse. It may be said with certainty that the prospects for a speedy, amicable settlement of the differences between the two warring nations were by no means heightened by his coming.

Instead, this brilliant man, massive in stature as he is in intellect, brought with him a distinct air of melancholy, as if he personally suffered from the blows his country had received, and saw no hope for changed conditions in the immediate future.

NEW TROLLEY LINE.

Union Township Grants Six Months' Extension.

Mr. Allarnan, president of the Morris County Traction Company, has asked for an extension of six months for the completion of the trolley line from Springfield to Elizabeth which has been granted.

In consequence of the above referred to change a public meeting will be held August 23, in the Springfield town hall at 8 o'clock, p. m.

The trolley connection from Millburn to Springfield will be completed this week. After this completion the force of men, which consists of about one hundred, will be divided, and one half will work at the Springfield end and the other half will commence here. Rails have already been laid as far as the residence of Ferdinand Snyder, on Morris avenue, about half a mile from Springfield avenue Elizabeth.

MRS. GUINN'S INJURIES.

Victim of Trolley Accident Unconscious Part of the Time.

The victims of Tuesday night's trolley accident were reported as improving today with the exception of Mrs. George H. Guinn, of Carlton avenue. She has been unconscious at intervals since the crash occurred and her physician, Dr. Clawson, has not fully determined as to whether she has been hurt internally. She suffers greatly from shock and also has severe contusions and abrasions.

Peter Linzer, one of those most severely hurt, is doing nicely and will soon be about. The company's claims agents have been busy since Tuesday and already have reimbursed several of those slightly injured.

Little Boy Dead.

The eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Fisher, of Watchung avenue, died this morning.

PERSONAL.

C. M. Dolliver, of Fairview avenue, has been visiting friends in Piscataway for several days.

Miss Ella Serrell, a pupil nurse at Muhlenberg Hospital, returned today from her annual vacation.

The Misses Moore, of Millville, are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Dayton, at New Market.

Miss Julia Struve, of Taylor, Texas, is spending the month of August with Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Feil, of East Sixth street. Her great uncle was the author of the familiar composition, "Watch am Rhein."

Patrolman Kelley, of the local police department, who has been off duty for a month on account of a severe attack of rheumatism, is greatly improved and expects to return to work soon. During the past two weeks he has been visiting friends in the vicinity of Kingston, N. Y.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Rev. E. V. Stevenson, rector of Grace church, will return from Canada about August 13, and will preach in his church on Sunday, August 20.

Rev. Gideon M. Shott, formerly of Scotch Plains, will be the speaker and Miss V. Lilian Perry, of Scranton, will be the soloist at the Y. M. C. A. meeting on Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. W. F. Richards will be the instrumentalist.

CLOSED PORTALS.

Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., will meet tonight and have initiation.

The members of Somerset Council, No. 104, Jr. O. U. A. M., will have an entertainment and social after its meeting tomorrow night.

BEAUTY HINTS.

We all may not have been born fair, but we may all by diet, baths and exercise gain skins that at least may be called clear. You can cultivate the skin as you would a flower. It may be refreshed by cooling showers, nourished by massage and molded into shape and proper lines. Wrinkles are the bane of every woman, whether young, middle aged or old. The immediate cause of wrinkles is the shrinking of underlying adipose tissue. Were the face solid and expressionless, hollows alone would mark the loss of fat. The muscles which are overworked lose their elasticity and become weak and flabby, then comes the change in the outline of the face. As time passes the facial circulation grows worse and worse, unless artificially stimulated. It is then in line to state that any means which will cause the blood to flow in sufficient quantities to these parts will vitalize them. Massage will do this effectually, and by all means I recommend vibratory massage. This massage is a positive cure for muddy complexions, withered and wrinkled necks, flabby tissues, sunken faces, sallow complexions and stiff necks.

If the average woman who thinks she needs treatment for any of the ills of the complexion will take a few treatments of vibratory massage she will soon find her complexion much improved.

SHE SHOULD KNOW.

That white must be spotless to be attractive.

That white gloves need to be washed almost daily.

That white canvas and buckskin shoes must be cleaned frequently.

That few white fabrics soil as quickly as pique. The rep seems to act as a magnet, attracting all the dirt in the air.

That white sidecombs rarely look well, even in a white head of hair.

That white shoes look wonderfully cool, whether they are or not.

That a black handbag generally makes a grievous blot on an all-light costume.

That a white shirtwaist with a dark skirt doesn't look half bad when the skirt, hat, tie and parasol are all one color.

That wide leather belts, neck chains of beads, jewelry and fussy laces exaggerate heat and ought to be laid aside in warm weather.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

SITUATION IN SOMERSET

Political Drift in the Republican and Democratic Parties.

WHO'S WHO NOW.

Contest Over the Senatorial Plum—Frelinghuysen and Smalley After It—Clark Still a Big Factor in Democratic Camp.

The serene inactivity that exists in that heretofore political storm center, the borough of North Plainfield, is being commented on by those who keep tabs on the goings-on of leaders of this part of Somerset county. There are a few North Plainfielders, in both the Democratic and Republican parties, who seem to keep to the forefront in things political and who assist in guiding the "ship of state."

Somerset elects a state senator this fall. Candidates for the nomination in both the old parties, and in the Prohibitionists, too, are now "in the hands of their friends," that is to say, they are willing if political lightning strikes them. In the Republican camp there are prospects of a very stiff fight being put up for the election of delegates to the county convention which is to be held at Somerville in the second week of October. The primaries will be held in September throughout the county. Already the political horoscope foretells disturbances in this particular instance.

The foremost aspirant for senatorial honors in the Republican party in Somerset is undoubtedly Colonel Joseph F. Frelinghuysen, of Bridgewater township. Frelinghuysen resides in Raritan and is "a hale fellow well met." He is engaged in the insurance business in New York city. Besides he is a member of Governor Stokes' staff. Frelinghuysen ran for Senator three years ago and was beaten by Samuel S. Childs, the present incumbent, who appears to have a strong hold on the voters of Somerset and who, in all likelihood, will be pitted against him if he should be nominated by the Republicans.

Then a faction, which includes many heretofore big leaders of the Somerset Republicans, is advocating the nomination of William Smalley, of Bound Brook, as a sort of compromise candidate for senator. Mr. Smalley is engaged in the lumber business and has a first rate popularity in the central part of the county. His friends will undertake to force him in the interests of harmony, claiming that Mr. Frelinghuysen as the official "pap" distributor has made a bad mess of his job and seriously handicapped himself as a voter, by his having Governor Stokes name the Somerset appointments solely in his interests, throwing aside trusted officials to do so. This faction has the backing of influential Republicans and they can be depended upon to create a stir once they undertake to do so.

In the Democratic party an element which is friendly to former Congressman A. A. Clark holds the key to the situation. Any way they throw their strength victory will follow in the convention. Many of them speak is, men who know the ins and outs of doled out to the former congressman by those who are considered little less than ingrates. His hand has guided every victory ever won in Somerset by the Democracy during the past quarter of a century. It is recognized that Clark's friends could easily nominate him for senator but he will have none of it. He has more sincere friends in Somerset county today in the Democratic party, that is, mn who know the ins and outs of politics, than any other one who can be mentioned. His mind once made up it is said no one can swerve him from his duty as he sees it, and he is not above consulting the trusted friends whose advice he always listens to and sometimes takes.

No man has had to stand for more abuse in the political line than has Mr. Clark though he takes it all kindly. Those who do the most kicking, it is said generally land at the back door of his office before convention time for instruction, and "that other matter" they always seek.

For the office of assemblyman there does not seem to be much interest taken in the Republican camp. It appears to be generally understood that the present incumbent, Irving Hoagland, of Franklin township, will again be the Republican nominee. Some opposition to this appears though. Many are dissatisfied with his vote on the abolition of the spring elections. How far this goes cannot now be forecasted. All the members of the county legislature, the Board of Chosen Freeholders, are against him. They wield a big influence, at least, they always have heretofore in spring elections.

As for the Somerset Democracy's position the leaders are silent. A little the difference is dormant in its camp. Last fall's campaign left a bitterness

BAGGAGEMAN IS MISSING

Lehigh Valley Railroad Employe Leaves South Plainfield Hurriedly

HIS BOOKS CROOKED.

Between $600 and $700 Misappropriated—Believed to Have Fled to Old Home in Germany.

Paul Blackman, baggagemaster of the Lehigh Valley railroad at South Plainfield, left for New York Wednesday forenoon, to go, he told Station Master Thomas Linaberry, to the bedside of a sick aunt. He failed to return the following morning, and Linaberry looked over his books. He found things therein which indicated that Blackman had appropriated between $600 and $700 of the company's money. Nothing has been heard of Blackman, and it is believed he has taken ship for Germany, his home.

Blackman entered the employ of the Lehigh about three months ago. On Wednesday he told Linaberry he had received a telegram calling him to a sick aunt and took the first afternoon train Eastward. He promised to return the following morning. He failed to put in an appearance yesterday and Linaberry, remembering that the man had once told him he had no relatives in this country, became suspicious. He examined Blackman's books and speedily found evidences of fraud. He discovered that his own name had been forged on several checks, and a wire to Philadelphia disclosed the fact that no express money had been received from South Plainfield in a month.

Blackman managed to send his trunk ahead of him by strategy. He checked it through as the trunk of his landlady, Mrs. Voorhees, telling the agent the latter was going away. It is believed that he boarded a liner for Germany on Wednesday under an assumed name.

HARRISON WANTS $200 FROM AUTOMOBILIST

STANBERY IS SUED FOR ALLEGED DAMAGES RESULTING FROM COLLISION.

Suit for $200 has been started by Oscar Harrison against William R. Stanbery, for damages sustained in the accident on West Front street two weeks ago in which Mrs. W. A. Westphal was killed. Harrison is the owner of the runabout with which the Stanbery automobile crashed.

Stanbery's lawyer, S. S. Swackhamer, learned yesterday afternoon, before the papers had been served that suit had been brought, and advised his client to seek the other side and acknowledge service. The action was started in Justice Von Minden's court, and Mr. Stanbery went to Dunellen to accept service at once.

Mr. Swackhamer went with Stanbery, and after the legal formality had been disposed of, they went carefully over the scene of the accident, drawing diagrams and sketches. The automobile, just as it came out of the accident, was photographed in a barn near the scene of the crash, where it had been left ever since the disablement. Mr. Swackhamer had witnesses note that the pictures were taken while the machine was exactly the shape the smash-up left it. These pictures are expected by the defence to have great bearing in proving that the accident could not have occurred through negligence or carelessness on Stanbery's part.

Plans and photographs of the scene of the accident have also been procured by the plaintiff's counsel, Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., who will endeavor to prove that Stanbery was on the wrong side of the road and that he suddenly changed the course of the auto, cutting in front of Harrison.

WANTS THE REWARD.

Franklin VanNuis, Who Tipped the Police, Claims Long Blood Money.

Franklin VanNuis, the farmer who gave the tip that resulted in the capture of Charles Long, the negro murderer on his place Wednesday morning, has laid claim to the reward of $750.

Chief Kiely says he and the two officers who helped him capture Long intend to use VanNuis generously in dividing the reward, but they cannot see how he figures that he has any claim to one cent of it under the law. The reward was offered for "the capture" of Long, and no part of it, even, was offered for "information leading to the capture," which is sometimes done in man-hunts.

BESIEGED HIS EMPLOYER

Enraged Man of All Work Terrorized Oak Tree Household.

SAVED BY NEIGHBORS

On the point of escaping from the officer he had been warned was after him, Lee Halliwell, charged with assault and threats to kill by David M. Kellogg, of Oak Tree, was captured in this city yesterday afternoon. According to the story told later at the hearing before Justice Von Minden in Dunellen, Halliwell kicked up a good deal of a fuss at the Kellogg place Wednesday evening, terrorizing the women in the house, and attempting to smash his way into it after the doors and windows had been locked against him.

Halliwell worked for Mr. Kellogg until Wednesday afternoon, when the latter discharged him for drunkenness. Mr. Kellogg alleges that when he tendered Halliwell the money it was figured was due him, the man demanded more, claiming the accounting was not correct. Upon Kellogg's refusal to pay more, it is alleged by the latter that Halliwell assaulted him furiously, knocking him down and kicking him. Mrs. Kellogg and Kellogg's eighty-five-year-old mother witnessed the assault from the porch, it is alleged, and sprang between the men. Halliwell, it is claimed, pushed the women roughly aside and endeavored to get at Kellogg again. The latter's colored cook, a young girl, rushed out in response to the women's shrieks and threw herself on Halliwell. She wound her arms around his neck from behind and held him until Kellogg and the women had a chance to get into the house. Then she ran in herself.

Halliwell, it is alleged, paraded around the house, declaring that he would kill Kellogg. He took two big stones, it is charged, and posted himself at the gateway, to wait for Kellogg. He grew tired of this, and, it is alleged, marched up to the kitchen door and demanded admittance. The door was hastily locked and so were the lower windows. He is alleged to have threatened to smash in the door, and the way he carried on threw the women into a panic. Finding it impossible to get in the door, Kellogg claims, Halliwell went to a window and demanded admittance there and followed up a refusal by smashing in the glass.

Neighbors, it is alleged, arrived at this stage and held him in check. Among them was A. C. Beckstein, and he told Halliwell that he would have him driven to South Plainfield if he would agree to go away. Halliwell consented, and Mr. Beckstein's man drove him out of the hamlet.

Yesterday morning Mr. Kellogg had a warrant sworn out for Halliwell before Justice Von Minden, and Constable Pierce was given the paper to serve. The constable went to South Plainfield, where Halliwell had stopped, yesterday afternoon, shortly after 2 o'clock. When he got there Halliwell had skipped. Mr. Kellogg told the constable that Rufus Delafield, after warning the man, had put him in his carriage and driven him rapidly toward Plainfield.

Mr. Kellogg telephoned the police of this city, and the officers here were told to arrest Halliwell on sight. Officer Overbaugh found him at the North Avenue station, waiting for an eastbound train. He was turned over to Constable Pierce and taken back to Dunellen.

Halliwell denied being the aggressor in the trouble when arraigned before Justice Von Minden. He acknowledged hitting Mr. Kellogg, but accused the latter of striking the first blow. He showed a mark on his forehead which he said his employer had inflicted with an umbrella or a cane. Mr. Kellogg denied striking a blow at the man, even after he had been hit himself.

Neither side had witnesses to corroborate the stories, and the court adjourned the hearing till today, to enable them to bring proof of the testimony offered. Pending a resumption of the hearing, Halliwell was locked up in the Dunellen jail.

Check for Beneficiary.

D. W. Littell, treasurer of the local branch of the Loyal Association, has received a check for $2,000 payable to Mrs. Viola Conklin, widow of E. W. Conklin, of First place, who died recently. Mr. Conklin had been a member of the association for several years. He was also a member of Plainfield Council, No. 711, Royal Arcanum, and Mrs. Conklin will soon receive $3,000 from that organization.

—150 pairs Women's Button and Lace Boots, and some Tan Oxfords, $2.00. VanArsdale's special sale. These goods run in value from $2.50 to $4.00.

MRS. CANFIELD ASKS COURT TO FREE HER

DAUGHTER OF CHARLES H. HAND ALLEGES HUSBAND DIDN'T SUPPORT HER

Mrs. Edith Blanche Canfield, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Hand, has filed a petition for divorce from her husband Albert Canfield. Mrs. Canfield lives with her parents.

The petition recites that the couple were married at Mr. Hand's house, in this city, on November 22, 1900; that they lived together for six months at the home of Mr. Canfield's mother in Summit; that until September, 1901, they resided with Mrs. Canfield's parents, in this city, and that they removed to Newark, where Canfield was employed, and lived there until August 23, 1902, when Mrs. Canfield left her husband and returned to her father's home in this city.

Mrs. Canfield charges, non-support, claiming in her complaint that her husband never did, from the time of her marriage, fully support her, and that she was compelled to rely on her parents for support.

The complainant asks that she may be divorced, and that he be compelled to provide support for her. When it was announced Miss Hand's marriage was a great surprise to her many friends in this city.

TO DRILL BOROUGH PUPILS FOR FIRE CALL

ALARMS IN ALL SCHOOL HALLS—GUARDING AGAINST PANIC.

Drills and other precautions against fire panic are to be established in the North Plainfield schools. Fire alarms are to be placed in all the halls of both borough school buildings.

The intention to take this action was made public at the meeting of the North Plainfield School Board last night. The children are to be drilled thoroughly in forming lines and marching quickly from the buildings, and frequent practice is to be held to keep them proficient.

The Board announced that the bonds authorized by the vote of July 3 have been approved by the attorney general. The bonds are for $1,000 each, bearing 4 per cent. interest. The finance committee was authorized to advertise for bids.

SUITS FOR DAMAGES.

Elizabeth and Plainfield Men Each Want $10,000 from P. S. C.

Two suits against the Public Service Corporation were started yesterday in the Union County Court. One for $10,000 damages is brought by James H. Thompson, of Elizabeth, who on July 9, 1905, was a passenger on a trolley car that was passing through First street, Elizabethport, and was severely injured about the head, limbs and back by being hurled from his seat when the car jumped the track and collided with a big pole that was lying near the curb.

The other suit, also for $10,000, is brought by Benjamin F. Stott, of this city, who was injured October 11, 1904, in a collision at Roselle between the trolley car he was riding in and another car belonging to the defendant corporation, and who has been rendered a cripple for life by the accident.

Both suits will come up for trial at Elizabeth at the October term of the Union County Circuit Court.

Storage Place Changes Hands.

Henry J. Wierenga, the local expressman, has purchased from Charles Yaeger, the storage business so long conducted in the Schepflin building, Front and Grove streets. The storage accommodations are commodious, and the public may be assured of fair treatment. Mr. Wierenga will personally attend to the business.

Another Death from Dysentery.

William C. Fisher, the seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Fisher, died yesterday at the home of the parents, 228 Watchung avenue, North Plainfield following a severe attack of dysentery. The funeral services will be held from the home tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment will be at Somerville.

Goods Released.

The goods of Theodore Strausberg, which were attached at the freight house a week ago by James C. Pope, treasurer for the Mono Instrument Co., were released yesterday. The claim was settled in Justice Hand's court.

ENGINE GOES INTO BAY

Accident to Atlantic City Train on Central Draw-Bridge at Noon Today

ENGINEER DROWNED

Carried to the Bottom in His Cab—Spreading Rails Caused Wheels to Leave the Track.

The locomotive attached to an Atlantic City train, speeding toward New York, jumped the track on the Central New Jersey Railroad drawbridge at Elizabethport at noon today and plunged into Newark Bay.

The engineer, Elisha Egbert, was carried to the bottom in the cab. The fireman, Charles Hubbell, jumped into the bay and escaped with minor bruises.

The accident occurred 160 feet beyond the Elizabethport side of the bridge. Spreading rails at a new switch is believed to be the cause, but the officials have not yet definitely placed the responsibility.

A special freight car attached to the tender followed the engine over the edge of the draw, but the coupling broke in time to leave the car half on the span. A valuable race-horse was in the car.

The accident blocked the line for several hours, passengers going around by way of Newark. The wreck car and officials of the road were on the scene within a short time after the accident and efforts to raise the engine and get the body of the engineer were started at once.

PRISONER'S PUZZLING AILMENT.

Mysteriously Loses Speech, Eyes and Neck Affected Queerly.

On Wednesday night a man who said he was Abram Goldberg, of Newark was arrested at Elizabeth on suspicion of being a crook. Goldberg was to be photographed for the Rogue's Gallery yesterday, but when his cell was visited to take him out he was found to be suffering from some unknown ailment.

The glands of the neck were frightfully swollen, his eyes were bulging from their sockets and he could not talk. An ambulance was quickly summoned and he was removed to the Elizabeth Hospital. The physicians are unable to decide whether he is malingering or not. He was apparently in excellent health an hour previous. His condition remains unchanged.

Funeral of Mrs. Kate Marsh.

The funeral services of Mrs. Kate Marsh, mother of Corporation Counsel C. A. Marsh, were held yesterday afternoon from the late home in Franklin place, at 3 o'clock. Rev. Erskine M. Rodman, rector-emeritus of Grace church, officiated in the absence of Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church who was Mrs. Marsh's pastor. The interment was in Hillside Cemetery.

Death of Miss C. W. Hoffman.

Miss Cornelia Williamson Hoffman, aged twenty-three years old, sister of Robert V. Hoffman, of the Courier-News staff, died at 4 o'clock this morning at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Newton Hoffman, Mountain avenue, Westfield, from intermittent fever, following a congestive chill. She had been ill but a short time, and her condition was not considered serious.

Funeral of Voorhees H. Laing.

Voorhees W. Laing, of East Front street, who died yesterday morning at 11 o'clock, was the son of the late John L. Laing, and brother of John Lewis Laing, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Mrs. Oscar N. Ulrick, of East Fifth street. The funeral services will be held from the late home Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock and the interment will be in Hillside Cemetery.

Funeral of Harold A. Ryno.

The funeral services of Harold A. Ryno, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Ryno, of East Second street, were held from the home of his grandfather, Albert Ryno, in Alton, yesterday afternoon. Rev. Geo. B. Shaw, of the Seventh Day Baptist church, officiated. The interment was in Hillside Cemetery.

Police Bring Death News.

Mrs. Martha J. Petrie, 319 East Sixth street, was informed by the police this morning of the death of her brother, Dr. Petrie, of Jersey City. The police were asked to tell her in a message received over the 'phone from Jersey City. The man on the wire said he was Dr. Parsons of that place.

—Levy Brothers' summer bargain sale begins tomorrow and no doubt there will be busy times while this sale lasts for the next two weeks.

—The fire underwriters having objected to the electric wiring at the Plainfield theatre, lead pipes covering the wires are being replaced by iron ones.

CIRCUS TRIP SPOILED

When Steengrafe Came From Magic Tent His Rig Was Gone

STOLEN BY A BOY

Police Run Down Young Thief Near Midnight—Horse's Owner Refuses to Make Complaint.

George Steengraafe, of South Plainfield, drove to town last night to attend the circus. He tied his horse in front of Overseer of the Poor Aleck Ayers' house. When he went for his rig after the show, it had disappeared.

Steengraafe hustled downtown to tell the police about it. He gave Sergeant Frederickson a description of the horse and buggy, and all the cops on post were telephoned to watch out for them. The officers heard that a rig answering the description had been seen going around town with two boys in it.

The sleuths went out on that trail and a man on Front street said he recognized the boys in the carriage as David Friedman and a colored boy named Scott. Officer O'Gorman was sent to Friedman's home on West Third street at 11 o'clock. He found the boy putting Steengraafe's rig into the barn.

O'Gorman made a grab for David, but the lad broke away. He disappeared in the darkness, and O'Gorman drove the rig to the station house, where Steengraafe was waiting.

Steengraafe said he was satisfied to get the horse and carrige back, and refused to swear out a complaint. David, however, is likely to be punished for his outlawry because he is now under indictment for stealing knives from A. M. Griffen and the police will probably bring this escapade to the court's attention.

NEW HANDICAPPING AIDS GOLF COMPETITION

POINTS NOW SECURED SHOW TRUE STATUS OF STRENGTH.

The adoption of the new system of handicapping by the Plainfield Country Club has tended to increase very largely the interest in the weekly competition for the Golf Committee cup, as well as in other competitions. There has been no walkover this season for any of the contestants and when a player secured either three, two or one point in this competition it showed a true representation of his strength. Recently, the handicaps of several of the best players were cut and they are now working under new figures. That they are able to stand the cut is shown by their work in returning such low scores.

E. B. Shoemaker now leads for the Golf Committee cup with 12½ points, closely followed by C. B. Morgan with 9 1-3 and H. C. Munger with 7½. Then follows M. J. Dumont with 5½ points and H. D. Hibbard, C. A. Stover and W. D. Riggs with 5 points each and S. H. Patterson and G. M. Furman with 4½ points each and so on down the list to the last player, Earl Stockton, with 1-3 of a point.

The system has demonstrated one thing, that is that even some of the less experienced players have an opportunity to get a good position and the fair system of handicapping has proved a help to that end, an encouragment to those who are not quite as expert as others.

Mrs. N. Pendleton Rogers has a long lead for the Gaston cup with 26½ points, her nearest competitor being Miss Daisy Elsberg with 14 points.

Stop a Moment.

Plan to go with the Methodists of this city and Dunellen to Asbury Park on Thursday, August 10, and you will have one of the best times of your life. Arrangements have been made for every comfort and convenience of the excursionists.

Inter-Club Tennis Match.

The team frim the Cedarbrook Tennis Club expected to play a return match with the Park Club team tomorrow afternoon, but because so many of its members are away the play has been postponeb for a time.

A Close Tennis Match.

On the courts of the Cedarbrook Tennis Club, yesterday, Paul Collier defeated Chauncey B. Koons in a tennis match, 6—3, 6—4. The playing throughout was close, and the match was in doubt until the last play.

ROCKVIEW HEIGHTS PLAN

How West of Washington Park Will Look When Completed.

GREAT IMPROVEMENT

A Lake 1,500 Feet Long to be a Feature—Mayor Smalley Superintending the Work.

The two weeks' work in the West End of the borough, known as Rockview Heights, is beginning to give one an idea of how this section will look when completed. The plans call for a boulevard one hundred feet wide, extending from the West End avenue bridge to the property of W. J. Buttfield, in the centre of which will be a row of trees. Plenty of space will be allowed on either side as a driveway and for sidewalks, while the thoroughfare will be well lighted.

The work is in charge of Mayor N. B. Smalley, a member of the syndicate, and Frank Mobus is the contractor. A large force of men and eight carts are employed on the job. Just now the men are cutting down the hill at the upper end of the avenue, using the dirt to fill in at the lower end to the full width of one hundred feet.

The old mill creek which paralelled Green brook is being filled in and the water there has been forced into the meadow land. Many trees and the brush on the Cadmus property has been cut down and removed and it is expected that next week a large gang of men will be put to work on the meadow land on the city and borough side in preparation for the work of locating a lake there.

This body of water will be fifteen hundred feet long and three hundred feet in width at the widest point. It will be egg shaped. The plans call for a small dam on the upper side of the new bridge, which the freeholders of Union and Somerset counties have agreed to build. The course of the brook between the bridge and Giraud avenue will be straightened and this improvement will be of great benefit in heavy rains, assisting to carry off a large amount of surface water without flooding the adjoining property.

It is also proposed to construct an attractive bank alongside this lake which will be terraced and lined with trees and shrubbery.

The Somerset County Board of Freeholders will meet at Somerville on Tuesday, when further action regarding the new bridge is expected. The freeholders agreed to construct a bridge about sixty-six feet wide, the same width of the avenue on the city side. It is possible that at some distant time the city may plan to widen the avenue to one hundred feet and an effort may be made to get the freeholders to change the plans for the bridge to that width now, so that the thoroughfare may have a uniform width from Front street to Mr. Buttfield's property.

As soon as the property on Rockview Heights is properly graded, it is likely that several handsome residences will be built in that section.

HEARING POSTPONED.

Illness of Judge Prevents. Exempts' Case Going On.

The hearing of the case of the New Jersey State Exempt Firemen's Association against Peter F. Murray, the former secretary, of Hoboken, was adjourned in the District Court, Hoboken, yesterday, owing to the illness of Judge Fred Frambach. The matter was put over until Tuesday, August 15, and it will be heard by Judge Atwater, of Elizabeth. V. W. Nash, Jr., counsel, and D. W. Littell, president of the association, were in court yesterday ready for the hearing, when word was received of the illness of the judge.

Although Mr. Murray has been out of office some time he refuses to turn over his books and papers to the secretary-elect and it is for this purpose that action has been brought against him.

Census Returns.

Census Bulletin, No. 10 shows the present population of Bridgewater Township, Somerset county, to be 9,886, an increase of 198 during the past five years. The population in Warren Township is 974, a decrease of 34 since the last census. The populations in the other Somerset county towns are given as follows: Raritan, 3,944; Somerville, 4,782; township, 962.

An Event of the Season.

Everybody is going on the Hope chapel excursion to Asbruy Park on Saturday, August 12, for they know what a good time they will have. The train leaves Grant Avenue Station at 7.50, Plainfield at 8 o'clock and returning, leaves the shore at 7.50 at night.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Action in regard to the village school election muddle will be taken by the Piscataway Board of Education at a special meeting this afternoon. Although the New Market school vote has been declared illegal, the Parker school ballot stands, and the bonds for that structure will be issued.

On their excursion to Bellewood Park next Wednesday the New Market and South Plainfield Baptist Sunday-schools will be joined by the Woodbridge Baptist school. The journey from here will be made by trolley to Metuchen and thence by the Lehigh Valley to the park.

Dysentery cases in the borough and village are not very numerous and none of them seem serious. One of the local physicians said yesterday that there were no indications of an epidemic. He had not come across a family in which there was more than one case.

Miss Ada E. Williams has resigned as teacher of the grammar department of the New Market school. Only four teachers will be on the staff.

The damage to the Baptist church by the lightning bolt last Sunday has been repaired enough to admit of the regular services on Sunday.

The walks around the borough park on Washington avenue are being laid rapidly. The work will be completed in a day or two.

Miss Josephine Calhoun, of Montgomery, Ala., has been visiting her mother, Mrs. Evelyn Calhoun. She is now in St. Louis.

A. S. Giles has announced that he will build another dwelling on the Sarah Hill property, which he recently purchased.

The Farther Lights Missionary Society will meet tomorrow at Mrs. Mahlon Dayton's home.

Under the leadership of David Lawson, the New Market band has again organized.

Mr. and Mrs. Ogden Meeker have returned from a stay at Asbury Park.

Miss Louise Schwoerer is entertaining a relative from Brooklyn.

Miss Mary Baldwin has recovered from her recent illness.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD

Funeral services of Harold, the six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ryno, of East Second street, were held yesterday morning at 11 o'clock from the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Ryno, at Alton. Interment was made in Hillside cemetery.

Tired, but still happy, the several hundred who attended the union Sunday-school excursion to Asbury Park yesterday, returned last night well satisfied with their day's outing. Not an accident happened to mar the pleasure of anyone.

"Should we allow any engagement to prevent us from attending the weekly prayer meeting," will be the subject discussed at the weekly prayer meeting tonight at the Baptist church.

The Misses Hazel Gardner, Margaret Gibbs and Clara Knight, of the borough, are spending a week among the Massachusetts hills.

Tomorrow afternoon "The Daabsters" and Westfield team meet at Crescent Oval for another try-out at the county championship.

Tomorrow marks the 158th birthday of the Baptist church. The event will be observed by a special service Sunday morning.

Mrs. Thomas Walsh, who has been quite ill for the past week, is reported as being somewhat improved now.

Roy Cook, who has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Hand, has returned to his home in New York.

Mrs. Charles Kalloway, of Stelton, is visiting her mother, Mrs. Louis B. Coddington, of the borough.

It is band concert night. The usual number from here will be in attendance.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The Rev. Frank Maines, a student of Brown University, Providence, R. I., will preach morning and evening at the Baptist church, Sunday.

Putnam & De Graw, of West Front street, are offering a fine line of women's and children's white, tan and black hose at reasonable prices, also black and white silk belts.

This is just the weather to sit out on your porch in the evening. When doing so, it would be possible to do so more comfortably if you had some of Powlison and Jones' rockers and porch furnishings.

Timbo, of North avenue, caters to the inner man and if he cannot please you no one can. His business men's lunch is one of the best served in the State. He also keeps a full line of tobaccos and cigars.

You can be sure that every bit of meat you buy at Frank Neidig's Lincoln Market is the very best and has been carefully selected. The shop is located at Somerset and Race streets, but his wagons visit every part of the city.

When you are ill you want the very best medicine, such as L. W. Randolph, the West Front street druggist, sells. His prescription work is prompt and accurate. Don't forget to stop at the fountain and get one of the famous drinks.

For carpets, mattings, curtains or shades one of the best places in the city to visit is the store of VanCamp & Franklin, at Front and Somerset streets. Their stock is all new and their prices equal to those charged by the big New York houses.

The best way to begin the day is to have a cup of good coffee for breakfast and to secure it a good brand must be used. Neuman Brothers who have always prided themselves on the superiority of their goods have just the article in Old Government Java or Mocha and Java. Either one makes a beverage that will strengthen the nervous system for business or pleasure. Neuman Brothers also have the best tea imported in their celebrated Formosa Oolong.

The Star A. C., of Newark, will play the West Ends, of Somerville, tomorrow.

The Daabsters are confident of taking the fourth game and will make every effort to do so.

The New York Americans are gradually ascending the percentage column and are now in the first division.

If his foot and ankle are well enough, Dalton may cover second base for the locals a week from tomorrow.

If you want a seat at Crescent Oval tomorrow you are advised to be on hand early. The biggest crowd of the season is predicted.

McGoey, who is scheduled to "walk the plank" was compared as the equal of Plainfield's outfielders. His strength is known here.

"Red" Waller is reported to have been disgusted with last week's support, and at his suggestion, Manager Denman will make a few changes.

Don't forget to witness the game on Crescent Oval tomorrow between Plainfield and Westfield. This will be the fourth county championship contest.

Brogan, who is now covering second for the locals, has made many warm friends here among the fans. He is now playing a fast game and hitting the ball steadily.

George Wiltse, of the New York Giants, says that Mathewson, the pitcher, is distinctively in a class by himself, and is without doubt the best twirler in the business.

Galbraith, the pitcher for the West Ends, of Somerville, has a percentage of 1,000 in batting and fielding. Brit. Martin, of this city, a member of the same team, has the same percentage.

"Willie" Deegan has promised to abide by his agreement with Manager Daab, and he will probably remain with the team. Mr. Daab had a heart-to-heart talk with the pitcher and he expressed his regrets over such a poor showing on Sunday.

The Cranford Baseball Association team has disbanded and the players are looking for jobs elsewhere. The game with Roselle for next Saturday has been cancelled, as have also all other games scheduled. Financial embarassment is said to be the cause of the trouble. It is reported that one or more of the Cranford team will be found on the Westfield team on Saturday.

TRADITION WON STAKE.

Paget Filly Raced Below Form at Saratoga.

Saratoga, N. Y., August 4—Tradition's class enabled her to win the $6,000 Alabama stakes at the Saratoga track yesterday afternoon. Sidney Paget's great three-year-old filly ran far below her form, but when it came down to a hot fight in the stretch between her and Kiamesha her quality told and she won by three quarters of a length.

Tradition was opposed only by Kiamesha and Gold Ten, fillies far inferior to her in speed and endurance, and as there was a difference of only a few pounds in the weights, Tradition appeared to have the race won before the start.

So certain were the bookmakers that she would win that they offered only one dollar against the race-goers twenty dollars; 15 to 1 were the odds against Gold Ten and Kiamesha.

Mrs. Frank McVoy, of West Fifth street, has been visiting friends at Raritan.

A Blaze of Beauty.

The Valley of the Lehigh is one of the most delightful places of refuge at this sweltering time of year. The name alone is enough to conjure up—if not an invigorating mountain breeze—at least a vision of grand mountain scenery. Not only is it an ideal country for a summer vacation, but it repays a hundredfold the time given to the most fleeting visit. Many points of supreme interest, in fact, are within the reach of a single day's excursion from New York. Notable among these is Mauch Chunk.

Both from historic interest, this being the place where anthracite coal was first discovered and mined in the United States, and on account of the wonders of the natural scenery, Mauch Chunk alone is one of the most remarkable localities in Eastern America. The whole trip is charming in the highest degree. First one traverses the beautiful rolling country of Western New Jersey, studded with splendid groves and picturesque old farm buildings. Beyond Easton the railroad runs along beside the Lehigh River and the old canal and the scenery becomes more varied and striking. At last Mauch Chunk is reached where it lies hidden in the heart of the hills.

The feature of the greatest interest at Mauch Chunk is the old "Switch-back Railroad." Built in early times to bring the product of the mines down to the barges, it has of late years been used solely for the recreation of visitors. It affords a thrilling ride. From the summit of a mountain commanding a view of the wide region bounded by distant mountain ranges, the car starts gradually until, gaining speed from its own momentum, it rushes along wildly, through the forests, by old mines and mining settlements, across high pasture-lands, and along the hillsides until at last the circuit of eighteen miles is completed and the car has returned safely to the foot

The New Jersey Central will run a popular excursion to Mauch Chunk on August 6, 1905. Round trip $1.50. Special train leaves Plainfield at 9:20 a. m. and there is sufficient time at Mauch Chunk for a day of rare enjoyment. 8 2 4 c

W. F. Merrill, of Carlton avenue, has gone to Texas on a business trip.

Miss King, of the borough, is visiting Mrs. Charles Wood, of North Branch.

Ira Randolph, of Dunellen avenue, is visiting Captain Dorsett at Barnegat Bay.

Mrs. Eugene Hatch, of West Eighth street, is spending the month in Maine.

Albert Utzinger, of L. W. Randolph's pharmacy, will take his vacation in September. He will take a trip to Lake George.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Drayton, of East Sixth street, are spending the summer at New Market. They are now entertaining their nieces, the Misses Moore, of Millville.

Plainfield, N. J., August 4, 1905.

No man whose business methods were wrong ever succeeded by sheer force of business. The businesses that have been built up by advertising have been based on sound foundations.—Ex.

This is the time when the public is building up hopes on their favorite candidates for the governorship. Later the dear people will be told for whom they may vote.

Census returns show that more than 5,000 of the 23,000 credited to New Brunswick cannot speak English. This is a record which no other town will begrudge the Middlesex county seat.

Editor Mann may have made a howling success of Town Topics but when it comes to gingery views on American "sassity," Uncle Henry Watterson makes him look like a "four-flusher."

The West End avenue philosopher says that the eagerly-awaited and long-expected building ordinance was carefully stored away in the vaults of the innocuous desuetude and the key has since been lost by councilmen in their rush for a renomination. Meanwhile, proper-owners will please provide themselves with about six months' patience.

HOMES FOR TRUSTEES.

Order to Expend a Million Dollars In Northwest Canada.

The Supreme Court, Independent Order Foresters, in annual session at Atlantic City, this week, has decided to take $1,000,000 of its surplus in making homes for members of the order in Northwest Cnada by purchase of an immense tract of land in that country.

The plan under consideration for months back involves, besides the purchase of holdings, offers transportation to young men of the order who wish to leave city life to make themselves pioneer homes in the great tracts of wheat and forests, and a fund to be set aside for the purpose of giving those who accept the proposition a sufficient start to make their venture successful.

A magnificent jewel, encrusted with diamonds, sapphires and rubies, and valued at over $1,000 was presented to Dr. Oronhyatekha, supreme chief ranger of the order, at the final meeting of the convention held on the steel pier yesterday afternoon.

A resolution was also passed, calling for an assessment to be laid on special members for the support of the orphanage of the society.

ACTING PASTORS.

Out-of-Town Ministers to Fill Local Pulpits Sunday.

As most of the Plainfield pastors are now away on their vacation, several local pulpits will be occupied on Sunday by out-of-town ministers. Rev. Dr. E. P. Johnson, of the First Reformed church, Albany, N. Y., will preach at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, and the pulpit at the First Presbyterian church will be occupied by Rev. Lester Leggett, formerly of this city.

Rev. G. M. Shott, formerly of Scotch Plains, will preach at the First Baptist church, in the morning, and a service in the interest of the Netherwood Fresh Air Home will be held in the evening. Rev. B. D. Stelle, of Philadelphia, will preach at the Park Avenue Baptist church, morning and night.

Rev. Dr. H. K. Carroll will conduct the service at the Congregational church in the morning, telling of his recent trip to South America. There will be no evening service.

Rev. George Magill, of Newark, who is to preach for Rev. Dr. C. W. Parsons, at Grace M. E. church, during the absence of the latter, will occupy the pulpit on Sunday for the first.

—While they last tomorrow. Twenty crates of fancy Georgia peaches. None better on the market. Neuman Brothers.

THE POLITICAL TIPSTER.

Councilman Wilson, it is said, is hot after a renomination. "While there is life, there is hope."

Assemblyman Randolph Perkins, of Westfield, has not given up hope of being advanced to the upper house of the Legislature at the next election.

You can afford to give odds on it that Summit will be given the Republican nomination for the shrievalty. No part of the county has received as little recognition.

Can't tell what Elizabeth will do, but it can be depended upon that if the Republicans nominate Runyon for State senator, he will pile up a big vote for the ticket here.

It is said that the Fourth ward leaders have taken Charlie Randolph under their wing and that his smiling face will be seen in the Common Council for another term.

J. F. MacDonald was sworn in as a freeholder yesterday and will serve until the regular election this fall. It is reported that the administration will support Sam Wilbur for the job.

As yet the administration has not shown its hand as far as the City Collectorship is concerned, but it is said that they have the cards up their sleeve to do the trick on Bob Lee's friends.

Talk as you like, the Third ward leaders have not given up hope of having President Daniel take another term. He's the only man in the whole Common Council who does not seem to have made any enemies.

The First Ward Independents have held two conferences, according to dame rumor, in the interest of Councilman-at-large William S. Bullock, who intends to make a fight to retain his place. Councilman Clarence Murphy knows something about the situation. Ask him.

George Parrot, of Elizabeth, is recognized as the foxiest office-holder in Union county. His job as surrogate is said to net about $10,000 per and he has held on to it for just about twenty years. That's why he is not over enthusiastic about Elizabeth getting any of the plums this fall. He wants to shake the tree himself next year.

VACATION DAYS.

Mr. and Mrs. John Bushnell, of Central, avenue, are at Mt. Pocono, Pa.

Miss Ryder, of East Front street, is spending the month in New Hampshire.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles King, of Watchung avenue, are at Big Moose Lake, N. Y.

AGAIN CAPT. KIDD'S TREASURE FOUND

THIS TIME ON THE BANKS OF THE GREAT EGG HARBOR RIVER, N. J.

Egg Harbor City, Aug. 4.—This section of New Jersey is excited over a report of the finding of what appears to be the hiding place of Capt. Kidd's treasure, on the West estate, on the Great Egg Harbor River. Large excavations have been made and at night lanterns are seen at the place. An investigation disclosed a number of picks, shovels and digging tools.

The West estate is one of the oldest in New Jersey. The house on the place has been unoccupied for a long time, as it is claimed it is haunted. The mansion remains the same as it was in the earlier days, when it was used as a meeting place for the Colonial Dames. Close to the edge of the farm runs the great Egg Harbor River and it is asserted that the treasure of Capt. Kidd is buried nearby.

Nobody knows who has been doing the digging and it cannot be learned whether anything has been found. There are marks similar to those that would be made by a heavy chest in the bottom of the excavation.

DEATH OF MRS. ROSS.

Widow of Noted Democratic Leader Expires.

Mrs. Margaret Hoagland Ross, of New Brunswick, widow of the late Miles Ross, the one time noted Democratic leader, died yesterday morning at the summer home of the family, at Belmar. She had been in failing health for some time, and lack of vitality, due to her age, permitted the disease to make steady progress. Mrs. Ross was over eighty years of age.

She was the daughter of Captain John Hoagland. Her father and Miles Ross's father were neighbors, their properties abutting on Ross dock, then headquarters for water carrying traffic at the time when Burnet street along the water front was the aristocratic residence section of New Brunswick. She and Miles Ross were married November, 1847.

Mr. Ross died February 23, 1903. Mrs. Ross leaves five children, Mrs. B. M. Price, Mrs. Henry Manning, Millard F. Ross, Harry B. Ross and Robert E. Ross, all of New Brunswick. Arrangements for her funeral have not yet been completed.

900 EXCURSIONISTS.

Trinity People Had Delightful Time at Shore.

The annual excursion of Trinity Reformed church Sunday-school and Marconnier chapel, to Asbury Park, yesterday, was one of the most successful of the season, as well as one of the best ever held under the auspices of the church. Fourteen well-filled cars left Plainfield for the shore and not a single accident occurred during the day to mar the pleasure of anyone. The excursionists were favored with a strong sea breeze, and it was delightful weather.

Frank Webster, of Duer street, was the conductor in charge; William Dunham, the engineer, and William Briscell, the fireman, and engine No. 624 was employed to take the train on the trip. One thing appreciated was that the railroad company furnished good cars of the latest type, and through the efforts of Conductor Webster, each car was well supplied with drinking water for the round trip.

There were nearly 900 excursionists, 591 adults, seventy-five half-tickets, and the balance children who required no tickets. On the trip to the shore the excursionists arrived at 10.20, a little late. Returning the train left at 7.12 and reached Plainfield at 9.05.

Were in the Trolley Crash.

Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Price, of Jersey City, are the guests of Abram Van-Cleef, of Elm place. They were among the passengers in the westbound trolley car that collided with an eastbound car on East Second street, Tuesday night, and Mr. Price was slightly injured.

that is bound to crop up at any moment, it is believed, and such things always happen when least expected. To foretell the result of the undercurrent at this time is impossible. With a united party, the Democracy has a good fighting chance. Some of the leaders seem to indicate Senator Childs should receive a renomination while a number remain passive and do not appear to be interested. This will probably wear away as the dog days disappear when the political caldron begins to boil later on in September.

No serious objection shows itself to the senator in any particular other than that Childs is a reserved, dignified man, whose manner of life is along a high-minded, religious way and that does seem so queer, to the average Somerset Democrat it is said that he does not thoroughly understand it.

Should Childs be nominated for senator in all probability Stewart Kenney, a Somerville dry goods merchant, may be induced to accept the nomination for assembly. Kenney has never taken an active interest in politics. He is a member of Somerville clubs and is popular with the young as well as the older people of the county seat. It is declared that friends of Kenney will stump the county nightly for him if he takes the nomination. He is a hustler himself and can hit the bull's eye in any argument he joins in.

Altogether-Somerset is bound to undergo a spirited campaign from present indications. When the frost is on the pumpkin a lively lot of candidates and campaigners will make a pilgrimage through the county.

Town, township, borough and village "statesmen" will pilot the army when they visit their particular locality. The rafters in the old hall at Harlingen will ring an echo. Up at Gallia the Mount Bethel "statesmen" will walk four miles to attend the meetings and listen so intently that he will almost forget to applaud until his neighbor unconsciously remarks: "B'gosh, that's so." After that, applause. More applause. Then the meeting will adjourn. The spellbinders will move along to another crossroads stopping place and the same old performance will be repeated.

HIGH PRICE FOR VASE

FAMOUS OLD PIECE OF SEVRES BRINGS OVER $21,000.

Was Made in 1763 and One of Its Panels Was Painted by Dodin—Bit of Mystery About Its History.

London.—A now famous old Sevres vase, with one of its panels painted by Dodin in 1763, was lately sold at auction at Christie's for the extraordinary sum of 4,200 guineas, or about $21,462. The accompanying illustration is from one of the two reproductions of this vase, made by permission of Mr. Partridge, the purchaser of the vase, for a London paper, and pictures it with the Dodin panel in nearly full view.

According to the estimate of critics who follow the market prices of these rare porcelains, this vase would have brought 10 or 15 years ago about one-quarter of the price paid for it at this last auction in Christie's. Indeed, there were bidders who seemed to expect to secure it at some such comparatively small sum at this auction.

They had to expand their ideas of its auction room value, however, and did so by offers of 50 and 100 guineas (or more than $250 and $500 respectively) at a cry, until they sent it up to 3,000 guineas. Up to the neighborhood of this figure Asher Wertheimer, of London and Jacques Seligman of Paris were competitors with Mr. Partridge and a dealer of Fifth avenue, New York, and the New York dealer continued in the bidding almost—but not quite—to the end.

A VALUABLE VASE.
(Over $21,000 Was Recently Paid for This Famous Piece of Sevres.)

When the vase was finally knocked down to Mr. Partridge, some of the experts in attendance at the auction room were all but nonplussed at the selling figure. The London reports quote comments of these judges to the effect that with this price of 4,200 guineas as a criterion, there are, then, specimens in the Wallace collection at Hertford house, London, and in the Louvre which are worth £40,000 or £50,000—or the stupendous sum for a vase of $250,000.

But, after all, it was only one more exemplification of what has become all but a commonplace of the modern art auction room, that a rare work of art is worth all that it will bring, and in these days of great fortunes and many liberal competitors that is a great deal.

This vase is praised on all sides for its fine shape. It is 16¾ inches tall. Its color has come in for some criticism.

The color is principally gros-bleu, but the critics object that the color is heavy, opaque—lacking in the rich, clear transparency of the finest Sevres specimens, which for the most part came from that factory before 1763, the date of this example. The vase is enriched with gilt ornamentation and has spaces reserved in white.

Three of the panels are decorated with bouquets of flowers and fruits. The chief panel, painted by Dodin, pictures a lady disporting herself as a shepherdess, and a boy playing the bagpipes, in a landscape.

The likeness of the vase to one in royal possession, and a suspicion as to a phase of the Partridge vase's earlier history, may perhaps have had some degree of influence upon the price paid in Christie's auction room. The Partridge vase is similar to one owned by King Edward which is in Buckingham palace, and it has been said that this vase of Mr. Partridge's was once in that palace—the inference being that it was at some time stolen, like many of the art treasures which to-day enrich the halls of many collectors.

Flag of the Vatican.

The papal flag is comparatively unfamiliar outside of the Eternal City. The flag used during the temporal power of the pope was white, and in its center stood the figures of St. Peter and St. Paul, with the cross keys and tiara above them. The flag of the merchant ship owned by the subjects of the states of the church is a curious combination, half yellow and half white, with the design of the cross keys on the white. In the banner used by the crusader king of Jerusalem, Godfrey, the only tinctures introduced were the two metals, gold and silver, five golden crosses being placed upon a silver field. This was done with the intention of making the device unique, as in all other cases it is deemed false heraldry to place metal on metal.

SLEPT TILL TURKEYS CAME

Hunter Who Knew Their Habits Took It Easy While Waiting for the Birds.

"Some years ago I was the guest of a friend who owned a ranch away down on the Nueces river, in the south, west of San Antonio," said Mr. H. J. Rice, of New Orleans, according to a local exchange. "The region abounded in game, and wild turkeys were especially numerous. Never having bagged one of these birds, I was keen to go after them, and my host promised to take me. We started out on the hunt, and I could already see a magnificent gobbler sailing to my fire. After walking several miles my friend remarked that it was as well to rest awhile, and threw himself down under the shade of a mesquite bush. This did not suit me at all, for I was eager to go on, and I remonstrated with him about losing valuable time. For answer he rolled over on the grass and went to sleep, at which I was fired with anger and half a notion to go back to the house. It was well along in the afternoon before he aroused from his nap, and then, with an apologetic smile, he said: 'We won't have to wait long now, for this is the place the turkeys come to roost, and all we will have to do is to hide and shoot them down.' It was just as he said, and about sundown there came a superb drove of wild turkeys. Unconscious of danger, they came almost upon us before we let drive at them, with the result that four of the largest were stretched upon the ground. After that I never criticised the methods of a Texas hunter."

ATMOSPHERE INTOXICATES.

Alcoholic Fumes from Brewing Vats Exhilarate Visitors to English Town.

Burton-on-Trent, the center of the English brewing industries, has the peculiar faculty of mildly intoxicating the stranger within its gates, states the New York Herald. The resident has become accustomed to the mildly alcoholic fumes which arise from the innumerable brewing vats, but the susceptible stranger finds exhilaration and finally a mild form of intoxication in the atmosphere—an effect which does not wear off for several hours after his arrival. On every hand the big brewing houses are throwing off fumes from the vats of malted liquors, and while these are imperceptible to the resident more than a thousand authentic instances are said to have been recorded of persons to whom the air has proven to possess properties that both cheer and inebriate.

Just as in certain parts of the west the arsenious fumes from the smelters destroy vegetation and imperil health, the vapors of the English brewing capital destroy the sobriety of the abstainer and fill his head with vagrant fancies. As many visitors to the place are actuated by a desire to see for themselves the great industry which they are doing their utmost to suppress, and as they are the most sensitive to the atmosphere of the town, those who gain their living from the brew houses take great delight in observing these involuntary lapses from principles.

BEAR RELIGIOUS SYMBOLS.

Peasants of Part of Italy Tattoo Themselves with Various Christian Signs.

In the "vanity" section of a museum at Florence, relates the London Telegraph, there is an interesting collection of blocks used for what is called "religious tattooing" among Italian peasants of the district inclosed between the Abruzzi, Umbria and the Adriatic.

Peasants in these parts at work with shirt sleeves rolled up display a Christian symbol of some sort or a text tattooed in blue ink on their brown skin. This has been imprinted on the occasion of some special festival.

A wooden block is pressed upon the tightly drawn skin to mark the outlines of the design. This is then punctured, and a blue ink is rubbed into the wounds, which usually heal in about 24 hours. The custom, which is essentially Christian, is in commemoration of the branding of St. Francis, who founded a monastery close to Loretto.

Pheasants in California.

A year ago Dr. T. C. Sutliff of Corning, after a great deal of trouble, succeeded in getting a few pheasants shipped from Pennsylvania for breeding purposes. Being an enthusiastic fancier, the doctor took great delight in the birds, and by careful breeding has increased his flock to about 100 very choice specimens. The doctor, who is a member of the game protective association, has liberated a number of the pheasants along the river, believing that they will soon multiply and afford excellent sport for the gunner.—Sacramento Bee.

Saw Stone with Wire.

In some French quarries stone is sawed by means of steel wire cables moistened with wet sand and passing in an endless rope over a series of pulleys. The wire, which runs from 1,000 feet to 1,200 feet per minute, is charged as it enters the cut with a jet of water and sand, which forms the cutting material. A running cable of 500 feet can make a cut 100 feet long.

Hunchbacks in Spain.

Spain has more hunchbacks than any other country. In some of the villages of the Sierra Modena 7 per cent of the people are deformed in this way.

NOTICE!
"In behalf of your proprietory article called AZIENZA CREAM, as a remedy for diseases of the skin, I desire to add my appreciation of its wonderful properties as a cure in a case of Bone Turner or Abscess of five years growth on my husband's back, which I have cured in less than five weeks time by constant application, and now it is as well as any part of his body. It was cut out once by a specialist and had again grown to a large size, was as hard as a bone and of a very dark purple color. The AZIENZA at once allayed the pain and began to soften it, and in less than eight days, by my pressure upon it, suddenly to my surprise it discharged a quantity of pus, impregnated with a hard, cheesy substance. I kept it open and o eansed it as it discharged and every day would dress it with a plaster of AZIENZA CREAM, until it was entirely healed up. I cannot speak to highly of AZIENZA CREAM and its merits. For inquiry regarding this case you may apply to Mr. and Mrs. James, Embury Ave., cor. Hilton, Ocean Grove, N. J. CLEANING WHITE SHOES.

And Make Them Look Just Like New Ones.

Keeping white shoes clean is one of the difficult tasks this season of those who are obliged to do those little things for themselves. In an immaculate state nothing prettier can be worn on the feet, but spots spoil them, marring the general effect of a whole costume.

The shops now carry several different cleaning preparations, any of which is good if put up by reliable firms. These liquids and powders as a rule, though, are good for removing only slight dirt and for that reason it is the part of wisdom to use one of these powders or fluids each time that the shoes are taken off. This will keep them in such good condition that hard cleaning will be unnecessary.

A packet of French chalk and pipe clay should be near the dressing table of every girl, for it will aid with her shoes. If canvas or suede has slight spots, chalk rubbed in well with a cloth will cover them entirely. The chalk should then be brushed off with a stiff brush. Art gum, a soft eraser, used by artists, is also well to have, as it will wipe away slight spots. The same eraser, too, by the way, will clean spots on corsets caused by dark dress bands rubbing. Pipe clay is applied in a paste made of water and brushed out when dry.

Stains that come from grass or seaweed are the two most difficult to remove and chalk should be tried with them first. If this does no good alcohol sometimes will make them disappear, but the objection to it is the danger of a liquid causing the stain to spread. This may be obviated by making a wet ring around the spot and covering the circle with chalk. Then when the alcohol is put on, the chalk will absorb any that spreads. It can be brushed out when dry.

If canvas shoes have become so soiled that nothing less than a good wash will clean them, they should have a thorough scouring. Before doing this be sure to put the shoes on trees. Then make a strong suds with white soap and ammonia and, putting in the shoes, trees and all, scour them with a stiff nail brush. Do this until soil is removed, but never rub soap directly on the canvas. Rinse, again brushing, and finish with blueing water. Put in the sun to dry and if later the shoes seem yellow wet them with clear water and put them out to bleach. Trees not only make the shoes retain their shape, but will prevent them from shrinking too much. After the last drying the canvas may be rubbed with pipe clay to make it even whiter.

Suede, glace kid and calfskin can be cleaned by wiping over with gasoline.

If the brown heels and soles of canvas shoes look dull after washing they should be rubbed hard with tissue paper and then with chamois, and if they are still dull they should be polished with prepared tan varnish that is used on tan leather. If the canvas or suede has been cleaned with prepared whitening, specks of the powder should be removed from the soles and heels with wet tissue paper, and then rubbed bright with a cloth. This same treatment will usually restore the shine to brown heels and soles when they have become dull from use, and keep them looking new.

SOME TRUTHS.

Pay a girl a compliment, and she will always remember it. Say something disagreable to her and she will never forget it.

If men could always dress exactly as they would like to in hot weather, all the bathing-suit factories would now be running night and day.

The true secret of happiness consists simply in being happy. Anybody can do it, if he only thinks so.

After a girl gets to be 27 or 28 it isn't safe for a man to propose to her just by way of compliment.

The man who is ashamed of his ancestors may not know it, but frequently they would be just as much ashamed of him.

Sealskins now are out of season, but at any swimming-hole or "crick" throughout the country where the boys do congregate these summer afternoons, you can see the very latest thing in bear skins.

It is commonly understood that the pretty girl spends a heap of her time holding the mirror up to nature, but after all, who can blame her?

The man who does everything well is pretty sure to get a good reputation, even though he doesn't do a great deal.

When a family acquires a new dog exciting hours are spent in heated dispute as to what will be the best name for him, ending generally with a compromise on "Jack" or "Rover."

If you want to make your enemy look foolish, just say to him the next time you meet him: "Cheer up, old man, don't look so sorrowful. Maybe it isn't so."

Considering that lovely women never could drive a nail straight, or hit anything she aimed at, isn't it a little hazardous to risk her with a forty-horse power automobile?

It is poor consolation for a man to remember the surpassing loveliness of the bride when the bill for the fifty-dollar present that he and his wife felt obliged to send her comes in.

If a boy doesn't always cut his finger the first hour after he has a new knife, his happiness would be too great a strain for any mortal to endure.—Somerville (Mass.) Journal.

HOLDS UNIQUE POST.

ALEXANDRA, FOR BUSINESS PURPOSES, NOT MARRIED.

Queen of England Cannot Sign State Papers—If Edward Died It Would Not Be Treason to Plot Against Her.

London.—Great interest was aroused recently by the circumstance that in a grave national crisis, when the king was for the moment inaccessible, the ministers of state were summoned to the presence of Queen Alexandra for consultation, with, as was generally understood, most satisfactory results. This was quite a new departure for the present reign.

Of course, Queen Victoria played this sovereign part constantly, but her late majesty was the head of the state, and it was the proper course for her to pursue. Except when considered as part of the king and sovereign Queen Alexandra is not the head of the state. She enjoys a position of her own which is absolutely unique. While it differs from that of any other lady married or single, or of any rank, in some material ways it is also different from that of previous queen consorts.

One of the most curious and interesting provisions in the law and customs of the state is that the queen is for private business purposes not regarded as a married lady at all. She is the only lady in Great Britain who does not come within the scope of the married woman's property act.

The principle of the law is that the king is entirely different from all other married men, and that his time is too fully taken up with the affairs of state for him to have any left to devote to domestic matters, and that, therefore, the whole management of the queen's private business matters must devolve upon her majesty singly,

QUEEN ALEXANDRA.
(Consort of King Edward of England, Who Holds Queer Position.)

and that no responsibility whatever in respect to them rests upon the king.

Therefore, if such a thing could be imagined as the queen contracting debts in her husband's name, the king would not be responsible for them, as any other husband would be, unless he had given due notice to tradesmen and all others concerned that he would for the future decline to settle all such accounts.

If the king contracted debts, the law which says that his majesty can do no wrong would prevent anybody from suing him for recovery to the amount due, but no such protection is granted to the queen, who could be proceeded against in the ordinary manner. She has her own attorney general and solicitor general to represent her in all legal matters, though, of course, except for ordinary private purposes, their services are scarcely ever needed.

While the constitution is glad to recognize the queen as part of the monarchy, it cannot lose sight of the fact that after all her position is limited to that of queen consort, and, therefore, she is in a large sense one of his majesty's subjects, and, in certain cases, which there is no human possibility of occurring in these times she would be treated as a subject. But in other respects she is accorded privileges by the realm which are given to no other person except the king.

Particularly there is no question of high treason. It is generally understood that the king is the only person whom it is high treason to plot against, but it would be high treason also to plot against Queen Alexandra.

The signature "Edward Rex" is attached to all state documents of such importance as to demand it. But in no circumstance whatever would the corresponding one, "Alexandra Regina," be allowed to be attached, either in conjunction with that of his majesty or without it. If it should happen that the queen should survive the king, many of the privileges which she at present possesses would be withdrawn from her, only nominally in some cases, but actually in others, whilst constitutional law provides that some curious restrictions shall be placed upon her. It would be no longer high treason to plot against her, and it is held by at least one high authority that she could marry again if she wished to do so without the especial license and permission of the king's successor.

Great Britain Loses Land.

Great Britain lost 148,906 acres between 1867 and 1880 by the encroachment of the sea, and 29,155 acres between 1880 and 1890. A survey in the reign of Edward I. gave the duchy of Cornwall 1,500,000 acres, but the ordnance survey some years ago showed that this had been reduced to 829,500 acres. Villages have disappeared in the ocean, as in the case of Dunwich, of which nothing remains but a ruined church on the edge of a cliff.

RICHEST BACHELOR.

ALFRED DE ROTHSCHILD HAS INCOME OF OVER $5 A MINUTE.

Wealthy Englishman Is Extremely Popular—Owns a Private Circus and Entertains Guests with Unique Ideas.

London.—Alfred Charles de Rothschild is one of those men who have solved the problem of how to be happy, though unmarried. Few people seem to get more enjoyment out of life than he. Possessed of a great fortune, his entertainments are among the features of the London season, and those about to begin at his town house in Seamore place are arousing the most agreeable anticipations. There is no more popular host in Mayfair.

"Mr. Alfred," as he is universally called, is 61 years old; a dapper little man and the most exquisitely attired member of the Rothschild clan. Like all of them, he is an astute man of business. He is also a distinguished amateur musician, a connoisseur in art and a dilletante in many things. With an income that works out a little more than $5 a minute, he has relaxed none of his practical interest in the great financial operations for which the house is famous. He is generally at his office by ten every morning, remaining there with an interval for luncheon until the afternoon.

When not occupying his town residence or detained by some social engagement, the financier travels every evening in his own private railway car to Halton house, his magnificent country seat, near Tring. He is generally accompanied by his private band, and one of his secretaries and a couple of valets. The band, which is composed of first-class musicians, performs every night after dinner, Mr. Alfred invariably conducting and pieces of his own composition often being played.

ALFRED DE ROTHSCHILD.
(Member of Famous Family of Financiers Who Is England's Richest Bacheler.)

Constitutionally delicate, with a medical attendant always at hand, and intensely nervous about his own health, his amusements are always more or less of a sedentary nature. Of medium height and slight build, his remarkable physical charactegistics are his conspicuously small feet, which are always beautifully shod. A little autocratic and apt to candidly evince his disapproval of anything that offends his artistic aye, he has at times created a small sensation by suddenly demanding the removal of a gaudy bunch of flowers from the buttonhole of some astounded railway porter or other minor official whom he has encountered in his frequent journeyings to and from town. He is distinctly a "persona grata" with royalty and society's grand dames.

Halton house is one of the most extraordinary art museums in England. It is built in the style of a French chateau, and the rooms and broad corridors are adorned with French, Dutch and English paintings by the best masters. As for mere curiosities, as distinct from works of art, Mr. Alfred has hundreds of them.

The most conspicuous of them is a circus—the only private circus in England. It is about a hundred yards in diameter, palinged off and surrounded by trees. In the winter it is covered by an enormous tent. At one side, embowered among the trees, stands the royal box, a rustic building in keeping with the surroundings. Inside, however, are seats and settees which are the finest products of modern upholstery. Behind it is the dressing-room, which, from the outside, looks like a rustic cottage with its thatched roof, but within it contains all the up-to-date accessories of the ring, where Mr. Alfred's guests are entertained by performing monkeys, ponies, dogs, gazelles and trained tumblers and acrobats. Another curiosity seen in the chalet, which serves as a green room, is a marvelous clock, made like a tree, which plays tunes, sets silver birds flying through the branches and a rivulet of water flowing.

Halton is an ideal estate, situated in an ideal spot, where money has done its best to enhance the charms of nature. At one end of the big house is the winter garden, surmounted by a huge crystal dome that sparkles and scintillates in the sunlight. In the midst of the palms and marble statues is the ring for Mr. Alfred's private band.

His beautiful town residence in Seamore place contains one of the finest private art collections in the world. He has published for private circulation two volumes containing descriptions and illustrations of his art treasures.

FAITHFUL CANINE HOLDS UP R. R. PASSENGER TRAIN

The 8:36 train to New York was held up at the North Avenue station for nearly ten minutes this morning, by a dog, belonging to a commuter. The animal had followed his master to the station and made several attempts to get on the train. He was driven away, only to return more persistent than ever.

The canine finally went under the coach in which his owner was sitting and it was only after much effort that he was chased from his position. He then ran between the cars and iron fence and attempted to get on the platform from that side in an attempt to join his master.

As the train pulled out the dog repeated its efforts to get aboard, failing each time. When the train was out of sight the animal started on a dead run for home.

TO TEST AUTO LAW.

It Is Believed by Many to Be Unconstitutional.

Manufacturers of automobiles can not say that they do not make money. It has just leaked out that at its annual meeting in June the Ford Motor Company, of Detroit, declared a dividend of 100 per cent. on its capital of $100,000.

The test case which is being conducted to have the new automobile law of New Jersey declared unconstitutional will be carried through the court of last resort in this State and will then be taken to the Federal courts if a favorable decision can not be had before. Harry Unwin, the motorist who purposely violated the law in Jersey City so as to make a test case, is only acting in the matter of the National Association, whose counsel, Charles T. Terry, argues that the statute under which the defendant was arrested was unconstitutional and void for the following reasons:

"(1)—It is legislation against a class, singling out automobiles as victims and imposing unwarranted burdens upon them not imposed upon other users of the highways.

"(2)—The statute imposes an unwarranted double tax on automobiles of residents and non-residents.

"(3)—The defendant's automobile was properly registered under the New York law.

"(4)—The statute is an unwarranted exercise of the police power of the legislature. Any legislation to be justified by the police power must be reasonable and must be exercised for the benefit of all classes of the public. The statute is both unreasonable and unnecessary and discriminates between different users of the highways and also between different automobilists."

BULLDOG FIGHTS RATTLER.

Chews Up Enemy, Then Dies on the Battle Ground.

Winsted, Conn., Aug. 4.—A bull dog owned by John Passini, a farmer living on the Under Mountain road in South Canaan, fought a large rattlesnake to the death yesterday.

The dog discovered the snake near the bottom of the mountain while on its way to a brook, and immediately charged on the reptile. Fastening its teeth midway between the rattler's head and tail the dog chewed the snake until it was dead. Then the dog died from bites on the fighting ground.

The snake was a large one and had eleven rattles. The dry weather is driving reptiles from the mountains to the low lands for water.

Takes His Rescuer to Death.

Charles Williams, twelve years old, and John Haggerty, seventeen years old, were drowned in the Millstone River, between Blackwells and Millstone. Both were bound boys, both orphans, who worked for William Hill, a farmer.

They went to bathe in the river. Williams was seized with a cramp and Haggerty went to his assistance. Williams seized Haggerty about the neck and both sank and never came up. The bodies were recovered.

Minister Refuses a Vacation.

The official board of the Pitman Methodist Episcopal church, New Brunswick, was surprised last night, when it offered the customary month's vacation to the pastor, the Rev. W. T. BOTH SIDES READY FOR FOURTH CONTEST

DENMAN HAS TIPPED HIS MEN OFF THAT THEY MUST WIN.

Tomorrow on Crescent Oval the fourth of the county championship series will be played between Plainfield and Westfield and it promises to be a lively one, like the preceding ones. There is more than usual interest in this contest because Manager Denman has promised several changes in his lineup and everyone will want to know who the new players are to be. The fact that Cranford has disbanded and that several of its players will be with Westfield has caused considerable talk among the fans. Westfield is not discouraged because it has lost three games, but the players are all the more determined to take the next one. Manager Denman has had a conference with his men and given them their instructions, which means that they must win tomorrow.

Manager Daab cannot see it that way and he fully expects his team to continue its winning streak. Plainfield has an aggregation of ball players this year of which it may well feel proud. Out of twenty games played there have been but two defeats, and it proposes to continue to win. Beck will be sent to the firing line tomorrow and he is sure he can hold his opponents down with such gilt-edge support as the team is capable of. Brogan will cover second, Dalton still being unable to play. He hopes to return a week from tomorrow. "Willie" Deegan and "Tuck" Turner will be on the bench in case of emergency. The contest will be called at 3:45 and this will be Plainfield's lineup:

Kiernan, ss; Cosgrave, cf; Brogan, 2b; Connolly, rf; Cregan, lf; Leonard, 3b; Driscoll, 1b; O'Neill, c; Beck or Deegan, p.

According to the latest advices this will be Westfield's lineup:

Eddie Daly, ss; Barry, 3b; D. Poole, 1b; Stallings, 2b; Bertwhistle, lf; Mallen, cf; McCormick, rf; Cotter, c; Waller, p.

WOMAN'S RIGHT TO KICK.

If She Kicks High, People Who Dislike It Can Look Other Way.

Any young woman has a right to practice high kicking in her own home, and those who do not like to see her kick need not look at her.

So Magistrate Mayo has laid the law down in the Harlem Police Court in New York, in the case of Anton Pout, janitor of No. 25 Mount Morris Park West. Pout was summoned to court by Mr. and Mrs. Anton Fuest and their pretty daughter Helma, eighteen years old, a dancer on the stage. They complained that the janitor bothered them continually. Pout tried to justify his conduct by saying:

"The daughter kicks all over their flat and people come and look in at the windows."

The learned magistrate then declared that a woman, young or old, has a right to kick, high or low, in her own home, and he warned Pout to quit pouting at Miss Helma.

LITTLE STRANGER ON TRAIN.

New York Physician Officiates at Interesting Western Event.

Grand Junction, Col., August 4—The presence on a Rio Grande train of Dr. Orrin McKnight Mitchell, of New York, was most opportune Wednesday, as Mrs. J. R. Bartnall, wife of the superintendent of schools of Fruits, Col., gave birth to a daughter and Dr. Mitchell was called upon to attend her.

The train was just passing over the swinging bridge in the Royal Gorge when the child was born. Mrs. Bartnall was in the Pullman, and when the conductor learned of the situation he went through the train calling for a physician. Dr. Mitchell, who was en route to Seattle, promptly volunteered his services.

Mrs. Bartnall wanted the New York physician to accept a fee, but he told her to use the money for a present for baby.

"Hole in the Wall" to Go.

New Brunswick, Aug. 4.—Solicitor H. B. Willis, of the Middlesex County Board ofFreeholders has informed the board that he has served upon the Pennsylvania Railroad Company notice to abate the nuisance at South Amboy, known as "the hole in the wall," where there is a narrow roadway under their wide stretch of railroad tracks running to the coal docks or stand suit for damages, which will be brought by the county. Since the notice was served the company has commenced the removal of earth there, and is thought to intend widening the roadway.

NAMING A CHANCELLOR

William J. Magie's Successor to be Appointed by Governor.

QUESTIONS INVOLVED

Until Recently It Was Supposed That Governor Stokes's Successor Would Have the Appointment.

The fact that the term of Chancellor William J. Magie will expire in 1908 is probably responsible for a prevailing impression, shared in heretofore by Governor Stokes himself, that the jurist's successor will be appointed by the next Governor of New Jersey and not by the present Executive. The recent discovery, assuming it to be correct, that Governor Stokes will name the next chancellor, has given rise to no little discussion in political circles and has led to some interesting comment.

After serving eight months of an ad interim appointment following the death of Chancellor McGill, Chancellor Magie was appointed by Governor Voorhees, in 1901, for a full term of seven years. His term began on January 14, and, following the rule that fractions of days are not recognized in law, will expire at midnight on Monday, January 18, 1908. Exactly one week later the term of Governor Stokes will come to an end so that the vacancy in the chancellorship will occur just within the last week of the Governor's term. The Legislature of 1908, under the Constitution, will organize on January 14, or the day following the expiration of the term of the chancellor. Although it will not actually meet for fifteen hours after the chancellor's term has expired, it might be called together at midnight of the same day.

Disregarding this possibility, however, it is clear that a vacancy in the chancellorship could not occur until within one week of the expiration of the Governor's term, and the Constitution provides that "no appointment or nomination to office shall be made by the Governor during the last week of his said term." It is, however, argued that the nomination of Chancellor Magie's successor will be sent by Governor Stokes to the Legislature of 1907.

Chancellor Magie is now seventy-three years of age, and with the vast amount of work devolving upon the chancellor it is regarded as scarcely probable that he would care to undertake another term even should the position be offered to him. It is said that for some time the work of the office has been telling upon the chancellor, and his friends say they have noticed that he lacks the physical vigor which was so characteristic of the man up to a few years ago. Former Justice Collins is talked of for the place.

TO WAR ON CIDER JOINTS

Borough Council Tackles the Liquor Evil and Sunday Selling.

PUBLIC INDIFFERENT

So Says Corporation Counsel Reed—Councilman Arnold Advocates Check on Habitual Drinkers—Interesting Debate.

Cider joints and saloons, and the question of wiping out the former and controlling the latter agitated the Borough Council at its meeting last night. That some measures of reformation were needed at once was generally agreed upon, and Councilman Arnold advocated vigorous steps.

Mr. Arnold introduced the subject.

"We have cider joints in the borough," he said, "that are undoubtedly selling intoxicants on the Sabbath. You can see men go into them perfectly sober any Sunday and come out completely intoxicated. I think something should be done to halt them. They should be notified that further violations of the law will not be tolerated, and the letter of the statute should be enforced if the notice is disregarded.

"Conditions springing from the cider joint and saloon evil in this borough are of a character that demands prompt and effective measures. I know of one case where a man spent all but $4 of the $96 he made in a month in the saloons and cider joints. Now, there is a law that says the saloons must not sell liquor to an intoxicated man or a man who is known as an habitual drunkard. It seems to me that if we catch the joints selling to such a man as I have referred to we will have a pretty good case against them right there.

"It is a hard matter getting evidence against these joints," said Mayor Smalley. "Our recorder has taken care of them whenever occasion arose, when he had any evidence on which to proceed."

"Well, I think notice of the kind I mention should be served on them all," said Mr. Arnold.

"Why don't the saloon men themselves get after the cider joints?" asked Mr. Van Arsdale. "I should think they would."

"No danger of that," commented Borough Counsel Reed from his chair at the Mayor's right. "Most of these saloon men are breaking the law themselves, selling after hours or in other ways, and they don't dare invite a come-back.

"It seems to me," he continued, "that the best way under the existing laws, is to proceed against the joints under the public morals ordinance. These places cater a good bit to children, and the latter go into them on their way to and from Sunday school. There are usually drunken men lounging about the places, and it is certainly very easy to see that such a state of affairs is injurious to public morals."

"I wish there was some way of converting these Seventh-Day Baptist Italians into Hard-Shell Baptists," said the Mayor.

"Those fellows have no right to sell on Sunday," exploded Mr. Arnold, "and we can shut them up. They aren't Seventh-Day Baptists, and everybody knows it. They are Catholics. I can respect a Jew or a Seventh-Day Baptist, but those men are not entitled to any consideration on the score of religion. Why, you can see this fellow down the street going to St. Joseph's church every Sunday morning. The other fellow, up the street, says he belongs to a Seventh-Day Baptist church in Mulberry street. We all know there isn't any such thing as that there."

"The trouble is we haven't a law," said the Mayor.

"Oh, yes we have," said Mr. Reed, "we have state a law that forbids the sale of everything on Sunday, but the trouble is the penalty is inadequate. It only provides a fine of a couple of dollars. The morals ordinance enables you to put a fine of $20 on a convicted man, and a sentence or two like that is apt to discourage the sellers, for a time at least.

"What is needed in this matter is some healthy and active public sentiment. Why don't the citizens act; I haven't noticed anybody getting real excited over the thing except Mr. Arnold. I have noticed that the general sentiment of the people seems to be with the prisoner when the police proceed against one of these men. There is a general tendency to sympathize with him as the victim of heartless activity. If the people really want these places cleaned out let them act with the officers. I have noticed a goodly portion of the public patronizing these stores. What you want to do is to set some of the ministers on the joints.

"I have heard a good many people talk as Mr. Arnold has," said the Mayor, "but they haven't nerve enough to come out in the open and take action. It seems to me as if it

BRICK VENEERING ON VERGE OF FALLING

CARPENTERS MAKE FORTUNATE DISCOVERY AT VANDEVENTER BUILDING.

Carpenters at work on the old Vandeventer building on East Front street, yesterday, discovered that the veneering of brick which covers the back of the structure was loose and bulging. It loked as if it might come down at any minute.

They notified Building Inspector Doane, and he went down to the building on the jump to look it over. He found the veneering in as dangerous a state as the carpenters had reported. The thin wall of brick had bulged beyond its center, and no man could tell at what second the whole mass of brick would come tumbling down.

Chief Doane warned all the tenants in the building and surrounding structures to keep out of the yard and ordered Titus Laury, the contractor, to put up bracing as rapidly as he could. Laury's men got planks and stanchions in place before the veneering started further.

The Chief sent word to A. J. Brunson, owner of the building, that the veneering would have to be torn down. Mr. Brunson promised to have it done as soon as he possibly could.

The weakened veneering has nothing to do with the structure proper. Brick veneering is put on for looks and fire protection. The Brunson structure is as strong, with the veneering crumbling, as it ever was.

TRENTON LINE A FAILURE.

Vice President of P. S. C. Intimates That It May Be Abandoned.

Speaking before the Elizabeth Council on the proposed new trolley line along Rahway avenue, that city, A. B. Carlton, vice president of the Public Service Corporation, declared that the through fast line service between Jersey City and Trenton was a failure.

"The line has only been an experiment," he said, "and it has not been crowned with success. After the novelty of the trip wore off the line became a failure financially, the journey evidently proving too tedious for general use."

He said the headway would probably be reduced shortly to three hours, and intimated that the service might be discontinued altogether.

Miss Hoffman's Funeral.

The funeral services of Miss Cornelia Williamson Hoffman, sister of Robert Hoffman, of the reportorial staff of the Courier-News, will be held from the late home, 67 Mountain avenue, Westfield, Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Rev. Dr. John K. Wright, pastor of the First M. E. church, Westfield, will officiate, assisted by Rev. Dr. Charles M. Anderson, formerly of Westfield, but now presiding elder of the Jersey City District of the Newark Conference. Friends wishing to see the remains can do so Monday afternoon between the hours of 2 and 3 o'clock. The interment will be in Fairview cemetery, Westfield.

Now Factory Superintendent.

John Alster, formerly of the Standard Surgical Company, has secured the position of superintendent at the factory of Becton, Dickinson Company, of Duane street, New York. He will have the supervision of the manufacture of hyperdermic syringes and needles and will have sixty-five men under his charge. Mr. Alster has been a resident of this city five years, living in East Sixth street.

Woman Secures Judgment.

Mrs. Elizabeth Brand has secured judgment against Mrs. Mary A. Quaas, in Justice Hand's court. L. A. Clement is lawyer for the plaintiff.

Grocer Gets Judgment.

Judgment has been secured by James Totten, a grocer, against John F. Strapp, in Justice Hand's court. Execution has been issued.

Fishing at Keasby.

A party composed of Elvin VanName, James Blair and James Craig spent yesterday at Keasby fishing.

FREEHOLDER COMMITTEES

List Revised Because of J. F. MacDonald's Appointment.

ROUTINE WORK.

Cannon Used in Revolution to be Placed in Front of Union County Court House.

Freeholder-elect J. Fred MacDonald, from this city, attended his first meeting of the Board of Freeholders at Elizabeth on Thursday, and at the same time the board received a communication from the Common Council notifying it that Mr. MacDonald has been elected for the unexpired term of the late James Franklin Hubbard. He was previously sworn in by Mayor James F. Buckle.

It was necessary to revise the committees on account of Mr. MacDonald becoming a member of the board, and the list of standing committees is now as follows:

Collector's bond—Meisel, Darby, Cladek; publication, MacDonald, Robison, Kline; discharge of prisoners, Wahl, Cladek, Chandler; settle with collector, Krouse, Cady, Scudder; audit accounts, Connoly, Cady, Woodruff; lunacy, Adams, Meisel, Swain; public grounds and buildings, Krouse, Cady, Woodruff; jail inspection, Westphal, Wahl, Murphy; stationery, MacDonald, Connoly, Scudder; settle with sheriff, Robison, Connoly, Chandler; miscellaneous accounts and agreements, MacDonald, Darby, Cladek; legal questions, Kline, Meisel, Marsh; appropriations, Krouse, Westphal, Connoly, Kline, Woodruff; county roads, Robison, Adams, Krouse, Jensen Swain; Elizabeth drawbridges, Jensen, Westphal, Murphy; Rahway drawbridges, Adams, Chandler, Marsh.

Freeholder Connoly's resolution that a committee of three be appointed to report on the advisability of constructing a new bridge at Spring street, Westfield, was adopted and the director appointed Messrs. Connoly, MacDonald and Cady.

The Elizabeth and Raritan River Street Railway Company was given permission to construct a double line of tracks on Rahway avenue, on a resolution offered by Freeholder Krouse.

The committee on public grounds and buildings recommended that the Revolutionary cannon offered by the Elizabethtown Chapter, Sons of American Revolution, be placed in front of the Court House, and the recommendation was adopted.

The board received a letter from Mrs. James Franklin Hubbard, widow of the late director, expressing her appreciation of the consideration of the board in its resolution of condolence, sending flowers and attendance at the funeral. The letter was filed.

BOROUGH TAX BUDGET REMAINS THE SAME

IN ALL $20,800 IS NEEDED—COUNCIL ORDERS ITS COLLECTION.

The amount of money needed for the expenses of te borough's various departments during the coming fiscal year are the same as last year. The tax budget was made up last night by the Council and the exact sum voted last year was decided upon.

The total amount is $20,800. This is divided among the defferent funds as follows: Police, $3,000; fire, $2,000; streets, $6,000; lights, $5,000; water, $1,300; poor, $1,000; incidentals and interest, $1,000; Watchung avenue bond, $1,000; Somerset street certificate, $500.

All of the proposals are the same. It is expected that the expenses of the poor and the police departments will increase a little, but increased returns are expected to cover them.

The collector was instructed, by vote on roll call, to collect the amount.

Riverside Park Leased.

Glatt & May, the managers of the Tivoli theatre, New Brunswick, yesterday completed negotiations whereby they have secured the lease of Riverside Park for eighteen years. It was leased two years ago by Frank Melville, of New Brunswick, for twenty years and this lease is now taken by the new managers. They will continue the park during the balance of the present season with some added features and next year will make the park with many novelties one of the best amusement places to be found in this section of the country.

N. P. Police Vacations.

Vacations among the North Plainfield police will start on Monday. The first one to go on a summer trip will be Marshal Pope. He will spend a week by the seashore.

DRUNKARD THREW FITS ALL NIGHT IN JAIL

ALCOHOL IMPS GET AFTER BIBULOUS HAY WAGON DRIVER.

Fred Willibald, a driver, for Baldwin Brothers, hay dealers, fell from his cart on West Front street, last night, at 8.30 o'clock, in a fit. Willibald is a heavy drinker, and the spsms were a cross betwen the horrors and the snakes. His employers telephoned for the patrol wagon, and the man was taken to jail.

He threw fits all the way down, and had a beautiful one just after the men put him on a bunk. Dr. Lufburrow, the city physician, was summoned and did what he could to straighten the man out, but spasm after spasm shook him. He threw fifty separate and distinct fits during the night, and two officers were kept on duty over him constantly, to hold him down. He quieted after daylight, and Chief Kiely allowed him to go home after he had rested a bit.

TRENTON POLICE NOT AFTER THE REWARD

BUT FARMER VAN NUIS IS HOT AFTER IT.

Acting Chief Cleary, of the Trenton police, said yesterday that his men do not claim any part of the reward offered for the capture of Charles Long, the negro murderer. In Trenton they are not sure whether the $750 will go to Franklin VanNuis, the farmer who betrayed Long to the police, or to Chief Kiely, Detective McCarthy and Patrolman Higgins, who surrounded and captured him. A conference in Trenton between the interested men is expected to settle the question.

VanNuis, it is said, claims that Chief Cleary promised him the whole of the reward if he would tell him of Long's whereabouts. The Trenton police are criticising VanNuis severely for his alleged harboring and helping the man he is said to have known was guilty of a brutal murder. Chief Cleary says VanNuis gave Long tips that enabled the latter to elude the officers. The Chief is said to have told him last week that if he harbored the murderer again he would be liable to prosecution, and this is believed to have had something to do with the former's willingness to betray Long.

Mrs. Strayer Dead.

Mrs. Eva Strayer, wife of George O. Strayer, and formerly of this city, died yesterday at Heywood House, Beemersville, Sussex county, following a long illness with pulmonary trouble. She had been in Sussex county about eight months. Mrs. Strayer was formerly Miss Eva Skidmore, daughter of Mrs. William Bedell, of Tottenville, S. I., and she lived there prior to her marriage. She had many friends and acquaintances in this city. Her home was in East Second street. She is survived by a husband and two sons, one of the latter being by Mr. Strayer's first marriage. The funeral services and interment will be held from the home of Mr. Strayer's mother at Tottenville.

Halliwell Held.

Unable to produce witnesses to support his claim that David M. Kellogg struck him with a cane before he made his frenzied attack on his employer at Oak Tree, Wednesday, Lee Halliwell was held for the Grand Jury of Middlesex County by Justice von Minden yesterday, at the adjourned hearing of the case. Mr. Kellogg has several witnesses who corroborated his story of the assault in every particular. Halliwell said he had no one to go on his bail, and the justice committed him without fixing a bond.

Death of Mrs. H. P. Williams.

Mrs. Marie Williams, aged 32 years, wife of Henry P. Williams and daughter of the late Thomas and Marie Casenove, died yesterday at her home in Warrenville. She had been ill a long time and her death was not expected. The funeral services will be held from her late home in Warrenville, Monday afternoon, at 1 o'clock and interment will be in Mt. Bethel.

Death of Mrs. Brandegee.

Mrs. Catherine Amelia Brandegee, widow of Marius Brandegee, and daughter of Anthony B. and Elizabeth Gallandette Fountain, died this morning at her home, 312 East Seventh street, after an illness of three weeks. She was in her eighty-second year. The funeral services will be held from the late home, Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Plainfielders in Paris.

Registered at the Herald office in Paris, yesterday, were Mr. and Mrs. Angus Atwood and A. P. Atwood, of this city.

PRISONERS TO BE DIETED

Too Many Meals Served in Borough Jail, Mayor Decides.

CHIEF INSTRUCTED.

Chairman of Finance Committee Shocked by Number of Rations—Morning Trials Are Suggested.

Fewer meals and a slimmer diet will be the portion of prisoners in the borough jail after this. The number of meals served during the past month shocked the economical Council last night, when it was brought to the borough fathers' attention by Councilman Krewson, of the finance committee. Chief Weiss, who has charge of the jail commissariat, was instructed to retrench at the trencher.

Chairman VanArsdale's report for the police committee for the month of July cited seventeen arrests and two commitments. When the figures were read Mr. Krewson looked up in amazement.

"Only two commitments?" asked the finance chairman. "Why I've a bill nere for 102 meals."

Mr. VanArsdale explained that the commitments noted were of prisoners sent to Somerville, and that some of the prisoners brought to the jail were released after a brief detention without a trial.

"But that certainly is an unusual number of meals," broke in Mayor Smalley, glancing in the direction of Chief Weiss, who sat in the "gallery."

"We had twenty-five boys in the jail one day," explained the chief, "and they got a meal apiece. And we kept an old man for several days."

"Well, it would be well to reduce this item hereafter," said the mayor. "Put your prisoners on a diet. People who have to be locked up shouldn't expect too much. We have good city water."

"Maybe we wouldn't have so many meals to pay for if the recorder held his trials in the morning instead of at night," said Mr. VanArsdale.

FOUR YOUNG WOMEN THROWN FROM CART

ISS HOOLEY IN A RUNAWAY ACCIDENT THIS MORNING.

Miss Louise Hooley, daughter of Edwin J. Hooley, with two of her friends and a maid, were thrown from her pony cart but escaped serious injury in a runaway on Arlington avenue this morning. The pony became frightened at a passing trolley car and started on a mad run. The cart was upset and the occupants thrown into the street, but the little animal continued its flight down the road.

A farmer rushed from a nearby field armed with a pitchfork, but the swift pony got by him and continued its run until another farmer overhauled it near the Driving Park. The cart was a complete wreck. Miss Hooley and her friends received no other injuries than a shaking-up and some scratches.

Special Services for Fresh Air Home.

Rev. Dr. G. H. Whitney and others will speak at the meeting to be held at the First Baptist church tomorrow night in the interest of the Netherwood Fresh Air Home, and Howard A. Case, the organist, has promised to arrange for special music. It is likely that Miss Carroll, contralto, and Mr. Case, precentor, at the church, will sing solos. Children from the Home will both speak and sing and an offering will be received for the work.

Meeker Recovers.

Former Assemblyman Ellis R. Meeker, author of the law doing away with spring elections in New Jersey, and who, as told in The Daily Press, was injured last Friday at Long Branch by being thrown out of his automobile, has so far recovered as to be able to leave the hotel where he was stopping aud go to his home in Elizabeth. His wrist is still crippled from the mishap, but the body bruises he sustained have all disappeared.

Vacation Time at Postoffice.

Letter-carrier George Apgar is spending his fifteen days vacation camping out at Swartswood Lake. Clerk William Thorn, of the local postoffice, is on his annual vacation and Carrier Philip Geise will start his annual outing next week. Carrier Charles Glaentzer returned this week from his vacation.

Sermon to Colored Masons.

Rev. E. E. Miller, curate, will preach the annual sermon to Stone Square Lodge, No. 38, F. and A. M., at Grace church, tomorrow night.

GEORGE COE DEAD AT BALTIMORE, MD.

FORMER PRIVATE SECRETARY TO MR. FISK PASSES AWAY.

George Jarvis Coe, for many years a resident of this city, died suddenly yesterday at his home in Baltimore, where he has been living during the past two years. No particulars as to the cause of death has been learned.

Mr. Coe was the son of a Rev. Mr. Coe, and his early life was spent in New York. For several years he was private secretary to Former Mayor Charles J. Fisk, and tutored the latter's sons in their preparation to college. During the early days of the Civil Service in the local police department, he conducted the oral and written examination, which together with the physical examination, were requisite for appointment to the department. He had a host of friends, who admired his genial and happy disposition.

Mr. Coe was about fifty years of age. Notice of funeral will be given later.

SCOTTY "LOOSENS UP."

Former Plainfielder Buys $100 Necktie.

Albuquerque, N. M., Aug. 5'.—Walter Scott, the Death Valley miner and cowboy, played a brief but lively engagement here last night. Jumping from a Pullman on the California Limited, he ran to the nearest clothing store, threw a hundred dollar bill on the counter and called for a red necktie. Seizing the tie and not waiting for the change, he dashed across the street into a gambling hall, and lost $3,000 in the crap game in less than three minutes. This caused a thirst, and "Scotty" laid a thousand dollar bill on the bar, calling for champagne for the crowd. "Here's another thousand!" yelled "Scotty," opening a sack of silver dollars, which he flung out by handfuls as his train pulled out.

SOLOISTS AT BAND CONCERT.

Murray, Redmond, Leever and Leick There.

The largest crowd of the season attended the weekly band concert in Concert Park, last night, the features of which were the vocal solos by "Billy" Murray, "Billy" Redmond and Louis Leever, together with the cornet solos of John Leick. The vocalists gave duets and trios, receiving hearty applause.

The programme, comprising several compositions by F. A. Mills, the well-known music publisher, was given entire. Mr. Mills, the vocalists, the cornet player, Director Benjamin LaVere and M. C. Van Arsdale, treasurer of the band concert fund, were given an automobile ride about the city early in the evening.

Council Meets Tuesday Night.

Tuesday night, August 8, has been fixed as the time when the Common Council will hold an adjourned meeting to pass on the tax duplicates, just completed by the Board of Assessors. The August meeting of the Common Council will be held Monday night, when an adjournment will be taken to the following night for the purpose indicated.

Delinquent Sale Notices.

Tax Collector Robert L. Lee is sending out notices respecting real estate taxes for the year 1904. All real estate upon which the taxes for 1904 remain unpaid will be sold by Collector Lee, according to law. Mr. Lee is not compelled to give this notice, but does so to avoid, as far as possible, the hardships resulting from inattention.

George Ackerman Dead.

George Ackerman, the one-year-and-eleven-months'-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ackerman, of East Third street, died this morning after a few days illness from dysentery. Funeral services will be held from the parents' home Monday afternoon, at 2.30 o'clock. Interment will be made in Hillside cemetery.

Miss Inez Tolles a Winner.

City Judge's Vacation.

City Judge William N. Runyon is taking a week's vacation from his duties and is spending the time at Onteora Park, N. Y.

BOROUGH COUNCIL WORK

Routine Matters at Last Nights's Session in North Plainfield.

MORE SIDEWALKS.

Handsomely Engrossed Resolutions On Mr. Valiant's Death—New Combination Wagon for N. P. F. D.

Little time was spent on business of strict routine at the North Plainfield Council meeting last night. Shorn of the cider joint, the Mowray, and the jail diet matters, the session would not have lasted ten minutes.

Chairman Lee, of the fire committee, reported that the combination hose and chemical cart, authorized at the last meeting, had been ordered. He said it would probably be on hand in a couple of months.

Mr. Lee's committee is fire, water and lamps, and the Mayor asked him to see that the P. S. C. changed the street lamp bulbs. The tri-monthly change agreed upon between the borough and the lighting people is due, but no signs of corporate activity have been detected.

Chairman Arnold, of the street committee, presented a resolution ordering the laying of sidewalks in front of the following properties: F. L. C. Martin, 94 Fairview avenue, lot number one; Edward Johnson, from the line of F. L. C. Martin's property, Fairview avenue, to Westervelt avenue; John Calder, 24 Stone street; S. C. Mundy, 3 Stone street; Plainfield Ice and Cold Storage Company, 5 Stone street; Charlotte DeMeza, 19 Stone street; Michael Daly, 23 Stone street; Mary A. Gregory, 27 Stone street; John Emmons, 29 Stone street. These owners have failed to lay walks in response to notices from the street committee, and now the borough will put them down and charge ten per cent. over and above the cost. Mr. Arnold reported that his committee had spent $222.90 on street work during the month.

The resolutions on the death of former-Councilman John Valiant, passed at the last meeting, were delivered to Clerk Rowley for conveyance to the family. They are engrossed on parchment and bound in rich leather. Fernando Ward executed them.

The Council will meet next Tuesday night, to go over the assessor's books.

DEFENSE OF C. L. HYDE AGAINST STATEMENTS SIGNED "X. Y. Z."

MR. HYDE'S COUNSEL DENY THAT MR. HYDE IS INSOLVENT OR SUBJECT TO ANY CRITICISM. MR. HYDE HAS APPEALED FROM THE JUDGEMENT AGAINST HIM AND EXPECTS TO REVERSE IT

The communication respecting Mr. Charles L. Hyde appearing in the "Daily Press" of August 3 instant, signed "X. Y. Z.," as was then stated, came "from a prominent resident," and contained the assurance that the facts "are all a matter of record." It is proper to say that the publication would not have been allowed, had it come to my notice, without first requiring a careful investigation, and further requiring the full name of the "prominent resident" to be signed to his communications and published.

Reed & Coddington, Esquires, counsel for Mr. Hyde, deny that Mr. Hyde is insolvent, or that he is not willing to pay all his just debts. He will promptly pay every dollar that is justly due. He has, they say, taken an appeal from the judgment against him, and expects to be successful on the appeal, as Mr. Hyde claims that he owes Mr. Spear nothing, and insists that until the higher court shall have passed upon the questions in dispute, he is not open to any charge of making efforts to beat his creditors. They further say that Mr. Spear, on the same day that his judgment was entered, instituted proceedings, which in the end were unsuccessful, to have Hyde declared a bankrupt.

Mr. Hyde is away from home, but we are glad to accept and make public the statements made in his defense by his counsel.

We have also written to the author of the communication, requesting his permission to furnish his name to Mr. Hyde.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

William Sanford evidently does not intend to stand by his alleged promise of making no competition for Arthur Vail in the lunch business. Today he drew up plans for an 8x12 addition to his loop waiting room, where he will conduct a lunch counter. Sanford lately boasted that he would make Vail hustle once he stared in opposition.

That B. Siriski intends to build on the lot next to Arthur Vail's old store was shown today, when work was started this morning on digging the cellar and this will probably be completed Monday. Then the foundation work will be started. According to his plans, Siriski will build an up-to-date dwelling, with latest improvements.

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Vail and son and daughter will leave next week for Quakertown, N. J., to attend the 87th anniversary of the birthday of Mrs. Jane D. Vail, Mr. Vail's grandmother. Eleven grandchildren and three great grandchildren will attend. Mr. Vail's daughter and son are great grandchildren.

New Market, in its rejuvernated form, will line up against the Watchungs this afternoon on the former's grounds. Russel or Randolph and Costellos will be the Watchung's battery, while Emery and Nelson will be in the points for the Watchungs.

The total valuation of Dunellen real and personal property for 1905, as returned by Assessor Peters is $517,000, an increase of $12,000 over last year, a most creditable showing.

Celebration of Holy Communion will be held tomorrow at Holy Innocents' church, in celebration of the feast of Transfiguration. The only service will be held at 8:30.

The excursion of the New Market and South Plainfield Sabbath schools to Bellewood Park will take place on Wednesday, August 9, on the Lehigh Valley road.

Many Dunellenites will attend the excursion of the Methodist church on Thursday, which will be held in conjunction with the Plainfield Methodists.

George Vliet has accepted a position with the Plainfield Painting and Decorating Co., and is now engaged on some work here for that firm.

Work on the Kuldoshes store is going on rapidly. The plans call for new plate-glass windows without side boards.

Mrs. Arthur Giddes and son have returned to Port Richmond, after a week's stay here with J. C. Giddes.

Rev. William E. Davis, of Lebanon, will occupy the Presbyterian pulpit tomorrow at both services.

Two houses belonging to A. M. Tappan are being reshingled by a Bound Brook firm.

Harry Giddes, Ray Huff and James Sheenan are spending the day fishing at Boynton Beach.

The property of Mrs. Carrie H. Boice has been sold to Mrs. Sara Huff this week.

The annual Merrell-Dayton reunion will be held at Chimney Rock on August 12.

Ray Huff contemplates spending the coming week with his aunt in New York.

The regular monthly meeting of the Council will be held Monday evening.

Mrs. Barker, of Nyack, N. Y., is visiting the Misses Jessie and Rose Haines.

Mrs. Lewis Schneider is entertaining her sister, Mrs. Vail, of Jersey City.

Mrs. S. B. Merrell will spend the next week with relatives in Flemington.

Gilbert VanDoren, of Somerville, is visiting his sister, Mrs. J. J. Bolard.

Della Federman is greatly improved from an attack of dysentery.

Miss Pearl Dodwell is spending the week at Watchung with friends.

Two new boilers have been received for the sewerage plant.

George Apgar will spend the day tomorrow at Midland Beach.

The local team has no game scheduled for this afternoon.

Harry Swackhamer is enjoying a two weeks' vacation here.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The electric light service for the past two months has been very poor and the attention of the Township Committee will be called to the matter at its next meeting. Lights on some of the principal streets in town have been out for a week at a time, and were then replaced by private citizens putting in lights from their own stores or homes. The Public Service Corporation is expected to have an inspector go over the route three nights a week and make any repairs necessary or replace the burnt out bulbs. This was done until about two months ago when John Miller resigned the position on account of the small salary given by the corporation. Since then the visits of an inspector have been few and far between and the residents say must certainly have been made during the day instead of night. As the township is charged by the year for each and every light furnished the taxpayers believe it is about time something was done to compel the Public Service Corporation to live up to its contract.

Services tomorrow at the Baptist church will be at the usual hours. In the morning at 10:45 the service will be an anniversary one, commemorating the 158th year of the historic old church. Rev. T. Moore-Smith will preach a special sermon. The B. Y. P. U. meeting will be held at 7:15, followed at 7:45 by the evening preaching service.

Walter Haskard, who has been visiting his mother, Mrs. John R. Haskard, of Grand street, for two weeks, has returned to his home in Boston, Mass.

It is reported that Manager Denman will have several new men in Westfield uniform in the game at Crescent Oval this afternoon.

The Saturday night dances at Rapp's pavilion have become very popular among the lovers of dancing both here and Plainfield.

The band concert last night at Concert Park, Plainfield, was better than ever, was the verdict of all the 'Plains music lovers.

George Clark, Jr., of Finderne, N. J., has been spending part of his vacation with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Clark.

The borough jail question seems to be dead at present, but the Council members will probably revive it again this fall.

The Henry C. Meyers cottages on Westfield avenue are about completed and will soon be ready for occupancy.

The monthly communion will be held at the close of the morning sermon at the Baptist church tomorrow.

Robert Walpole and a party of friends are planning a week's camping at the Passaic River.

Rev. Mr. Richard will have charge of the weekly prayer meeting tonight at the Methodist church.

Miss Elsie Long, of Murray Hill, has been visiting Miss Anna Ryno, of Park avenue.

Mrs. Ann Dobbins, of Front street, has been entertaining relatives from Newark.

John Valvey has returned from a stay at his home at Dover, N. J.

GOVERNOR SIGNS PRISON CONTRACT

HE ATTACHES HIS SIGNITURE—JERSEY CITY CONTRACTORS TO MAKE FIGHT.

Governor Stokes has signed the contract for the erection of a new wing at the state prison, at Trenton, to cost $226,385. The building is to be erected within 150 working days, with a penalty of $10 a day for all delays beyond that time. The contract was signed with the Pauly Jail Company of St. Louis.

Contractor Joseph H. Cutley, of Jersey City, whose bid was $6,900 less than that of the Pauly company, said that he would attack the awarding of the contract in the court. His bid was rejected for failure to comply with the specifications by furnishing the names of his sub-contractors.

SAD END TO HONEYMOON.

Bride of Two Weeks Dies in Hospital.

Moorestown, Aug. 5.—Word was received here Thursday that Mrs. H. Helskel Shain had died in a Philadelphia hospital after a short illness from acute Bright's disease. Less than two weeks ago Mrs. Shain, nee Miss Mary Stradling, left her home in Mt. Holly the bride of Mr. Shain, of this place.

Considerable romance had been attached to their courtship and marriage. Both the young people were well known and popular here, but when it was announced that they had been quietly married in Mt. Holly many were surprised.

Mr. and Mrs. Shain left the home of the bride's parents immediately after their marriage had been announced, to go to a home on Diamond street, in Philadelphia. After three days Mrs. Shain was stricken with acute Bright's disease, and was taken to a hospital, where her husband kept a constant vigil by the bedside until the young woman died Tuesday evening.

The girl's parents at Mt. Holly are prostrated over the shock of their daughter's death, and her husband is nearly crazed with grief.

IN THE PURCHASE OF A SEWING-MACHINE

Why Not Get the Best

At Lower Prices and Better Terms? Buy at First Hands of the Maker

We maintain a store for your convenience in this town. We have been here for many years and shall be for years to come

Singer machines are sold only by us, dealing directly from maker to user

The Singer Company is permanent and its representatives are always at hand to care for Singer Machines

This is an important consideration to the purchaser of a sewing-machine

Many a woman has experienced the annoying loss of a small part of the sewing-machine obtained through some dealer selling "cheap" machines, but who is totally unable to furnish duplicate parts therefor and is likely to be gone in a short time.

The sure means of avoiding trouble and loss is to GET A SINGER, thus you deal with the leading sewing-machine manufacturers of the world, having an unequaled experience and an unrivaled reputation—the strongest guarantee of excellence of product and fair dealing directly in its sale.

WE WILL DISCOUNT ANY PRICE QUOTED FOR A SEWING MACHINE OF EQUAL REPUTATION

NURSES REBEL AT GUM-SHOE SPYING

PRETTY TRAINING SCHOOL GIRLS OBJECT TO BEING WATCHED.

Cincinnati, August 5—Fifty girl nurses at the City Hospital who are in rebellion against the strict rule of Miss Alice Peddie, night superintendent, has signed a round robin protesting against what they call Miss Peddie's "arbitrary measures," which will be presented to the Board of Medical Advisers. "Gum-shoe surveillance" is the term used by the nurses to express the watchfulness of the night superintendent, and they declare her notions of propriety are "something fierce."

The signers of the round robin are the youngest and prettiest members of the City Hospital Training School. Tales of kissing bees, in which young doctors or internes figured in the hospital corridors after dark, led Miss Peddie to adopt strict measures, it is said.

In noiseless rubber-soled shoes, it is averred, she appeared at unexpected moments and as quickly vanished, until the nurses could stand it no longer. Little suppers and friendly visits between nurses and internes were discovered, Miss Peddie's friends at the hospital declare, and she took steps to restore discipline.

"The younger nurses started this thing," said Nurse Edith P. Snowden. "The girls don't understand that strict discipline is necessary in the hospital or they wouldn't be so silly. They won't get any support from the older nurses, and it would serve the girls just right if they did lose their positions for signing that round robin."

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

Everyone wants fresh meat during the hot days. If you do, see J. W. VanSickle, on North avenue.

George Egel, on Somerset street, will serve you with the finest cuts of meat and the best fowl. Try him and find this out.

Patrons of TenEyck & Harris, the coal dealers, always get the best coal, well screened, full weight, at lowest prices.

People who know say that there is nothing like the private growth coffee, which W. W. Wilson sells. You will like it.

One is often judged by the style of his clothes. If you wish your gents' furnishings to be a la mode, visit Greer & Greenwood, on East Front street.

The quicker you open an account at the Dime Savings Institution the sooner you begin to draw the liberal interest paid. You will never regret such an act.

Harry G. Adams, the hustling representative of the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Co., would like to talk business with you. He can give you the best policy.

Charles E. Vail is a reliable dealer in watches, diamonds, clocks and jewelry and you can always depend upon getting the best goods at his store in Park avenue.

Why do you sacrifice your health by buying milk, which is not the freshest? William Lindsay & Company always have furnished their customers with fresh milk and will be glad to do so for you.

When one considers the fact that S. Scheuer & Co., the West Front street grocers, are among the largest dealers in the State, their method of selling the best goods at such low prices is easily explained. You can always save money at this store, either in groceries or meats.

THE FORUM.

Editor, The Daily Press:

It will not be disputed that one of the chief beauties of Plainfield is the magnificent trees which adorn out streets, hence any measure that will protect them will perpetuate and enhance our attractions. With this thought in view I urge that our Common Council establish a committee on parks and street trees—that they may have entire jurisdiction over same—preserving, protecting and removal of all trees.

The recent destruction of magnificent elms on West Second street, in front of the electric light station prompts this thought. These trees were probably some 75 years old and most stately. Their destruction has made a void that cannot be filled. The light company will say this is "in the interest of public utility," but this cannot be well maintained, other methods could have been adopted that would have saved this grand feature, to adorn our city and afford shelter to the passerby under a tropical sun. It may be that our charter will have to be amended by the Legislature, but at all events let our Council act in the matter, it will meet public favor.

J. E. Martine.

Cedar Brook.

Miss Edna Jones, of New York City, is visiting E. H. Terry, on Watchung avenue.

Miss Wilhelmina Smith, of East Fifth street, was in Whitehouse, Thursday at the wedding of a niece.

Mrs. David Housel, of North Branch, is visiting her granddaughter, Mrs. H. C. Runyon, of Madison avenue.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

DIAMOND DUST.

Manager Denman has arranged to have a rule book at Crescent Oval today.

"Billy" Beck says that he is in the best of condition and ready to assist in another defeat for Westfield.

Today it will be "do or die" for Westfield. Manager Denman is getting desperate and must have a game.

Umpire Merity will officiate behind the plate today, and Umpire Henning will look after the field decisions.

The Atlantic City team defeated the All-Cubans on Thursday by a score of 7 to 1. The dark-skinned fellows made five errors.

"Hot Air" Mallen will draw his salary from the coaching lines, it having been decided that he can do better service there than playing.

Despite the rumored changes in the Westfield team, there are very few fans from that town who are willing to back their aggregation today.

Reports come from Westfield that big leaguers will cover first base and centre field for the Denmanites, today. Stronger the better and more interesting.

The Daabsters have played the Giants, Pittsburg and Chicago this year and lost only by a very narrow margin. Why should they be afraid of Westfield?

Manager LaMar, of the Cuban X Giants, has challenged the Philadelphia Giants to play a series of ten games for the colored championship of this country.

The famous All-Cubans make their second appearance on Crescent Oval a week from today. On their first appearance here they defeated the Daabsters by a score of 1 to 0.

GOLF.

No scores were returned yesterday at the Plainfield Country Club for the Gaston cup, women's weekly competition. There were several women playing on the course, but they did not post.

The golfing events on the local courses today include the weekly play for the Golf Committee cup at the Plainfield Country Club, and the weekly competition for the President's and Park Golf Club cups at the Park Golf Club. There will be the usual events at the Westfield Golf Club.

A Blaze of Beauty.

The Valley of the Lehigh is one of the most delightful places of refuge at this sweltering time of year. The name alone is enough to conjure up—if not an invigorating mountain breeze—at least a vision of grand mountain scenery. Not only is it an ideal country for a summer vacation, but it repays a hundredfold the time given to the most fleeting visit. Many points of supreme interest, in fact, are within the reach of a single day's excursion from New York. Notable among these is Mauch Chunk.

Both from historic interest, this being the place where anthracite coal was first discovered and mined in the United States, and on account of the wonders of the natural scenery, Mauch Chunk alone is one of the most remarkable localities in Eastern America. The whole trip is charming in the highest degree. First one traverses the beautiful rolling country of Western New Jersey, studded with splendid groves and picturesque old farm buildings. Beyond Easton the railroad runs along beside the Lehigh River and the old canal and the scenery becomes more varied and striking. At last Mauch Chunk is reached where it lies hidden in the heart of the hills.

The feature of the greatest interest at Mauch Chunk is the old "Switch-back Railroad." Built in early times to bring the product of the mines down to the barges, it has of late years been used solely for the recreation of visitors. It affords a thrilling ride. From the summit of a mountain commanding a view of the wide region bounded by distant mountain ranges, the car starts gradually until, gaining speed from its own momentum, it rushes along wildly, through the forests, by old mines and mining settlements, across high pasture-lands, and along the hillsides until at last the circuit of eighteen miles is completed and the car has returned safely to the foot

The New Jersey Central will run a popular excursion to Mauch Chunk on August 6, 1905. Round trip $1.50. Special train leaves Plainfield at 9:20 a. m. and there is sufficient time at Mauch Chunk for a day of rare enjoyment. 8 2 4 c

To Sell Valuable Books.

The social event of the week at Elberon will be a sale for the benefit of the Elberon Library at Mrs. Campbell Clark's, Park avenue, near Oakhurst, tomorrow afternoon, of books signed by the authors. Among the books to be sold are editions signed by President Roosevelt, former President Cleveland, the late Secretary of State John Hay, Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, the French Ambassador, Mark Twain, Mr. and Mrs. Peary and about a hundred other distinguished authors.

Miss Mabel Cardner, of Orange place, will take her vacation during the last two weeks in August.

Is it Right?

Is it right that a property owner should lose $4.20 to let a dealer make 50 cents? A dealer makes 50 cents more on fourteen gallons of ready-for-use paint, at $1.50 per gallon, than our agent does on eight gallons of L. & M. Paint and six gallons of linseed oil, which makes fourteen gallons of the best paint in the world, at $1.20 per gallon; the property owner loses just $4.20. Is it right?

It only requires 4 gallons of L. & M. and 3 gallons linseed oil to paint a moderate sized house.

ASSESSMENTS FOR MACADAMIZING.

The subscribers, the Commissioners appointed by the Court of Common Pleas of the County of Union, by order of said Court, entered on the twenty-first day of June, 1905, to estimate and assess benefits conferred by the permanent improvement of the following streets and parts of streets in the City of Plainfield, Union County, New Jersey, viz:

Woodland avenue, from the southeasterly curb line of East Seventh street to the northerly curb line of Watchung avenue;

East Seventh street, from the northeasterly curb line of Richmond street to the southwesterly curb line of Belvidere avenue;

East Third street and Midway avenue, from the northeasterly curb line of Richmond street to the southwesterly curb line of Berckman street;

Berckman street, from the southeasterly curb line of East Front street to the northwesterly curb line of South avenue;

Prospect avenue, from the northeasterly crosswalk at Park avenue to the westerly curb line of Woodland avenue;

West Seventh street, from the Middlesex County line to the present southwesterly end of the macadam;

West Fifth street, from the southwesterly curb line of Grant avenue to the northeasterly curb line of Monroe avenue;

South Second street, from the southwesterly curb line of Plainfield avenue to the present macadam at Muhlenberg place;

Albert street, from the northwesterly curb line of West Front street to the southeasterly curb line of Dunellen avenue;

Dunellen avenue, from the northeasterly curb line of Clinton avenue to the northeasterly curb line of Compton avenue;

Rock avenue, from the Middlesex County line to the present southeasterly end of the macadam;

North avenue, from the northeasterly curb line of Richmond street to the southwesterly curb line of Berckman street, except where already macadamized;

under the ordinance of said City, entitled "An Ordinance for the permanent improvement of certain streets and portions of streets of the City of Plainfield, with permanent and durable macadam pavements, and to provide the necessary funds in advance of the collection of assessments for benefits," approved July 6, 1905, which ordinance was adopted under and by virtue of the Act of the Legislature entitled, "An Act to authorize the improvement of streets and highways in cities of this State and to provide for the payment of the expense of the same," approved June 13, 1898, and the amendments and supplements thereto, and for the purpose of performing the duties and executing the powers conferred by said Acts of the Legislature, having duly qualified as required by law, do hereby pursuant to the order of said Court, give notice that on Tuesday, the eighth day of August, 1905, at eight o'clock p. m., at the Council Chamber, No. 149 North avenue, in the said City of Plainfield, said Commissioners will proceed with the discharge of their said duties and hear any person or persons in interest, who may present themselves to be heard, and at such time and place and at such other times and places to which they may adjourn for that purpose, the said Commissioners will attend and give a public hearing to those persons who may desire to be heard.

Dated, Plainfield, New Jersey, July 1, 1905.

IS A HUSBAND WORTH 600?

HEBREW FATHER THINKS SO AND QUOTES THE LAW TO BACK HIMSELF UP

Prosecutor Berdine of Middlesex county, has a big task before him. He must decide whether it is good form for a bride to pay her own wedding and if the laws of the Hebrews regarding the earnings and savings of daughters takes precedence of the laws of the Americans. He has not announced his conclusions as yet. The doings and attitude of Isaac Skirloff, who lives on the Sears place, on George's Road, beyond the Black Horse tavern, is the cause of the trouble.

Mr. Skirloff's daughter married Mr. Fader. She claims that her father took her money before she was married, amounting to $700 and put into his farm. After she was married she went to him, she claims, and told him that now that she was about to set up a household of her own, she could use that $700 to advantage.

"Didn't I get you a husband?" he is alleged to have replied to her.

She did not think that her father had so much to do with the selection of a husband, and told him so, and declared that she wanted her $700.

Her father then told her, it is alleged, that the wedding cost him $100. She replied that he could take that $100 from her $700 and that he could return her $600 to her and she would call it square.

All hands went to the office of Lawyer Warren R. Schenck a few days ago to have the thing settled. Then Miss Cohn, a friend of the family, called on Prosecutor Berdine and laid the facts before him. He sent an officer out to investigate the story, who learned that the daughter had no record of the exact amount which she had given her father. Skirloff was called to the Prosecutor's office. He acknowledged that he had the money, but maintained that he had a right to it.

"The Jews get their laws from God," he told the Prosecutor. "The Jewish law gives to the father the money of his children. God's law goes ahead of American law. I wouldn't give up a cent. Do what you like."

And there the matter rests. The father has the money, the bride has a husband and the Prosecutor has the problem.

THE YELLOWSTONE PARK, LEWIS AND CLARK EXPOSITION, AND THE ROCKY MOUNTAINS.

An Attractive Fall Tour via Pennsylvania Railroad.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company has arranged a special personally-conducted tour to visit the Pacific Coast, including the Yellowstone Park, Portland (for the Lewis and Clark Exposition), and the beautiful resorts among the Colorado Rockies. This tour will leave New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, and other cities on the Pennsylvania Railroad Saturday, September 2, by a special train of high-grade Pullman equipment. The itinerary will cover a period of three weeks, the party reaching the East on the homeward journey September 22. The special train will be used by the party over the entire route, except during the five and one-half days in Yellowstone Park, when the fine hotels now in service in the Great Preserve will be utilized. The train will be side-tracked in Portland for occupancy there, and all meals en route, except in the Yellowstone Park and in Denver, will be served in the special dining car.

Round trip tickets, covering all necessary expenses for twenty-one days, $200 from all points on the Pennsylvania Railroad except Pittsburgh, from which the rate will be $195.

DUCHESS COMING HOME.

Consuelo Vanderbilt That Was Will Visit Her Brother William.

The Duchess of Marlborough, who was Consuelo Vanderbilt, and her children, will sail for New York Sept. 9, with her brother, Harold Vanderbilt.

Upon her arrival about Sept. 15 she will go to Deepdale, the home of her brother, William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., at Great Neck, L. I. She expects to spend several weeks there and before returning will make a short stay in Newport.

Harold Vanderbilt sailed for England some weeks ago to accompany his sister to New York.

For a Day's Outing.

Among the opportunities for one day outings this season, none will be more enjoyable than the one on Thursday, August 10, when the Methodists of this city and Dunellen will make their annual trip to Asbury Park. The old ocean is just as attractive as ever and its breezes are very refreshing.

Plainfield, N. J., August 5, 1905.

A Wilkesbarre, Pa., man has eloped with his mother-in-law. There's the solution of the whole question.

To "H. B. W." our thanks are due for $1 towards the King's Daughters baby camp fund and a similar amount towards the Netherwood Fresh Air Home fund.

On the day when the small merchant advertises more than he can "afford to," and the big merchant less than he should—less than he must, even to hold his place in the race—the small merchant has "taken a trick" in the game, gained a rung on the ladder; and is strengthened for the next trial of strategy.—Ex.

Probably the most important realty development in years will be what is to be known as Rockview Heights. The big tract occupies a commanding position to the West of what is called Washington Park and is a desirable locality in every sense. As told in The Daily Press yesterday, the plans show that the improvement is to be one of some magnitude, an artificial lake fifteen hundred feet long and three hundred feet wide being a conspicuous feature. The undertaking means much to this rapidly growing community, which has shown an increase of twenty per cent. in population during the last five years and we are sanguine that it will be but a very short time before the improved tracts will be studded with handsome dwellings.

PERSONAL.

Miss May Wyckoff, of this city, is visiting Miss Ethel Daggett, of Whitehouse.

Mrs. Garret Conover, of Rocky Hill, is visiting the Misses Elliott, of Madison avenue.

Miss May Higgins, of Bound Brook, has been visiting friends here for several days.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ammerman, of the borough, have been visiting friends at Liberty Corner.

Richard Waring, who has been in Texas for several months, has returned to his home in Park avenue.

Louis M. Samuels, of Cleveland, O., is spending a few days with Philip Leichtentritt, of West Front street.

Miss May Brown, of Washington avenue, has been visiting her sister Mrs. J. T. Armstrong, of Brooklyn.

Mrs. J. J. Coard, of East Ninth street, sailed this morning for Hamburg. She is making the voyage on the Patricia in company with her daughter, Mrs. Harry F. Johnson, of Watchung avenue.

THE POLITICAL TIPSTER.

John W. Murray, Jr., is one of the men who does not hunt trouble.

Friends of Ernest Ackerman in Elizabeth are booming him for the senatorship.

Plainfield Democrats say they would like to nominate John Moody for State senator.

A mayor, three councilmen and two justices of the peace will be nominated and elected in North Plainfield this fall.

Robert Kirkland would win a place on the Republican ticket in Union this fall were it not for the fact that the shrievalty belongs to Summit.

J. Stephen Higham and John J. Cose are both industrious politically these days. Higham wants a renomination and Cose is not adverse to taking a seat in the Common Council.

It is pretty certain that Joseph Frelinghuysen will be selected by Somerset Republicans to take Samuel C. Childs' place in the senate, but then S. C. C. is not a dead one by any means and has good chance of going back.

SHALL BOROUGH PAY INJURED FIREMAN?

QUESTION IS DEBATED BY NORTH PLAINFIELD COUNCIL.

About a month ago John Mowray, one of the borough callmen, was injured by falling under the wheels of the hose cart while responding to an alarm. Since then he has been unable to work, and Councilman Lee, chairman of the fire committee, laid his case before the Council last night, with a suggestion that something be done immediately for his relief.

"I am not certain that a section of the ordinence referring to assistance to be given to members of the fire department injured in the faithful discharge of their duty covers call men but if it does, I think something should be done for this man."

"I think a man hurt in the discharge of his duty should receive some recompense," said Councilman Arnold, with characteristic force. "I move the payment of $25."

"Will the ordinance permit us?" asked Mr. Lee.

"The ordinance includes callmen," said Corporation Counsel Reed. "But I would suggest appropriating money for the payment of some bill, and not merely make a donation."

"This man has already been helped some by the borough," said the Mayor, "and we ought to go slow. It is well to discourage payments of this kind. A man might become injured through his own carelessness in the discharge of his duty."

The matter was laid over until the meeting to be held next Tuesday night, to enable the fire chairman to learn what help the callman needs.

COMPETE FOR PLACES ON SEA GIRT FARM

SECOND REGIMENT SHOOTING SCHEDULED FOR COMPANY M RANGE.

Colonel Dennis F. Collins, commanding the Second regiment, N. G. N. J., has issued an order detailing the members of the regiment who will compete for a place on the regimental rifle team, which will shoot in the matches at Sea Girt this month. The competitive shooting will take place on the range of Company M at Somerville, August 10 and 11. The detail follows:

Colonel Collins, Lieutenant Colonel Clime, Major Dungan; Captains Frank Phillips, staff; William Libby, Company L; John H. McCullough, Company A; John W. Littel, Company K; Leonard M. Davis, Company L; Corporals David S. Lloyd, Company L; Frank L. Krespach, Company K; Charles W. Silvester, Company L.

Privates William Bond, Company K; James Frazee, Company K; Emile A. Porst, Company K; George W. Mallette, Company B; John A. Zimmerman, Company L; Claude S. Hudson, Company L; Edward L. McRostie, Company L; Peter A. Van Doren, Company L; William M. Hooey, Company M.

FOR AN "OFFICIAL GAZETTE."

Such a Publication May Be Issued by the Government.

Washington, Aug. 5.—The so-called Keep Commission, appointed by the President to examine into the methods of conducting business in the several executive departments, will soon take up the question of establishing an official gazette. A publication of this sort was recommended by the President in his letter of instructions to the Keep Commission as a matter which might well be considered. The official gazette would be used for the promulgation of information relating to government affairs such as proposed contracts for public works, notices of coming civil service examination, changes in the federal service and many other matters.

A member of the commission said last night that the question of establishing an official gazette had not been taken up for formal consideration, although it had been referred to by individual members of the commission from time to time. Before the commission makes its final report to the President the question of the proposed publication will be carefully considered and a favorable recommendation will probably be made.

Big Hotel for Jersey City.

Jersey City, Aug. 5.—A site for a seven story hotel at the southeast corner of Grand and Warren streets, this city, has been bought by Heatherton Brothers, of 665 Ocean avenue, that place. The hotel is to cover 100 feet square and is to cost $200,000.

Miss Ethel VanWinkle, of Central avenue, and Miss Ethel Lorton, of Watchung avenue, are at Gladstone, Somerset county, for the remainder of August.

WOODHULL & MARTIN

LOST THEIR GOOD HUMOR.

Elizabeth City Councilmen Threw a Little Mud at Each Other.

The Elizabethtown Water Company has made an offer to the committee on municipal ownership recently appointed by the Elizabeth City Council to give the city water for hydrant use at $15 a hydrant, instead of $20, and also to give water to the city free for street sprinkling purposes, provided the city can get the trolley company to sprinkle those streets where it is now required to do so by ordinance.

The concession to the consumer is 3 per cent. discount on all bills paid in May and October

Meanwhile, there is a row in the municipal water committee. Colonel Collins criticised Chairman Bernard J. Higgins for the manner in which he was conducting the business for which the committee was appointed.

Some of Colonel Collins' strictures on Higgins were severe. Higgins declares that Collins' anger was aroused because he had stood in the way of Collins becoming Mayor of the city and thwarted his ambition in that respect.

"But for me," Higgins said in a typewritten statement given out yesterday afternoon, "he (Collins) would be enjoying greater political honors."

He also accuses the colonel of being a foe to municipal ownership, and then takes another fling at him in this manner:

"The colonel is sore. Sore to the bone. His ambition to be chief executive of this city may some day be realized (probably I delayed it), but with my retirement from the Council and politics it will be my desire and that of many others in this city that he join me."

"It is a pity that some men cannot adhere to facts, and tell the truth, at least part of the time," was the only comment that Colonel Collins would make last night.

New Brunswick Wants Armory.

New Brunswick, Aug. 5—An attempt is being made by interested people in this city to obtain an armory here. It is pointed out that the cities of Newark, Camden, Jersey City and Trenton have had fine armories erected for their use. Steps are being taken to gain the support and co-operation of Lieutenant-Colonel Alexander R. Fordyce. A special legislative act is suggested as a means to the end, in the event of all else failing.

SHOT NEIGHBOR WHOSE CHICKENS TRESPASSED

FARMER BEATEN INTO INSENSIBILITY, MAY DIE.

Because, it is alleged, his poultry strayed into a newly plowed field belonging to Charles Van Soulen, the latter today, it is said, beat into insensibility, and perhaps fatally shot, his neighbor, Joseph Richttenal, near Uniontown schoolhouse between here and Middlebush. Van Soulen was arrested by Detective Totten, of Somerville, and taken to the county jail.

His arrest was accomplished after a running fight across fields for more than three miles, in which several shots were exchanged. Van Soulen is 28 years old and Richttenal is 76. It is said that bad blood has existed between the two farmers for more than a year.

Yesterday Richttenal was away from home visiting friends in Philadelphia, and several of his chickens strayed into Van Soulen's field. The latter went to his house and got a shotgun, with which it is said, he killed over 50 of the fowls, despite the protest and appeals of Mrs. Richttenal, who came to the field and tried to drive the chickens home.

It was late last night when her husband returned and learned what had taken place during his absence. Today the poultry again strayed on Van Soulen's property, and in order to avoid further devastation of his flock, the old man went to the field to drive them home.

Van Soulen then appeared again with the shotgun and, it is said, struck the old man over the head with the butt end of it and, as he lay prostrate on the ground, it is asserted, he fired two shots into his body. He then coolly walked away.

Richttenal's wife ran screaming for help to another farm house. Neighbors responded to her calls, picked the old man up and brought him to the hospital at Somerville. His condition is said to be critical. Feeling against Van Soulen is bitter in the community in which the two men live. Richttenal is well known throughout the county and highly respected.

WAR ON CIDER JOINTS

might do some good to warn the liquor-selling places that they must not sell to habitual drunkards or steady drinkers. This would give the police something definite to watch for and a violation of the notice ought to be comparatively easy to detect."

"Yes, and if you do catch a saloon man at it," said Mr. Reed, "you will have a good and sufficient reason for a refusal of his license when he applies again to the court.

"I wonder what they put into that cider in the joints," continued Mr. Reed curiously. "It must be cheap and powerful stuff. Why they give you great big glasses of it for a nickel, and it knocks a man out as quickly as whiskey."

"They put an Italian wine called vino in it," said Mr. Arnold. 'They say two or three glasses of the mixture will put a man down and out."

"I wonder what it tastes like," observed the Mayor interestedly.

The members looked at Mr. Arnold "I don't know," he said indignantly, "I never tasted it."

SKETCH OF GARFIELD

OFFICIAL WHO IS INVESTIGATING STANDARD OIL.

Commissioner of Corporations Ever Too Serious for Jokes, Declare His Friends—Literature Is His Hobby.

Washington.—James Rudolph Garfield is an anecdoteless officeholder. This fact was recently established by the Washington newspaper correspondents, and adds another interesting item to the personality of the commissioner of corporations in the department of commerce and labor, who is investigating the Standard Oil system at present in Kansas. As soon as the Kansas oil agitation began to claim the front pages of the daily papers there was a sudden demand for information about the man who was ordered by the president and the congress to investigate the Standard Oil company. "Give us a few characteristic anecdotes about Garfield," was the order that most of the correspondents received. At first the "assignment" caused no particular sensation along Newspaper row. It would be easy to gather all the reminiscences required from almost any Ohio congressman or federal officeholder, for Garfield had been in public life a decade or more in his own state before coming to Washington, and must have figured in numerous interesting incidents. But this reasoning proved unsound.

"Garfield? Why, of course, I know all about Garfield," is the way the first Ohio congressman would begin when he would be urged to "tell something about" the man who is to probe Mr. Rockefeller's "system." "Let's see. He's the younger son of President Garfield, was a boy around the white house, went to school at Mentor, studied law, graduated, went to the Ohio senate, came here as civil service commissioner, was made commissioner of corporations when the new department of commerce and labor was established. What more do you want? Oh, yes; he plays tennis and takes long walks in the woods."

JAMES R. GARFIELD.
(Commissioner of Corporations Who Is Investigating the Oil Trust.)

"Thank you ever so much, but don't you recollect an anecdote or two about Mr. Garfield?" urged the unsatisfied newsgatherer.

"Don't believe I can. Never heard one about him. He's too serious," was the uniform reply throughout the national capital.

Those who have been associated with Mr. Garfield for years confess, after giving the subject the most careful consideration, that the commissioner of corporations is the one man of their acquaintance who has never been the victim of a practical joke, who has never perpetrated a joke on anyone else, or told stories about himself. He goes about his work here as he did in Ohio, with a cheerful face and a smiling nod to every one, but with an earnestness of purpose that cannot be mistaken. He plays tennis, rides a bicycle or tramps many miles a day with the same businesslike mien. He laughs as readily as anyone, but hasn't quite as much spare time for mirthmaking as seems to be at the disposal of the ordinary run of citizens, and especially government officials.

If Mr. Garfield has any hobby it is for burning the midnight oil. He is an omnivorous reader. Science, fiction, history, political economy—the late works from all kinds of printing presses—are devoured with marvelous rapidity, and his friends often wonder where and when he manages to steal the time necessary for the absorption of such a tremendous amount of literature as he seems to acquire.

Next to the attorney general and Senator Lodge, Mr. Garfield is probably the man most frequently consulted by the president. This is probably due to the fact that the work of the bureau of corporations is nearer and dearer to the president's heart just at present than any other great enterprise of the administration. Then, too, Mr. Garfield, from his years devoted to that branch of the government, is an expert on matters pertaining to the civil service. The president himself was a civil service commissioner once upon a time, and still takes an abiding interest in the welfare of the bureau. Add to these items the fact that Mr. Garfield is a lucid, forceful talker, well informed on current topics, plays tennis handily, and can, if the need arises, keep up with the president on a ten-mile jaunt across country, and it is not difficult to understand why he is often chosen as a companion by the head of the administration.

Talking of High Places.

"What is the highest you have ever gone?"

"In the mountains or in a millinery store?"—Houston Post.

IS BEST PAID WOMAN

MISS ANNIE AMENDT RECEIVES SALARY OF $12,000 A YEAR.

Is First Assistant to Vice President Tarbell of Equitable Society—Began Work as Ordinary Stenographer.

New York.—A few years ago a young woman who taught school in Logan, Ohio, saved $300, came to Chicago to learn stenography, took a course and got a diploma and went to work in an insurance office.

To-day this young woman commands a salary of $12,000 a year is said to make an extra $10,000 writing insurance policies on the side, and is first assistant to Gage E. Tarbell, second vice president of the Equitable Life Assurance society and leader of the fight against First Vice President James Hazen Hyde. The name of the "highest salaried woman in the United States" is Miss Anna L. Amendt. She went to New York, where she now resides, when Mr. Tarbell left his Chicago offices for that city, taking with him several of his office associates here.

Miss Amendt is described as a woman well along in the thirties, with the bright look of girlhood still in her face. She has brown hair, with just a suspicion of gray, a trim figure, an alert pose.

She may be found any day at her desk in the New York offices of the Equitable. If Miss Amendt so desires, the caller may see her. It may be added that of the hundreds that come to see Mr. Tarbell of a business day, not one in ten ever gets by Miss Amendt. She can transact his business with the average caller fully as well as Mr. Tarbell himself. It is her business to relieve her chief from all the possible detail that appertains to the business of life insurance.

From Miss Amendt the humblest caller who really has business with the Equitable will receive the same treatment as the star general agent of the Equitable. This is a part of Miss Amendt's theory of success. It is Miss Amendt's special province to attend to this agency business for Mr. Tarbell. She keeps in touch with everything appertaining to her department in the United States and Canada. The general agents in all the large cities in all that territory do their business chiefly with her, and all the smaller men, of course, are under her dominion.

Her appearance in the Equitable fight really led to her newspaper "discovery." The newspaper men began to ask questions about this busy woman. Then they began to ply her with questions.

"I started," she told one correspondent, "in Mr. Tarbell's office in Chicago as a stenographer, and when he came here, in 1893, to be second vice president, I was taken along, with several others. That's all.

"How did I first get with the Equitable? Just as any other woman might. I lived in Logan, Ohio, where I was born, and when my father lost his money I had to teach school to help along the family. Every night when I went to bed I hoped I wouldn't wake up in the morning—I hated it so. Finally I saved up $300, and I went to Chicago to learn stenography.

"I took the course and got my diploma. The Equitable needed a stenographer, and I got the place at $15 a week. The work interested me; I took hold, and finally became Mr. Tarbell's secretary and stenographer. He was general agent for the Northwestern territory then, with his headquarters in Chicago, but he was made vice president, and came to New York.

"That was twelve years ago. Our business grew so large that other stenographers and secretaries were needed, and so I became one of the assistants to Mr. Tarbell, as I am now. For the past six or seven years I haven't done any stenographic work; now I have three or four stenographers of my own, and my own secretary."

Mr. Tarbell has in charge all the agencies in the United States and Canada. Nearly all that enormous business passes through Miss Amendt's hands before it reaches her chief. It is her function to take the wear of detail off his mind. She answers a great deal of correspondence which Mr. Tarbell never sees. Other letters she answers but hands to Mr. Tarbell to read over. Very little of his vast correspondence dealing with 600,000 policy-holders and those who expect to become policy-holders reaches Mr. Tarbell first hand.

NOTICE!

"In behalf of your proprietory article called AZIENZA CREAM, as a remedy for diseases of the skin, I desire to add my appreciation of its wonderful properties as a cure in a case of Bone Tumor or Abscess of five years growth on my husband's back, which I have cured in less than five weeks time by constant application, and now it is as well as any part of his body. It was cut out once by a specialist and had again grown to a large size, was as hard as a bone and of a very dark purple color. The AZIENZA at once allayed the pain and began to soften it, and in less than eight days, by my pressure upon it, suddenly to my surprise it discharged a quantity of pus, impregnated with a hard, cheesy substance. I kept it open and cleansed it as it discharged and every day would dress it with a plaster of AZIENZA CREAM, until it was entirely healed up. I cannot speak too highly of AZIENZA CREAM and its merits. For inquiry regarding this case you may apply to Mr. and Mrs. James, Embury Ave., care Hiller, Ocean Grove, N. J. Signed, July 12, 1905: Mrs. C. W. James, Mr. C. W. James." Leading Druggists, 25c-50c

BATHING SUITS.

Even young girls are at last beginning to realize how seriously their skin is being injured every summer while they are taking their sea bath each morning. No matter how much care they may take, who always wear shade hats and chiffon veils at other times, all this precaution is of no avail if they will persist in staying in the water and lying about on the beach for an hour or two each day while the sun beats down mercilessly upon their head and bare arms. It undoubtedly is pleasanter not to cover the hair, to have the bathing gown cut out in the neck and wear elbow or short sleeves, but the prices of hopelessly freckled face and most unbecoming burned arms and neck is a large one to pay for a short while of slightly greater comfort. If one finds that black or blue mohair or taffeta of the gown is too thick and unbecoming near the face, certainly no exception can be taken to a little guimpe or yoke of white linen. The gown may be made with a square cut Dutch neck, then the white guimpe added. This yoik must also have a collar the height of the ordinary golf stock, for a bathing gown must always be becoming, or as nearly so as possible.

THE MIRROR.

A mirror large and long enough for the tallest member of the family to see himself from tip to toe is among the most useful articles of furniture in a house.

It is, in fact, more necessary than carpets, which are unnecessary, or window curtains, pictures on the walls, bric-a-brac and endless other things too numerous to mention.

A good mirror helps us to see ourselves as others sees us. It shows us that we are ripped in seams, taggy and uneaven in skirts, ill-fitting in collars and waists, neckties askew, hair unbecomingly arranged, quarreling colors, bumped shoulders—in brief, all the faults and shortcomings in dress and carriage of the figure.

A hand mirror should hang beside it, and between the two a fair estimate of one's appearance can be made.

Men and women who look the best make use of the looking-glass and value its importance. Instead of breeding vanity the mirror explodes vanity. Between buying new gowns, hats, coats, chairs or chests buy the looking-glass and see that it is a good one with a plain solid frame and likely to last forever. Then hang it in a good light, accessible to all.

MIDSUMMER FANCIES.

It is a lace summer.

Veils are gathered trimly in.

There's a lingerie parasol fad.

Fruits are seen on many a hat.

Many carry tinted handkerchiefs.

Fabric gloves are generally worn.

Panamas rival felts for sporting hats.

Plenty of white linen shoes are noted.

Silk gloves keep clean longer than cotton.

Belts and girdles were never more graceful.

The warmer the sun the more grateful the shade hat.

Lettuce leaf dishes, at 25 cents and upward, have a pleasing look.

Footing is very pretty, both for dainty little ruffles and for insertions.

Deep elbow sleeve ruffles are not as smart as a cluster of narrow ones.

Many women wear sheer white waists with white butcher's linen skirts.

A child's fan in gauze and lace for party wear costs from 50 cents to $6.50.

A ROLLING ROADWAY

NEW DEVICE NOW IN OPERATION IN CLEVELAND.

The Novel Invention Is an Endless Belt by Which People and Teams Are Carried Up Steep Grades.

Cleveland, O.—A novel and important invention—the first rolling roadway ever built—has recently been completed and placed in operation in Cleveland. By means of it teams with heavy loads are carried up a 20 per cent. grade—forward 420 feet and upward 65 feet in four minutes or less. Numerous representatives from other cities and even from Europe, interested in the various problems of transportation, have watched its operations with interest.

In Cleveland, as in many other cities, the wagon route for a large volume of heavy traffic is necessarily up several steep grades. The city proper is on an elevation and the docks and several of the principal railroad depots are at the foot of long inclines, over which several streets lead. On Factory street, the site of the first roadway, the incline for many years has been traversed by heavily laden teams, which climbed the grade at a snail's pace and with great difficulty. At the same time it has never been possible to haul nearly as heavy loads up this incline as could be hauled were the start made from the top of the hill.

Under the new regime the team draws its load to the foot of the rolling roadway and is carried to the top without any effort on the part of the horses. In addition to the saving of labor on the part of the horses and the saving of time to the owner of the vehicle it is believed that there will be a noticeable saving in blacksmiths' bills. The loads hauled in this manner are fully equal to those possible upon a level road. Horses soon become used to this invention, in fact few of them frighten even on the first trip.

The rolling roadway is a great endless belt which is operated by means of electric power and which weighs 99

THE ROLLING ROADWAY.
(Heavy Teams Are Carried Up Steep Grades by This Device.)

tons. It is the invention of Col. Isaac D. Smead of Cincinnati, who worked nearly three years on the drawings before they were even seen by others. The rolling roadway is considered a wonderful piece of engineering. About four months are required to build such a roadway.

At the top of the hill there is a small tower. It is from this point that the electric power is applied. When the wagons have been clamped to the roadway at the start, the man in the tower is notified by means of an electric signal, and the roadway begins to move at the rate of some four miles an hour. Once at the top of the hill and upon the level, the machinery stops and the clamps holding the wagons are loosened. Ten vehicles can be placed upon the roadway at one time. The daily capacity is about 600 vehicles. A toll of from 10 to 25 cents is charged, dependent upon the weight of the load. For foot passengers two cents toll is charged.

Since the completion of this roadway, the railroads in the vicinity have begun the erection of a large warehouse, and are planning to put in additional team tracks. The activities in that locality have more than doubled.

Another roadway of this kind is to be built in the same city, at Mandrake street, at a cost of $100,000. While the first one is built along the grade of the hill, this one will be suspended in the air. The street will be extended by the building of an iron bridge, and the rolling roadway will be at a right angle to this extension. There will be substantial iron supports 66 feet high and 12 feet apart under the viaduct, and the supports of the roadway will be the same distance apart.

Origin of the Postmark.

Great Britain, it is said, can, without fear of contradiction, claim the honor of having originated the postmark. The first one, which was used in London as long ago as 1860, was a very simple affair, consisting of a small circle divided into two parts. In the top portion were two letters indicating the month, while in the lower half the day of the month was shown. No endeavor was made to denote the year, and it is only by the dates of the letters on which the mark is impressed that it is possible to fix the date of its use. The earliest known was on a letter written in 1680.

Still Practices Law.

It is not generally known that Mr. Cleveland still serves as consulting counsel in law cases in which his experience in the office of president is supposed to have given him special qualifications as an adviser. His fees in such cases are more than those of Mr. Harrison as a legal author and a lecturer on constitutional law.

WAS ACCUSTOMED TO IT.

She Always Got the Limelight and Wasn't Looking for Anything Better.

The great actress was recuperating her health by living in the country and doing common work.

Among other things she had the garden fad and was planning to whitewash her picket fence.

She was going to do it with her own hands, relates the Baltimore American.

Or, fudge!

Also press notices!

She went to the dealer in lime (the photographer had stationed himself where he could get a good view of her as she bought the stuff and paid for it).

It was much better than having her jewels stolen.

And decidedly newer.

The dealer in notions weighed out the lime and the great actress held out her pail to receive it.

But the dealer insisted that he was giving her short weight and reached again for the scoop to fill up the scale pan.

However, the great actress would not let him, but dumped the snowy powder into her receptacle, saying:

"It don't matter about the weight, for I am used to getting the lime light."

Having said which, she laughed heartily and told the press agent about it.

FOLLOW LEADER TO DEATH

Sheep Deliberately Plunge Into Frozen Stream After Head of Flock.

"The most striking example of following a leader into the jaws of death I ever saw took place in Kent county," said a Kent county farmer, according to the Baltimore Herald.

"Ex-Sheriff Plummer," he continued, "had a flock of 17 sheep, which, for some unaccountable reason, determined to go from one pasture to another. To make the journey it was necessary to cross the creek on the ice. Sure enough, the old buck of the flock walked cautiously out on the weakened ice. When he was about mid-stream it gave way and he plunged in. The other sheep, instead of returning to the shore, which they could have done, deliberately, and, as the lawyers would put it, 'with malice aforethought,' walked into the hole in the ice made by their leader and were drowned. Nothing but sheep would have ever been fool enough to be guilty of such a performance. There was possibly some excuse for the foolhardy old buck, but I can think of no extenuating circumstances in the case of the others."

CHAMOIS DEFEATS EAGLES.

Warlike Birds Attempt to Destroy Mountain Creature, But Are Beaten Off.

A desperate combat between two eagles and a chamois was witnessed on a snow-covered mountain near Flushi one day lately, relates a Geneva correspondent to the London Express.

One of the young eagles attacked a young chamois, when it was charged by the sire of the herd, which was some distance away. At this point another eagle appeared, but the chamois repeatedly beat them both off by fierce thrusts of its antlers.

The struggle continued for half an hour, after which the birds took to flight. The chamois remained immovable with head erect, gazing defiantly at the soaring birds until they were lost to sight.

Some sportsmen next day found the spot where the heroic combat had taken place littered with feathers and fur, and the snow was splashed with blood.

Domestic Service in Brazil.

Some curious facts about domestic service in Brazil are brought out in a consular report from Rio Grande do Sul. Servants will not sleep in the house as a rule, but expect to leave at seven at night and not to return till seven or eight the next day. As a result, some houses have a pane of glass in one of the windows taken out, through which the baker and the milkman pass their goods on their early morning rounds, without troubling a member of the family to get up and open the door.

Poor Fellow.

"Mercy me!" exclaimed Henpeck, "I left my evening paper in the car!"

"Well," remarked his neighbor, "that's not much loss."

"No, but I paid a cent for that paper and now that I haven't got the paper to show my wife she'll think I spent the cent for liquor."—Catholic Standard and Times.

Scented Cloth.

Scented cloth for ladies' dresses is now made in Paris. The fabric retains its fragrance so long as there is a fragment of the material left; indeed, you may tear, drench, or fling aside the perfumed gown, but its particular odor will still cling to it.

It Wasn't Recovered.

"I saw your advertisement to the effect that you recover umbrellas. I'd like mine recovered."

"Yes, sir; where it is?"

"If I knew that I'd recover it myself."—Houston Post.

That's All.

DELCASSE TO REMAIN

FRENCH FOREIGN MINISTER WITHDRAWS RESIGNATION.

Will Deal with Moroccan Question—Cabinet Official Who Has Played Important Part in History of Republic.

Paris.—Yielding to the personal solicitations and representations of President Loubet and the leaders of the government, that his retirement would be a serious national peril at this time, Delcasse advised Premier Rovier that he would reconsider and withdraw his resignation as foreign minister. This was after strong assurances had been given to Delcasse that the ministry was united in sympathy with and support of his foreign policy. Delcasse said that he would retain the portfolio only in case the entire cabinet approved of his foreign policy, which he would carry out according to his view.

M. Delcasse's staying in the cabinet is expected to result in a firmer attitude toward Germany than heretofore shown The foreign minister's policy has been to give Germany adequate assurances that her interests in Morocco would be treated the same as those of the rest of the world, but after making these approaches he did not desire to yield France's entire project concerning Morocco at the dictation of Germany.

Theophile Delcasse was born in Pamiers, France, in 1852. He began work as a journalist, treating questions of foreign policy, on the Republique Francaise. He was elected in 1889 deputy from the district of Foix as the opportunist candidate. Serving on the commission of credits of the Soudan and Tonquin, he became known as the leader of the party advocating the need of colonial aggrandizement for France.

Delcasse was under secretary of state for the colonies in 1893 and minister of the colonies under Dupuy in the same year. He entered the Brisson cabinet as minister of foreign affairs in 1898 and after its downfall was chosen to remain in that office. It was due in large part to his efforts that trouble with Great Britain over Marchand's evacuation of Fashoda was averted. When the Dupuy cabinet was defeated Delcasse was asked to form a ministry, but declined the task. In June, 1899, Delcasse became foreign minister in the Waldeck-Rousseau cabinet.

THEOPHILE DELCASSE.
(Foreign Minister for France Who Will Remain in Cabinet.)

He went to St. Petersburg in August, 1899, to return the visit of Count Muravieff, the Russian minister of foreign affairs, and Emperor Nicholas conferred on him the order of Alexander Newsky. The object of his visit to the Russian capital was to strengthen the France-Russian alliance by placing Russia's colonial policy on a basis of absolute solidarity with that of France. In this he was reported to have failed. He again visited St. Petersburg in April, 1901, in order to look after the interests of French investors in regard to their investments in Russian securities. In May, 1902, Delcasse paid a third visit to St. Petersburg, this time accompanying President Loubet, the trip resulting, it is understood, in a further strengthening of the alliance between France and Russia.

Delcasse resigned with the Waldeck-Rousseau cabinet on June 3, 1902, but accepted the portfolio of foreign affairs in the Combes cabinet.

Early in May, 1903, Delcasse took a prominent part in entertaining King Edward and later he accompanied President Loubet to England.

The French foreign minister visited Rome in April, 1904, in an effort to settle the differences between France and the vatican, but he did not succeed.

Probably the greatest achievement of Delcasse was the arrangement of the Anglo-French colonial treaty, signed in London on April 8, 1904, which settled long and bitter differences regarding French rights in the waters of Newfoundland and in Egypt, and practically assured Great Britain's support of French policy in Morocco.

The French arbitration agreement with the United States, Great Britain, Italy, Spain, Holland and Sweden and Norway were also largely the work of Delcasse.

When the Combes cabinet resigned, on January 18, of the present year, Delcasse also tendered his resignation, but accepted the foreign portfolio in the present Rouvier cabinet.

Fly Catching as an Occupation.

Professional firefly catchers are plentiful in Japan. The flies are used as ornaments at social festivities. Sometimes they are kept caged, sometimes released in swarms in presence of the guests. The firefly hunter starts forth at sunset with a long bamboo pole and a bag of mosquito netting. On reaching a suitable growth of willows he makes ready his net and strikes the branches with his pole. This jars the insects to the ground, where they are easily gathered up.

Fury's Purchase Contested.

Argument on the rule to show cause why the recent receiver's sale of the furnishings and lease of the Hotel Sterling at Trenton to Charles J. Fury and Edward J. Mahoney for $6,000 should not be confirmed took place before Vice Chancellor Bergen at his chambers in Somerville yesterday. An array of sevn lawyers participated in the fight. At its conclusion the vice chancellor took all the papers in the case, including several affidavits submitted, and said he would announce a decision later.

Heavy Boiler for Water Company.

A new twelve ton boiler, which was received at the freight house a few days ago, was begun to be taken to the water works yesterday by Hand & Son. The boiler is so heavy that no wagon could hold it, so that it has to be transported on rollers with windlasses and horses. The work will probably be finished today and then the work of putting it to use will be begun.

THE FORUM.

The Auto Accident Case.

Editor, The Daily Press:

I saw in last evening's Daily Press a statement that Mr. Stanbery and his counsel, Mr. Swackhamer, went to Dunellen and sought Justice von Minden, the justice in the cause of Oscar Harris against William Stanbery, and acknowledged service of the summons. Your informant has either been misinformed or some one interested for the defendant is trying, through the papers, to create sympathy in favor of the defendant. The facts are that Mr. Stanbery and his counsel, and a photographer were at Dunellen taking photographs, and a resident of that vicinity saw them and told Officer Pierce, who had the summons for Mr. Stanbery, and he immediately started out in the direction suggested and served the summons on Mr. Stanbery. It was then that Mr. Swackhamer said, we expected that and we acknowledge service, which was after it had been served by the officer. I have no disposition to try this case in the papers; but, I find it is necessary for me to give you the facts as the defendant's grand stand methods may be believed and create sentiment in his favor and prejudice a fair trial of the issue, which is all I desire.

Respectfully,
Walter L. Hetfield, Sr.,
Attorney for Oscar Harris.

WESTFIELD GINGERS UP

Champions Win a Game at Last By the Score of 7 to 2.

WALLER A PUZZLE.

Red-top Slab Artist Gets the Kibosh on His Ancient Enemies—Shaky Support for Beck.

Those chastened Pirates remembered what they went into the series with Plainfield for, Saturday afternoon. It was to win a game. Having accomplished this little matter of business, they stole quietly from the ballyard to the Kensington Hotel and ate heavily at the expense of a grateful management. It was their first carefree meal in four weeks, and it tasted so good George Mallen had to be pried loose from the table.

The thrilling burst of memory figured 7 to 2 on the scoreboard. The difference in the score represents pretty much the difference in stick work, both as to the actual manual labor involved and the timeliness thereof.

Among the highly tickled athletes was the Hon. J. Waller. In flinging the Daab combination to a standstill Jack accomplished the object of his life. He had tried vainly for three years to connect with the object, but the nearest he could come to it until Saturday was a tie one day when somebody hung a real rabbit's foot on his flinging arm, and he had a whole lot of luck.

Red had a lot of reason for chortling out loud after the struggle. His pitching was the chief act in the big show. And merit, not rabbits' feet, figured in it.

It was a real cocky team that cavorted behind Red. Braced by the injection of some new and leapin blood, the Pirates hustled over their territory with much assurance and verve, and handled their bats with a degree of resourcefulness that put lines of care on Bill Beck's expressive brow. They tore eight expansive hits from Bill's offering, including two smashing three-baggers. And most of the sticking was done when needed. Among the other exhibits unpacked by the rejuvenated champs were two scintilating double plays.

The new blood mentioned coursed through the manly forms of Joseph Hopper Wall, late of the Tri-State League, and J. Montgomery Flynn, the old Aeolian and Elizabeth Star attache. Joe was on first and J. Montgomery did chores around short. Patience decorated second. Joe got two hits, one a three-timer, and Flynn threw off one hit and a sacrifice.

Flynn got into the game at the last minute. Ed Stallings, the second bag artist, heard of a place where he could get fifty cents more a game, and lit out for the gold mine Saturday morning. Mallen found Flynn in the ferry-house on the way over the North River. It beats all how George always finds a good hitter in the ferry-house whenever the team gets in a hole that way. George isn't sure Flynn is going to stay with the team, and hasn't any hope of hanging on to J. Wall. Joe got his middle name after he broke into the ball business because he is such an uncertain athlete on contracts. Harry McCormack blossomed out as a fixture in right. He gathered two welts and helped pull off a double play.

Harry showed up well as a ball chaser, but he displayed a front elevation that irritated the populace. Fans love modesty in an athlete, and Harry's bulging chest pained them more than any one thing the Pirates forced on their attention. This chest of Harry's gives the humble baseball student in this vicinity a hint as to why the New York Nationals made no frantic efforts to keep hold of Harry last year. That swelling front and the Hon. J. McGraw wouldn't be apt to go well together.

Having given the victors some space we will now turn our attention to the defeated but unruffled vanquished. They don't deserve much. They didn't play up to past performances. Most of them seemed dampened by the ginger uncorked in the other camp, and plugged along without feeling certain of doing enough to keep the crowd interested. Two of them, Wally Cosgrave, ex-popular idol, and "Kid" Brogan, the youthful phenom, added to Beck's troubles considerably. Each of them made two inexcuseable errors. The infant prodigy retrieved one by slinging the mishandled ball to the plate in time to shut off a runner there, but not a bright spot marked the plays of the product of the Princeton ballyard. His errors were a misjudged fly and a missed grounder, both rank unto rottenness. And while this was going on, Tuck Turner, veteran outfielder of two big leagues and a consistent hitter, sat on the bench. The next time anybody tries to vote a

DEWEY PARK PEOPLE HOLD A CONFERENCE

INCORPORATION OF VILLAGE A TOPIC OF DISCUSSION.

A meeting of residents of Dewey Park was held at the home of S. D. Drake, Saturday night, to discuss matters of interest, including the question of incorporating the Dewey Park Engine Company and to settle once and for all that the section should be known as Dewey Park. Enthusiastic addresses were made by Michael Gallagher and others.

Mr. Gallagher said that he would personally guarantee to raise funds for the purchase of a second-hand fire engine and sufficient hose by January 1. While the engine will be located at Dewey Park it will be available for fire purpose within the lines of the new borough.

School Commissioner Parker suggested that when the Legislature grants the charter for the new borough the committee recommend that the taxes shall never be assessed or levied at a greater rate than $1.50 per hundred. It is believed that the borough can be run on $1.30 per hundred assessment, based on present valuations and incomes.

The meeting adjourned to Friday night, August 11, at the same place to perfect details and enlist chartered members for the Dewey Park Fire Company.

MRS. L. F. WORK DEAD.

Appendicitis the Cause of Her End.

Mrs. Lulu F. Work, of 15 Prospect place, passed away yesterday morning, following an operation at the hospital. She was the wife of F. S. Work who is connected with the train dispatcher's office of the Jersey Central at Jersey City. Mr. and Mrs. Work removed here two years ago from Ashland, Ill., where Mr. Work was connected with the Burlington road. Mrs. Work was taken ill on July 8, and shortly after the doctor decided that she was suffering from an acute attack of appendicitis, which would necessitate an operation. She was removed to the hospital and the operation took place on August 1.

The operation revealed the fact that the patient was also suffering from a perforation of the large intestine, resulting from the disease, which developed septic poisoning, causing death. Although her case was considered serious from the start, yet her recovery was loked for, until Saturday afternoon when Mr. Work was summoned and remained with her till the end. She was perfectly conscious and gave her husband instructions regarding her funeral services and burial. They have no relations in the east. Mrs. Work had been a Methodist from childhood and as soon as they moved here she connected herself with the First M. E. church where she was an active worker. She was interested in the Epworth League, a teacher in the Sunday school, organizer and leader of the Young Woman's Circle and district secretary of the W. H. M. S.

Previous to her marriage to Mr. Work nine years ago, she taught school at Beardstown, Ill., where all her relations reside, with the exception of her mother, who is now in Nebraska.

The services will be conducted by the Rev. A. C. McCrea, assisted by Rev. Dr. W. C. Snodgrass, on Wednesday afternoon. The interment will be at Hillside cemetery.

JR. O. U. A. M. CLUB.

Auxiliary Social Organization Formed By Franklin Council Members.

From among the members of Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., a social club has been formed. It starts with fifty charter members. Two rooms have been leased in the Scheuer building, beneath the Council rooms, and these will be furnished with a pool table and various games. The object of the club is purely social, and to furnish entertainments from time to time, for the Council, as well as the club. A committee, consisting of William Hartpense, councilor; George M. Townley, Roy DeCamp, Joseph Sweeney, Harry Holmes and William Firstbrook, has been appointed to furnish the rooms and provide for amusements.

Joseph Sweeney and William Firstbrook are planning to give an entertainment at the club on Thursday night, August 17, after the Council meeting. It will consist largely of music, with literary features.

Pleasant Day's Outing.

The Methodists are always good company and that is why so many are planning to accompany the members of the Plainfield-Dunellen M. E. churches to Asbury Park, on Thursday, on their annual excursion. Arrange to go and have a pleasant and profitable day's outing.

Mrs. Frederick J. Pope, of Madison avenue, has returned from a stay at Asbury Park.

GOLFERS WERE NOT BUSY

General Playing Enough, But Few Competition Scores Made.

FIGURES TURNED IN.

E. B. Schoonmaker Still Leads In Race for Golf Committee Cup—The Standing of the Contestants.

Saturday was a very light day in local golfing circles, and there was little doing in the way of competition. At the Park Golf Club there was general play on the part of a few members, but no scores were returned for the weekly competition trophies.

While there were many players on the course, there were only five scores posted for the Golf Committee cup. Henry D. Hibbard and W. D. Boggs were tied for first honors, each returning a score of 81 and getting two and a half points apiece. There was another tie for the one remaining point, between C. B. Morgan and W. B. Shoemaker, who returned a card of 82 net.

E. B. Shoemaker still leads for the trophy, having thirteen points, and C. B. Morgan retains second position, adding a half point to his previous standing of 9 1-3. H. D. Hibbard is tied with H. C. Munger for third place with 7½ points, while W. D. Boggs secured his first points, 2½, for the trophy.

These scores were posted:

Henry D. Hibbard, 86, 5—81; W. D. Boggs, 100, 19—81; C. B. Morgan, 82, 0—82; E. B. Shoemaker, 81, plus 1—82; C. B. Andrews, 104, 13—91.

Miss Maud VanBoskerck was the only player to post her score for the Gaston cup on Thursday, and she gets three points, a total of 7½, making her tie with Miss Margaret Goddard for third place.

The standing for the golf committee cup to and including August 5 is as follows:

Rev. Mr. Newman at Hope.

Rev. J. Fred Newman, formerly of this city, but now pastor of a Presbyterian church in Trenton, occupied the pulpit at Hope chapel, last night. His subject was "Temptation and the Power of Overcoming It." As an illustration Mr. Newman pointed to the life of Christ, who was subject to the same temptations as others and he argued that all can secure this power of self-control if we only seek the help of Christ. Thus one can secure the mastery over temptation. During the service Miss Marie Newman sang "Thy Will Be Done," as an offertory solo.

Investors' Realty Election.

A. S. Herr, proprietor of the Plainfield Business College, was elected a director and officer of the Investors' Realty Company, this morning, the present officers being Samuel H. Craig, president; William Jeffery, treasurer, and A. S. Herr, secretary. Bolton Hall, of New York, a prominent capitalist, and others prominent here in real estate, are members of this company.

A Lawn Party.

The Misses Marie Manyon and Marion Porter, of New York, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur McVoy, of West Fourth street, at a lawn party given Saturday night. Games and music helped to pass a pleasant evening. Miss Lillian Duckworth presided at the piano. After the entertainment watermelon was served.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Tompkinson, of Grove street, have been entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Noe, from Montclair, who drove over in their automobile.

MRS. MOSHER IN CRITICAL CONDITION

RUN DOWN BY AUTO ON JUNE 4—REMOVED TO HER HOME.

Mrs. John P. Mosher, of West Fifth street, who has been under treatment at Muhlenberg Hospital, has been removed to her home, and her condition is considered critical. Mrs. Mosher was injured on Sunday afternoon, June 4, while walking through West Seventh street, on her way to attend the golden wedding anniversary of Rev. Dr. and Mrs. A. H. Lewis.

A short time before one of C. W Holland's automobiles broke down on West Seventh street, and the large machine was towing it home. Mrs. Mosher reached the driveway at the same time the automobiles did and she was waiting for the machines to pass. The large auto went by and just as the smaller one got to a point opposite her, it jumped from the sidewalk and striking Mrs Mosher knocked her down.

She underwent two operations and it was learned that a rib was bent, puncturing one portion of the lungs which resulted in the formation of puss. Her condition could not be bettered by remaining at the hospital and at the request of the family she has been taken home. A New York specialist, summoned in consultation agreed with the family physician as to the diagnosis, and both say that nothing more can be done for her.

HAS THE CONSTABLE LOST $500 REWARD?

NEW MARKET CONSTABLE AGGRIEVED BECAUSE HE WAS NOT TIPPED OFF.

Constable Robert Pearce, of New Market, is a disappointed man. He declares that he ought to have had that $500 reward for the capture of Charles Long, the negro murderer. He says that Van Nuis, who tipped the police off as to Long's whereabouts, is his neighbor, and that both belong to the same lodge. He is sore to think that Van Nuis did not call him instead of sending word to the police. He says that he spent several days hunting for the man, and that his neighbor, Van Nuis, knew that he was on the job.

The captors of Long, have not as yet made any formal demand for the $500 reward offered for his capture. It was expected that the local authorities, who captured the negro, and Farmer Van Nuis, who gave information concerning his whereabouts, would go to Trenton to hold a conference with the local authorities as to who is entitled to the reward.

DURAND'S DOMESTIC TROUBLES.

Former Plainfielder is Said to be a Bigamist.

L. F. Durand, formerly of this city, but now of Los Angeles, Cal., was arrested last week on the complaint of his wife, who alleged that he maltreated her. The arrest disclosed the fact that Durand is alleged to have a wife and four children in this city, and is now being held for trial on a charge of bigamy, as well.

It is reported that Mrs. Durand was walking down a street in Los Angeles, when her husband attacked her. Detectives were in the vicinity at the time and on Mrs. Durand's complaint the man was locked up.

Durand, it is said, was formerly an official in the Interstate Steel Company, of Cleveland, Ohio, and is well-known here.

RECORDER CLARK, ATTORNEY.

Scotch Plains Judge Conducts Case Against Alleged Boy Thief.

Morris Goldstein, fourteen years old, was arraigned before Justice Hand, this morning, charged with stealing hay from the field of Recorder Joseph Clark, of Scotch Plains, Jesse Ryno swore to seeing the boy take hay from the field and load it on a wagon. Justice Hand held the defendant in $100 bond for the grand jury. He was released under his own recognizance after Counsel John P. Owens, had guaranteed his appearance, if wanted. Recorder Clark conducted his own case.

Death of Miss Grace Berg.

SCHOOLS WIN 2 MEDALS

Two Gold Awards For Plainfield For World's Fair Exhibit.

A SIGNAL HONOR.

One Medal for General Exhibition and One for High School Work—Recognition of Standard.

An award of two gold medals to the schools of Plainfield for excellence of its educational exhibit at the St. Louis World's Fair gives National recognition to the high rank of Plainfield's public schools. The local exhibit was classified under two heads, elementary and secondary education.

The elementary exhibit included the work of the schools from the kindergarten to the High School; while the secondary exhibit included the High School work only. For each exhibit Plainfield was awarded a gold medal.

The value of these awards in contrasting the work of the Plainfield schools with other schools is made strikingly apparent in the fact that only ten gold medals were awarded to New Jersey schools for elementary exhibits, while but three gold medals were awarded to New Jersey high schools. These high schools are Plainfield, East Orange and Newark.

The particular features in which the Plainfield exhibits differed from the exhibits of most other schools were these: The exhibition papers represented the work of every pupil in the several classes, and were not selected to show simply the best work; the work was not corrected by the teachers, and therefore showed exactly what pupils could do from their own unaided resources; and all exhibition papers were accompanied by careful and detailed statements of the course of study, and the methods of teaching.

A medal for high rank was received by the Plainfield High School from the Columbian Exposition at Chicago.

SUNDAY AT THE HOME.

Rev. G. B. Shaw Talks on Birds to the Children.

There was the usual large audience again at the services at the Netherwood Fresh Air Home, yesterday. D. M. Torrey was in charge. Edward Stewart said a prayer.

While the visitors were waiting for Rev. George B. Shaw, the speaker of the afternoon to arrive, Mr. Torrey surprised all by showing what great knowledge the children had of the Scripture. Selections were given on the cornet, accompanied by Miss May Voorhees on the organ. A solo, "Saved by Grace,' was also well rendered by Mr. Greene, of New York.

The subject of Rev. Mr. Shaw's talk was "Birds." He told why everyone should love them. Then he said if both God and men love birds, so much the more might they love the poor children. The meeting closed with a benediction by Rev. Mr. Shaw.

NETHERWOOD HOME'S WEEK.

Next Sunday's Services to be in Charge of Rev. Mr. Smith.

Miss May Voorhees with others of Hope Chapel people will have charge of the mothers' services tomorrow evening at the Netherwood Fresh Air Home. Ensign McGee, of the local corps of the Salvation Army, will lead the meeting on Wednesday evening. George Krause, of Cranford, will have charge of the weekly prayer service on Thursday night and the C. E. society of the Dunellen Presbyterian church will lead Friday evening at the half hour prayer and praise service.

Fred Lounsbury, Jr., has charge of all the Saturday services and has arranged for the C. E. society of Trinity Reformed church to be present.

Rev. T. Moore-Smith, pastor of the Scotch Plains Baptist church will address the meeting on Sunday, and George E. Hall will conduct special music.

A Dull Boy.

All work and no play makes Jack Smith a dull boy. Jack is doing the right thing in deciding to spend all day Saturday, after five days of work this week, at Asbury Park, with the Hope chapel excursionists. The train leaves here at 8 o'clock; and returning leaves Asbury Park at 7:45 o'clock.

Council Meeting Tonight.

The August meeting of the Common Council will be held tonight, when several matters of importance will be considered, including the reception of the sewer and macadamizing commissioners and that of the Richmond street sewer.

HORSE PREFERRED RUN TO DRINK AT FOUNTAIN

BOLTED WHEN THE BIT SLIPPED OUT—GIRL THROWN OUT.

A runabout in which Miss Leila McCloughan, of Dunellen, and a woman who gave her name as Mrs. Sanford, of New Market, were seated, drew up before the fountain on West Second street, between New and Liberty streets, yesterday afternoon, shortly after 5.30 o'clock. The woman was driving.

She unchecked the horse's head, and in some way the bridle slipped off, the bit dropping from the animal's mouth. The horse jerked its head loose and bolted, leaving Mrs. Sanford, scared and amazed, on the street, and Miss McCloughan, scared and helpless, in the runabout. The runabout swung around the corner toward Front street, at Plainfield avenue, and the runabout cracked into a tree. Miss McCloughan was thrown out, and the horse went, leaving the runabout behind.

Miss McCloughan was bruised and shaken by shock, but not severely injured. She was taken into A. E. Van Campen's house, 134 Plainfield avenue, where Dr. Zeglio attended her.

The horse turned Front street, and ran itself out, at Grant avenue, Samuel Springs stopped it. It was uninjured and ready for another fool runaway as soon as opportunity offered.

VOORHEES LAING BURIED.

Rev. George B. Shaw Officiated at Obsequies.

The funeral services of the late Voorhees W. Laing were held from the home in East Front street, yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock, there being a large gathering of friends and neighbors. Rev. George B. Shaw, pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, officiated. He read appropriate Scripture selections offered prayer and made a few remarks.

There were many floral tributes, including a large pillow bearing the word "Father." The interment was in Hillside cemetery and the pallbearers were F. E. Smith, J. H. Manning, Chauncey F. Stout, J. A. Green, George R. Vanderhoef and J. E. Flannery.

Death of Mrs. Rebecca A. Voorhees.

Mrs. Rebecca A. Voorhees, colored, aged sixty-five years, mother of William Jones, porter at L. W. Randolph's drug store, died yesterday at her home, 608 East Third street, from a severe attack of dysentery. The funeral services will be held from the late home, tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, and interment will be in Hillside cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Barrows and son, Dudley H. Barrows, of West Eighth street, are at the Wamsutta Club, New Bedford, Mass.

HOT WEATHER POLITICS

Senator Kean Says There Are No Factions in Union County.

TALKS INTERESTINGLY

Col. Frelinghuysen Probable Nominee of Somerset Republicans—Childs to Run Again.

Senator John Kean is comfortable and serene these days. All the talk of the season regarding the next United States Senator, the next Governor, the next Chancellor and the like does not disturb the man who is just starting his second term of six years in the Senate.

"Outside of my interest in the party," he said yesterday, "I am not personally concerned in all the floating talk. It is the silly season in politics and the papers must hunt up something to say, even if it be to conjecture as to the exact minute when the Chancellor's term will expire and the latest minute in which Governor Stokes might possibly appoint a successor to Chancellor Magie."

Asked regarding the situation in his own county of Union. Mr. Kean remarked that conditions were all right. He confirmed what The Tribune has stated, and which Congressman Fowler has agreed with, that the party leaders in Union have no differences.

"There are no Kean-Fowler factions this year," remarked the Senator. "The men who are nominated by the Republicans for State Senator and Sheriff will be elected. No one can say who will be named until the delegates are chosen and the convention meets, but they will be satisfactory and successful.

"To me," suddenly turning the drift of the conversation, "the interesting political points in New Jersey this year are Essex and Hudson counties. Fagan and Colby are keeping things warm, whatever the outcome. It would not be surprising should the campaigns in the counties named prove quite exciting and provide news for the papers right along."

As to politics in general in the State, the Senator was decidedly noncommital. He expressed himself as lacking knowledge of certain reported inside movements. "I know nothing about it," was a favorite reply. He was aware that there was considerable talk current about the control of the next legislature and the election of the legislature of 1907. Senator Dryden had yet to be chosen for a full term, as he had so far been serving out the unexpired term of the late General Sewall. He understood there was liable to be a contest—"but all I know is what I read and some of my god friends retail as the gossip of the day."

When attention was called to the "hot air" report of a coming railroad and traction fight and to the potent factor the trolley combination was in the Essex fight, the Senator simply shrugged his shoulders and then, after a pause, slowly said:

"I have no stock in the Public Service Corporation."

Asked about how the Airs-Gaunt contest was going in Gloucester county, there was a perceptible twinkle in his keen eyes as he replied.

"Watkins and Loudenslager are men I am very fond of."

Another Union county Republican, and prominent in the party councils, in discussing the situation said:

"I want to thank The Tribune for putting the Union county situation just as it is in a recent article. There is no use saying everything is all right. The leaders are all together, but the voters must understand they cannot gratify the spirit of revenge this year. There seems to be a disposition on the part of various localities to demand this or that. Elizabeth and Plainfield are doing well, but Summit, Westfield, Rahway and other places consider they are entitled to a batch of offices.

While Kean and Fowler are at peace for the present, some of their followers will not refrain from talk. Before the campaign is over it may be necessary for the Senator and Congressman to take a few of their followers aside and request them to stop praising the one or abusing the other. It hurts both sides and, of course, it injures the party.

Colonel Joseph Frelinghuysen will probably be the Republican candidate for State Senator in Somerset county. The convention will be held in Somerville the latter part of September. No young man has grown faster in popularity or shows a keener knowledge of politics than Frelinghuysen. As the Governor's personal staff, so to speak, he has become acquainted throughout the State. That he has political ambition he frankly admits.

It is a safe prediction that he will be far up in the list of the coming men in the State. His friends say

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

While driving from the direction of Bound Brook along North avenue, a horse drawing a two-seated buggy, suddenly bolted at the approach of a motor cycle and jerked the reins from the driver's hands. The horse continued in its course until it reached Taylor's hotel where it was stopped by Arthur Vail, a bystander. The rig is supposed to have belonged to Charles Doty. No damage was done.

In one of the closest games of the season in this vicinity, the Watchungs defeated the re-made New Markets by a score of 15 to 13. Fagley, formerly of the Brooklyns, did some excellent work for the Watchungs. The batteries were, Watchung, Randolph and McManus; New Market, Emery and Nelson.

Work on the excavation of the new Siriski building was finished Saturday, and today work on the foundation was begun. The structure when finished, according to plans will be a three-story brick building with a store on the street level. Siriski's barber shop will occupy this, and he will live up-stairs.

James McMahon has taken the agency at Dunellen and New Market for the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., and already he has written up a number of Dunellenites.

The Watchungs will endeavor to continue their good beginning of Saturday against New Market, when they line up against Dunellen next Saturday.

Dunellen had no game scheduled on Saturday and many of the players witnessed the Plainfield-Westfield game in Plainfield.

Many people of Dunellen and New Market will accompany the Hopewell Sunday school to Willow Grove on Wednesday.

J. Logan, Jr., Michael Monahan, and J. Fagley will leave tomorrow for Lake Hopatcong.

Thomas Mohan and Michael Gallagher have resigned their positions at the round-house.

H. D. Piddington and brother, William have returned from a stay in Sullivan county.

Jack McMahon caught an eleven-pound turtle in a pond near New Market Saturday.

Lewis Churchill has rented B. Siriski's old store, which Arthur Vail formerly occupied.

The bridge gang on the C. R. R. of N. J. will make a shift today to Phillipsburg.

Bandmaster David Lawson has reorganized the New Market band for the summer.

James and Charles Thornton have returned from a visit to South Amboy.

Standard Oil Not Backward.

Jersey City, Aug. 7—Without asking permission from anyone, employes of the Standard Oil Company one day last week dug up a portion of the county road leading to Snake Hill and laid two lines of pipes across the same. This was reported to the Freeholders at Thursday night's meeting and a resolution was at once adopted directing the County Counsel to institute proceedings to have the same removed at once. William Dugan was, on motion of Freeholder Doody, appointed engineer in charge of the new Newark plank road bridge, subject to the concurrence of the Essex board.

Elizabeth Boy Missing.

Harry Gebert, 11 years old, son of Mary and John Gebert, of Elizabeth, has been missing from home since Monday and Saturday they notified the police. It is thought the child had gone away in search of work, as he has had such a notion for several weeks and has frequently asked the proprietors of stores at which his mother trades to take him into their employ. His mother and father are nearly frantic over their son's disappearance.

DR. CARROLL'S REPORT

Plainfielder Tells of His Trip Through South America.

VISITS MISSIONS.

Says That the Evangelical Church Has Received Catholic Concessions—Conversions Made.

Dr. Henry H. Carroll, of Westervelt avenue, first assistant corresponding secretary of the Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal church, who recently returned from a tour of the Methodist Mission stations in South America, has just issued his official report of that trip. Besides telling of his travels, Dr. Carroll thoroughly describes the various missions, embodying here and there recommendations with reference to their future conduct or to new work to be undertaken and comments fully on the widening influence exerted by English capital and English enterprise in the development of the country. Altogether the document is very interesting.

The Methodist secretary begins his work with his departure from New York for South America, in the company of Bishop and Mrs. Neely, and goes on to write of a week's stay on the isthmus of Panama ascertaining what opportunities there might be for missionary work there. After telling of the state of religion in the city of Panama, Ancon, Culebra and other centres, he continues:

"I will only add that the call to Methodism to establish work in the Isthmus for English-speaking and Spanish-speaking people seems to me unmistakable. Present conditions justify, and future probabilities demand, that we take upon ourselves a duty for which no other Protestant denomination appears to be ready. Secretary Taft, of the War Department, has assured Bishop Neely, of his readiness to allot ground for a church building at any point within the Canal zone, where unused ground is available. Governor-General Davis, having sought the strong moral influence of the Young Men's Christian Association for the American settlements, and offered inducements for the establishment of a branch of that organization, indicated his willingness to welcome in a similar way the efforts of our missionary society."

From Panama Dr. Carroll and Bishop Neely went to Callao, Peru, stopping on the way at Guayaquil, Ecuador. He mentions that the Methodists have no organized church in Ecuador, and adds that there is no doubt of their duty to begin direct and open evangelistic work there, where Methodists as Bible colporteurs have prepared the way for the organization of congregations. In this connection he tells of the appointment by the bishop of an ordained deacon named Irigoyen as pastor of Guayaquil and vicinity.

Next Dr. Carroll briefly reviews the situation in Peru and declares that if the work of Methodism in that section of South America is to pass out of the experimental stage, it is of importance for the church to secure property, it not now owning a square foot of land, although conducting three churches. Passing on to Chile he has the following to say of that republic:

"Though the letter of its constitution is not more favorable to religious liberty than that of Peru, it has been so liberally construed that evangelical churches are not only tolerated by the governing authorities, but are vigorously defended. * * * The position of Methodism in Chile is very favorable. Our four colleges—one for boys and girls in Santiago, and one for boys and one for girls in Concepcion, are widely known and have had an immeasurable influence in softening the prejudices of even the most bigoted.

"Our evangelical work is in a most encouraging condition. It is conducted in fifty-five places, stretching from Tacna on the north, close to Peru, to Punta Arenas, on the Straits of Magellan, in the south. Most of it is Spanish. We have services in English in Inququique, occasionally in Coquimbo and Antofagasta, and regularly in Concepcion. There are few Americans to support them, and Britons generally prefer the Angelican form of worship, or none. There are, however, good supporters of our schools. Bishop Neely thinks we have been negligent of our opportunities to serve these communities, and many facts support him in this judgment; but the discouragement besetting this class of work are many and persistent.

"The time has come in the development of our work in Chile, in my opinion, when a broader policy should be adopted. Our churches are composed largely of the poorer classes—men and women without social standing and means. Our laborers work chiefly among the poor and degraded, and some of our churches are located in the quarters where this class is exclusively found, as, for example, in Valparaiso. * * * Our churches have scarcely touched the middle and upper classes in Chile. The children of our converts will be of the middle class in the next generation; but has not Methodism a gospel to give to these who have position in society, due either to culture or wealth or birth? * * * My thought is not less but more work among the poor and degraded, and wealthy also.

"The journey across the Andes from Santiago," the report continues, "had little in it of peril or hardship, and the disagreeable features, if such there were, can with difficulty be recalled, they were so completely swallowed up by the continuous delights of the everchanging scenery, always beautiful, often wonderful, and at times truly majestic. Leaving Santiago on Friday morning, we were in Mendoza, on the eastern side of the Andes, Saturday evening, a little after 7 o'clock, having made the entire journey by rail, excepting about twenty-nine miles, including the climb over the pass, some 13,000 feet above the level of the sea. Tunnels are being bored through the mountains, and in a year or two the rail route will be complete, and express trains are expected to make the distance between Valparaiso, on the Pacific, and Buenos Ayres, on the Atlantic—some 900 miles or more—in forty-four hours."

Dr. Carroll describes at some length the Methodist interests in Buenos Ayres, La Plata, Mendoza, Mercedes and Montevideo of a large new church and of Bishop McCabe's financial assistance in making the enterprise a success. Continuing, he says:

"On the east coast, the laws and governing authorities are quite as favorable to the Evangelical churches as could be expected. While I was in La Plata our pastor there succeeded in obtaining a municipal ordinance providing that the chapel in the cemetery should be divided, and part of it be assigned to the use of Protestant ministers for funeral services. We have our opportunities in far larger measure than we are developing ability to improve them. It is sad to realize that some of our strength to accomplish is lost, some of our spiritual energy dissipated, and the enthusiasm of unity sacrificed in a degree by factional disturbances. Surely, if we have the Master's interests, which we have vowed to advance, in the mission field at heart, our differences with one another, no matter how great or of how long standing, should disappear, and I trust that the task to which Bishop Neely has consecrated himself will be accomplished.

"Our missionaries, native preachers, and the people on both coasts hail with joy the act of the general conference in appointing an episcopal residence in Buenos Ayres. The presence of a bishop to advise, direct and encourage the workers convinces them that the neglected contingent is at last upon the heart of the great church. They have given a warm welcome o Bishop Neely, who does not spare himself in the endeavor to get full information of the condition and needs of our work. Under his close superintendence it will be developed on new and strong lines.

"The republics in South America in which we have missions represent an aggregate population of about 18,000,000. A new progressive life and an aggressive energy characterize three of these republics—Chile on the west and Argentina and Paraguay on the east coast.

"Well-managed railroads and trams are features in several of the republics; but it is not native means or native skill that builds and manages them. In all Argentina there is only one short, unenterprising road managed by Argentinos. The heads of all the notable banks and steamship offices, the members of the great importing houses, are almost invariably foreigners. The great cattle and agricultural interests of Argentina are not in the hands of Argentinos, but of Italians and Englishmen. The manufactures of importance are managed by foreigners, and many positions of trust and responsibility in civil life are filled by citizens of other countries. The best schools are those conducted by strangers.

"These facts are of momentous significance. They speak of the incompetence of the natives. They do not initiate, they do not create, they do not command. Sharp and shrewd in their way, they seem unable to devise large and liberal policies, or worthily fill positions of trust and responsibility. The foreign clerk and manager can always command twice as much salary."

Dr. Carroll prepounds the question as to why this state of affairs exists, and proceeds to answer it by placing the blame upon the Catholic Church as it is constituted in South America, declaring that its influence is sure that few Catholics from the United States, Great Britain and northern Europe continue in its communion in South America. The republics of the southern continent, he adds, will never bring forth virile, energetic and progressive constituencies until intellectual emancipation and moral reconstruction are accomplished. That, he says, is the task of evangelical Christianity.

Comrades Saw Him Drown.

Earl Grief, aged 18, of Cleveland, O., who was employed in putting up a line at Millstone, was drowned last Thursday night in the Delaware and Raritan Canal, near Blackwell's Mills. With two companions he went in bathing, striking out for the middle of the water. He suddenly went down and his chums could not reach him. A search for the body was unsuccessful until noon Friday.

Mrs. J. W. Murray, Jr., and daughtrs, of West Fourth street, are at Cottage City, Mass.

Fred Martin, Howard Drake and Richard Randolph will spend the day at Camp Wanamase, Ocean Grove, tomorrow.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

DIAMOND DUST.

Many fans would like to have seen "Tuck" Turner in Saturday's game.

Bertwhistle's batting was a feature, and it largely helped to score a victory.

Four of the five errors divided between Brogan and Cosgrave were mighty costly.

Waller had perfect control and all kinds of twists, while his support was almost perfect.

Joe Wall, the former Tri-State League player, materially strengthened Westfield.

The All-Cubans will be here on Saturday and a victory is predicted for the Daabsters.

The Daabsters have played twenty games this season and lost three. Can Westfield show as good a record?

It was Waller's first victory over the team now representing Plainfield and of course, he felt overjoyed.

A fan who cannot afford to lose one game to Westfield is no sport and should go back to the woods.

Manager Daab will go at Westfield harder than ever in the fifth game and will win back the game of Saturday.

The local fans had no opportunity to root, but they will be loaded for the next contest at Westfield on August 19.

There are six games remaining in the series and it is safe to predict that the locals will get the majority. One off day does not mean a great deal.

In the two games McCormick has been at the bat eight times and succeeded in making one hit. Great hitting for an ex-leaguer with a reputation.

The Westfield Standard of last Friday, very wisely predicted this: "Tomorrow the thermometer of Westfield's baseball hopes will begin to rise."

The defeat cannot be attributed to Beck. He pitched good enough ball but the weakness of the home team with the stick, combined with five errors tell the story.

Westfield does not want to be carried away with any false hopes that its team is now going to win the pennant. Captain Driscoll will have something to say about that.

Because some of the local supporters of the team insisted on giving such big odds, considerable money changed hands on Saturday. It will be even money in the future.

It is time that Manager Daab and Captain Driscoll have a heart-to-heart talk with Cosgrave. The Princetonian is making too many costly errors, and has been steadily declining in his stick work.

Harry McCormick, Westfield's right-fielder, was a classmate of Dr. P. B. Cregar, and "Christy" Mathewson, and he was the guest of Dr. and Mrs. Cregar, of Grant avenue, Saturday night and Sunday. He says that Plainfield will not win another game in the series with Westfield.

NEWARK, 4; ELIZABETH, 3.

Good Exhibition of Ball Won by League Team.

In an exhibition contest the Newark Eastern League team defeated the Elizabeth Y. M. C. A. boys on the Walnut street grounds, Elizabeth, Friday afternoon by a score of 4 to 3. There was a good crowd of fans present, including many Plainfielders. Manager Daab and "Mike" Leonard, of the local team, viewed the game from the grandstand, sizing up the Elizabeth team. Later Manager Burke, of the Stars, and Fredericks, of the Y. M. C. A., met and had a friendly talk in reference to the county championship matters.

While Manager Fredericks has a good team, and his battery performs well, it is not believed that it is in Plainfield's class. Yesterday's contest was rather close, but it would undoubtedly have been otherwise had the Sailors played their usual snappy game. McLane, the former Fordham College twirler, was in the box for the Newarks, and "Paddy" Cotter was at the receiving end, doing good work. This gave "Nap" Shea the rest he needs.

The home team hit McLane rather freely and did all of their scoring in the first part of the game, starting off in the first with two runs. In the fourth inning they tallied again. When McLane put on steam he had his opponents at his mercy and he shut them out for the rest of the game. Clinton, for the local team, did well in holding the leaguers down. He allowed but four hits up to the sixth inning, but his support was poor, nine errors being charged the team.

An amusing feature of the game was the appearance of "Dick" Watt, the former Westfield umpire, and he looked and acted just as yellow as ever. Some of his decisions were so poor that he was the object of much unfavorable comment. However, taking it all in all it was a good exhibition and seemed to please the crowd.

ITALIAN FRUIT DEALER SAVED UNCLE'S CAT AND GETS INHERITANCE OF $20,000

Jersey City, Aug. 7—To obtain an inheritance of $20,000, Joseph Figari, the proprietor of a fruitstand in Palisade avenue, near Ferry street, this city, yesterday sailed for Italy. Figari's family say that when Figari was a young man he saved his uncle's pet cat from being run over. The uncle told him the kindness should not be forgotten, and the old man's will shows he kept his promise.

N. Y. INDEPENDENT TELEPHONE CO. MAY CONNECT WITH JERSEY OPPOSITION LINE

New York, Aug. 7—It was said Saturday that when Comptroller Grout returns from Europe the Atlantic Telephone Company will probably be given afranchise to operate in this city. The company was organized under the laws of the State of New York and has a present capital of $5,000,000. Its authorized capital is $25,000,000, and the directors of the company have also authorized the issuing of bonds to the amount of $15,000,000. New York is now within thirteen miles of independent long-distance connection with Kansas City. The officials of the Atlantic company expect to connect with the Interstate Telephone Company of New Jersey, a consolidation of North and South Jersey independent lines, which will give it independent long-distance connection for more than 1,500 miles.

LAD STRANGLED TO DEATH BY TELEPHONE TRANSMITTER, HAVING SWALLOWED PART OF IT

Strangled by a piece of the rubber from the mouthpiece of a telephone, near which he was playing, Harold Fowler, a ten-year-old lad, residing with his parents on the outskirts of Sewaren, lies dead. The piece of rubber was detached from mouthpiece and the little fellow accidentally swallowed it. No serious results followed for a couple of hours, but at the end of that time the youth began to gasp and died shortly after. It is believed that the substance poisoned the organs and partially strangled the thorax. The boy's death has caused a great shock among the youths in the neighborhood. He was a bright lad and well-liked.

This is the first time on record that death has been caused in this manner, but it has often resulted from shock received at the end of a telephone receiver. It has not been definitely decided whether or not the poison or the strangulation caused the lad's violent end, but hereafter the farmers who own telephones will exercise greater care and keep the children away from them.

COLORED MAN AND WHITE GIRL WEDDED; BIG CROWD SHOWS ITS DISAPPROVAL

Attracted by a wedding ceremony being performed in Justice of the Peace Blauvelt's office, at Market and Plane streets, Newark, Thursday night, in which the principals were a colored man and a white woman, a crowd of angry persons gathered on the sidewalk and shouted their disapproval of the marriage. Later, when the newly-wedded pair left the office, the crowd surged in on them, and for a time there was much excitement. Threats were made against the man, who was struck several times, and cries of "Lynch him!" "Kill him!" and similar expressions were heard. The bride and groom managed to get away in safety by boarding a trolley car.

The pair were Charles Spain, twenty-eight years old, of Ridge road, Bloomfield, and Mary Stein, twenty-one years, a domestic, employed in Glen Ridge. They came to Newark early in the night and went to Blauvelt's office. Mr Blauvelt was out and they asked Justice of the Peace Max Muller to marry them. He refused, but suggested that Justice of the Peace Bosset would do the job willingly enough. Bosset was sent for and without further formality the wedding was performed. The ceremony was plainly noticeable to persons passing on the street and the crowd was not long in gathering.

Bosset boasted this morning of what he had done.

"Certainly I married them," he said. "'I'd marry anybody that'll pay me for it."

"SKIMPY" BATHING SKIRTS MUST GO, IS THE DECREE OF ATLANTIC CITY'S MAYOR

Atlantic City, Aug. 7—A flutter of excitement thrilled the short-skirted surf maids along the beach yesterday when the official edict came forth from Mayor Stoy's office that in the future every bathing skirt must reach to or fall below the knees. There is no need to expose more personal charms than is absolutely necessary for the enjoyment of a dip in the breakers, according to the official opinion of the Mayor, who has been considering the new regulation seriously for some days. The row on the beach with a young matron whose abbreviated skirt caused a sensation is supposed to have prompted the new instructions. The percentage of short skirts—those which do not reach to the knee—is exceptional, and the new rule will affect but few bathers. The question of who is to be official measurer has not been discussed as yet. In addition the Mayor was called upon to allay the distress of mind of a fair Philadelphian, who had invested in a cream-colored bathing suit, "a beautiful work of art," according to the description in the communication which the Mayor received and answered. She feared the wrath of the Mayor, who it had been alleged, barred from the strand cream and white bathing toilets. His honor, of course, is indignant over this statement which has gone abroad, as he is favorably impressed with cream-colored bathing rigs when the skirts conform to the proper length, and the material is thicker than gauze. Dear, no; the Mayor isn't opposed to the evident desire of the summer girl to have a variety of bathing suits to wear as her fancy strikes her. Sometimes the surf maid is vexed over the regulations which eminate from the Mayor's office, but they understand that they are provoked by good reasons.

LIGHT PLANT SUIT.

Seaman Wright Seeks to Recover From New York Firm.

Seaman L. Wright, of Summit, has brought suit in the court of chancery against C. E. Hewitt & Co., of New York, to recover $2,183.20 and interest, alleged to be due the complainant for work done for the defendant in constructing a municipal plant in the borough of Park Ridge, Union county.

According to the bill of complaint Hewitt & Co. were awarded the contract and sublet the erection of the power house, building a dam and certain other work to the complainant. The total price for the sub-contract was $5,803. Wright says he has filed a lien against Hewitt & Co. for the amount due him and alleges that other claims have been filed against the defendant for work on the lighting plant. He asks the court to determine what amount is justly due him from the defendant and that court decree Hewitt & Co. to pay over the amount.

MORRISTOWN CLUB DISBANDS.

New Organization Formed to Complete Season.

The Morristown-Chatham Baseball Club, of the Lackawanna League, has disbanded, as predicted, but Morristown expects to be represented in the league for the balance of the season, and in order to do this, the Morristown Amusement Company has been organized. Eight hundred shares of stock at $5 a share has been issued and 20 shares have already been sold.

The new company will be incorporated and officers will be elected at the next meeting to be held tonight. The association besides completing the baseball season, proposes to put a football eleven on the gridiron next fall and to promote other sports.

Miss Edith Bentley, of Richmond terrace, is spending a few weeks at Fairfield, Conn.

Asa Collier, of East Sixth street, has returned after a visit with relatives in Concord, Mass.

Plainfield, N. J., August 7, 1905.

As it looks now, Col. Joseph S. Frelinghuysen will be the nominee of Somerset Republicans for State Senator. He would be a worthy opponent of the present incumbent, Samuel S. Childs, and in the event of the election of either, Somerset would have nothing to regret.

The Daily Press subscription lists for local charities are increased today by two contributions received from Elliot T. Barrows, one of Plainfield's most prominent citizens. He sends five dollars for the King's Daughters' Baby Camp fund and a like amount for the Netherwood Fresh Air Home.

Plainfield's public schools have been honored in a way that leaves no doubt as to their high standing not only in New Jersey, whose system of education is of the finest type, but throughout the country. Two gold medals, the highest award, have been won by them at the St. Louis World's Fair. One of these is for the excellence of the exhibition of work in all grades and the other for the superiority of the high school work. In the latter contest Plainfield was one of the three communities in the State to receive medals, the other two being Orange and Newark. Not only will the Board of Education and the superintendent of schools, Dr. Henry M. Maxson, and the high school principal, Ira W. Travell, find special pride in the great honor which has been bestowed but the taxpayers will appreciate the fact that the schools are recognized as being of the highest standard.

AIDING CHILDREN'S HOME.

Speakers Laud the Work at a Special Service.

The largest crowd yet seen at any of the local church services for the benefit of the Netherwood Home, was present last night at the First Baptist church. Rev. Erskine M. Rodman presided.

The first speaker of the evening was Rev. Dr. G. H. Whitney. The subject of his talk was the "Brotherhood of Man." He told of many cases where people have done work for others unknown to them and that is what he called true brotherhood. Again, he said, only the other day, on the Jersey Central railroad, at Newark Bay, the engineer saw the open switch before him. He could have jumped and saved his life, but he knew that he had a duty to perform. If he stuck to his post others could be saved. He said that this is the age of brotherhood. If you help the children, you will be keeping pace with the times and do an act of brotherhood, he declared. He also spoke in part of the honor which has come to Miss Frances S. Willard, through the people of Illinois, for her work and service to others. In the same way Miss Curry is doing a good work.

The children's part of the programme was next given. Miss Curry spoke a few words and the main topic of her talk was the religious work which the camp is trying to do.

The last speaker was Rev. Mr. Rodman. He told of the work going on in the camp and solicited aid. He said that money was coming in encouragingly, but so much is needed that too much cannot be had.

A large sized collection was taken up. Dean Rodman arranged, after the meeting, with some of those present to give a benefit lawn party, in the near future.

George Firstbrook, of the Courier-News, has returned from his vacation spent at Lake Hopatcong.

Mrs. John Swan, of Conshohocken, Pa., has been visiting her father, E. B. Clark, of Crescent avenue.

Chief T. O. Doane will attend the convention of fire chiefs to be held in Duluath, Minn., August 16-19.

Mr. and Mrs. Owen Smith, formerly of this city, but now of New York, spent Sunday in town with relatives.

City Clerk J. T. MacMurray spent part of Saturday and Sunday at Ocean Grove, returning home last night.

dress-suit case to a local player, and present it to him on the field, shoot him on the spot. Maybe the connection can't be proved, but right after the idol got that carnival suit case his ways and his style of playing changed. Wonder how many votes Wally would get if a contest was started now?

The Commuters made a runaway start, and they looked real good for one inning. The Pirates went out one-two-three, and Cosgrave, with one out, singled to center. Mallen let the ball get away from him, and Wally reached second. Brogan was an easy out, Waller to Wall, but Cosgrave scored on Connolly's red-hot stab to Red. Dan went to third on Patience's overthrow to first, but Pete Cregan hit an easy one to short. After that not a Commuter got near third until the eighth.

Westfield scored twice in the next inning on Kiernan's error, Patience's stab to second, followed by Brogan's bum chuck to first, and Tommy Barry's hit to left. In the next two more rippled in on Bertwhistle's screaming three-sacker to center, Flynn's single to left, McCormack's walk and Wall's triple. Again in the fifth, on Cosgrave's misjudgment of Bertwhistle's long drive, Flynn's sacrifice, and Wall's hit to right. The last two came in the seventh on Mallen's hit to right, Bert's sacrifice, McCormack's hit and Cosgrave's error, the latter letting Harry go all the way home.

In the eighth, with one out, the Commuters pulled in their second tally, on Jack O'Neill's crack to center, his steal to second, and Kiernan's single to the middle garden.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD

To commemorate the 158th anniversary of the church, special services were held yesterday, in the Baptist church. In the morning Rev. T. Moore-Smith, preached an anniversary sermon, reviewing the work of the church in the past and of its hopes and outlook for the future. At the close of the sermon the monthly Communion was held. In the evening the service was musical. No regular sermon being preached, the choir, under the direction of J. D. Gilmour, rendered special music and a short address was made by the pastor. The church which ranks among the oldest Baptist churches in the State was organized August 5, 1747, with 13 members, who withdrew their card from the Piscataway church at New Market, at that time the only Baptist church in this section of the State. Among the charter members was numbered some of the oldest and most influential families here, they being William Darby, Recompense Santbery, Isaac Manning, John Dennis, John Sutton, John Stanbery, Henry Crosby, John Lambert, Mary Brodwell, Mary Green, Catherine Manning, Sarah De Camp and Elizabeth Sutton. Not until February 13, 1748, was the first regular pastor ordained, he being Rev. Benjamin Miller. He served the church until his death November 14, 1781, a pastorate of 34 years. The present pastor is Rev. T. Moore-Smith who succeeded the Rev. G. M. Shott, in November of last year. Mr. Smith is a graduate of Glasgow University, and for several years was assistant pastor to Rev. Dr. John Robinson, of the First Baptist church of Glasgow. Mr. Smith's pastorate during the few months he has been guiding the destiny of the church has been most successful.

Thirteen may be an unlucky number for some people, but not so for a Jewish peddler who was in town several days ago. While peddling along Park avenue, the man lost a roll of bills. $13 of good American coin was in the roll. About an hour later he discovered his loss and hopelessly retracing his steps over the route travelled, he was more than surprised to find the money lying on the Park avenue sidewalk just where he had dropped it. The man came to the conclusion that he had either struck an honest town or a superstitious one he did not know which.

The 'Plains ball team lost to Berkeley Heights, Saturday afternoon in the game played on the local diamond. The score being 6 to 1. Jersey City, Aug. 7—Hudson county has $208,000 on hand that she has no particular use for and that her officials do not know what to do with. If the law would permit, the freeholders might apply this surplus to next year's tax levy and it would almost cover the mandatory increases in the same caused by the recent legislative enactments, etc., and which total $237,044.32 of the $307,444.31 by which the budget for the fiscal year 1905-'06 will exceed that of the current year.

But that cannot be done and some other way must be found to dispose of the surplus which has been created through the careful management of the county's sinking funds, and the judicious investment of moneys paid into them.

County Collector Stephen M. Egan has the money on hand and it represents a surplus that remains after all the bonds, for the redemption of which two funds were created, have been paid. The accumulation in excess of the amount needed for the maturing bonds is the profit from the investments made on the other bonds, purchased with the money placed in the two funds from time to time, until today finds all the obligations met that the funds were created for and a handsome balance left.

Of the amount named, $200,000 represents the profits of what is known as Sinking Fund No. 1, which was started to meet the tax arrearage bonds to cover the arrearages in county taxes due by the different municipalities. They were twenty-year securities, and on May 19, 1901, bonds to the amount of $318,000 fell due and were met out of this fund.

A second issue of $250,000 was paid on January 1 of the current year, and now that the fund is to be done away with because there are no further liabilities to be met out of it, the county finds itself with this surplus on hand. The $8,000 profit came from Fund No. 11, which has also met all the securities issued to pay the cost of the Boulevard loop sidewalks, and which amounted to $51,500. Of this amount $48,000 was paid on July 1, 1903, and $3,500 on July 1 last.

THE FORUM.

A communication regarding the Stanbery-Harrison auto accident published Saturday through a typographical error, was signed Walter Hetfield, Sr., whereas it should have been Walter Hetfield, Jr.—Ed.

Didn't Harbor Murderer.

Editor, The Daily Press:

The statement in your Saturday's issue that "The Chief is said to have told me, that if I harbored the murderer again, I would be liable to prosecution, and that this is believed to have had something to do with my willingness to betray Long," is not only malicious, but false in every respect, no such threat having been made by the Chief or any one else, on the contrary, within one hour of the time it came to my knowledge that Long was on my premises, I communicated the fact to the Trenton authorities asking them to come on and take him away. You will in justice to me, give this communication the same prominence as the false statement referred to.

PEACE CONFERENCE DELAY.

Dense Fog Makes Change in Plans.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 7—A dense fog compelled the Dolphin, with Baron Komura and Mr. Takahira, the Japanese envoys, and their suite on board; the Mayflower and the cruiser Galveston, convoying them, to anchor for the night Saturday, off Brenton Reef Lighthouse, outside the port.

So the opening proceedings of the peace conference must be postponed for a day, for the squadron cannot reach Portsmouth today.

JOURNALISTIC OPINION

Such a Nice Town.

There are 3,129 more women folks than men folks among out midst. Perhaps that explains why Newark is such a nice town.—Newark News.

In the Saddle

Former Governor Foster M. Voorhes is attending to business once more, on crutches. He was thrown from his horse several weeks ago and severely injured. He says that he has lost none of his ardor for horseback riding through the accident and that he hopes to be able to again sit astride the animal that threw him before the leaves begin to turn. The governorship of New Jersey is the stepping stone to horseback exercise. When Mr. Voorhees came to the office of the executive he knew nothing about the pleasures of the saddle and began to ride only when he decided to review the troops at Sea Girt on horseback. Governor Murphy took up horseback riding for the same purpose, and that was why Governor Stokes took riding lessons. It is said now that these three distinguished gentlemen have become firm believers in the benefits of this exercise and will continue to enjoy it so long as they are able to get their foot in the stirrup.—Trenton State Gazette.

The Bowen-Loomis Case.

In the interest of fair play this newspaper wants its readers to understand the chief points in the case of Bowen, the United States Minister to Venezuela, and Loomis, whom Bowen properly and courageously accused of disgraceful conduct in office. Here are a few facts that will not be contradicted by anybody: Bowen was our Minister to Venezuela, following Loomis, who is evidently strong in the affections of the President and possessed of great influence over him. Bowen is an excellent type of man, strong in character and determination. He looked upon himself in Venezuela as the representative of the people of the United States and the honor of the United States. He refused to toady to Mr. Taft, Mr. Loomis, to any of Mr. Roosevelt's personal friendships or preferences. And because he refused to be a toady he has been dismissed from public service, under conditions disgraceful to those responsible for his dismissal. Mr. Bowen discovered that his predecessor had actually been everything in Venezuela, except the representative of the United States. He was the representative of the Asphalt Trust. And Bowen called the attention of the State Department to the fact that the Government of Venezuela possessed the original of a check for ten thousand dollars paid by the Asphalt Trust to Loomis. Bowen revealed the fact—and Loomis didn't even attempt to deny it—that when Loomis was our Minister in Venezuela he was engaged in all kinds of private schemes. One of them, if it had gone through, would have netted him more than a million dollars, according to Loomis' own confession. Loomis could offer no explanation of this interesting revelation, except that if he had succeeded in getting the money he was going to resign his office. When Mr. Bowen discovered that the conduct of his predecessor had disgraced the United States he denounced Loomis, as an honorable man must have done. And when he found that Loomis, acting as the Secretary of State, was using the influence of the country to coerce little Venezuela in favor of the Asphalt Trust, Bowen continued his protestations. An effort was made to get rid of Bowen by offering him the appointment of Minister to Chili, which would have been a stepping stone in his diplomatic career, leading to an Ambassadorship. But Bowen refused to accept promotion as the price of silence.

Efforts, mysteriously powerful, were made to hush up the scandal and prevent the exposure of Loomis, Bowen insisted on doing his duty, and the facts came out. Bowen was sent for. The President refused to listen to him for more than five minutes, and stormed at him violently for forty minutes—talking to him about as he had talked to General Miles, because Miles had criticised the extraordinary promotion of that other favorite, Dr. Wood. Throughout the whole affair the late John Hay was on Bowen's side. He felt keenly the disgrace that was put upon the State Department when a guilty man like Loomis was actually upheld in his wrongdoing and an honest public servant like Bowen dismissed from the service because he refused to lie or to protect an unworthy favorite by his silence. The matter was referred to Taft, who knew perfectly well what was expected of him, and who did it. He stultified himself thoroughly by his action, and he gave the people an opportunity to measure the dimensions of his moral courage, which are certainly less than one-tenth of one per cent. of the dimensions of his stomach. His part of the disgraceful deal ought to settle any question as to his nomination for the Presidency. But even the large and obedient Taft hadn't the courage to give Loomis a complete coat of whitewash. He didn't try to do for Loomis what his superior, Mr. Roosevelt, subsequently did for Paul Morton. Bowen was dismissed, but Loomis was severely censured for his conduct. What do fair-minded men think of this way of managing the affairs of a big nation? The fact that Loomis was censured severely proves, of course, that he had been guilty of misconduct. Neither the President or Taft can deny, therefore, that Bowen was dismissed because he dared to tell the truth about a Presidential favorite. Following upon this censure of Loomis and upon Bowen's dismissal Mr. Loomis was sent to Europe on a special mission of honor and importance. Probably the man that had discharged an honest man like Bowen to oblige him did not quite have the stomach to keep Loomis temporarily in charge of the State Department after it had actually been shown that he had had secret dealings with the Asphalt Trust and had disgraced the country in the eyes of all other nations. It is probable also that Mr. Hay, knowing perfectly well Loomis' unworthy character and the injustice that had been done to Bowen, refused to have Loomis as his assistant upon his return to the State Department. There are friends of Mr. Hay who believe that the worry over this Loomis incident and his inability to do justice to Bowen, whom he respected, aggravated considerably his disease, which terminated fatally. Be that as it may, it is certain that Bowen was discharged from the service of the United States because he told the truth, because he did his duty and exposed the conduct of an unfit official. And it is certain that Loomis was kept in the employ of the Government, sent abroad on an honorable mission by the President after he had been convicted of and reprimanded for conduct which would have caused his dismissal from the employ by any private firm.—New York Journal.

NOTICE!
"In behalf of your proprietory article called AZIENZA CREAM, as a remedy for diseases of the skin, I desire to add my appreciation of its wonderful properties as a cure in a case of Bone Tumor or Abscess of five years growth on my husband's back, which I have cured in less than five weeks time by constant application, and now it is as well as any part of his body. It was cut out once by a specialist and had again grown to a large size, was as hard as a bone and of a very dark purple color. The AZIENZA at once allayed the pain and began to soften it, and in less than eight days, by my pressure upon it, suddenly to my surprise it discharged a quantity of pus, impregnated with a hard, cheesy substance. I kept it open and cleansed it as it discharged and every day would dress it with a plaster of AZIENZA CREAM, until it was entirely healed up. I cannot speak too highly of AZIENZA CREAM and its merits. For inquiry regarding this case you may apply to Mr. and Mrs. James, Embury Ave., care Hiller, Ocean Grove, N. J. Signed, July 12, 1905: Mrs. C. W. James, Mr. C. W. James." Leading Druggists, 25c-50c

PA. ROADS CONDEMNED.

Worst Roads of Any State in the Union, Says Edison.

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 7—Stopping in this city on his way to the South with an automobiling party, Thomas A. Edison, the great inventor of Menlo Park, N. J., made some observations on the State of Pennsylvania. He said:

"The Pennsylvania farmer is the limit in everything that goes for excellence so far as his farms, home, barns and other outbuildings are concerned. There is nothing in all the world that I have seen to excel Pennsylvania farms.

"But you have the worst roads of any State in the Union, and you have less reason for bad roads than any other State. You have the money and the materials; but you need the brains to make good roads.

"Yes, you want to mix brains with your money and material when you come to make roads, and then you will make them right. Here you make flat roads in line from side to side. What follows? The first rain that comes along cuts gullies, overflows the roads and leaves them full of standing pools of water.

"It is too bad. I can see you have the money, for it is apparent that money is continually being spent on your roads; but that same money applied intelligently in road-building would give you roads equal to any in the country.

"The main thing in road-building is to have a surface crown in the centre of the road. Let there be a curve from side to side—a slight ridge—then when a heavy rains falls the water goes off on either side, and the road is not cut up and is dry and clean—no pools.

"In New Jersey, in some places when macadam is not used, they make the roads of sand alone, adopting the crown sand roads, and as a consequence even the sand roads are hard and dry after a rain. It takes a good engineer to make a sand road of that character, but it takes brains to do anything well.

"I am an apostle of good roads, and I deplore the condition in Pennsylvania. I came over but one stretch of road in this State that was very firm. It was over near Allentown. The supervisor of that stretch had gone into Jersey to get pointers, and he modeled his road after those he had seen in that State. Now he has the best piece of road I have seen in Pennsylvania. He simply mixed brains with his material and made a road with a crown.

"In France," continued Mr. Edison, "I saw the finest roads I ever traveled over. They were all high-crowned. You may have noticed that the wheels of the French automobiles brought to this country all have a slight slant to the inward. That is to enable the wheels to get a firm and level hold on either side of the crown of the road. They know how to build roads in France, and we are gradually learning in this country."

Mr. Edison was told that a highway department had recently taken charge of road-building in this State.

"Good," he said. "I am glad to hear that Pennsylvania is proceeding in the right way. She is going to mix brains with her money and road material, and in no other way can she get good roads."

IN THE BISHOP'S CARRIAGE

By MIRIAM MICHELSON

(Copyright, 1904, by The Bobbs-Merrill Company).

CHAPTER I.

WHEN the thing was at its hottest, I bolted. Tom, like the darling he is— (Yes, you are, old fellow, you're as precious to me as—as you are to the police—if they could only get their hands on you)—well, Tom drew off the crowd, having passed the old gentleman's watch to me, and I made for the women's rooms.

The station was crowded, as it always is in the afternoon, and in a minute I was strolling into the big, square room, saying slowly to myself to keep me steady:

"Nancy, you're a college girl—just in from Bryn Mawr to meet your papa. Just see if your hat's on straight."

I did, going up to the big glass and looking beyond my excited face to the room behind me. There sat the woman who can never nurse her baby except where everybody can see her, in a railroad station. There was the woman who's always hungry, nibbling chocolates out of a box; and the woman fallen asleep, with her hat on the side, and hairpins dropping out of her hair; and the woman who's beside herself with fear that she'll miss her train; and the woman who is taking notes about the other women's rigs. And—

And I didn't like the look of that man with the cap who opened the swinging door a bit and peeped in. The women's waiting room is no place for a man—nor for a girl who's got somebody else's watch inside her waist. Luckily, my back was toward him, but just as the door swung back he might have caught the reflection of my face in a mirror hanging opposite to the big one.

I retreated, going to an inner room where the ladies were having the maid brush their gowns, soiled from suburban travel and the dirty station.

The deuce is in it the way women stare. I took off my hat and jacket for a reason to stay there and hung them up as leisurely as I could.

"Nance," I said under my breath, to the alert-eyed, pug-nosed girl in the mirror, who gave a quick glance about the room as I bent to wash my hands, "women stare 'cause they're women. There's no meaning in their look. If they were men, now, you might twitter."

I smoothed my hair and reached out my hand to get my hat and jacket when—when—

Oh, it was long; long enough to cover you from your chin to heels! It was a dark, warm red, and it had a high collar of chinchilla that was fairly scrumptious. And just above it the hat hung, a red-cloth toque caught up on one side with some of the same fur.

The black maid misunderstood my involuntary gesture. I had all my best duds on, and when a lot of women stare it makes the woman they stare at peacock naturally, and—and—well, ask Tom what he thinks of my style when I'm on parade. At any rate, it was the maid's fault. She took down the coat and hat and held them for me as though they were mine. What could I do, 'cept just slip into the silk-lined beauty and set the toque on my head? The fool girl that owned them was having another maid mend a tear in her skirt, over in the corner; the little place was crowded. Anyway, I had both the coat and hat on and was out into the big anteroom in a jiffy.

What nearly wrecked me was the cut of that coat. It positively made me shiver with pleasure when I passed and saw myself in that long mirror. My, but I was great! The hang of that coat, the long, incurving sweep in the back, and the high fur collar up to one's nose—even if it is a turned-up nose—oh!

I stayed and looked for a second too long, for just as I was pulling the flaring hat a bit over my face, the doors swung, an old lady came in, and there behind her was that same curious man's face with the cap above it.

Trapped? Me? Not much! I didn't wait a minute, but threw the doors open with a gesture that might have belonged to the queen of Spain. I almost ran into his arms. He gave an exclamation. I looked him straight in the eyes, as I hooked the collar close to my throat and swept past him.

He weakened. That coat was too jolly much for him. It was for me, too. As I ran down the stairs, its influence so worked on me that I didn't know just which Vanderbilt I was.

I got out on the sidewalk all right, and was just about to take a car when the turnstile swung round, and there was that same man with the cap. His face was a funny mixture of doubt and determination. But it means the Correction for me.

"Nance Olden, it's over," I said to myself.

But it wasn't. For it was then that I caught sight of the carriage. It was a fat, low, comfortable, elegant, sober carriage, wide and well kept, with rubber-tired wheels. And the two heavy horses were fat and elegant and sober, too, and wide and well kept. I didn't know it was the bishop's then—I didn't care whose it was. It was empty, and it was mine. I'd rather go to the Correction—being too young to get to the place you're bound for, Tom Dorgan—in it than in the patrol wagon. At any rate, it was all the chance I had.

I slipped in, closing the door sharply behind me. The man on the box—he was wide and well kept, too—was tired waiting, I suppose, for he continued to doze gently, his high coachman's collar up over his ears. I cursed that collar, which had prevented his hearing the door close, for then he might have driven off.

But it was great inside; soft and warm, the cushions of dark plum, the seat wide and roomy, a church paper, some notes for the bishop's next sermon and a copy of Quo Vadis. I just snuggled down, trust me. I leaned far back and lay low. When I did peek out the window, I saw the man with the brass buttons and the cap turning to go inside again.

Victory! He had lost the scent. Who would look for Nancy Olden in the bishop's carriage?

Now, you know how early I got up yesterday to catch the train so's Tom and I could come in with the people and be naturally mingling with them? And you remember the dance the night before? I hadn't had more than three hours' sleep, and the snug warmth of that coach was just nuts to me, after the freezing ride into town. I didn't dare get out for fear of some other man in a cap and buttons somewhere on the lookout. I knew they couldn't be on to my hiding place or they'd have nabbed me before this. After a bit I didn't want to get out, I was so warm and comfortable—and elegant. Oh, Tom, you should have seen your Nance in that coat and in the bishop's carriage!

First thing I knew, I was dreaming you and I were being married, and you had brass buttons all over you, and I had the cloak all right, but it was a wedding dress, and the chinchilla was a wormy sort of orange blossoms, and—and I waked when the handle of the door turned and the bishop got in.

Asleep? That's what! I'd actually been asleep.

And what did I do now?

That's easy—fell asleep again. There wasn't anything else to do. Not really asleep this time, you know; just—just asleep enough to be wide awake to any chance there was in it.

The horses had started, and the carriage was half-way across the street before the bishop noticed me.

He was a little bishop, not big and fat and well-kept like the rig, but short and lean, with a little white beard and the softest eye—and the softest heart—and the softest head. Just listen:

"Lord bless me!" he exclaimed, hurriedly putting on his spectacles, and looking about bewildered.

I was slumbering sweetly in the corner, but I could see between my lashes that he thought he'd jumped into somebody else's carriage.

The sight of his book and papers comforted him, though, and before he could make a resolution, I let the jolting of the carriage, as it crossed the car track, throw me gently against him.

"Daddy," I murmured, sleepily, letting my head rest on his little, prim shoulder.

That comforted him, too. Hush your laughing, Tom Dorgan; I mean calling him "daddy" seemed to kind of take the fuss off the situation.

"My child," he began, very gently.

"Oh, daddy," I exclaimed, snuggling down close to him, "you kept me waiting so long I went to sleep. I thought you'd never come."

He put his arm about my shoulders in a fatherly way. You know, I found out later the bishop never had had a daughter. I guess he thought he had one now. Such a simple, dear old soul! Just the same, Tom Dorgan, if he had been my father, I'd never be doing stunts with gipsy men's watches for you; nor if I'd had any father. Now don't get mad, think of the bishop with his gentle, thin old arm about my shoulders, holding me for just a second as though I was his daughter! My, think of it! And me, Nance Olden, with that fat man's watch in my waist and some girl's beautiful long coat and hat on, all covered with chinchilla!

"There's some mistake, my little girl," he said, shaking me gently to waken me up, for I was going to sleep again, he feared.

"Oh, I knew you were kept at the office," I interrupted quickly. I preferred to be farther from the station with that girl's red coat before I got out. "We've missed our train, anyway, haven't we? After this, daddy dear, let's not take this route. If we'd go straight through on the one road we wouldn't have this drive across town every time. I was wondering, before I fell asleep, what in the world I'd do in this big city if you didn't come."

He forgot to withdraw his arm, so overjoyed was he by my predicament.

"What would you do, my child, if you had—had missed your—your father?"

Wasn't it clumsy of him? He wanted to break it to me gently, and this was the best he could do.

"What would I do?" I gasped indignantly. "Why, daddy, imagine me alone, and—and without money! Why—why, how can you—"

"There! there!" he said, patting me soothingly on the shoulder.

That baby of a bishop. The very thought of Nancy Olden out alone in the streets was too much for him.

He put his free hand into his pocket and had just taken out a bill and was trying to plan a way to offer it to me and reveal the fact to poor, modest little Nance Olden that he was not her own daddy, when an awful thing happened.

We had got up street as far as the opera house, when we were caught in the jam of carriages in front; the last afternoon opera of the season was just over. I was so busy thinking what would be my next move that I didn't notice much outside, and I didn't want to move, Tom, not a bit. Playing the bishop's daughter in a trailing coat of red, trimmed with chinchilla, is just your Nancy's graft. But the dear little bishop gave a jump that almost knocked the roof off the carriage, pulled his arm from behind me and dropped the $10 bill he held as though it burned him. It fell in my lap. I jammed it into my coat pocket. Where is it now? Just you wait, Tom Dorgan, and you'll find out.

I followed the bishop's eyes. His face was scarlet now. Right next to our carriage—mine and the bishop's—there was another; not quite so fat and heavy and big, but smart, I tell you, with the silver harness jangling and the horses arching their backs under their blue-cloth jackets monogrammed in leather. All the same, I couldn't see anything to cause a loving father to let go his onliest daughter in such a hurry, till the old lady inside bent forward again and gave us another look.

Her face told it then. It was a big, smooth face, with accordion-plaited chins. Her hair was white and her nose was curved, and the pearls in her big ears brought out every ugly spot on her face. Her lips were thin, and her neck, hung with diamonds, looked like a bed with bolsters and pillows piled high, and her eyes—oh, Tom, her eyes! They were little and very gray, and they bored their way straight through the windows—hers and ours—and hit the bishop plumb in the face.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

I. N. Wyckoff, the West Front street painter and paper-hanger, would like to estimate on your work.

The famous Studebaker wagons can be had in town, also all parts of them at W. J. Conroy's, on Somerset street.

Sufferers with sore feet find great comfort in the use of Thorp's foot relief. Always have a bottle in the house.

If you are looking for a caterer, there are plenty around, but if you want a good one see Demoill, on West Front street.

Oh! for some fresh Belle Meade sweets. You'd like them too. See Hodge, the druggist, for them if you want something fine.

This is the time of the year to order fresh, clean coal to be put in your bins for winter use. John Johnson will do it for you.

William Hand & Sons, of East Second street, contract to do all kinds of trucking and will move furniture to any part of the country. Their storage warehouse is one of the best.

Delicious, tender and juicy beef, fresh killed fowl, together with an effort to please every customer, is virtue enough to attract anyone. Fred Endress always does such for everyone and will do so for you.

A. M. Griffen, the East Front street hardware dealer, offers many bargains in household furnishings these days, also a first-class line of hardware and builders' materials. Plumbing, tinning and heating work of all kinds contracted for.

When you buy a pair of shoes you look for them to wear. VanArsdale, the East Front street shoe dealer, has always some pairs of oxfords left over at this season of the year and an opportunity is given everyone to pick up a few pairs of summer shoes at small cost. See his ad.

The wise shopper will go to Woodhull & Martin's store when he wants first-class household furnishings, dress goods, white goods, carpets, lace curtains and men's furnishings, simply because he can get better values than elsewhere. The firm is now conducting its mid-summer sale of goods and bargains are offered every day.

CLOSE TO THE PEOPLE.

Something in the Air.—How fresh and cool and fragrant is this country air in the early morning, while still saturated with moisture and loaded with the earthy and vegetable odors which is has absorbed during the night! Whenever I feel that I am growing old I bestir myself early of a summer morning and tramp out along some wood's edge where the dew is glistening on the leaves and the brakes hang heavy and damp over black loam. Then comes up that magical, entrancing morning odor of the woods into my nostrils, and presto! I am a boy again with alder pole in hand, starting forth to fish the trout brook in yonder hollow. That delicious matutinal woods odor is the same the world over; and you may sate your soul and sense with it, if you are early enough, along any country road.—Border (Mo.) Telephone.

Benzine Invasion of a Missouri Town.—Since the arrival of the first automobile in this city, a number of our townsmen have discovered that they are driving horses that do not like the appearance of the machines. This dislike the owners are trying to overcome in all sorts of manners. One horse, a faithful old family driver, whom the owner supposed that nothing in the world could frighten, met the machine, and after squatting in the shafts without a struggle until the auto had passed, raised up, turned its head, and looked off down the street in the direction in which the machine had gone.—Cass County (Mo.) Leader.

Homecoming of Pete Hink.—Pete Hink was a caller at his mother's last Saturday and Sunday.—Vancouver (B. C.) Columbian.

Ah There, Pixlee!—A. G. Pixlee has a new buggy. Wonder who it will be.—Excelsior Springs (Mo.) Call.

Election Law Pamphlet.

The election law for 1905, forming a pamphlet or 212 pages, bound in paper, was issued from the office of the Secretary of State Friday. It will be distributed at once to the county authorities and election boards throughout the State. It contains the act to regulate elections, revision of 1898, with the amendments thereof and the various supplements; also other acts concerning elections and the constitutional provision concerning the right of suffrage. All the elections acts passed by the last Legislature are included. These are: Two acts providing for the filling of vacancies in the Legislature; the act abolishing spring elections in townships and boroughs; the act providing for the election of municipal party committees at the primary election; act providing a penalty for neglect of duty on the part of election officers; act requiring the holding of court election day and the day preceding for the revision of the registry lists; the new voting machine act and the new county election board act. The detailed provisions of these acts have already been given.

The Misses Wood, of East Sixth street, sailed for Portland, Me., Friday, where they will remain till September 1.

HOBOKEN, 4; MANHATTAN, 0.

Deegan Allows Visitors But Two Hits.

"Willie" Deegan has returned to his old-time form and yesterday at St. George Cricket Grounds, Hoboken, he whitewashed the Manhattans by a score of 4 to 0. He allowed the visitors but two scratch hits. The Jerseymen found Jones, the opposing pitcher, in the early innings, scoring one run in the third inning and three in the fourth. "Dave" Driscoll distinguished himself with the stick, hitting for a triple with two on bases in the fourth, after which he scored on an error of Courtney.

The Hobokens played an errorless game and secured seven hits off Jones. O'Neill also secured a three base hit and Brogan hit for a double.

Galbraith Pitches a Great Game of Ball.

The West Ends, of Somerville, defeated the Star A. C., of Newark, Saturday afternoon by a score of 3 to 0, in one of the most interesting contests yet witnessed at Somerville. The home team scored its three runs in the third inning. Galbraith, for the home team, pitched masterly ball, allowing but three hits and striking out thirteen batsmen. Pender was touched for six hits and struck out seven. The West Ends were strengthened by Schultz, at first, and Nelson at short, from the Pearsall A. C. The score.

ENGINEER'S BODY FOUND.

Mooney's Remains Brought Out of Newark Bay.

The engine of the Atlantic City flyer, which plunged into the Newark Bay Friday afternoon, was raised and later the body of Engineer Mooney was recovered on Saturday.

About 150 feet from the drawbridge in the direction of Bayonne there is a switch leading into an uncompleted track. The track has been only built up a distance of 300 feet from the switch, and does not yet connect with the main track further on. When the Atlantic City express came along it should have clung to its tracks and not taken the switch. The switch was set, and the engine ran into it. It proceeded for 300 feet until there were no longer any tracks. Then the engine tumbled along over bare ties for forty feet, finally toppling over the side into the water.

An investigation of the tracks demonstrated the promptness and heroism of the dead engineer. As soon as his train took the switch he turned on the emergency brakes, realizing instantly that he was rushing along an uncompleted track. The tracks are new and still rough, because trains have never gone over them. Consequently, the friction caused by the unrevolving wheels sliding over the tracks engendered such great heat that the wheels of the baggage car melted at the point of contact, and Mr. Edgar pointed out four places where parts of the tracks had also melted from the heat.

Trainmaster Edgar agreed with Vice President Besler, who laid the blame for the accident on the workmen of the Union Switch and Signal Company. This company is erecting switches on the tracks that are being built and it is asserted by the railroad people that the carelessness of the signal men permitted the switch to be set and allowed the train to take a blind lead along the unfinished tracks. Vice President Besler promises a rigid investigation so as to fix the blame definitely.

Three Fell Overboard.

Mrs. George O'Neill and two men, all of Elizabeth, fell off the excursion boat, John Sylvester, while she was making a landing at Elizabethport, last night. The boat had been off for the day with a Red Men's lodge and their friends and the boat was loaded to more than the limit. The boat was a long time warping into the dock and when the gates were opened there was a great rush to get off the boat, many passengers being trampled under feet. The three persons who fell overboard were soon rescued, and aside from a good soaking and shock, they escaped injury.

THREE NEW PLANS ARE PROPOSED FOR THE ROYAL ARCANUMITES TO CONSIDER

Philadelphia, Aug. 7—A call to the officers and members of the subordinate councils of the Royal Arcanum has been issued by Grand Regent of Pennsylvania Frank B. Wickersham, asking for suggestions to be submitted to the supreme council when it reconvenes this month.

The object of the convention is to hear and consider suggestions for a change in the rates from both the present ratables and those adopted at the Atlantic City session, and which become operative October 1. So far there are three plans submitted, as follows:—

First. Table A, at assessed ages, and not at attained ages, for all present members.

Second. The Massachusetts plan, viz., the calling of extra assessments, if necessary, in accordance with the plan of rates in force prior to July 1, 1905, of the use of the emergency fund, or both, for the purpose of meeting any deficiency that may arise and that any permanent readjustment of the rates shall be submitted to the subordinate councils for their consideration, at least six months prior to the final action by the supreme council.

Third. The Carlisle, or Millard F. Thompson plan—that of a constant rate at the assessed age, limiting the membership to the full age of 49.

That some plan other than that adopted will be chosen seems most probable, though what it will be cannot be foretold. Other plans than those mentioned above have been offered, but none so fair.

The action of the supreme council caused the greatest indignation throughout the order. Not that the members objected to a change, but to the form the change assumed.

The chief, in fact the only, objection to the rates chosen that has been urged is the advancement of members to their attained ages, thus driving out many old ones and practically forming a new order. This is urged as an injustice to the old-timers, whose work has made the order what it is, and they hope that one table of rates will be adopted which will apply to all members at their assessed ages.

PASS SALOON QUARANTINE

Common Council Passes Measure Restricting Sale of Liquor to Business Section of City.

MAYOR TO VETO IT

But Ordinance Will Be Passed Again Over His Head—The Full Text of the Bill As Adopted.

Greatly to the surprise and not a little consternation of his fellow members, Councilman William S. Tyler again introduced his measure to restrict the saloon area of the city at last night's Common Council meeting and despite vigorous opposition succeeded in getting it passed on its third reading. It went through on a vote of six to four, and will now go to Mayor Buckle for his approval. The measure provides that no liquor license can be granted to anyone who intends to carry on the business outside of the area, bounded by East and West Front street, Central avenue, West Fourth street and Watchung avenue. At the present time there are but two saloons outside the lines, Bernard Clark's Sons and Michael F. Watson's.

Mayor James F. Buckle said to a representative of the Daily Press this morning "I will not sign it." This puts it up to the Common Council to pass over his veto, which can be done with the same vote that it was passed with last night, a majority only being required. According to the city charter, Mayor Buckle must state his objections to the measure when he returns the ordinance. If he should take no action in ten days it would become a law without his signature. To repeal the ordinance it would require a two-thirds vote.

The ordinance was first introduced by Mr. Tyler last year and from the outset it was greeted with opposition. He was unable to get it passed before the licenses for the usual term were granted, but did get it through on its second reading. Since then he said little or nothing about it and his move last night came at a moment when the opposing side had not the slightest inkling of his intention.

After Mr. Tyler had moved for final adoption and it was seconded by Mr. Bullock, another motion came from Mr. Tolles to have the ordinance placed on the table until every member was present, Councilman Frank Randolph being absent. Mr. Gloak seconded this motion.

Mr. Bullock said he saw no reason why the ordinance should be continued on the table. He was willing to go on record as voting for it and thought the other members should be equally willing to go on record for or against.

President Daniel ruled Mr. Tolles' motion out of order, whereupon the member sought to amend the ordinance. This action was denied him, according to the rules.

Mr. Tyler explained that the absence of Mr. Randolph could possibly make no difference, as he expressed himself against the measure and would vote against it if present.

At the request of Mr. Tyler the ordinance was read, as he explained he might possibly have misunderstood its provisions. Afterwards he said that he thought every member should have an opportunity to vote for or against it.

Mr. Bullock again took the floor and said that is was known that Mr. Randolph would vote against the ordinance and his presence or absence could not possibly make any difference, in fact it was immaterial.

Mr. Gloak wanted the ordinance referred back to the police committee for further discussion, but Mr. Bullock said that this would not alter the situation nor change the attitude of certain members of the board.

Mr. Murphy arose to enter his protest on the grounds that the ordinance does not restrict as intended. He claimed that it gives two dealers, Michael Watson and the sons of the late Bernard Clark, the privilege of selling outside the restricted district. In reply Mr. Tyler stated that it protected two dealers outside the district and eleven inside and so long as those outside continue to hold a license the privilege will not be de-

EAST END FIRE HOUSE

Committee Authorized to Ascertain Cost of Construction.

NEED POINTED OUT.

Councilman Bullock Says There Is Urgent Need For Better Protection in Netherwood District.

The urgent need of a fire house in the East End of the city, as advocated many times by residents in that section of the city, found expression in the remarks made by Mr. Bullock, chairman of the fire committee, at the August meeting of the Common Council, last night. He stated that he had been investigating the subject and had learned that the property valuations in the East End now amounted to $2,000,000 and is constantly increasing.

He added that there is absolute necessity for additional fire protection in that part of the city and he believed it to be the duty of the Common Council to grant this protection.

As a means toward an end he moved that the fire and building committee be authorized to ascertain the cost of a lot, the construction of a fire house for the installation at least of one piece of apparatus, a combination hose and chemical wagon.

His motion prevailed and the committee will ascertain the facts at once. It has long been decided that the apparatus in the center of the city cannot properly and adequately give the fire protection needed in the eastern section of the city, especially in the Netherwood district, for it makes too long a run for the horses to this part of the town and it is impossible for the apparatus oftentimes to reach the scene of a fire quick enough to render valuable assistance.

Mr. Bullock says he will push the matter with all possible energy and he hopes to accomplish his purpose. It is within the power of the city, through a law enacted last winter at Trenton, to issue bonds for this improvement, but it is not thought that such a thing will be necessary.

POLICE BOARD GETS AFTER "PLUM DETAIL"

WILL HEREAFTER SUPERVISE REWARDS TO THE COPS.

Alleged favoritism in the distribution of night assignments to duty at weddings, receptions and similar functions, was responsible for an amendment being made to the police regulations at last night's Common Council meeting. The officers who have been accustomed to get these "plum" jobs would naturally stand in line for a gift of some sort from the head of the house and several of the cops are said to have secured quite a collection. This fact was noised around among the other bluecoats who never got a chance to do soft shoe work and their indignation found vent in the police committee being "put wise." Accordingly Chairman Tyler proposed an amendment to Rule XXVI, which places all gift receiving under the Board's supervision.

By the rule as it stands now, no member of the force will be allowed to accept a gift of any kind, either directly or indirectly, without the permission of the Police Board. When the proper permission is given an account of the fact and the nature of the gratuity is to be entered in a book kept by Chief Kiely. Failure to make an entry is to be made a breach of discipline and woe betide the copper who takes even a bag of peanuts from the corner fruit store man and fails to tell about it in writing. The book is to be open to inspection at all times and Officer No. 1 will know just what Officer No. 17 got at the wedding the night before and vice versa. The rule applies to rewards as well and the Police Board will have something to say about the division of the Long blood money.

Mrs. Williams' Funeral.

The funeral of Mrs. Henry P Williams took place yesterday afternoon from her late home in Washington Valley, fully 200 friends and relatives being in attendance. Rev. SCHOOL EXPENDITURES

Over $164,000 Spent in City's Educational System in a Year.

ANNUAL REPORT IN

New High School Has Cost More Than $50,000 So Far—$58,789 for Teachers' Salaries.

More than $164,000 was spent on the public school system of the city during the fiscal year just closed. The exact figures, which were made public in the annual report of Custodian William F. Arnold for the year ending July 1, handed in at the monthly meeting of the school board last night, is $164,058.52.

This sum includes one unusually big item—$50,248, which is the amount paid out so far in the construction of the new $100,000 high school building.

The biggest regular item in the annual report is that covering teachers' calaries. The teaching staff cost the city $58,789 for the twelvemonth.

The receipts were proportionally large, more than covering the unusual total of expenditure. In all, $235,845 was received. The sale of high school bonds brought in, with interest, something like $64,000. Another unusual item on the credit side is the $2,000 given by Mrs. G. H Babcock for laboratory equipment at the new school.

There is a balance of nearly $72,000 on hand.

Vacation time quiet marked the meeting. There was a bare quorum present, and the session was very brief. Even the routine business was shorter than usual, the collector's report being shy, and no report being on hand from the examining physicians.

President J. B. Probasco, Secretary F. T. Woodhull and Charles F. Abbott were the only ones present. Mr. Abbott acted as clerk. It was nearly 9 o'clock before the session opened, a discussion with Mr. Morse, agent of the architect, over the new high school building, which is nearing completion, preceding the meeting.

Mr. Abbott reported for the building committee that the specifications of the new school had been changed to replace wooden flooring in the lavatories with cement. The non-absorbent floor is more sanitary.

The certificates entitling the schools to two gold medals for exhibits made at the St. Louis Exposition, mention of which was made in yesterday's Daily Press, were formally delivered to the Board by President Probasco. The certificates are large, handsomely engraved affairs, which will be framed. The medals will be received later. With the certificates came a letter from the secretary of the exposition company. The certificates were received by vote, and the clerk was instructed to acknowledge their receipt.

"It is a high honor for our schools," said Mr. Woodhull, and the other members echoed his expression of gratification.

ORDINANCES DELAYED.

Measures Laid Over Until Council's September Session.

Several public hearings were granted by the Common Council at the August meeting last night, and in each instance the matters were laid over until the regular September meeting for further consideration. There were no speakers for or against the adoption of four different ordinances, as proposed, namely, one to open and lay out Stebbins place, one to widen Park avenue, between Second street and the railroad on the south side, one to widen Sycamore street and another to establish separate sewer and drains for the carrying off of surface water in Richmond street.

These four measures have all been introduced at previous meetings and it is the intention of the Common Council to adopt them on final reading at the September meeting.

Travel in State.

Mr. and Mrs. William M. Dignam, of Mountain avenue, will leave for Canada, today, in a special car over the Lehigh Valley Railroad, to attend the golden jubilee celebration of the city of London, Toronto. They will be the guests of the city. From London Mr. and Mrs. Dignam will make a tour of the Muskoko district, with its many lakes and myriads of islands.

CONDUCTOR, NO. 4801 WOULDN'T GET WET,

IT DID NOT MATTER ABOUT THE PASSENGERS.

When the Newark-Dunellen car, due at 11:45, No. 1039, started from Westfield Junction this morning a heavy rainstorm began. The rain beat into the car and a group of women asked the conductor to pull the curtains. He said, it is declared, he wasn't supposed to, and didn't intend to get wet doing it. One of the woman on whom the rain was beating was very old but this made no difference to the chivalrous conductor, it is declared. A Plainfielder on the car climbed over the seats and pulled the curtains.

Then he demanded the conductor's number.

"Its on my hat," said the lord of the fare register. His hat was tilted so far back that only a man on the ceiling could have seen his number.

"I can't see your number; your hat is too far back," said the Plainfielder patiently.

"That's as far forward as its going to come," was the insolent answer.

"I'm asking you for your number," said Nemesis. There was a change in his tone and the defiance of the fresh conductor subsided.

"Take the number," he said ungraciously, pushing the badge into view.

It was No. 4801.

SLAYER OF PEDDLER RELEASED UNDER BAIL

LUIGI SCADUTO GETS OUT ON A $5,800 BOND.

Luigi Scaduto, the fish peddler murderer, has been released on bail. John P. Owens, his counsel was successful in his effort to have the bail reduced from $10,000 to $5,000 and a bondsman was on hand as soon as the application was granted by Judge Fort.

Prosecutor English was present at Judge Fort's hearing on Mr. Owen's aplication, but offered no objection to it. He told Judge Fort he would be satisfied with any amount that seemed proper to the court.

Michael De Rossa, of Elizabeth, furnished the bail. Scaduto went to New York, where his wife and family are, as soon as he was freed. He was boyishly grateful for his release, and showered his counsel with Latin expressions of gratitude.

Mr. Owens is now more than ever convinced that his client will be acquitted, and other lawyers agree with him. It is pointed out that if the prosecutor had either a great desire or great hopes of convicting the man, he would hardly have been so ready to allow the reduction of bail to pass unopposed.

One lawyer said this morning that he doubted if Scaduto would even be indicted.

Daily Press Want Ads. Pay.

Harry Hedden, of Summit avenue, inserted a want ad. in the Daily Press last night stating that he had lost a pocketbook containing money and valuables on the Stelton road Sunday. Today it was returned to him intact, his ad. having been seen by Mrs. Fawcett, of Rockview avenue, who had found it and learned of the owner through the Daily Press. This is only one of a dozen such instances that occur through the channel each day.

Rushing Work on Theatre.

The work on the new Plainfield theatre is progressing rapidly. From tomorrow on, longer hours will be put in, beginning earlier and working until 11 o'clock at night. PLAINFIELDER A BIGAMIST

L. F. Durand's Wife No. 1. Has Him Arrested.

IN LOS ANGELES.

Follows Him Across the Country—She Is a Woman of Refinement.

L. F. Durand, former superintendent of the Interstate Steel Company, of Cleveland, O., is in jail at Los Angeles on a charge of bigamy. He has one wife in that city, and it is declared by her that he has another living here, where he at one time resided for a short period.

Durand was arrested one night last week on Main street, Los Angeles, as he pounced upon his wife and was apparently about to ill-treat her.

"Come with me now or I'll kill you," he shrieked, when two deputy constables who had been following the woman to protect her, pinioned his arms from behind. The woman declared that she has been hounded to desperation by the man for two years past, and that his persecutions have followed her unremittingly from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

Durand's capture and imprisonment in the county jail to answer to the charge of threats to kill are the outcome of his forcing his wife, who several months ago fled from him in terror of her life, to meet him in front of the Westminster Hotel, Los Angeles. The wife agreed, but during the afternoon, accompanied by Mrs. Simmons, her landlady at 722 South Hill street, Los Angeles, she went to Justice Pierce's court, where she told her story, backing up her words by such evidence in the way of letters that a plan was effected for the capture of Durand.

Mrs. Durand arranged to keep the appointment, but following her at a short distance were two deputy constables. The plan worked perfectly, and Durand, who swooped down upon his wife at the appointed time, was dumbfounded to find himself in the clutches of officers of the law. Then he broke down and begged to be released, declaring that his persecutions were induced through an insane jealousy, through his love for her.

But it is an entirely different tale and a pitiful one that the woman tells. It was after convincing herself that Durand has a lawfully-wedded wife and four children residing here that she attempted to leave him. Since that time she has been moving from place to place, and Durand has followed her everywhere. Three weeks ago he trailed her to San Diego and then she went to Los Angeles, only to be discovered by him a week ago, when they met face to face on Broadway, Los Angeles. Since then she says she has lived in constant fear of her life.

The story of Durand's threats and persecutions is borne out by Mrs. Simmons, with whom Mrs. Durand is living.

It is charged in the complaint that Durand has watched the house where his wife boards, day and night for the past week. Friday, it is alleged that he caught her on the corner of Seventh and Hill streets, Los Angeles, and attempted forcibly to drag her away with him. When she broke away and ran at top speed to the house, he followed her, threatening her life.

It is Mrs. Simmons who tells the story of Durand's appearance at the house yesterday afternoon with some sort of a weapon concealed under his arm and demanding to see his wife. When he was driven away by threats of arrest, he darkly hinted the dire things which would befall his wife if she did not accede to his demands.

Mrs. Durand deplores the fact that she married her husband after a short acquaintance during which time she had no opportunity of learning anything of his antecedents.

They met in Cleveland and he insisted on their going to Syracuse, N. Y., to be married. Shortly afterward she became convinced that her husband was amenable to a charge of bigamy, but rather than prosecute him, she preferred to leave him, and did so when he promised to return to the first wife.

Mrs. Durand is a woman of education and refinement, and before her marriage was a music teacher, and has gained her livelihood by teaching since she left her husband.

A. O. U. W. Function.

Grand Master Workman George Parker Sutton, of Camden, and Grand Master Workman George E. Moot, of Jersey City, will pay an official visit to Central Lodge, No. 48, A. O. U. W., Thursday evening. Important business will be considered at the session.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Johnston, of Summit avenue, returned today from their annual vacation spent at Easton and Hackettstown.

AGAINST BROOK WIDENING

Property Owners Object to the Cedar Brook Improvement.

EXPENSE THE REASON

Protesting Ones Believe Cost Should Not Be Put On Them—Referred Back To Committee.

There was a lively discussion on the part of interested citizens at the August meeting of the Common Council, last night, when a public hearing was granted on the proposed action of that body to widen and deepen Cedar brook, to overcome the difficulties attendant with heavy rains which flood the property adjacent to it in the East End of the city.

As yet the matter is in its infancy, so far as definite plans are concerned, and it was merely for the purpose of learning what the interested property-owners thought of the improvement that the public hearing was granted, and the members of the Common Council discovered that there is a storm of protest against it, because the idea is to put the expense on these property-owners who are affected by present conditions.

The first protest was received from the New Jersey Central Land Improvement Company, which owns considerable property on East Sixth street and at South and Scott avenues. It contended that the expense should be put on the city at large.

Perhaps the most caustic protest was that of Mrs. Jennie A. Cramer, of Washington, who owns property in that section. She said that the Mayor had given her to understand that the improvement would be made without any expense to the property-owners and she seriously objected to being assessed for the work. She declared that the improvement was intended to give those who feed at the public crib a job and those whose toes are not pinched do not care about the expense. She advised that the city cut down the feeders and let them pick elsewhere. She entered a protest, adding that she would like to sell her property rather than be subjected to unfairness.

Daniel Dugan, of East Seventh street, who owns considerable property on East Sixth street, East Seventh street and Scott avenue, spoke at some length against the improvement inasmuch as it is proposed to assess the property-owners for it. He said that he favored the plan offered a year ago, that of the city standing the expense and inasmuch as the residents in that section are not responsible for the flooding, he saw no reason why the property-owners there should be assessed. He considered it a public enterprise. He said that he owned several houses in that section but he had not been troubled with the water.

Mr. Dugan contended that much of the surplus water in heavy rains came from the Netherwood district and he suggested that arrangements be made whereby it could be carried southerly by way of a ditch to what is known as Ash Swamp. This he thought would greatly relieve the situation. However, if the city would stand the expense he would gladly donate his share of land for the improvement, provided the city would fix the bank along his property as good as it is now. He said that, at considerable expense to himself, he had walled up the bank of the brook where it touches his property.

Mr. Voorhees, son of Mrs. Mary Voorhees, of 838 Carlton avenue, protested on behalf of his mother. He also understood that the city intended to stand the expense of the improvement, because he considered it a public matter. He said that once in the seven years he has lived in Carlton avenue has the water overflowed his mother's property. He thought the present plan was an unfair one and the only reason his mother signed the petition for the improvement was because she thought the city would stand the expense.

R. F. Fenno, of 1013 Watchung avenue, entered a vigorous protest. He wanted to know something of the plans for the improvement and when he learned that they had not materialized as yet, he attacked the wisdom of the city's action. He, too, thought the city should stand the expense for the work. He said that he had been informed that the city's idea was to drain a larger area by Cedar brook and to ask the affected property-owners to pay for the improvement.

Street Commissioner Gavett was present and at the request of President Daniel answered questions for Mr. Fenno. He said that it was not the intention to drain a larger area, but to widen the brook from six to twelve feet and deepen it so that it would carry off the water properly in heavy rains.

Mr. Fenno maintained that some of the bridges along the brook are not wide enough now and that they

CITY TO OWN WATER PLANT

Public Affairs Committee of Common Council to Recommend Municipal Ownership of Water Supply.

YEAR'S INVESTIGATION

Matter May Be Considered Informally by the Councilmen in Executive Session Tonight—How Plant Would be Obtained.

After a year's deliberation and investigation, the Common Council is about to take up a proposition to buy the Plainfield water plant. In other words municipal ownership of the water supply is contemplated. No definite steps have been taken and although none are likely to be at the adjourned meeting tonight, it is quite certain that the matter will be discussed informally. Probably this will occur in executive session.

As has been stated, the public affairs committee has gone into the

As has ben stated, the public affairs committee has gone into the matter and when it was learned today that a representative of the Daily Press had some knowledge of what had been done and what is contemplated, no official could be gotten to talk. But no one would make any denial of the fact that municipal ownership had been one of the most important subjects before the committee.

It is said that the committee has had a resolution drafted providing that the power be given to have a report made by competent engineers, setting forth the details of the plant and its true value. When the experts' report is made to the Common Council, the course to be taken, according to one well informed, is for the city to make an offer to the Plainfield Water Supply Company for its entire plant here.

If this offer is refused, it is said that the Common Council could then resort to the courts to obtain the plant. This could be done through condemnation proceedings.

How the cost would be defrayed is not known. One in a position to know says that bonds would be issud for the purpose. There is a strong feeling throughout the city favoring municipal ownership of the water supply and there is no doubt that the Common Council will be supported when it takes favorable action towards acquiring possession of the plant.

PHILIP MAGUIRE OUT.

Assisant Division Superintendent of P. S. C. Has Resigned His Berth.

Philip Maguire, who was recently transferred from the Westfield Junction office of the P. S. C. to the station here, to take charge of the service in this city, has severed his connection with the company entirely. A report that he had stepped out was current around town yesterday and this morning Division Superintendent Burke confirmed it. His successor is William Davenport, an inspector. The latter is well-known as a former motorman, and starter at the Watchung avenue station.

Maguire's resignation was received after the head-on collision on Second street last week. Mr. Burke said he did not know the story back of the resignation, and could not tell whether the rumor generally current that the crash had something to do with it was true or not.

Lieutenant of Industry.

Charles Handloser, of New York, an expert in machine tool selling, is spending a few days in this city, going over the Pond Tool Works, preparatory to opening a branch selling office of the Niles-Bement-Pond Machine Tool Company in Berlin, Germany. Mr. Handloser will go through all the N.-B.-P. plants. He has been a guest at Truell Inn and the home of Charles B. Morse, of Franklin place.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The case of William H. Taylor, for his wife, against Mrs. Howard Giles, in a landlord and tenant suit, was tried here yesterday morning at 10:30 before Justice VonMinden. Mrs. Giles rents the house located at New Market road and Grove street from the Taylors. The rent had always been twenty dollars a month. Mrs. Taylor recently asked twenty-five dollars at the end of the month without any notice. Mrs. Giles knew this to be unlawful, and retained W. R. Coddington, of Plainfield, to resist the action. Justice R. P. VonMinden decided in Mrs. Giles' favor.

George Frazee was arrested here Saturday night for being drunk and disorderly. Frazee came here on the main trolley line from Elizabeth and got off at the loop. He was full of Elizabeth rum and his actions were such that a marshal had to be summoned. Yesterday morning he was given a hearing before Justice Campbell, who told him to pay a fine of $3 or go to jail for ten days. Frazee paid. He had just enough left to take him home.

The committee in charge of supplying the Methodist pulpit in the regular pastor's absence, has secured Rev. R. S. Young, of Northern New York, for Sunday.

Rev. S. K. Doolittle and family left yesterday for a three weeks' stay at Mt. Tabor. Mr. Doolittle is an officer of the Mt. Tabor Camp Meeting Association.

Miss Helen Smith, of Hoboken, has returned home after a visit to Mr. and Mrs. Alvah Brokaw, of Greenbrook.

Rev. N. J. Sproull, of Massachusetts, former Presbyterian pastor here, is visiting local friends for a few days.

Miss Kate Finger and Miss May Kleinfelder, of Cranford, spent Sunday visiting friends in the borough.

Miss Ethel Garretson has returned from a week-end visit to Miss Anna Ace at East Stroudsburg, Pa.

William Herlich has recovered from a severe attack of dysentery and is now able to be about.

Miss Myrtle Fedderman and Miss Edna Baldwin will go to Ocean Grove next Saturday.

Ray Huff was a spectator at the Hoboken-Manhattan game at Hoboken, on Sunday.

Rev. Mr. Davis, of Lebanon, will preach in the Presbyterian church next Sunday.

Peter Simms and John Jacobs spent the day at Boynton Beach yesterday.

Miss Anna Campbell, of Tennessee, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Annie Carman.

Asa Merrill, of Newark, has been visiting his father, S. B. Merrill.

Jacob Ginder has returned from a visit to relatives in Philadelphia.

Miss Hattie Giles is recovering from her severe illness.

Miss Evelyn Vliet is recovering from her recent illness.

Miss Edith Boice is enjoying a two weeks' vacation.

Miss Julia Dodwell has started her two weeks' vacation.

Miss Edna Baldwin will begin her vacation this week.

S. B. Merrill is very ill.

VACATION DAYS.

Raymond Smith, of Duer street, is spending his vacation in Haverstraw, N. Y.

Miss Catherine McKeon, of West Front street, is sojourning at Belmar for a time.

Miss Violet Gray, of Arlington avenue, is spending two weeks with her aunt, out-of-town.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Betts, of 29 Washington avenue, are spending August in New York State.

Rev. Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Chambliss, who are stopping at Middleville, Sussex county, will leave there on Thursday for New York State.

Mrs. Samuel Townsend and her daughter, of Myrtle avenue, have gone to the Adirondacks to join Mr. Townsend, who preceded them a week ago.

Theodore Shirley, of the firm of Shirley & Johnston, starts tomorrow on his vacation. He will first go to Connecticut, where he will join his wife and children. From there they will take various trips.

MIDDLESEX POPULATION WILL EXCEED 96,031

WITH FIVE TOWNSHIPS TO HEAR FROM, A GAIN OF 16,269 IS SHOWN.

Returns from all but five districts of the county, namely Dunellen township, Madison township, Piscataway township, Raritan township and South Brunsiwck township, show that the official census returns will not give Middlesex the 100,000 population that was so confidently looked for.

The gains, however, as far as the official figures have been given out, reveal an increased population in the county of 16,758, with a loss of 489, leaving as the net gain the substantial balance of 16,269, which, added to the population of 79,762, accorded them under the census of 1900, swells the 1905 figures to the proportions of 96,031, with a still greater gain possible when the five remaining townships are reported. In any event the showing is a gratifying one and indicates a material growth of a solid and lasting character.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

A Railroad Fad.

Nearly every calling in life has its fads of diction. Railroad officials in announcing orders, even for newspaper publication, always use the word "effective" where anybody else would say "beginning."—Paterson Press.

No Publication of the Laws.

With virtuous indignation, the Jersey City Journal rises to ask how people can obey laws when they are not able to procure copies of the laws. It says that the New Jersey laws for 1905 have not yet been published, though the legislature adjourned in March, and, what is more, there will be no publication. The new law books when printed, will be available at so much per volume, yet the new laws are now in operation and have been for four or five months.—Ocean City Recorder.

Libelling American Women.

Rev. Harvey Wood stood up in the auditorium at Ocean Grove the other day and declared that drunkenness among American women had increased fifty per cent. within a few years.

Such statements, even though they come from the lips of a gentleman of the cloth, ought to be taken with more than a grain of salt. It is a direct insult to the honor of American women and ought not to be tolerated unless backed up by positive proof.—Trenton State Gazette.

The Doom of the Motor Cycle.

Judging from the scarcity of applications issued from the Secretary of State's office, it is quite apparent that the motor cycles are losing what little popularity they ever enjoyed.

Occasionally a license is issued to an owner of one of this class of motor vehicles, but the instances are rare.

The motor cycle came to America from England, and was introduced upon the good roads of this State. It was understood that the English were most favorably disposed toward the machine, but if such were the case, the sentiment today is of a different character. It is reported that manufacturers in England say that the motor cycle is doomed, and that a large number of this season's orders have been canceled, and second-hand machines, hardly the worse for wear, are to be had as low as $90.—Trenton True American.

Save Another Commission.

A news dispatch says that the architect of the New Jersey building at the World's Fair at St. Louis was at Sea Girt last week, talking over with the Governor, the re-erection of the building on the camp ground. By the act of March 25th "all plans and specifications for State buildings or improvements to State institutions shall be prepared under the direction of said Commissioners of Charities and Corrections," and there does not appear to be any need for the services of an outside architect. It is true the act authorizing the Louisiana Purchase Commission to remove the New Jersey building from St. Louis to Sea Girt was approved nearly a week later than that creating the new departments, but the improvements at the State Prison and Trenton Hospital were authorized still later and the State architect is supervising the work of both. Let him save another commission by taking charge of the work at Sea Girt.—Trenton Times.

STOKES MUST REST.

Doctor Orders Governor to Quit Work.

On account of ill health, Governor Stokes has been advised by his physicians to spend the remainder of this month in rest. The governor went to the shore last Thursday.

Ever since the campaign, when the governor was so active touring the State and speaking he has not been feeling altogether well. Immediately the governor was called upon to be present on different occasions and speak.

He did so against the advice of his physicians and as a result great inroads have been made upon his health. His three weeks at Sea Girt did him good, but he is not yet in good physical condition.

LITERARY.

"Waiting for a Bite" is the apt title of the front page picture of the August American Boy, bringing a vision of the cooling breezes, sandy shores, camps, boats and woods, with all the delightful occupations incident to "the good old summer time." Of course every reader of the American Boy will want to know about the American Boy Day celebrations and this number contains an account of the splendid one at the Lewis and Clark Exposition at Portland, Ore., with pictures of many of the boys and their friends who took part in it; and also of the celebration at Bedford, Pa., with a large group picture. Those fine continued stories, "For the Mikado" and "A French Frog and an American Eagle," still increase in interest.

"Town Topics," the social scandal journal of New York City, is reaping some undesirable advertising these days, and its proprietor, Colonel Mann, has stepped into the focus of a searching limelight. Collier's for August 12 makes this editorial comment on its recent indirect controversy with this notorious publisher: We do not lie down merely because a dealer in social ordure menaces us with punishment. This is not courage. It is an ordinary trust in honesty. Nine months ago, when "Town Topics" made an unusually ignoble attack on President Roosevelt's daughter, we observed that Colonel Mann's standing among the people was and ought to be "somewhat worse than that of an ordinary forger, horse-thief, or second-story man."

About four o'clock in the morning is the time when the flying squirrels come home from their night's orgies, and you can then hear a resounding thump upon the roof, then a scampering of little feet, then a scramble in the walls, then a conversation in more or less subdued squeaks. Then, thump after thump, you hear them come down until all is still. They wake up again at dusk of the following evening, when, if it is fair, they sally forth, but on rainy or stormy nights thy do not go out.

An ordinary rat trap will not confine a flying squirrel, for so flat is his beautiful little body that by using the force of his muscles he can spread the wires apart far enough to escape. I always use my hand, protected by a glove or some similar object, and catch them with that. I caught nine, in that way, in one night.—Dan Beard, in Recreation for August.

Imagined Ills.

"Talk of a woman's jealousy of her husband," said a physician of long experience. "It is nothing compared to her jealousy of another woman's chronic ailments. Half the doctors would starve if it were not for the prevalence of illnesses that are purely imaginary. Of course, it does not do for us to tell a woman who has firmly made up her mind that she is ill that she is not ill. In nine cases out of ten she will lose her temper and consult another doctor. Among certain women invalidism gives them a distinction which is gratifying to their self-love. They may literally be said to 'enjoy poor health.' They look for the doctor's visit to them, or their call at his office, as the most exciting event of the day. If they know him well enough, they implore him to waive professional etiquette and tell them about the ailments of other women who consult him. Women of this description—and they are legion—have a craving for martyrdom, which doctoring an imaginary illness seems to satisfy."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

Up the Hudson.

On Thursdays, July 27, August 10 and 24, the Pennsylaynia Railroad Company will run its usual midsummer excursion to the "Upper Hudson," under personal escort. Special excursion tickets will be sold on these dates for regular trains arriving at Jersey City prior to 10:05 a. m., good to return on same day on any regular train leaving Jersey City after arrival of steamer. A stop will be made at West Point, giving those who disembark an hour and a half at that point, and enabling them to view the United States Military Academy. In order to insure an early return, no stop will be made at Newburgh, although the steamer will run to a point off that city and there turn. Round-trip rates: Princeton, $2.00; New Bunswick, Metuchen, and Perth Amboy, $1.00; Rahway, 80 cents; Elizabeth, 75 cents; Newark, 50 cents. Proportionate rates from other points. 7 18 oaw td

The large attendance on Saturday shows how fandom appreciates good baseball.

"Mike" Leonard is playing shortstop for the Morristown team on Wednesdays.

The dove of peace has a new lease of life and its presence is felt once more in our midst.

"Happy" Kiernan is just as steady and reliable as ever and his timely hitting is a feature.

Manager Daab would please the fans by giving Deegan a chance on the oval against Westfield.

The work of Umpires Merity and Henning was satisfactory, not a single kick being registered.

The steady work of "Jack" O'Neill behind the rubber and at the bat is the admiration of all the fans.

"Dan" Connolly, the reliable right fielder, has yet to make his first error and maybe he is not hitting the ball.

Manager Denman says that "he just had to win last Saturday's game," and his determination brought results.

"Dave" Driscoll, "Happy" Kiernan and "Mike" Leonard comprise an infield trio that cannot be excelled in this part of the country.

After the fine article of baseball which Manager Daab is giving the fans he deserves a good big crowd on Saturday for the All-Cuban contest.

A friend of "Wally" Cosgrave ventures to remark that the Princetonian is simply off his game and that he is capable of playing a game equal to any member of the team.

There is a growing impression that the team does not show the same amount of ginger behind Beck as when Deegan is in the box, and there is no doubt but that in fielding his position "Willie" is superior.

Saturday's Newark Evening News contained an excellent picture of the Morristown team, and among the familiar faces were those of "Lefty" Davis, Gene Bassford, Courtney and Cusick, of last year's Plainfield team.

Among those who witnessed Saturday's game was "Billy" Beck's wife and family and his mother and brother, also "Dan" Connolly's brother. It was the first time that Beck's brother had seen him play. The result was a disappointment to them.

CLOSE TO THE PEOPLE.

Doc. Bateman, Friend of the Boys.—Dr. J. M. H. Bateman has the lasting gratitude of no small number of town youngsters who freely partake of his generous hospitality by jumping aboard his vehicle for a ride or romping at will over his shady grounds on the Avon. There are more ways than one to make persons happy, and the doctor unconsciously, but out of innate kindness, has bestowed more joy lately upon those who cannot return the favors than he dreams of. Would that others were more disposed to act likewise.—Easton (Md.) Gazette.

Loss and Consequences of Mr. Black.—Last Friday Jim Black, the well-known vaquero, fell into one of the watering holes at Wetweather Springs, and incidentally lost the full flask that is his companion in riding the range. Frank Bogue, on his way from Rossland, stopped and watered his team where Black had suffered misfortune shortly before. The liquor evidently went to the horse's feet, for they ran away before Bend was reached, and it was only by good luck that Bogue was able to avoid a catastrophe.—Bend (Oreg.) Bulletin.

High Jinks on Big Creek.—A big wedding took place about four or five miles above here last Saturday evening. John E. Bowling married Nancy Anna Bowling again, after being apart for about eight years. Both supposed to be happy now, and will end their days together.

Henry Britton, while standing at the Big Creek store the other day, threw a kiss to his sweetheart on the other side of the river, it struck a sycamore tree and knocked part of the bark off it.

John Langdon, of this place, is sparking girls right up a lim.

Elbert Langdon is a first-class fortune teller, you can bet. He gets lots of practice.—Big Creek Cor. Hyden (Ky.) Times.

Why Aaron Hoffman Hiked For Home.—One day last week Aaron Hoffman had an experience with a rattler which he will not soon forget. While sprouting potatoes in the bin near the house, he was conscious of something rubbing against his back, and glancing over his shoulders found that an immense rattlesnake had raised its head and was in the act of crawling up on his back. The sight froze the blood in his veins, and he was too paralyzed with fear to move, and while he sat there the snake crawled over his shoulder and across his knees and into its hilding place. When young Hoffman did recover his powers of locomotion he ran into the house, but the reaction from the terrible fright completely prostrated him, and he was unable for some time to tell his mother the cause of the fright.—Madras (Oreg.) Pioneer.

PERSONAL.

Harry Stuart, of East Sixth street, has returned from a sojourn at Atlantic City.

"Duke" Mulford, of Grant avenue, will leave town Saturday to join Barlow's minstrels.

Mr. and Mrs. Giles, of Arlington avenue, are home from a short visit with friends in Newark.

Miss Alida Kinney, of Philipsburg, is spending the summer with her sister, Mrs. Howard B. Templin, of East Second street.

Mrs. Johnson, wife of Henry Johnson, steward of the Park Club, has leased "The Homestead," on Washington avenue, and will conduct a boarding house there.

Miss Sadie Sweeney, of Liberty street, has returned home after a two weeks' visit with her brother, M. D. Sweeney, formerly of this city, but now of Brooklyn.

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the following Ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

J. T. MacMurray,
City Clerk.

Plainfield, N. J., August 7, 1905.

AN ORDINANCE

to Provide Separate Sewers or Drains to Carry off the Surface Water in a Portion of Richmond street

WHEREAS, The city finds it necessary, and the Common Council hereby so determines, to provide separate sewers or drains to carry off the surface water in a portion of Richmond Street hereinafter specified, and the water flowing into Cedar Brook through said portion of said street, and the Common Council has determined, and doth hereby determine that the public good requires the construction of the sewers or drains hereinafter specified:

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the Common Council doth hereby direct and order that separate sewers or drains to carry off the surface water in said portion of Richmond Street and the water flowing into Cedar Brook, as aforesaid, be constructed in and for said City of Plainfield in Richmond Street from East Fifth Street to Cedar Brook, with three inlets at East Fifth Street, three at South Avenue, and six at East Sixth Street, as shown for said portion of Richmond Street on a map on file with the City Clerk of the City of Plainfield, entitled, "Map for Separate Sewers or Drains to carry off the Surface Water in a portion of Richmond Street, City of Plainfield, N. J., November, 1904," (to which map reference is hereby made and the same made a part hereof) said separate sewers or drains to be constructed on said portion of Richmond Street between the above mentioned points, as shown on said map, with the necessary manholes and appurtenances to complete the same, and to be of the dimensions and materials, and to be laid along such lines and at such grades and in such manner as indicated and specified on said map.

Section 2. That the costs and expenses to be incurred under this ordinance shall be paid with money to be raised by taxation (by general tax for street improvements) pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, as other moneys are raised in said city.

A Dog-Gone Sell.

"Wash" Irwin is looking for the fellow who started the rumor that he was going into the dog business, as he has received letters from people in all directions who have dogs to sell.—Burlington Gazette.

ARCANUM IS NOW IN OPEN COURT

IN ANTICIPATION OF NOT GAINING THEIR POINT NEW ORDER IS TALKED OF

The fact that the Grand Council, Royal Arcanum, State of New Jersey, is to hold a special session in New Brunswick, August 11 and 12, to take action in relation to a proposed appeal to the Supreme Council for a revision of the rates of assessment recently adopted by that body and which have been received by a large element in the order with a howl of dissatisfaction on the ground that the new rates discriminate against the old members and practically drive them out of the organization by becoming prohibitive on their attaining the age of 65 years.

Consequently, the action to be taken at the New Brunswick gathering will be awaited with interest throughout the entire order, and the sessions will be closely watched and the results noted by not only the New Jersey members, but by those belonging to the order generally, irrespective of locality. The meetings in New Brunswick promise to be warm ones and will probably be conducted behind closed doors. The discontented will be given the opportunity of expressing their views, and the Grand Council will take such action as appears to represent the sentiment of the order in this State as a body.

So fierce is the opposition to the new rates among a certain element of the order that even secession and the formation of a new organization is being mooted as a future possibility in the event of their not gaining their point.

Reports have been heard in New Brunswick and throughout the State that New Jersey Arcanumites were planning to withdraw from the order and form an organization of their own. A reporter had a talk with one of the most prominent men connected with the order and who represented one of the councils at a mass meeting in Nutley. As a result of that meeting the Grand Council of New Jersey will meet in New Brunswick on the dates given, to take action on the Supreme Council's action.

"There is absolutely nothing in the rumor," said this Arcanum man. "I agree with you that they are persistent, but, mark me, there is nothing in them whatever, and there is no need of taking them seriously. I do not believe that the Jersey Arcanumites want an independent order nor do I think that such a move would be a wise one. Until the Supreme Council reconvenes nothing further will be done in this matter."

AMUSEMENTS.

The prospects for the coming week along the seashore, and particularly Manhattan Beach, are excellent. To begin with, on Monday night the Knights of St. John and Malta will visit Port Arthur at Pain's Fireworks Amphitheatre in a body. This organization has not been heard of much in the vicinity of New York, but it has a large clientelle and promises to turn out in full force. Besides this Mr. Pain has issued invitations to the Sunday schools in the neighborhood of the beach and several will attend. For the pleasure of the children there will be a lot of funny moving firework pieces; these have always proved great attractions. The "Handy Men" of the United States, the boys of the navy, are to have an outing on Tuesday to see how the Japs and Russians fight. Rear-Admiral Coghlan and nearly all the officers and men of the Navy Yard will attend. La Salle Council, No. 454, K. of C., is to have its annual outing, Wednesday, the 9th, the tickets sold by the Council to be for its benefit. Thursday a monster excursion on the Long Island road will be at the beach. It will begin at Greenport and take all the stations on the main line and the Oyster Bay and Port Jefferson branches. It has been arranged that the return trip will leave immediately after the fireworks, giving the excursionists ample time to reach the cars with comfort. For Saturday another fine programme will be arranged and it is to be hoped the weather will prove more propitous than it did a week ago.

George M. Cohan returned to the New York Theatre Monday night a week ago, for his eighth engagement in New York within the past six months. Everyone looked for a good opening, but were not prepared for the immense ovation that actually packed, literally jammed, and the sale of standing room was stopped a little after eight o'clock. The New York Theatre, with its immense seating capacity, never held a larger or more enthusiastic audience. The enormous Monday night's business was duplicated again on Tuesday, and by Wednesday morning nearly every seat in the house for the balance of the week had been disposed of. This will be the biggest week "Little Johnny Jones" has ever played to at the New York Theatre. And this is August, and "Little Johnny" fast approaching its 150th time in New York. Talk about opportunity!

Mrs. F. A. Slater and daughter, Clyde, of Jackson avenue, have returned after a two weeks' stay at Ocean Grove.

Plainfield, N. J., August 8, 1905.

The decision of the Common Council last night to definitely consider the proposition for a fire house in the East End, is a step in the right direction that has long been overdue. The section below Richmond street has developed rapidly in the past few years and it now has a property value of $2,000,000, a figure which shows as nothing else can the need of better protection against fire. It is not to be implied that the service of the present companies is not of the best, but valuable time is lost in the long runs from East Second street and Watchung avenue to the Netherwood district and the territory beyond Netherwood avenue. Councilman Bullock has made the question a matter of personal import since his election as chairman of the fire board and his recommendations to the Council should receive prompt consideration. The West End house has long since proved its worth and the East End should have one with equipment fully as good.

The Daily Press heartily commends Councilman Bullock's remark at last night's Common Council meeting when, after an invitation had been received from the League of American Municipalities to send a representative to its annual convention at Toledo, he said "The city should send someone there and I propose the name of Street Commissioner Andrew J. Gavett." Thoroughly devoted to his duties he works quietly but effectively personally attending all the small details of his position that others would leave to assistants. Mr. Gavett is a student and a thinker, the kind of a man a city seldom gets to represent it and his presence at Toledo will reflect credit upon Plainfield. The Council sees its way clear to send Chief Kiely to the Police Convention each year and the Board of Education never fails to have Superintendent Maxson at the annual convention of school workers. There is just as much reason and more that Mr. Gavett should attend the gathering at Toledo.

Plainfield is the first city in New Jersey to have an ordinance confining the sale of liquor to the strictly business section of the municipality. The measure passed by the Common Council last night will make it impossible for a license to be granted outside a defined area, which represents but a small portion of the entire city. It is modeled after the acts now in force at Minneapolis, Minn., and Atlanta, Ga. The former city enacted a similar law in 1888 and the latter in 1892. In both places, it is claimed to work effectively. The position is taken by those responsible for the passage of the ordinance that the liquor trade should be confined to the purely business section of the city. Most cities are content if their Councils do not grant saloon privileges near a church or a school house, but the local city fathers are more radical. They set it down once for all that no more licenses will be given in any part of the residential district if at all. Today Plainfield has but thirteen licensed places and no speak-easies of which we are aware. The license fee is $1,000 for a retail and $800 for a wholesale privilege. The saloons close at 11 o'clock and do not open until 6 in the morning. Our population is 18,468. Now comes a more stringent law, one that will prohibit the sale of liquor entirely, excepting in a district covering about sixteen blocks. But the ordinance is not in effect as yet. It goes up to the mayor and he has already signified his intention of exercising his veto power. When he takes that action, and he must do so in ten days, it will be returned to Common Council where it will be passed again, a majority only being required for the purpose. To repeal it, a two-thirds vote will be necessary and this cannot be obtained until next year at least. Whether it will be at that time depends entirely upon the outcome of the November elections.

Mrs. P. M. French, has returned to her home in Somerset street from Big Mouse, N. Y.

THE POLITICAL TIPSTER.

John Cose is on the ascent.

Where does Mr. Murphy come in?

Will Collector Robert A. Lee be turned-down?

Does Mr. Thompson, of Westfield, take that boom seriously?

Somerset Republicans have Irving Hoagland on their slate for Assembly.

Who told Jack Keely that he is not getting enough pay for his contract?

James K. Arnold is holding his own as a candidate to succeed Mayor Smalley.

"I'm working for votes while the other fellows are working for wind" —William Gloak.

The Elizabeth Journal in discussing the senatorial situation saith: "————"

Just keep an eye on that boom for Francis Montgomery. He is a favorite in the Second.

Not even Robert Kirkland has been able to explain why Summit should not receive the shrievalty.

President Daniel has not changed his decision regarding the proffered renomination although he can't find any opposition to himself.

William Townsend, of the Second ward, just rises to remark that he hasn't seen any dust gathering on the W. N. R. band-wagon. Get aboard!

Assemblyman Tillman says he won't know how Rahway will stand on the senatorship until the delegates are elected. He's as smooth as Chauncey Depew.

Judge William N. Runyon is up York State gathering strength for the campaign. Later he'll be gathering votes, and he's pretty good at that business too.

Opposition to Joseph Frelinghuysen's ambition does not seem to be very strong in old Somerset. The colonel stands pat with the governor and there you are.

The sum and substance of a hunt for information with James T. MacMurray is "what's new? what do you hear?" "Say nothing and saw wood" is a pretty good maxim to go by in politics after all.

Just now they have the Fourth ward slate fixed in this fashion: For Councilman at large, Herbert Buxton; for ward councilman, Charles Randolph. Is it any wonder that C. R. can't get that smile off his face?

SEES A FIGHT!

Our Correspondent Tells It In His Own Way.

Dunellen, Aug. 8—Before a crowd of over fifty passengers who were waiting for cars, a terrible fight took place above the loop on Sunday. Louis Sutterlein, of North Plainfield and another unknown young fellow had been gambling and drinking at Dewey Park and were waiting in Dunellen for a car.

While standing about waiting they fell to words, one being dissatisfied over the results of the game of crap. Then they fought like madmen, pulling each others hair and making one and the other look like two habitual fighters.

All this took place before fifty bystanders, among them some women. One woman, whose name could not be ascertained, fainted at the horrible proceedings. She was carried into Taylor's house, where she was speedily revived.

Owen Mohan, the constable, was notified when the proceedings grew too savage-like, but by the time he arrived the fighters had escaped into the woods.

It was the most disgraceful proceedings ever witnessed here, and the whole town is roused up over the actions.

would prove an obstruction even though the brook is widened and deepened. He asked Mr. Gavett what he proposed to do about that, and the commissioner replied that the freeholders would be asked to take care of the matter.

Mr. Fenno also wanted to know what it was proposed to do in the Martine property, through which the brook runs, where the bank is not walled. He said that so far as he was able to learn the high water had caused no damage thus far and yet after certain property-owners had had the bank properly walled the city had failed to keep it in repair, and yet the city, he maintained, was obliged to keep in repair a street that is macadamized by property-owners. He added that if the brook is cleaned out and kept so it will be all right, that the capacity is large enough for the water flowing through it.

John Barry, another property-owner, entered his protest, and there being no further remarks the matter was referred to the street committee for further consideration.

Mrs. W. J. Mehary and son, and Mrs. John Brown and daughter, of Philadelphia, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Counihan, of Spooner avenue.

Uncle Tom's Cabin in History.

Uncle Tom's Cabin was given to the public by Harriett B. Stowe at a time when all civilized humanity was hesitating between their prejudices and their established modes of thought and the growing conviction fell in their innermost hearts that slavery was all wrong. The book was eagerly devoured by all, high and low, rich and poor, and the effect of the impressions it created was felt immediately. One result was the testimony of many colored persons and fugitive slaves who either sent or personally conveyed their greatest blessing to Mrs. Stowe, who caused them to find many friends hitherto unknown. That our own Abraham Lincoln became interested there is no doubt as our historical records show. In fact the appearance of this work developed the latent sentiments against slavery and was a potent factor in enlisting men in the ranks of those actively engaged in suppressing slavery. The story was then dramatized and placed upon the stage before the American public and has had its most phenomenal run ever since. Sterling's Uncle Tom's Cabin is now presenting the original version in the most down-to-date manner, using special scenery for each and every feature. Mrs. Ida A. Washburn, sole owner and directoress of Sterling's Uncle Tom's Cabin Company, has a reputation for producing this great drama that is a guarantee in itself of a first-class production in every respect. Sterling's Uncle Tom's Cabin will give one exhibition in Plainfield under canvas on Monday, August 14 on the Darrow avenue circus show grounds. Watch for the big street parade at noon.

Peter H. Latourette, of East Fifth street, returned yesterday after a week's stay at Westerly, R. I.

Miss Mildred Erskine, of Pittsburg, is spending a week with Miss Bertha Jones, of Essex street.

COURRIER NOT DEAD; SAYS SO HIMSELF

PUBLIC WILL HAVE TO TAKE HIS WORD FOR IT.

I. L. Courrier, formerly of this city, but now of Pittsburg, has written several letters to William Newcorn, Esq., in which he emphatically denies that he is dead, as reported by the Metropolitan and local papers. He says that he is enjoying the best of health and has no idea of departing this life.

Mr. Currier is engaged in the realty business in Pittsburg, and has not even been ill.

It will be remembered that an Associated Press despatch to the Metropolitan papers, recently, stated that I. L. Courrier en route from Seattle to California, was taken ill on the steamer with heart disease and died before the boat landed.

According to the despatch the remains were taken ashore and were shipped east. The report added that Mr. Courrier was engaged in business in New York and his residence was in Plainfield. Inquiry here failed to reveal the whereabouts of Mr. Courrier, and in the neighborhood of his former home in the Netherwood district nothing could be learned about him. The newspaper reports finally reached him in Pittsburg and he has been kept busy denying them and he further wrote to Mr. Newcorn asking him to obtain a denial in the local papers.

Mr. Courrier formerly had an office in the Scheurer building adjoining those of Mr. Newcorn.

VOORHEES MAY BE A CIRCUIT JUDGE

BILL CREATING ADDITIONAL JUDGESHIP IS SIGNED.

Governor Stokes signed three bills yesterday, thereby disposing of the last measures passed by the legislature.

Among the bills signed was that of Assemblyman Robbins, providing for five instead of four Circuit Court judges in the State. The salary is $7,500 a year, but the appointment of the additional judge will not be made immediately because the legislature failed to make an appropriation for the salary.

It is generally understood that ex-Governor Foster M. Voorhees will be the additional judge.

The Governor also signed Assemblyman Colby's bill, fixing the salary of all county superintendents of schools at $2,000. At present the salaries range from $1,300 to $2,000. Charles J. Baxter, Superintendent of Public Instruction, called upon the Governor today, to urge the signing of the bill. Low salaries, he said, had been responsible for the loss of some of the best educators in the State.

The third bill signed was Senator Lee's, amending the act of 1902, making it unnecessary for an applicant for a license in Atlantic City to set forth in his application that his establishment "is provided with stabling and provender for beasts."

Some of the Atlantic City landlords who would like to minister to the thirst of man have no accomodations for beasts. The provision is a relic of the old Inn and Tavern act, defining what constitutes an inn.

ASBURY TO VOTE ON LICENSE.

City Attorney Says the One-Mile Act Is Void Now.

Asbury Park, Aug. 8—A special informal election will be held next week when the voters will decide whether they want high license. This was decided by the Common Council last night, when a motion was adopted instructing the ordinance committee to draft an ordinance creating an Excise Board. President Appleby was the only member who voted in the negative.

Mayor Ten Broeck, who was present, urged a speedy settlement of the license question. He said that county authorities had notified the city officials that the hotels were selling liquor, and would be raided and the guests held as witnesses. To prevent this he recommended that a high license ordinance be adopted.

City Attorney Patterson has advised the Common Council that the act of 1902 creating an Excise Board for all cities is a repealer of the "one-mile-limit act" which prevents the sale of liquor within one mile of Ocean Grove.

Inspected Bridge.

The Board of Freeholders of Somerset county held a meeting at Summit Inn, Bernardsville, last week. After luncheon they paid a visit of inspection to the new iron bridge, near W. F. Bensel's, and, finding it satisfactory finally accepted it. The members present were W. E. Demler, North Plainfield township; Joel Coddington, Somerville; David Philhour, Peapack; N. W. Baird, North Branch; W. J. Logan, Joshua Doughty, Jr., and C. A. McNulty, all of Somerville; F. W. Hoagland, Frankfort; T. E. Gibson, Princeton; John Morgan, North Plainfield; W. E. Vreeland, Rocky Hill, and John A. Whitenack, Bernardsville.

Her Eightieth Birthday.

Mrs. Jane D. Vail, the widow of Abram D. Vail, who was well known in Plainfield and vicinity, celebrated her eightieth birthday at Quakertown, Hunterdon county, Saturday, by entertaining a large gathering of relatives. The guests enjoyed a dinner and a social period after which Mrs. Vail was presented with a gold watch by Harry G. Adams, of this city, in behalf of her eight children. Mrs. Vail responded in a fitting way though greatly taken back at the start. Among those in attendance were Mr. and Mrs. Adelbert Vail and son, Russel, Mr. and Mrs. Harry G. Adams and Phoebe H. Vail, of this city.

BRITISH FARMHOUSE HAUNTED BY WITCHES.

Strange Tale of Dead Hare That Dances — Other Extraordinary Occurrences at Place.

London.—A strange story of a bewitched farm house comes from Binbrook, a village on the Lincolnshire wolds. The house, which is known as the Walk farm, is tenanted by a famous Lincolnshire ram breeder, William Drakes, and is occupied by his foreman, a man named White. The foreman and his wife, according to a correspondent, tell weird tales—of a dead hare which detached itself from a hook outside the house, ran about and went back to the hook again; of plants in pots on the window sill which mysteriously tilt on one side and then resume their former position, and of brooms which came dancing across the middle of the floor while the family were at dinner.

Then one day the clothes of the servant started to burn, although she positively affirmed that she was nowhere near a fire at the time. The girl was so severely injured that she had to receive medical attention. The "witch," in whose existence the neighbors are firmly convinced, is said to have commenced her visitations by breaking the legs of a number of fowls at different times.

Mr. White has given correspondents an account of the most recent extraordinary occurrences. His story was corroborated by his wife, children, mother and servants. When Mrs. White saw bottles toppling over one by one and falling from a shelf to break on the tiled floor she called her husband and the servants, and they also watched the completion of the astonishing spectacle.

Two dozen bottles leisurely went to destruction in this way. Some of them contained paint and other oil. In the dairy three strings of homemade sausages were hung on a line, but refused to remain there, and after being hung for the third time they fell and broke into small pieces. A dozen large dinner plates moved from a high shelf and were deposited unbroken in a large earthenware dish. A dish of milk set for cream overturned, and a large pot of cream ready for the churn performed a similar feat. When the family were having tea, water poured into the kitchen from under the storehouse door until the floor was completely flooded. Investigation showed that a large flat-bottomed tub had emptied itself. Offers to "lay the witch" have been received from all over the country, and Mr. White has accepted that of John Dunn of Grimsby.

NUDE FAMILY PARADES CITY

Members Believe They Are Fulfilling Divine Prophecy of World's End.

Oklahoma City, Okla.—Believing that they were fulfilling a Divine prophecy, Mr. and Mrs. James Sharp, their 14-year-old son Lee and a young Scotchman whose name is not known, paraded through the streets here the other day as naked as the day they were born. As they marched they shouted hallelujahs and warned the people that the world was coming to an end in three days. The police placed them under arrest and escorted them to the police station, where they were locked up pending an inquiry into their mental condition.

When he was led into the police station the Scotchman, who appeared to be the leader, announced to the captain that he was God, and it would be useless to arrest him.

"In three days," he said, "we will be found dead, and then will occur the resurrection."

James Sharp says he was converted two years ago, when a huge star fell on his farm in Woodward county. He said that he had been preaching for two years that god would appear in the flesh. He said that as soon as he appeared he knew him and would follow him. All three of the Scotchman's followers declared they had never known such perfect peace before.

Live Man Mistaken for Dead One.

Kittanning, Pa.—A grewsome incident occurred here when six shoemakers went across the river for the purpose of having a good drunk. Clark E. Cochrane, while walking home, fell dead. Jim Sweeney, a companion, much intoxicated, fell over the body and lay still. Word was telephoned to Kittanning for an undertaker's wagon, and John Rhodes drove over. It was his opinion and that of those who gathered that Sweeney was really the dead man and he was loaded on the dead wagon. Rhodes did not discover the mistake until he reached his undertaker shop. He then went back to get the real dead man.

NOTICE!
"In behalf of your proprietory article called AZIENZA CREAM, as a remedy for diseases of the skin, I desire to add my appreciation of its wonderful properties as a cure in a case of Bone Tumor or Abscess of five years growth on my husband's back, which I have cured in less than five weeks time by constant application, and now it is as well as any part of his body. It was cut out once by a specialist and had again grown to a large size, was as hard as a bone and of a very dark purple color. The AZIENZA at once allayed the pain and began to soften it, and in less than eight days, by my pressure upon it, suddenly to my surprise it discharged a quantity of pus, impregnated with a hard, cheesy substance. I kept it open and cleansed it as it discharged and every day would dress it with a plaster of AZIENZA CREAM, until it was entirely healed up. I cannot speak too highly of AZIENZA CREAM and its merits. For inquiry regarding this case you may apply to Mr. and Mrs. James, Embury Ave., care Hiller, Ocean Grove, N. J. Signed, July 12, 1905: Mrs. C. W. James, Mr. C. W. James." Leading Druggists, 25c-50c

MINDING HIS OWN BUSINESS

Inquisitive Traveler Evened Up Scores with Stage Driver Who Was Crusty.

Wallace Cummings used to drive the old stage which ran between Bridgton and Portland, relates the Boston Herald. One day Wallace had as a passenger out of Portland a young city chap or dude, as Wallace called him. The scenery along the stage route was both beautiful and diversified; the young man was much interested, and as he sat on the box, or post of honor, beside Wallace, literally plied him with questions as to what mountain that was and what river this was, etc.

The old driver, who detested this sort of interrogation, stood it as long as he could. Finally he blurted out: "Say, stranger, if you'll mind your business I'll mind mine."

Thus snubbed, the young man relapsed into silence.

They had driven about ten miles farther when they came to a long hill, where the driver was obliged to apply the brake. As he shoved his foot toward it he immediately noticed that the mail bag, which always lay there, was gone. Evidently it had dropped off along the road.

Wallace stopped his horses; then, breaking the long silence, he said: "Say, stranger, did you see that mail bag slide off?"

"Yes, I did; some ten miles back," calmly remarked the young man.

"Well, why in thunder didn't you tell me?" gasped the astonished driver.

The "dude" looked him squarely in the eye for a moment, and then he drawled, imitating Wallace's tone: "Say, driver, you mind your business and I'll mind mine."

The rest of the journey was driven in cold silence.

STRANGE ACTION OF LAKE.

Body of Water in Patagonia Rises and Falls in Most Singular Manner.

Capt. H. C. Crosthwait directs attention in an English science journal to the magnetic and meteorological observatory established by the Argentine government on New Year island, a small island about five miles off the coast of Staten Island, Patagonia, says the Baltimore American. The observatory, which is complete in every respect, is superintended by four Argentine naval officers. It was opened in February, 1902. The magnetic observatory is kept at an almost constant temperature of 64 degrees F. Many interesting facts about Tierra del Fuego are given by Capt. Crosthwait in his paper. He directs attention to the astonishing number and variety of the glaciers, and to the fact that most of the larger ones show signs of shrinkage. He says that San Martin lake undoubtedly occupies what was once a strait joining the Atlantic and Pacific oceans. The level of the water of the lake rises and falls in a peculiar manner. Exact measurements of these "seiches" show that the movements are irregular, but on an average they amount to about five inches, having a period of about four minutes between two successive high waters. The surface of the water to the eye is perfectly smooth.

WEBSTER'S OLD CARRIAGE.

One-Horse Shay Used by the Famous Statesman Still in Use in Missouri Town.

Denizens of Jefferson City, Mo., little knew that a historic old carriage, once the property of Daniel Webster, orator and United States senator from Massachusetts, is now in use in that town. But such is the case, reports the Brooklyn Eagle, and the carriage in question is that owned by William Holt, says the Republican. It is drawn by one horse and presents an appearance far from prepossessing, but it can be readily seen that the '60's it was a carriage such as even a senator might be glad to ride in.

Mr. Holt purchased the carriage at an auction sale in St. Louis, after the world's fair, where the carriage was on exhibition. Attorney General Crow, of St. Louis, recognizing the historic value of a ride in this carriage, was among Mr. Holt's first passengers.

It is not unlikely that Webster rode in this venerable carriage while going from his rooms to the senate chamber upon the day when he made his memorable reply to Senator Haynes, of South Carolina, in which he gave voice to the expression: "Union and liberty, now and forever, one and inseparable."

Child's Head on Banknote.

The accepted design for the new Austrian five kronen banknotes is remarkable for the picture of an unusually beautiful child's head which forms its chief ornament. The model for this head was the son of Prince Franz Josef Rohan, whom the artist saw one day in the street, and with whose beauty he was so much struck that he asked the child's name, and obtained the parents' permission to make a drawing of him for this purpose.

Favorite of Fortune.

Joseph Chamberlain, the celebrated Englishman, is not a graduate of any university or of any of the large public schools. He was a full-fledged business man at the age of 16 years and his fortune grew so rapidly that at the age of 38 he was able to retire from commercial life and devote himself to the study and practice of politics.

Cheering Her Up.

Patience—O, doctor, I'm dreadfully afraid of it!

Dentist—Madam, you shouldn't take laughing gas as seriously as that.—Chicago Tribune.

IN THE BISHOP'S CARRIAGE

By MIRIAM MICHELSON

(Copyright, 1904, by The Bobbs-Merrill Company).

My, if I could only have laughed! The bishop, the dear, prim little bishop in his own carriage, with his arm about a young woman in red and chinchilla, offering her a bank-note, and Mrs. Dowager Diamonds, her eyes popping out of her head at the sight, and she one of the lady pillars of his church—oh, Tom! it took all of this to make that poor innocent next to me realize how he looked in her eyes.

But you see it was over in a minute. The carriage wheels were unlocked, and the blue coupe went whirling away, and we in the plum-cushioned carriage followed slowly.

I decided that I'd had enough. Now and here in the middle of all these carriages was a bully good time and place for me to get away. I turned to the bishop. He was blushing like a boy. I blushed, too. Yes, I did, Tom Dorgan, but it was because I was bursting with laughter.

"DADDY," I MURMURED.

"Oh, dear!" I exclaimed, in sudden dismay. "You're not my father."

"No—no, my dear, I—I'm not," he stammered, his face purple now with embarrassment. "I was just trying to tell you, you poor little girl, of your mistake and planning a way to help you, when—"

He made a gesture of despair toward the side where the coupe had been.

I covered my face with my hands, and shrinking over into the corner, I cried:

"Let me out! Let me out! You're not my father. Oh, let me out!"

"Why, certainly, child. But I'm old enough, surely, to be, and I wish—I wish I were."

"You do!"

The dignity and tenderness and courtesy in his voice sort of sobered me. But all at once I remembered the face of Mrs. Dowager Diamonds, and I understood.

"Oh, because of her," I said, smiling and pointing to the side where the coupe had been.

My, but it was a rotten bad move! I ought to have been strapped for it. Oh, Tom, Tom, it takes more'n a red coat with chinchilla to make a black-hearted thing like me into the girl he thought I was.

He stiffened and sat up like a prim little schoolboy, his soft eyes hurt like a dog's that's been wounded.

I won't tell you what I did then. No, I won't. And you won't understand, but just that minute I cared more for what he thought of me than whether I got to the correction or anywhere else.

It made us friends in a minute, and when he stopped the carriage to let me out, my hand was still in his. But I wouldn't go! I'd made up my mind to see him out of his part of the scrape, and first thing you know we were driving up toward the square, if you please, to Mrs. Dowager Diamonds' house.

He thought it was his scheme, the poor lamb, to put me in her charge till my lost daddy could send for me. He'd no more idea that I was steering him toward her, that he was doing the only thing possible, the only square thing by his reputation, than he had that Nance Olden had been raised by the Cruelty, and then flung herself away on the first handsome Irish boy she met.

That'll do, Tom.

Girls, if you could have seen Mrs. Dowager Diamonds' face when she came down the stairs, the bishop's card in her hand, and into the gorgeous parlor, it'd have been as good as a front seat at the show.

She was mad, and she was curious, and she was amazed, and she was disarmed; for the very nerve of his bringing me to her staggered her so that she could hardly believe she'd seen what she had.

"Mr. dear Mrs. Ramsay," he began, confused a bit by his remembrance of how her face had looked 15 minutes before, "I bring to you an unfortunate child, who mistook my carriage for her father's this afternoon at the station. She is a college girl, a stranger in town, and till her father claims her—"

Oh, the baby! the baby! She was stiffening like a rod before his very eyes. How did his words explain his having his arm round the unfortunate child? His conscience was so clean that the dear little man actually overlooked the fact that it wasn't my presence in the carriage, but his conduct there that had excited Mrs. Dowager Diamonds.

And didn't the story sound thin? I tell you, Tom, when it comes to lying to a woman you've got to think up something stronger than it takes to make a man believe in you—if you happen to be female yourself.

I didn't wait for him to finish, but waltzed right in. I danced straight up to that side of beef with the diamonds still on it, and flinging my arms about her, turned a coy eye on the bishop.

"You said your wife was out of town, daddy," I cried, gayly. "Have you got another wife besides mummy?"

The poor bishop! Do you think he tumbled? Not a bit—not a bit. He sat there gasping like a fish, and Mrs. Dowager Diamonds, surprised by my sudden attack, stood bolt upright, about as pleasant to hug as—as you are, Tom, when you're jealous.

The trouble with the bishop's set is that it's deadly slow. Now, if I had really been the bishop's daughter—all right, I'll go on.

"Oh, mummy," I went on, quickly. You know how I said it, Tom—the way I told you after that last row that Dan Christensen wasn't near so good-looking as you—remember? "Oh, mummy, you don't know how good it feels to get home. Out there at that awful college, studying and studying and studying, sometimes I thought I'd lose my senses. There's a girl out there now suffering from nervous prostration. She worked so hard preparing for the mid-years. What's her name? I can't think—I can't think, my head's so tired. But it sounds like mine, a lot like mine. Once—I think it was yesterday—I thought it was mine, and I made up my mind suddenly to come right home and bring it with me. But it can't be mine, can it? It can't be my name she's got. It can't be, mummy, say it can't, say it can't!"

Tom, I ought to have gone on the stage. I'll go yet, when you're sent up some day. Yes, I will. You'll be where you can't stop me.

I couldn't see the bishop, but the dowager—oh, I'd got her. Not so bad an old body, either, if you only take her the right way. First, she was suspicious, and then she was scared. And then, bit by bit, the stiffness melted out of her, her arms came up about me, and there I was, lying all comfy, with the diamonds on her neck boring rosettes in my cheeks, and she a-sniffling over me and patting me and telling me not to get excited, that it was all right, and now I was home mummy would take care of me, she would, that she would.

She did. She got me on to a lounge, soft as—as marshmallows, and she piled one silk pillow after another behind my back.

"Come, dear, let me help you off with your coat," she cooed, bending over me.

"Oh, mummy, it's so cold! Can't I please keep it on?"

To let that coat off me was to give the whole thing away. My rig underneath, though good enough for your girl, Tom, on a holiday, wasn't just what they wear in the square. And, d'ye know, you'll say it's silly, but I had a conviction that with that coat I should say good-by to the nerve I'd had since I got into the bishop's carriage—and from there into society. I let her take the hat, though, and I could see by the way she handled it that it was all right—the thing; her kind, you know. Oh, the girl I got it from had good taste, all right.

I closed my eyes for a moment as I lay there and she stood stroking my hair. She must have thought I'd fallen asleep, for she turned to the bishop, and holding out her hand, she said, softly:

"My dear, dear bishop, you are the best-hearted, the saintliest man on earth. Because you are so beautifully clean-souled yourself, you must pardon me. I am ashamed to say it, but I shall have no rest till I do. When I saw you in the carriage downtown, with that poor, demented child, I thought, for just a moment—oh, can you forgive me? It shows what an evil mind I have. But you, who know so well what Edward is, what my life has been with him, will see how much reason I have to be suspicious of all men!"

I shook, I laughed so hard. What a corker her Edward must be! See, Tom, poor old Mrs. Dowager up in the square having the same devil's luck with her man as Molly Elliott down in the alley has with hers. I wonder if you're all alike. No, for there's the bishop. He had taken her hand sympathetically, forgivingly, but his silence made me curious. I knew he wouldn't let the old lady believe for a moment I was luny, if once he could be sure himself that I wasn't. You lie, Tom Dorgan, he wouldn't! Well—But the poor baby, how could he expect to see through a game that had caught the dowager herself? Still, I could hear him walking softly toward me, and I felt him looking keenly down at me long before I opened my eyes.

When I did, you should have seen him jump. Guilty he felt. I could see the blood rush up under his clear, thin old skin, soft as a baby's, to find himself caught trying to spy out my secret.

I just looked, big-eyed, up at him. You know; the way Molly's kid does, when he wakes. I looked a long, long time, as though I was puzzled.

"Daddy," I said, slowly, sitting up. "You—you are my daddy, ain't you?"

"Yes—yes, of course." It was the Dowager who got between him and me, hinting heavily at him with nods and frowns. But the dear old fellow only got pinker in the effort to look a lie and not say it. Still, he looked relieved. Evidently he thought I was luny all right, but that I had lucid intervals. I heard him whisper something like this to the dowager just before the maid came in with tea for me.

Yes, Tom Dorgan, tea for Nancy Olden off a silver salver, out of a cup like a painted eggshell. My, but that almost floored me! I was afraid I'd give myself dead away with all those little jars and jugs. So I said I wasn't hungry, though, Lord knows, I hadn't had anything to eat since early morning. But the dowager sent the maid away and took the tray herself, operating all the jugs and pots for me, and then tried to feed me the tea. She was about as handy as Molly's little sister is with the baby—but I allowed myself to be coaxed, and drank it down.

Tea, Tom Dorgan. Ever taste tea? If you knew how to behave yourself in polite society, I'd give you a card to my friend, the dowager, up in the square.

How to get away! That was the thing that worried me. I'd just made up my mind to have a lucid interval, when cr-creak, the front door opened, and in walked—

Tom, you're mighty cute—so cute you'll land us both behind bars some day—but you can't guess who came in on our little family party. Yes—oh, yes, you've met him.

MORE WOE FOR POLAND.

Her Industries Have Suffered More from War with Japan Than Rest of Russia.

According to United States Commercial Agent Harris at Eibenstock, Germany, the industries in Russian Poland have suffered more from the war with Japan than any other part of Russia. That is attributed to the fact that the Polish provinces on the Vistula manufacture, to a large extent, certain articles which are dependent for a market either upon foreign countries or distant parts of the Russian empire. One-half of the inhabitants of Russian Poland is dependent upon house industries for a living. These house industries consist of the manufacture of gloves, shoes, scarfs, neckties, shirts, underwear and ready-made clothing. There are whole cities in Poland, as for example Bresiny, in the district of Piotrkow, which are absolutely dependent upon the making of cheap, ready-made clothing for distant markets.

"Up to the outbreak of the war," says the report, "Siberia and the Russian possessions on the Pacific were the best markets for this industry. To-day there is practically no demand for manufactured goods in any Russian territory in the far east either directly or indirectly influenced by the war.

"Another cause of the extreme business depression in Russian Poland is a too liberal use of the long-credit system, which has been participated in to the fullest extent by both the manufacturer and merchant. At the outbreak of the war those manufacturers who were called upon to meet the demands of their foreign bankers were compelled to force payments from their customers. Such procedure has made its influence felt among every class of the inhabitants.

"The crop failure in the Vistula provinces in 1904, caused by the long-continued drought, has also produced much misery among the peasant classes."

OKEFINOKEE SWAMP BEARS

Put in Part of Their Time Preying Upon the Pig Pens of Georgia Farmers.

"The next time the president goes off on a hunting trip I hope he will come down our way," said S. B. Tison of Waycross, Ga., to the Washington Post.

"The great Okefinokee swamp begins not far from our town, and extends due south for a distance of about 40 miles, running over into Florida. Here in this vast tract of desolate bog and swamp are thousands of black bear and deer, and wild turkeys without number. The whole region is a hunter's paradise, and yet so abundant is the game in this remote and desolate country that it does not seem to diminish in spite of the Nimrods.

"The bears weigh from 200 to 300 pounds and put in a great part of their time preying upon the pig pens of the farmers. If forced into a fight, they are dangerous antagonists, and no prudent hunter will attack one save at a point of vantage."

Italy's Industrial Advance.

Not many people in the United States are fully aware of how rapidly Italy is advancing in industrial importance. In some ways northern Italy has in the last ten years shown as promising development in an industrial way as is to be found anywhere in Europe. The never-failing water supply of the snow-topped mountains is being utilized by the electrical engineers in a way which promises to convert northern Italy into a great industrial state. Nowhere in Europe is there a population better fitted to aid in an industrial development. The people are dexterous, quick to learn and industrious, and up to the present time the general wage scale compares favorably with that of any competitors which they have to meet. The result of these favorable conditions has been, for instance, the development of the silk industry at a rate which sounds like statistics of American industrial growth.—Frank A. Vanderlip, in Scribner's.

The Cold South.

From the observations made by recent antarctic explorers, Prof. Julius Hann has recalculated the average temperature of the southern hemisphere as compared with the northern, and his results differ, in some respects, from those heretofore accepted. He finds that the mean temperature south of the equator, for the entire year, is about two and three-quarters degrees lower than that north of the equator. But the annual variation of temperature in the northern hemisphere is twice as large as in the southern, our summer temperature being much higher and our winter temperature perceptibly lower than those of the corresponding seasons in the southern half of the globe.—Youth's Companion.

nied them.

A vote was called on the question and Councilman Bullock, Higham, Hibbard, Charles C. Randolph, Tyler and Wilson voted for the adoption of the ordinance and Councilmen Gloak, Murphy, Tolles and Daniel voted in the negative.

The full text of the ordinance is as follows:

"Section 27. That in order to enable the Common Council more effectively to regulate the sale of spirituous and fermented liquors within said city as they deem most conductive to the public good, the place in which any applicant for license to sell spirituous and fermented liquors, or for license to sell spirituous, vinous, malt or brewed liquors, under any of the preceding sectibns of this ordinance proposes to carry on his business under such license, is hereby required to be accurately set forth in the application for such license, and to be within the territory comprised within the following boundary lines, to wit:

"Beginning at a point in the city line at Green brook distant one hundred and fifty (150) feet northeasterly from the center line of Watchung avenue; thence running southwesterly along said city line to the center line of Grove street; thence southeasterly along the center line of Grove street to the center line of West Front street; thence southwesterly along the center line of West Front street to a point distant one hundred and fifty (150) feet southwesterly from the center line of Central avenue; thence southeasterly in a course drawn parallel with the center line of Central avenue distant one hundred and fifty (150) feet southwesterly therefrom to the tracks of the main stem of the Central Railroad of New Jersey as the same now lies; thence northeasterly along said tracks to a point on said tracks distant one hundred and fifty (150) feet southwesterly from the center line of Park avenue; thence southeasterly in a course drawn parallel with the center line of Park avenue and distant one hundred and fifty (150) feet southwesterly therefrom to a point in said course distant one hundred and fifty (150) feet southeasterly from the center line of West Fourth street; thence northeasterly in a course drawn parallel with the center line of West Fourth street and East Fourth street and distant one hundred and fifty (150) feet southeasterly therefrom to a point in said course and the projection thereof distant one hundred and fifty (150) feet northeasterly from the center line of Watchung avenue; thence northwesterly in a straight line to the point of beginning.

"Provided, nevertheless, that the foregoing provisions of this section shall not prevent the granting of any renewal of any license lawfully in force at the time this section takes effect to the same person who shall have been the lawful holder of such license continuously from that time to the time of such renewal."

CLOSED PORTALS.

Some local Knights of Columbus attended Embarkation day on Saturday at Atlantic City. The most important question which will come before the Knights is that which is now agitating the heirarchy of the Catholic church, the question of canonizing Christopher Columbus, whom the order has chosen as its patrons. There will not be a formal conference, but it is expected that individual members will express their opinions and give an impetus to the movement, which has its strongest followers in Europe. A monument to Columbus in the Vatican gardens in Rome is favored by the organization.

ROUTINE WORK.

Public Hearing on Sewer Commission's Report September 5—The Dog Catcher's Troubles.

So that it will be possible to use single end trolley cars in this city, the Public Service Corporation asked the Common Council at the August meeting, last night, to give it permission to locate extra switches at Richmond and East Fifth street. West Fourth street and Grant avenue, West Front street and Grant avenue. With these switches a reversal would be very easy, and it is believed that the request will be granted. The matter was referred to the street committee.

Among the petitions received were for lights, two on East Third street and one on East Second street, between Richmond and Berckman streets. They were refused.

The League of American Municipalities extended an invitation to the Common Council to send a representative to the ninth annual convention to be held at Toledo, Ohio, August 24-26. Mr. Bullock remarked that he thought it would be an important conference and advised the city to have a representative there and Street Commissioner Gavett's name was proposed. The matter was finally laid over until tonight's meeting.

Much amusement was occasioned by the resignation of Pierre H. Moore as dog catcher. He stated that his expenses had been $1.50 more than he had received for the capture of eight canines at twenty-five cents, besides he had more enemies than he could make up and the position had lost him considerable work. The matter was referred to the police committee and later accepted.

Street Commissioner Gavett reported the granting of 111 sewer permits, and Building Inspector T. O. Doane reported that during July, twenty-two building permits were granted.

The report of the sewer commissioners, Robert A. Meeker, John W. Murray, Jr., and S. P. T. Wilbur, was presented and on resolution offered by Mr. Tolles, Tuesday night, September 5, was fixed as the time when it will be considered and a public hearing will be granted those interested.

A resolution offered by Mr. Tolles and adopted, provided for an appropriation of $30 to L. Moraller & Son, the Park avenue jewelers, for the care and keeping of the town clock for one year from July 1, of this year to July 1, 1906.

Mr. Tolles called up the supplement to the tax ordinance and the sewer improvement ordinance and they were adopted on third reading. Another resolution by Mr. Tolles which was adopted, provided for the transfer of $500 from the general to the poor fund.

Mr. Wilson reported on the petition of Mary Skillman for the grading of Midway avenue, and on his recommendation it was referred to the corporation counsel for further consideration. He also recommended that the petition of Mary Laing and P. Connolly asking that the name of Laing avenue be changed, be denied for the present, as it is likely that other changes will be made in the avenue later.

The ordinance providing for the installation of a portion of the Richmond street sewer to carry off the surface water, was adopted on second reading. This improvement will cost about $2,500 and it is expected that succeeding Common Councils will extend the work, which it is estimated will cost $20,000 when completed.

The ordinance calls for fifteen inlets in the vicinity of East Fifth, Sixth streets and South avenue, and will go a long way toward relieving that section of the city in high water.

Mr. Bullock reported on two petitions for fire hydrants, one from Ida C. Weyer and others asking for a hydrant on North avenue and Terrill road and Mr. Bullock recommended that it be denied owing to the fact that there are very few houses in that section. He recommended the granting of one at East Sixth and Central streets, and this was adopted.

Mr. Bullock offered a resolution authorizing the expenditure of a sum not to exceed $500 to make necessary repairs in the nature of painting, papering at No. 1 and No. 3 fire houses and the placing of new doors at No. 1 house, together with the painting of some of the apparatus. The resolution was afterward withdrawn to permit the itemizing of the expenditures and it will be presented tonight.

Mr. Higham, chairman of the public affairs committee reported on the complaints made against the Public Service Corporation regarding certain violations on the West Fourth street line and stated that they had been corrected. As to the petition from the Board of Health asking that Tier's pond be cleaned and put in sanitary condition, he offered a motion that a sum not to exceed $50 be appropriated for the cleaning of the pond on the city side, the work to be done under the direction of the street commissioner. The motion was adopted.

On the recommendation of Mr. Murphy two electric lights were granted on West Third street, near Clinton avenue and one on Arlington place.

For information solely, Mr. Wilson called up the ordinance to extend the sanitary system of sewers and he offered a resolution providing that the ordinance be considered at a public hearing to be held Tuesday night, September 5. The resolution was adopted. After Mr. Wilson offered an ordinance providing for the establishment of the curb and sidewalk lines in certain streets in the Netherwood district, he asked to have it referred back for further consultation with the corporation counsel.

In view of the fact that there is a certain section in the southern part of the city which cannot be sewered by gravity, Mr. Wilson offered a resolution, which was adopted, appropriating a sum not to exceed $500 to conduct an investigation into the matter and learn the cost of installing pumping stations for sewering this part of the city. Mr. Tolles moved that when the meeting adjourn it be to meet tonight for the purpose of passing the tax duplicates.

ST. THOMAS'S DESTROYED

St. Thomas's Episcopal church, at Fifty-third street and Fifth avenue, New York, one of the richest and most fashionable in America, was totally destroyed by fire this morning. Nothing remains of the brownstone, ivy-clad structure but the tower and a portion of the crumbling walls. The loss, which includes priceless paintings and relics, will amount to over a quarter of a million dollars. The fire was caused, it is believed, by defective insulation. For a time the Webb, Twombly and Rockefeller houses were threatened, but the firemen succeeded in preventing a spread of the flames.

SCORES BURIED IN RUIN

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 8.—The roof and four floors of the big department store of the John G. Myers Company fell with a crash at 8.45 o'clock this morning, three-quarters of an hour after the store opened for business, and buried scores of employees in the ruins.

The store had been going alterations. Following a short, fierce rain the whole center and back of the roof and also floors above the ground floor fell with a crash, carrying everything in their descent and leaving the sky for a roof.

As usual in department stores, two-thirds of the 250 employees are women.

Every avilable physician was summoned to the scene.

It was reported that six dead were taken out of the James street side of the building where the greatest havoc was wrought.

CHILD DROWNS IN CELLAR.

Cranford Girl's Body is Found in a Vacant House.

Cranford, Aug. 8.—Mary Bukowski, nine years old, daughter of Joseph Bukowski, was found drowned Sunday night in the cellar of a vacant house on Sixteenth street, Kenilworth, by her father. The child left her home on Fifteenth street, about half past five, to play on the front porch of the vacant house, and crawled through a hole in the brick foundation wall, and accidentally fell into the cellar, in which there was four feet of water.

She was alone and no one saw her fall. The father started to look for his missing child. He was obliged to break open the doors of the house to reach the cellar, where he found the body of his child floating at the foot of the cellar stairs. Picking up his child he bore her lifeless body to his home on Fifteenth street, and summoned Dr. C. W. McConnell, who worked a half hour, vainly endeavoring to resusticate the child. County Physician Westcott was notified and viewed the body this morning and gave a permit for burial.

HOLE EIGHT MILES LONG

Pennsy Will Have An Approach That Long to its North River Tubes.

FILLING IN MEADOWS

Railroad Company Will Bore to Cortlandt Street for Electric Traffic Route—How It Is Being Done.

Recent operations in the vicinity of the shaft in Weehawken Heights, from which the Pennsylvania Railroad Company is extending its North River tunnel, reveal some of the hitherto unpublished purposes of the company in connection with that great enterprise.

One of the unguessed problems—and probably the most important, because of its effect upon the surrounding communities—has been as to the method and point of approach to the river bore. Work that has just begun on the great salt meadows that stretch from the west foot of the Palisades for miles to Newark, shows that the approach will be from the little town of Kearny, on the extreme western line of the meadows, on the bank of the Passaic River.

There are eight miles of swamp between the town and the deep tunnel shaft in Weehawken Heights. The company will build a roadbed from Kearny across the meadows till the west side of the Heights is encountered. Through the hill a tunnel is to be blown to the heading of the river tunnel. The ride through this auxiliary bore to the river opening will be nearly a mile. Men are now at work on it.

The new roadbed, with swamp land that the company has heretofore filled in for its use, and other enterprises contemplated by the Lehigh Valley, Erie, and Lackawanna roads will rescue large areas of the meadows from the mosquito, and the expectation is that all the meadows lying within the limits of Hudson county will soon be converted into solid ground, thus extinguishing the mosquito-breeding quagmires that the residents are so industriously fighting with Standard oil and dykes.

The opening on the west side of the Heights is above the level of the swamp, to carry the road over the tracks of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western road, and the earth taken from it is already banked up to make the needed elevation.

This plan of work seems to indicate that Jersey City will lose much of her importance as a terminal. Within recent years the company has spent $4,000,000 to straighten the approach through Bergen Cut into Jersey City, thereby gaining four minutes in the running time between New York and Philadelphia. The enormous iron trainshed and the handsome station at Jersey City will also be far less busy than at present.

Important changes in the course of the road through Newark are also likely, because Kearny is miles further up the Passaic than the company's chief station in Newark, at Market street.

Recent developments on the water front at Jersey City are taken as signs that the company may contemplate the use of electric motors for local traffic to Newark, Elizabeth and possibly beyond, into New York. It has been understood almost from the start that the tunnel now being built from Exchange place, under the river to the foot of Cortlandt street, is to be for trolley use, and the shaft from which the tunnel diggers are building riverward is sunk in the yards of the Pennsylvania Company.

Secrecy has been observed as to the exact uses of this tunnel, the approaches to it, and the location of the stations, but those in Jersey City who are closest to the company hint that when this second under-river bore shall have been completed, a thorough system of electric service between Jersey City and points beyond will be instituted.

SHOTGUN FOR ELOPERS.

Farmhand Runs Away With Fourteen-Year-Old Girl.

Washington, August 8—Spencer Winters, a prosperous farmer of Warren county, living three miles south of this place, came here shortly after daylight yesterday morning looking for Gus Reed, his farmhand, and his daughter Luella. Winters had a shotgun and expressed a desire to find Reed and shoot his head off. Reed is a German of great bulk, over forty years old. Luella is less than fifteen years old. They have been doing the milking together, and this opportunity gave Reed a chance to make love to the girl.

About 3 o'clock yesterday morning the girl let herself out of her bedroom window and was met by Reed. They went to the barn, saddled one of the horses and rode off together. Winters heard them getting ready but discovered nothing when he made an investigation.

When the family arose yesterday morning the situation was learned. Winters has visited nearly every town in lower Warren county yesterday looking for Reed and his daughter, but has been unable to find them. His shotgun is loaded, both barrels.

Harry Bunn, of the Adirondacks, is visiting his sister, Mrs. Frank VanNess, of Somerset street.

PLAINFIELD FIREMEN FORM A PENSION ASSOCIATION

For the purpose of assisting the regular and call men of the fire department to establish a pension fund, the legislature last winter enacted a measure giving them such a right and recently the members of the local department met and organized what is known as the Plainfield Fire Department Pension Association. Notice of this action was presented at the August meeting of the Common Council, last night, when the sanction and co-operation of the members was asked in behalf of the movement. At the meeting of the members Assistant Chief A. F. Jennings, Captain James Daly, Charles Graves and Edward M. McCann were chosen trustees and the Common Council was asked to confirm this election and to render such assistance as possible.

Mr. Bullock explained the objects of the association, stating that the legislative enactment gives it the right to organize a fund for the protection of the members, widows and orphans. An amount not to exceed one per cent. of the firemen's salaries can be deducted for this fund, and all donations of moneys, fees derived from certain sources can be placed there also and the city is given the right to appropriate a certain percentage of money to the fund, which in the case of Plainfield would amount to about $130 this year.

Mr. Bullock also stated that the fund at present amounts to $279.88 and he made a motion that it be the sense of the Common Council that the fire department have the sanction and co-operation of the members in its efforts. He said that a little later he would move that the city appropriate the sum allowed by law. His motion prevailed and the association is assured of the desired co-operation.

ADVISORY BOARD OF ENGINEERS FAVORS MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP OF WATER SUPPLY

Report Presented to Common Council Contains Many Suggestions

TO BE PUT TO VOTE.

Action Is Deferred Until the Regular September Meeting—Plan Proposed by Engineers.

As foretold exclusively in yesterday's Daily Press, the Common Council at its meeting last night, took up the question of controlling the city water supply and but for the fact that it was an adjourned session would have so arranged matters that the date for a public hearing would have been set. It will be considered more fully at the next meeting and in a very short time the subject will be in the people's hands.

The first open discussion of the plan came after Councilman Higham, of the Public Affairs Committee, presented a report on the question as prepared by a committee of three who have been studying the local situation quietly but thoroughly for the past year. They are Joseph O. Osgood, chief engineer of the New Jersey Central and the designer and constructor of the Newark Bay drawbridge; William L. Saunders, president of the Ingersoll-Rand Drill Company, both of whom reside in the borough, and Benjamin S. Church, a former Plainfielder and an engineer of wide reputation and experience. These men have served voluntarily, giving their time and ability for the public cause without remuneration, yet leaving nothing undone that might aid the Council in bringing the matter before the voters in the proper light.

The report is a model of conciseness and explains the situation so thoroughly, in reply to a query from he declared that it was unnecessary entire:

Jersey City, N. J. Feb. 6, 1905.
Mr. Theodore D. Wilson, Chairman, Committee on Streets and Sewers, Plainfield.,

Dear Sir: Referring to a letter addressed to Mr. W. L. Gloak, Chairman of the Committee on Streets and Sewers of Plainfield, under date of July 19th, 1904, to the undersigned: We would beg leave to reply to the questions therein asked as follows:

1st. We are of the opinion that it will be for the benefit of the City of Plainfield as a measure of economy, as well as for other reasons, to own its water supply system, although we do not look for any very great reduction in the existing rates as a result of such ownership.

2d. Outside of the question of immediate economy in operating we are of the opinion on broader grounds that the city should own its water supply system. Our reasons for this conclusion may be briefly outlined as follows:

The conditions at Plainfield are such that it is entirely practicable for the city to obtain water within its limits at moderate cost, and in view of its needs for flushing sewers, hydrant supply and street sprinkling, as well as for domestic use, there seems to be ample reason to expect that a water supply system could be profitably operated by the city and that it would be greatly to its advantage to control the situation rather than to have the water works in the hands of an independent company. At present the streets of the city are torn up not only by the city in constructing, taking care of and connecting with its sewers, but by an independent water company and a gas company in laying water and gas mains, maintaining them and frequent new connections. It seems to us evident that if the city can, to a great extent control the tearing up of its streets and prevent this being done by outside parties it can effect a very material saving in the maintainance of its streets and obtain better streets at a less cost than at present.

In view of the large consolidations now taking place all over the country it is perfectly possible that if the water works remain in the hands of a private corporation they may become part of a large system and the interests of Plainfield be subordinated to those of the controlling company or, indeed, to those of some other community.

It is plain to us that the underground waters of Plainfield should first be made use of for the people of Plainfield, and apparently the only way to make sure of this is for the city to own and control its water supply. At present a considerable portion of the water pumped in the city is piped to other places. There may be no objection to this at present owing to the abundance of the supply but with the growth of the city the time may not be very far distant when the water company must exercise a choice between supplying Plainfield or suplying other communities and it is by no means sure that when the time comes Plainfield will have the preference, and if it does it may be made to pay dearly for the privilege.

It should be mentioned in this connection that the tendency in late years, due to more extended experience in such matters, has been for communities to acquire the water works which formerly were owned by private corporations and, when new works are required, for communities to build them rather than to resort to the aid of private companies.

As noted above, the conditions in Plainfield are especially favorable to the owning of the works by the city, due to the copious supply of water of good quality under the ground within the city limits.

The city has already constructed a system of sewers to carry away the water supply after it has served its purpose, and with it the waste products of the city, and in order to preserve the purity of its underground water supply must from time to time extend its sewer system at considerable expense. The water supply and the sewerage system are mutually interdependent and it would seem could best be handled together.

3d. We are of the opinion that it is advisable to acquire the plant of the Plainfield Water Supply Company if this can be done at a reasonable cost either by purchase or condemnation.

4th. If it should prove impracticable to acquire the present plant of the Plainfield Water Company, we believe that the city would be justified in constructing new works and that this could be done, if necessary, independently of the water company, although in any case the pipes of the water company should be purchased to avoid duplicating them in the streets.

5th. As to whether part of the present plan should be acquired and the remainder duplicated by new construction; it would probably be best to buy the whole of the existing plant within the limits of the city and to construct anew only in case the present plant within the city limits could not be acquired on a proper basis. We are not in a position to express an opinion as to the right of the city, under the existing law, to own pipes outside the city limits, but it would seem a reasonable thing, in case the city acquired the present works, for it to supply water at the city line to the other communities served at this time so long as the supply remained sufficiently abundant for the purpose and provided, of course, that the rates were such as to properly remunerate the city.

6th. As to whether the Borough of North Plainfield should unite with Plainfield in the use of a municipal plant, we would suggest that North Plainfield might purchase so much of the plant as lies within its boundaries and take water from the city of Plainfield on some mutually agreeable basis.

7th. We are of the opinion that it is not desirable at this time to take any steps to place the electric light and gas works under municipal control. The instances where this has been found necessary or desirable are much less frequent than in case of water supply plants. It is true that the lighting companies cause disturbances of the streets which require city regulation and there are questions of rates which may well enlist the attention of the city authorities, but it does not seem desirable at this time, or until absolutely necessary, to go into the question of acquiring for the city these agencies of the public service.

Respectfully submitted,
JOSEPH O. OSGOOD.
W. L. SAUNDERS.
B. S. CHURCH.
Advisory Committee of Civil Engineers.

The report was accepted and referred to the committee on Public Affairs and was again brought up later in the session by Councilman Higham. In addressing the Council he declared that is was unnecessary to consider the preliminary details any further as the report had gone into them thoroughly. He stated that the committee had been in conference with the councilmanic committee from time to time and not a step had been made but what the ground had been carefully measured. He offered a resolution to the effect that the matter be presented to the voters of the city at a date to be set later but it was laid over because of the slim attendance. Only six of the eleven members were present and it was the opinion of a majority that the entire Council should have a voice in the preliminary proceedings. This was put to a vote and carried and the date for the hearing will undoubtedly be set at the September meeting.

TO BLOCK TAX DODGERS

Assessor Cooley Will Inaugurate a New Plan Next Year.

AND START EARLY.

Wont Ask Taxpayers to Tell Him About Personal Property; Will Look It Over Himself.

Preliminary to drawing up the tax list of North Plainfield for the coming fiscal year, Assessor J. H. Cooley submitted his books to the Borough Council last night for the regular annual inspection. The accounts were not gone over completely, and the Council will meet again in special session to finish the inspection, tomorrow night.

After the session the Mayor and Assessor were asked if any approximate figures as to total valuations and the percentage of increase could be given out, but both officials said it was too early for such information.

"There will be an increase in valuations, of course," said the Mayor, "but whether it will be much more than the usual percentage of increase it will be impossible to tell until we have gone all through the list."

In the course of the meeting Assessor Cooley announced that he would make a house-to-house personal inspection of taxables other than real property next year.

"It is hard to get information as to personal property by questioning people," he said, "and I will not try to do so in ascertaining the increase next year. I will go inside the houses and appraise the property myself."

"That is the only proper way in which to get at the value of personal property," said Councilman Krewson. "There ought to be somebody to do it regularly, every year."

"Well, next year I am going to begin at it in January," rejoined the Assessor. "The law allows us to begin assessing at that time."

"A good way to get at the value of personal property that has escaped notice is to go out after the delinquent taxpayers," said Mayor Smalley. "As soon as you corner one man who has avoided payment for a time, he will reel off a string of names of relatives and neighbors 'who have as much property as he has, and ought to be taxed just as much as him.'"

After the book work, the Council went into executive session to consider the case of John Mowray, a caliman who has been unable to work since an accident at a fire laid him up a month ago, and other minor matters.

"We haven't had an executive session in about seventeen months," said the Mayor. "I guess the public can stand for another one."

ARMED GUARD TO WATCH COUNTY JAIL

SOMERSET DEPUTY SHERIFF ALARMED BY OUTSIDE LOITERER.

Suspicious looking individuals prowling about the Somerset county jail at Somerville have so preyed upon the mind of Deputy Sheriff John Anderson that the matter was called to the attention of the Board of Freeholders at their meeting yesterday. It was declared that the loiterers are friends of prisoners confined in the structure and that a plan has been on foot to make a general delivery. The unstability of the old jail makes this a possibility and all the officials have felt more or less uneasiness. The board decided to employ an armed guard to patrol the jail grounds at night and balk the attempt of any one without authority to enter the grounds.

The freeholders are progressing with the plans for the new jail and the actual work of construction will begin just as soon as the contract is let.

The Conductor's Side.

D. Lamerson, of West Third street, P. S. C. conductor No. 4801, denies that he was guilty of all the passenger who complained of him in yesterday's Daily Press said he did. He says he did not say he was not supposed to close the curtains, and declares the Plainfielder swore at him almost as soon as be brought the matter of closing them up.

Phil. Daab's Brother Loses.

In the fire at the D. L. & W. docks in Hoboken yesterday, one of the oldest landmarks of the city, Duke's Palace, was destroyed. The old hostelry was owned by Martin Daab, Jr., brother of Philip Daab, manager of the Plainfield and the Hoboken baseball teams. The building was burned to the ground.

WEALTHY MOTORIST SUED

Montclair Man Demands $20,000 From Francis De Lacy Hyde.

FOR SON'S INJURIES

Accident Happened Two Years Ago—Boy Victim Alleged to be Crippled For Life by Hurts Sustained.

Damages to the extent of $20,000 is claimed from Francis DeLacy Hyde, owner of the handsome estate on Mountain avenue, by Lewis Galloway, of Montclair. The latter has brought suit for his son, Thomas Galloway, who is said to have been badly hurt in a crash between Hyde's automobile and a carriage in which Galloway was riding.

Young Galloway is seventeen years old. The accident in which he was hurt occurred in 1903.

It is claimed that the auto hit the carriage, and that Hyde was responsible for the crash. The lad was badly injured, and it is claimed that he will be a cripple for the rest of his life.

Mr. Hyde is wealthy. He is president of the Union County Investment Company and has other extensive business and financial interests. He is an enthusiast in motoring.

CRIMINAL ACTION IN AUTO ACCIDENT CASE

WARRANTS FOR STANBERRY AND HARRISON.

Criminal actions have been instituted by both sides in the Stanbery-Harrison accident case. Warrants charging each driver with criminal negligence have been sworn out. They have not been served.

The warrant against Harrison was sworn out by Freeholder William Westphal, whose wife died as the result of injuries received in the crash. It was issued by Justice Warden, of Dunellen. Fred J. Huff is the lawyer.

Harrison swore out the warrant against Stanbery, as a citizen and eyewitness. Justice VonMinden, of New Market, issued it. Harrison's lawyer is Walter L. Hetfield, Jr.

The warrant for Harrison was issued several days ago, and a day or more before the counter charge was brought. Why it has not been served only the lawyer knows, and he refuses to make any statement.

The damage suit instituted by Harrison last week is set for a hearing before Justice VonMinden next Monday.

FIREMEN BEATEN AGAIN.

Brooklyn Takes Second Game from Local Laddies by Score of 6 to 4.

The Brooklyn firemen trimmed the local red-shirt nine again yesterday. The game took place on the Brooklyn's field, and they took it by a score of 6 to 4.

Smith's wildness in the early innings enabled the Brooklyn's to land on him and put the game away. It rained off and on for five innings and Phil Smith had difficulty in controlling the ball. He pitched a great game after the rain fall was eliminated, and his mates played a plucky up hill game but the Brooklyn's held their lead.

After the game the Plainfielders were entertained at a big supper. Assistant Chief Jennings and twenty-four other junketeers accompanied the team.

The players from here lined up as follows: Smith, p; Davis, c; Daly, 1b; Connolly, 2b; Jaeger, 3b; Marcus Hoyt, ss; Clark, lf; C. Townley, cf; Theodore La Rue, rf.

Household Goods Auctioned.

The household goods of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Leary, of West Fifth street, who will start for Ireland today, were sold at auction yesterday afternoon. The sale began at 1 o'clock, and was well attended in spite of the rain. High prices were obtained although the sale dragged until nightfall. P. H. Latourette was the auctioneer. Mr. and Mrs. Leary will make their home in Ireland, where Mr. Leary is to start in business.

Electric Light Wires Start Fire.

Crossed electric light wires set fire to a tree on Webster place this morning and startled the nearby residents. Someone sent a still alarm to fire headquarters and the chemical engine responded. The blaze was put out and the wires placed where they belonged.

Mrs. Hannah Connolly and Miss Josie Daley, of West Eighth street are spending their vacation at Worcester, Mass.

GOING OVER TAX LISTS

Common Council Examines the Assessors' Books.

AN ADJOURNED SESSION

Appropriations Made to Send Chief Doane and Commissioner Gavett to Conventions.

Aside from taking up the municipal water plant question, the Common Council transacted but little business at its meeting last night. Only six of the members were in attendance and the half dozen devoted most of the time to going over the tax lists as submitted by the assessors. This was done in adjourned session and the books were accepted as revised and corrected on resuming. There were a few changes made but from all accounts none of them amounted to a great deal.

Councilman Bullock introduced a resolution that $150 be appropriated from the general fund to defray the expenses of Chief Doane at the annual convention of fire chiefs at Duluth, Minn., next week. It was carried unanimously as was a similar resolution that City Engineer Andrew J. Gavett represent Plainfield at the gathering of the League of American Municipalities at Toledo, O., this month. His resolution asked that $125 be appropriated for Mr. Gavett, but Mr. Tolles offered an amendment that it be $150 and that figure was specified.

Mr. Bullock explained to the Council that it is more important this year than ever that both Chief Doane and Mr. Gavett attend these conventions. The former, he said, is one of a committee of three appointed last year to consider the standard thread for all fire hose and his report is to be acted up in order to have the matter brought before Congress at the next session. Mr. Gavett has never attended any gathering in the nature of a convention at the taxpayers' expense, he said, but the scope of the work taken up by the League is of such a nature that it is to the city's benefit to have a representative at its sessions. The ready response with which the other members voted for the resolutions showed they held similar beliefs.

Two licenses were granted upon motion of Mr. Tyler, one to Louis Springer for peddling and one to William Cates as cabman.

WOOD-CHOPPER DRIVES AXE INTO HIS HAND

ALBERT HARDCASTLE NEARLY SEVERED HIS HAND.

In splitting wood in the cellar of his home on Clinton avenue last night, Albert Hardcastle, an electrician's helper, nearly chopped his left hand off. He did split one finger and cut almost through another.

Among the chunks of wood Hardcastle put on the bolck to split, was one with a big knot in the center. He took the axe in his right hand and used his left to steady the chunk. When the blow fell the axe blade slipped from the wood and buried its edge in his hand. The index finger was split and the thumb was cut almost through.

Hardcastle hastily bound his hurt up and went to Dr. Long's office, on Park avenue. The physician had a hard job getting the thumb together, but he finally succeeded in sewing it up. Two stitches were put in the other finger. Hardcastle lost a lot of blood, but the flow was stopped before he was weakened enough to feel the effect.

MISS JONES DEAD.

Former Plainfield Young Woman Passes Away in Brooklyn.

Miss Grace May Jones, daughter of Emma A. and the late Evan K. Jones, died yesterday at her home in Brooklyn. She had been ill but two days with congestion of the brain.

Miss Jones was twenty-two years old and always resided in Plainfield until a short time ago when the family moved from the city. She was a bright young woman and had a large circle of friends locally. She is survived by her mother and one sister, Miss Sadie W. Jones and a brother, Evan K. Jones.

The funeral service will be held from her late home tomorrow night at 8 o'clock.

Rebecca Voorhees Buried.

Funeral services over the body of Rebecca Voorhees were held from her late home, on East Third street, yesterday afternoon, Rev. H. C. Ashley officiated. Interment was made in Hillside cemetery.

NEW THEATRE TICKETS ON SALE TOMORROW

FIRST SHOW AT NEW THEATRE TO BE "COUNTY CHAIRMAN."

The construction work having reached the point where there is no doubt as to the opening on August 24, Managers Counihan and Gelatt will begin the seat sale for the new Plainfield theatre tomorrow. As previously announced, the initial attraction will be George Ade's highly successful comedy, "The County Chairman," with the original cast that appeared during the long run at Wallack's theatre in New York. There is but one change and that has been to give George Thatcher, the famous minstrel man, the part of "Sassafras Livingston," hitherto interpreted by Willis Sweatnam. It is an unusually quaint "Darky" portrayal and Mr. Thatcher's ability as a blace-face artist enable him to bring out all the details and make it one of the most interesting characters in the play.

The tickets will be on sale at Schreiner's and Rowley's pharmacies and the scale of prices will be as follows: First eight rows of the orchestra, $2.50; the remainder of the orchestra, $2; first two rows in the balcony, $2; for the remainder, $1; all gallery seats, fifty cents. The box seats are to me $3. The total seating capacity of the house will be 1317, divided as follows: Orchestra, 512 chairs; balcony, 305; gallery 500. They are to be placed so that everyone commands a full view of the stage and will have commodious aisles between.

ASKS FREEHOLDERS FOR SUITABLE BRIDGE

MAYOR SMALLEY APPEARS BEFORE SOMERSET FREEHOLDERS.

The Somerset County Board of Freeholders did a great amount of business at the regular meeting in the Court House at Somerville yesterday.

Mayor Newton B. Smalley, of North Plainfield, was present and requested the board to meet in a joint session with the Union County Board at the proposed site for a bridge at West End avenue in North Plainfield. It was decided to meet there, Monday, Aug. 21, at 10 a. m.

The Van Doren patent cell was exhibited by the repersentative of the company. It is a very neat concern and the members seemed to be thoroughly pleased with it. The contract for the new jail will be put out next Tuesday, August 15, and it will contain 40 up-to-date cells. No action was taken anent the Van Doren cell.

A committee of prominent citizens of Bedminster township, consisting of Joseph Thomas, Tunis Melick, C. L. Layton, Isaiah C. Mullen, R. B. Dunham and Zachariah Smith, requested that the board favorably consider the petition now on file for the improvement, under the State Aid Road Act, of the road leading from Bedminster to Larger Grossroads, and thence to Lamington River. No action was taken. The board believes it has about as many roads under way as it can handle just now.

It was decided to build a stone arch bridge in Bernards township. Messrs. Whitenack, Philhower, Codington, Emmons and Demler were appointed as a committee to have charge of the construction. Bids will be received at the Court House next Tuesday at 3 p. m.

MAYOR DOES S. P. C. A. WORK.

Borough Executive Personally Directs Killing of Nag.

Mayor Smalley used his official power to succor an old horse yesterday. The horse, a very weak and skinny and aged one, was being driven by an old negro down Somerset street. It was so shakey and thin that the mayor's indignant compassion was aroused to a high pitch. He halted the wagon and walked out to the driver.

"You must get rid of that horse by humane means," he said with characteristic directness. "If you don't, I'll send somebody after you."

The negro whined, but the mayor was obdurate.

"He'll have to do something about that horse," said the mayor after the incident. "My goodness, that was the worst looking horse I ever saw. It disgraces the borough to have that sort of thing go on unchecked."

The negro is a resident of the borough, and a familiar character.

A. N. West, of Plainfield, is booked among recent arrivals at the Long Beach Hotel, L. I.

Among the guests registered at the Fenimore, Asbury Park, is Harry E. Moore, of this place.

The Misses Clyde and Marguerite Burnet, of Madison avenue, are at the Cliff House, Lake Minnewaska.

NO REWARD FOR FARMER

Trenton Police Decide Against Franklin Van Nuis' Claim.

SO WILL SOLICITORS.

The County and City Lawyers to Rule That Chief Kiely and His Men Made the Capture.

Franklin Van Nuis' claim to the $500 reward offered for the capture of Charles Long has been thrown out, by the Trenton police, and the city officials of that place will formally recognize the claim of Chief Kiely, Detective McCarthy and Patrolman Higgins who captured the murderer.

The matter was brought to a head yesterday in Trenton, when R. P. F. Von Minden, representing Van Nuis, called on Acting-Chief Cleary to push the farmer's claim. The lawyer filed the following affidavit:—

"To John J. Cleary, Acting Chief of Police of the city of Trenton, or to whom it may concern:

"Take notice—That I, Franklin Van Nuis, claim the reward offered for the apprehension of Charles Long, alias Charles Lott, the colored man who was wanted by the Mercer county authorities for the murder committed at Trenton on the morning of July 16, 1905.

"That I apprehended said Charles Long, alias Charles Lott, and all the officers did was to come and get him at my request; that I acted on the notice offering the reward, and apprehended said Charles Long, alias Charles Lott, pursuant thereto.

"Signed FRANKLIN VAN NUIS.
"R. P. F. VON MINDEN,
"Attorney for Claimant,
"Dated August 7, 1905."

It will be noticed that Van Nuis claims that he complied with the wording of the circular letter "for the apprehension of Charles Long, alias Charles Lott," and that he "apprehended Long."

The police department gave considerable study to the affair and Acting Captain McGowan and Sergeant Mullen held a consultation with Acting Chief Cleary. They finally decided that the matter should be placed in the hands of the city solicitor—that is, the offering of $250 by the city. The county reward will be decided upon by the county solicitor.

The solicitors will decide the matter against the farmer, as the legal meaning of the word "apprehension" is "to arrest or to seize." As Van Nuis did not "arrest or seize," he is not entitled to any part of the $500 reward offered by the authorities for the capture of Long. The solicitors will decide that Detective McCarthy and his aids, of the Plainfield police department, are the ones entitled to the entire reward.

This decision will be a hard blow to the farmer, as he was offered one-half of the money, by the Plainfield officers without a fight, but in view of the farmer's action in wanting the entire reward it is doubtful if the police will give him anything.

The police of Trenton are disposed in having Van Nuis brought before the bar of justice and charged with aiding and abetting a murderer to escape from the toils of justice.

They say: "Yes, it is true that Farmer Van Nuis notified us as to the whereabouts of Long and it was upon his information that Long was captured. But it was also through the actions of Farmers Nelson and Van Nuis that Long escaped Detectives Pilger and Clancy on the Saturday night following the murder, and the authorities were compelled to spend as much as the reward in hunting for Long after the negro had been tipped off and made his escape.

"Long told Van Nuis and Nelson that he committed a murder in Trenton and they shielded him as a murderer and fugitive from justice, when they should have immediately informed the police authorities that he was within the boundary of the property owned by them.

"While Long was regarded as a member of the family by the farmers, still that did not give them any right to shield a man who was wanted for a crime.

"They stand indictable for the offence they committed, and only this fact alone, when explained to Van Nuis and Nelson, caused them to try to aid in the arrest of Long."

Prosecutor Crossley, of Mercer county, who has been looking into the mater for the freeholders, says Van Nuis might be entitled to a part of the reward if he could prove that he induced Long to remain on the farm while he summoned the police, but even under such circumstances, the prosecutor says, the Plainfield police would be entitled to a share. Van Nuis steadfastly refuses to recognize the officers' right to even a look-in at the money.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Stanley Day's mail order paper, "The Advertiser's Guide," one of the best known publications of its kind in the United States, which was temporarily suspended a month ago, may be withdrawn entirely from circulation. Mr. Day intends to apply for second-class mail matter rates on the paper, and if his application is denied he will make no effort to resume publication. The "Guide" has never been listed as second-class matter, and Mr. Day has had to pay full rates for mailing ever since it started about seventeen years ago. In the past twelve years he has spent no less than $7,200 in postage on the publication. The paper is a bona fide and recognized periodical, rated as one of the best edited and most valuable in its field, and there seems no plain reason why second-class privileges should be denied it, but Mr. Day, having little faith in the discernment or good sense of departmental officials, and none at all in his congressman's anxiety to serve constituents between elections, is not wholly sanguine that the "Guide" will be rated as requested.

His many old friends in this vicinity will be highly pleased to hear that Rev. J. D. Martine, former pastor of the Presbyterian church, has been appointed superintendent of a large hospital in Trenton. Mr. Martine is at present in Marlborough, where he has a church. He will assume his new post about the fifteenth of the month. He will probably never return to the pulpit regularly. He has been a minister for many years.

Franklin VanNuis has decided to make a determined fight for the $500 reward on Charles Long, the negro murderer after whom the Trenton and Plainfield police searched in Piscataway. Mr. VanNuis has formally notified the Trenton police that he claims the reward and has announced that he will hire counsel to prosecute the claim, and resist the efforts of the Plainfield police to nullify it.

Weather Prophet William H. Cole predicted more heavy rain for today or tomorrow yesterday afternoon. He said the moon was tipped the wrong way for dry weather, and the latter wont come until the planet turns over. Mr. Cole has been acquainted with the moon for a number of years and knows her tricks.

The Baptist churches of the village, South Plainfield and Woodbridge went to Bellewood Park, on the Lehigh, this morning. The train started from Metuchen, the journey to there being made by trolley.

The school board of Piscataway township will hold a special meeting tomorrow night to arrange for another vote on the New Market school proposition.

Rev. Frank Fletcher, of the Baptist church, will start on his vacation tomorrow. He will go to Newton, Mass., and be gone a month.

Asa Merrill has returned to his home in Newark, but Mrs. Merrill is still at the home of Mr. Merrill, Sr. The latter is recovering steadily.

Rev. H. N. Jordan, pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, will not take a vacation this year.

John Peters, of Cranford, has returned home after a few days' visit to his parents.

Miss Florence Weinmeyer, of Mauch Chunk, is visiting Miss Lizzie Herlich.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD

The Daabsters will have a try at the All-Cubans at Crescent Oval Saturday afternoon. This is the colored team that defeated Plainfield early in the season.

The electric light service has shown a little improvement of late, although some of the lights on the side streets are still neglected.

The "Old Guards" are planning to hold another outing and clam bake the latter part of this month or the first week in September.

Life at Jerseyland Park has been very quiet of late, but the management denies the report that the park is to close shortly.

Mrs. James H. Buckley left yesterday for a stay of several weeks with her daughter, Mrs. William Woods, at Taunton, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Clark, of Finderne, have been visiting Mr. Clark's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Clark.

Park avenue is receiving a top dressing from the borough line to the Meadow bridge.

Mrs. Albert Moore is entertaining her mother from Elizabeth for a week.

Miss May Marsh is sojourning for a time at Block Island.

RICH WOMAN LOST.

Looks Like Miss Tucker, Whose Case Her's Resembles.

Holderness, N. H., Aug. 9—An alarm has been raised throughout the Lake district because Miss Eva H. Colby, of Haverhill, Mass., a rich woman who arrived here last Friday, is lost somewhere in the dense forest which skirts Winnipesaukee. A big party will be sent to search for her today. Miss Colby bears a striking resemblance to Miss Mary A. Tucker, who was found near South Lebanon, Me.

Miss Colby disappeared from here on Saturday, going in the direction of Woldboro. Relatives in Haverhill telegraphed a description of her yesterday, and asked that every effort be made to find her.

Miss Colby, when she arrived here, looked as though she had walked a great distance. So strong was the resemblance between her and the missing Miss Tucker that Frank Boynton, at whose cottage she stopped, detained her as long as he could despite her statement that she was not Miss Tucker. Since her disappearance from Boynton's there has not been the slightest trace of the woman.

Miss Colby is said to be deranged. She received a small fortune from her father at his death, and she had considerable money in her own name.

BLAMES CHINESE GILDS.

Swan Says Wu Isn't Responsible for Boycott.

San Francisco, Aug. 9.—"Wu Ting-fang, former Chinese Minister to the United States, has not, in my opinion, anything to do with the Chinese boycott on American goods. The Dowager Empress and her advisers at Pekin are not behind the boycott either. The initiative has been taken by the Chinese gilds. Whatever unity of action there is in China—and there is very little—is to be found in these gilds. The boycott will do some harm at the outset, but its permanency is very questionable." So says Prof. Howard Swan, of London, who for five or six years has been connected with the imperial universities at Tokio and Pekin.

"China," he continued, "is in a fermentive state. The gilds' boycott is one evidence of that fact. Japan's victory over Russia is accelerating this social and political fermentation. What China needs just now is American and English teachers to instruct her youth in the English language and science of government and assist her in obtaining for herself a simplified and unified language of her own."

PRAYER FOR PEACE.

Bishop Doane Authorizes It for Use in Episcopal Churches.

Albany, Aug. 9—The Right Rev. William Croswell Doane, Episcopal Bishop of Albany, has authorized the following prayer for peace to be used by his clergy at their several services:

O Almighty God, Who alone canst order the unruly wills of sinful man, we beseech Thee to pour out upon the assembled plenipotentiaries of the two contending nations the spirit of power and love and soberness. So guide and bless their consultations that by their endeavors a just and honorable peace may be secured and the horrors of war be brought to an end. Dispose and turn the hearts of rulers and their people that they may give heed to the counsels to which Thy goodly wisdom shall guide their representatives, and grant that the course of this world may be so peacefully ordered and governed that Thy Church may joyfully serve Thee in all godly quietness and Thy kingdom be extended throughout all lands, through Jesus Christ, our Lord, Amen.

Cheap Chance for an Heiress.

New York, Aug. 9—Baron Sigmund Morawski is an involuntary guest of the immigration authorities at Ellis Island. The baron, who hails from Berlin, arrived on the Potsdam several days ago. He wears good clothes, is only thirty-one years old and looks healthy, but he had only the equivalent of $2 in good American money in his pockets and the hard-hearted immigration folks decided that it wasn't enough to entitle him to admission to the country. The baron says that his ancestral estates were squandered before he had a chance to do any of the squandering himself. He managed to get together enough to buy a second-cabin passage on the Potsdam and $2 over. The chances are that the baron will have to go back to Germany.

The great kettle of our grandmothers', boiling and bubbling over the hearth, was picturesque, but the modern Gas Water Heater is comfortable. The old way meant a long wait for hot water, ashes, smoke, an over-heated room, and a kettle black with soot to clean. The new way insures hot water speedily, no ashes, no smoke, a cool house, and no extra scouring. We sell heaters for $8.50, and connect them free.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS.

Rugg & Cline are now ready to supply you with enough of the best hard Lehigh coal to last over the winter.

The Valentine Gas Engine Company will make any sort of a gas or gasoline engine for you and most savingly.

Rheaume, of East Fourth street, has some medium and soft coal to sell at $5 per ton. This is exceptional good value.

Insure yourself against any sickness or accident which may befall you during your vacation. See E. F. Dorman, on Park avenue.

Oh! for the kind of cakes and crullers "that mother used to make." Warnock, on East Front street, keeps them and they are always fresh.

Everything in the plumbing line will be reasonably done by A. H. Enander, on Watchung avenue. Sanitary plumbing and gas fitting a specialty.

The newest patterns of the season in wall papers have been received by Woolston & Buckle. Nothing can describe them. Call and see for yourself.

If you want a floral emblem or a bouquet made up in short order notify Charles L. Stanley, the North avenue florist. He makes a specialty of quick work.

Herman Hansen is a house builder in every sense of the word. He has had years of experience and knows every detail of the business. Ask him for estimates.

Good news for you. Boice, Runyon & Co. are selling for the month of August only, the best Lehigh coal at $6.25 a ton. It is the cleanest and most saving kind of coal.

Why worry about your fuel supply when John Mobus will deliver the best seasoned kindlings right at your door. Send your order to him by postal card through the local office.

Brokaw's creamery on East Front street, receives daily the freshest cream and milk direct from its own farm. The freshest country eggs are also sold at the lowest market prices.

H. A. Weber's grocery on Liberty street, is headquarters for the best of everything in the grocery line. He makes a specialty of fruits and vegetables in season. Orders sent by telephone will receive prompt attention.

The man who said "It's a crime to be ill" knew what he was talking about. So does the friend who advises you to buy your drugs and medicines of J. P. Powers. You are sure to get satisfaction there without paying two prices.

There is nothing that gives more pleasure than a carriage ride and if you own your own vehicle it will cost you but little. W. J. Conroy has a stock of up-to-date rigs of all kinds at his Somerset street repository that may interest you.

If you would secure ornaments for your home every now and then you would soon have a beautifully furnished home. Sometime visit J. W. Gavett and you will be surprised to see how reasonably he sells the newest novelties. He also sells Ignito self-lighting burners.

The regular semi-annual clearing sale is now going on at Werner's clothing house, on East Front street. Anyone who has bought anything at one of the former sales of this kind, knows that there are always bargains to be found. All fancy worsted and black suits are reduced in price. Call and be convinced, a trial is all that is required.

There is a sale now going on at Hill & Shupp's store, on West Front street, that no housewife or housekeeper can afford to overlook. The firm is retiring from business and as a result they offer the best goods they have at a great reduction so that they may sell out as quickly as possible. The firm has always carried the best goods at the lowest prices and now in this sale even old prices are cut. Visit the store and see for yourself.

CAPTURES ALLEGED BURGLAR.

Supposed Thief Opens His Eyes to See Revolver.

A man who gave his name as John Harpin was captured at Somerville, Monday morning by Policeman George Holmes after an exciting chase across lots and over high board fences. Two burglars attempted to rob the residence of Edward Bullard, on Doughty avenue, at an early hour yesterday morning.

The Bullard family was away, but the thieves were surprised, as they were about to climb through a window, by an aged woman servant who forced the window down on the neck of one of the burglars and shouted for the police. The imprisoned thief wriggled his neck from under the window just as Policeman Holmes came on a run up the street.

The thieves started on a run across the yard and jumped a high board fence. Holmes went over the fence after them and fired several shots as they sprinted across the lawn of the Lindsley estate. One of them vaulted another high board fence and escaped and the other suddenly disappeared on the lawn.

On searching a child's tent on the lawn the policeman found a man curled up inside feigning sleep. Heavy blows delivered on the soles of the man's feet by the policeman's club caused him to sit up and to look into the muzzle of the policeman's revolver. He surrendered and was locked up in the county jail.

A VACATION.

They told him that he needed rest,
He hurried far away
Where o'er the ocean's foamy crest
The wholesome breezes play.

He shot the chutes, he looped the loop;
He joined the mazy dance;
He saw the side show minstrel troupe,
And watched the ponies prance.

He ate hot sausages and things
He ne'er had seen before;
He won a cane by throwing rings
Until his arms were sore.

He walked the boardwalk all day long,
And heard the music play
Where rival organs big and strong
In discord grind away.

He drank long mixtures filled with ice,
Ate lobsters and sardines;
He dallied with the cards and dice
And played the slot machines.

He tried to keep the pace in vain,
He did his level best.
He had to hurry home again
Because he needed rest.

NO INCREASE MADE IN FORESTERS' RATES

INDEPENDENT ORDER HAS A NINE MILLION SURPLUS

The Supreme Court of the Independent Order of Foresters, after a four days' session at Atlantic City last week, had its final meeting and adjournment Saturday evening at Foresters' Island, Deseronto, Canada, whence it had adjourned in order that the members might inspect the Foresters' Orphan Home.

While the legislation enacted by the supreme court was limited, it was quite important. The fact that the reports showed that the surplus funds of the order had increased nearly four million dollars since the supreme court session in California three years ago, and that they now amounted to over nine million dollars settled at once all rumors as to an increase in rates.

Among the changes made was the reduction of the age limit to sixteen years in place of eighteen years, as it has been. This change was made in view of the fact that the death rate for the ages of sixteen and seventeen years is less than four a thousand.

Another important change was the addition of two new forms of insurance, namely, the instalment system and the term policy. By the mer a member can arrange to have the face value of his policy. By the former a member can arrange to have the face value of his policy paid to his beneficiary in ten yearly instalments instead of one payment. By the term policy a member can carry insurance for a term of either five, ten, fifteen or twenty years. The rates for these two plans are considerably lower than for the regular life plan now in force. For instance, while a member 30 years of age pays a monthly premium of $1.14 for $1,000 insurance, payable in one payment, he can carry an instalment policy for $1.04, and for a term policy he will pay 72 cents for five years; 78 cents for ten; 80 cents for fifteen, and 86 cents for twenty. These policies, which are optional, can all be carried by the members if they so decide.

It was also decided to issue a special policy of $250, for the exclusive benefit of the companion or women courts of the order; the male members will not be permitted to take out a policy for less than $500.

After a discussion on the subject it was concluded to support the Orphan's Home, by a monthly contribution of one cent from each member; this will aggregate about $27,000 a year.

More than ordinary interest has been manifested by the fraternal world in the legislation enacted by the Foresters. The severe tension ensuing the recent radical change in rates by the Royal Arcanum, Knights of Honor, Maccabees, and Catholic Legion, has turned the thoughts of the fraternalists to the supreme court session of the Foresters,—the latter having been the pioneer in the readjustment of its rates in 1898,—and the query was as to whether this readjustment had been a success or whether the I. O. F. would have to again increase its rates.

Hence the action of this body based upon its experience in the past and the most prosperous condition of its finances, will be received with much satisfaction, by not only the members of this particular order, but by all fraternalists, it being made evident that fraternal insurance can be successfully furnished when founded upon the proper table of rates.

AN ORDINANCE

A SUPPLEMENT TO AN ORDINANCE ENTITLED "AN ORDINANCE FOR THE ASSESSMENT OF TAXES FOR THE YEAR 1905," APPROVED May 1st, 1905.

WHEREAS, The Board of School Estimate of this district, that is to say, the school district comprising the City of Plainfield, has fixed upon and determined the amount of money necessary to be appropriated for the use of the public schools in such district for the ensuing school year, exclusive of the amount apportioned to it by the County Superintendent of Schools, to wit, the sum of Seventy Thousand Dollars ($70,000), and has made two certificates for said amount signed by a majority of all the members of said Board, one of which certificates has been delivered to the Board of Education of said school district, and the other to the Common Council of said City:

The inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That pursuant to the Act of the Legislature of the State of New Jersey, entitled "An Act to establish a thorough and efficient system of Free Public Schools and to provide for the maintenance, support and management thereof," Approved October 19, 1903, the sum of Seventy Thousand Dollars ($70,000) be, and the same is hereby appropriated for the purposes aforesaid as other appropriations are made by the Common Council, and that said amount shall be assessed, levied and collected for the year Nineteen Hundred and Five in the same manner as moneys appropriated for other purposes in this City are required to be assessed, levied and collected.

Section 2. That in addition to the interest on school bonds directed to be assessed under the ordinance to which this is a supplement, there shall be assessed and raised by tax in the current year, for interest on Thirteen Thousand Dollars ($13,000) of school bonds authorized by the City Ordinance, Approved June 19th, 1905, to fall due during the said year, the sum of two hundred and sixty dollars.

Adopted on third reading, August 7, 1905; approved by the Mayor, August 8, 1905.

JAMES F. BUCKLE, Mayor.

Attest, J. T. MACMURRAY, City Clerk.

AN ORDINANCE

to provide for the improvement of Sewage Disposal Works, Beds and Appurtenances of the City of Plainfield.

WHEREAS, Pursuant to the provisions of an Act of the Legislature, entitled "An Act to Provide for Drainage and Sewerage in Cities of this State, approved April 7, 1899, and acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, a system of sewerage has been constructed and operated in said city, and the Common Council of said city has deemed it expedient and doth hereby ascertain, adjudge and determine that it is expedient to collect the sewage of said city from sewers constructed under said acts of the Legislature, and to deodorize and dispose of the same in the manner hereinafter specified, and to construct a sewage receptacle and other structures and works for treating and disposing of said sewage in the manner hereinafter specified, and to erect all necessary buildings, works and machinery therefor, and

WHEREAS, The Common Council, having duly investigated the premises and considered the same, is of the opinion that the public good requires the adoption of the plan of sewage disposal and the construction of improvement of sewage disposal works, beds and appurtenances hereinafter specified, and the Common Council hath so determined and doth hereby so determine.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the Common Council doth hereby determine, direct and order that the plan of improvement of sewage disposal works beds and appurtenances, above referred to, and particularly set forth in the plans and specifications filed in the office of the City Clerk and adopted by the Common Council by resolution on the first day of May, 1905, providing for the construction of two septic tanks under one roof and eight bacterial contact beds, all to be placed in the present sand filter beds on lands heretofore purchased and acquired by the city under and by virtue of the acts of the Legislature above referred to, which filter beds are numbered 6, 7, 11 and 15, as particularly described and set forth in said plans and specifications, to which reference is hereby made for greater certainty and the same hereby made a part of this ordinance, be and the same are hereby adopted, and that the improvement therein specified be and hereby is ordered to be made pursuant to the said acts of the Legislature and in accordance with said plans and specifications.

Section 2 That whereas the Common Council has duly solicited bids for doing the work and furnishing the materials for the making of said improvement, and caused due advertisment to be made calling for such bids as in said acts of the Legislature directed, and at the time and place specified in said advertisement, received numerous sealed proposals, and thereupon the Common Council proceeded to unseal the same and publicly announce the contents in the presence of the parties bidding or their agents, and also to make proper record of the prices and terms upon the minutes of the Council, and the bid deemed most advantageous for the city was also the lowest bid of any person offering satisfactory security, namely, the bid or proposal of Richards & Gaston, of New York, N. Y., the aggregate of which bid was the sum of Fifty-two Thousand, Forty-seven Dollars and Twenty Cents, and the surety proposed being the Fidelity and Deposit Company of Maryland; that said bid be and the same is hereby accepted and the contract awarded to said Richards & Gaston, and that the Mayor and City Clerk be and are hereby authorized to execute the contract on behalf of this city in the form annexed to the above mentioned plans and specifications.

Adopted on third reading, August 7, 1905; approved by the Mayor, August 8, 1905.

JAMES F. BUCKLE, Mayor.

Attest, J. T. MACMURRAY, City Clerk.

TO GO TO WILKESBARRE.

Cardinal Gibbons Will Meet President Roosevelt and John Mitchell.

Baltimore, Aug. 9.—Cardinal Gibbons has returned to this city from his vacation visit to Long Island. He will leave tomorrow for Wilkesbarre, Pa., to attend the mammoth temperance meeting of the Ancient Order of Hibernians and the United Mine Workers, which will also be attended by President Roosevelt and President John Mitchell, of the Mine Workers.

The Cardinal said he had been in communication with President Roosevelt upon the subject of the visit. He said he had not been invited to deliver an address, but might make some remarks.

In Memory of Ben Franklin.

New York, Aug. 9—A movement having for its object an adequate commemoration in this city of the 200th anniversary of the birth of Benjamin Franklin next January has been inaugurated among various societies of New York. The initial steps were taken by the Pennsylvania Society a few days ago. It is probable that the commemoration will take the form of a great public meeting, together with an exhibition of Franklin books, portraits and such personal relics as may be preserved in New York.

DULL IS THE TOWN.

Dull is the town in midsummer;
Mary is gone to the hills.
Daily I'm hotter and glummer;
How shall I pay all the bills?

Mary is gone to the hills,
High as the rates at the inn,
How shall I pay all the bills?
Where shall I gather the tin?

High as the rates at the inn
(Air at a dollar a breath).
Where shall I gather the tin?
Creditors hound me to death.

Air at a dollar a breath
At that same Inn-in-the-Pines.
Creditors hound me to death;
I'm not an owner of mines.

At that same Inn-in-the-Pines
Beggary comes overnight;
I'm not an owner of mines;
Pity a penniless wight!—

Beggary comes overnight;
Daily I'm hotter and glummer.
Pity a penniless wight!
Dull is the town in midsummer.

ECLIPSE OF MOON IS DUE NEXT MONDAY

VISIBLE HERE FROM 9:30 TO 11:35 P.M.

—TOTAL SUN ECLIPSE AUG. 30.

There will be a total eclipse of the sun and a partial eclipse of the moon this month, and both will be visible in this city.

The eclipse of the moon comes next Monday and will be visible in most parts of the United States. The moon will enter into shadow here about 9:30 in the evening, and if the skies are clear the eclipse will be visible until about 11:35, or for over two hours.

The event of the year among astronomers will be the total eclipse of the sun August 30. This is visible in the eastern part of the United States, the whole of Europe, western Asia, and the northern and central portions of Africa.

The eclipse begins on the earth generally at 29 minutes after 5 a. m., at a point in the eastern end of Middlesex county, in Virginia, near the mouth of the Rappahannock river. It will be visible here at practically the same time.

The path of the total eclipse begins after sunrise a few minutes east of Winnipeg, Man., and moving eastward and a little to the north, it enters James' bay and Labrador, then bearing a little to the south it crosses the Atlantic ocean and enters Spain. Moving thence in a southerly direction, it passes a few miles north of Madrid; it leaves Spain near Castellon de la Plana. It then crosses the Mediterranean and the northeast corner of Africa, the Red sea, southern Arabia and leaves the earth at sunset on the northern coast of Arabia.

The best localities for observing the total eclipse are the east coast of Labrador, the northwest coast of Spain at Castellon de la Plana, and in Algeria. The eclipse will be visible in this city from 5:39 to 7:33 a. m.

HAS 112 DESCENDANTS.

Mrs. Rantz Is Active Despite Her Great Age.

Wilkesbarre, Aug. 9—Among the many visitors to this city, when President Roosevelt comes here tomorrow, may be Mrs. Lydia Rantz, of Danville, and some of her 112 descendants. As an exponent of the President's anti-race suicide ideas Mrs. Rantz is entitled to a prize. She has six children, thirty-five grandchildren, sixty-four great-grandchildren and seven great-great-grandchildren. She is only 87 years old, and is in such good health that she expects she will live to welcome several more great-grandchildren and great-great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Rantz's son John is a great-grandfather at the age of 60. His daughter, Mrs. Mary Lloyd, of Milton, is a grandmother at the age of 40. She has two daughters, who were each married when they were 20 years old and each has children.

James Wertman, one of Mrs. Rantz's grandchildren, has eighteen children, including three pairs of twins and one set of triplets.

The twin and triplet history of the family is in itself interesting. Mrs. Rantz is the grandmother of one pair of twins, great-grandmother of three pairs of twins and of triplets; great aunt of two pairs of twins; great-greataunt of two pairs of twins and second cousin of one pair of twins.

Mrs. Rantz is active and energetic, despite her great age and works constantly, still doing excellent needlework.

Shortening Lumber Shed.

In order to give the lot the depth called for in the sale papers, thirty feet of Boice, Runyon and Company's lumber sheds has been cut off from the side of the structure running into the ground bought recntly by John McLaughlin.

Miss Marion Scyze, of New York, is the guest of Miss Sadie Sweeney of Liberty street.

—Fred Emmons, of the borough, has taken a position with the Gregory Detective Agency at Newark.

Plainfield, N. J., August 9, 1905.

Have you made entry in the Asbury Park baby parade? If not, why not?

Right on the heels of opinion expressed by an eminent doctor that too many people are dying of indigestion, comes the story that a machine has been invented that will make forty pies a minute.

No man whose business methods were wrong ever succeeded by sheer force of advertising, says Printers' Ink. The businesses that have been built up by advertising have been based on sound foundations.

Among the many good things that can be said for the local government is that it is never stingy to its officials. Whenever there is an opportunity to gain knowledge that will be a benefit to them in the discharge of their duties, the heads of the departments are invariably supplied with funds to meet all legitimate expenses. The action of the Common Council last night in appropriating $150 to defray the expenses of Chief Doane at the annual convention of fire chiefs, at Duluth, Minn., and in making an appropriation of a similar amount to meet the expenses which City Engineer Andrew J. Gavett will incur at the annual gathering of the League of American Municipalities, at Toledo, Ohio, this month, it is but following out the general policy. And it is a good policy too.

The announcement exclusively in The Daily Press yesterday that the Councilmanic committee on public affairs had been at work on a proposition looking towards the municipal ownership of Plainfield's water supply commanded general attention. As predicted the subject was discussed in an informal way at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council last night. The report of three very competent engineers, Messrs. Osgood, Saunders and Church, was made known and it brought the gratifying assurance that it is for the best interests of the city to obtain control of the water supply as soon as possible. The special commission points out that the dangers that lay in private ownership of so important an utility as well as the benefits that would be obtained by public control of it. The merits of the public ownership question depend in a great degree upon the standard of public morality. As can be readily understood, in a boss-ridden and badly governed municipality it would be harmful. On the other hand where there is the right civic pride among the inhabitants and where the government is well conducted, public ownership of utilities is both desirable and satisfactory. The excellence of the Federal postal service is a result of the high standard of efficiency in the department supported by an able administration in National affairs generally. As it is with the Federal control of the postal service so it is with the control of any local utility by a municipality. It is needless to say that few, if any, cities in the United States are run so well and are so free from corruption as is Plainfield. For that reason we believe that public ownership of the water supply is a duty of the hour.

PEACE OUTLOOK BRIGHT.

Japanese Terms Not to be Drastic.

Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 9—From the mass of speculative chaff concerning the outcome of the peace conference two kernels of facts were sifted yesterday.

The first is that there will be peace if the Russians can bring it about on any sort of reasonable terms.

The second is that the Japanese terms will not be as drastic as has been supposed.

The outlook for peace was never so good as it is today. The Russians and the Japanese have been here only a day, but they have let it be known in various ways that the recent manifestation of pessism by M. Witte and by Baron Komura has been for effect only.

The Russians desire peace ardently. They know they must have it. They can get no money to continue the war. They can get money to discharge the terms of a peace.

The Japanese want peace also as ardently as the Russians. They have had their fill of fighting. They have established their principle. They desire to reap the fruits of their victories.

Switch Tower Burned.

Roselle, Aug. 9—The unused Central railroad switch tower located alongside the eastbound tracks at the rear of the Parks home on First avenue, was burned to the ground Monday afternoon. The flames were discovered by the crew on an eastbound trolley car, who, upon reaching here, turned in an alarm for the fire department. The firemen responded quickly, but the flames had gained such headway that the firemen could do nothing to save the structure, which burned fiercely. The tower was at one time used as a switch tower for the Lehigh Valley crossing. All the machinery used for switches had been removed from the building and the windows boarded up at the time the tower was abandoned by the railroad.

Mrs. Ada Ayers, of Newark, spent Saturday and Sunday at the home of her cousin, Mrs. A. V. Lunger, 201 Watchung avenue.

Mrs. A. B. Cottrell, of Alfred, N. Y., has been called here on account of the serious condition of her sister-in-law, Mrs. J. P. Mosher.

FIRST BLOOD FOR EQUAL TAXATION

RAILROADS IN NEW JERSEY WILL HAVE TO PAY ON VALUATION $46,699,496.

The State Board of Assessors sent yesterday from Trenton to the various counties the assessed valuation of second-class railroad property so that it may be taxed at local rates according to the Dumell act of the present year.

Second-class property includes all property used for railroad purposes outside of main stem, tangible personal property and franchises. The total second-class property in the State is set at $46,699,496.

By counties it is as follows: Atlantic, $359,988; Bergen, $925,930; Burlington, $140,010; Camden, $1,483,742; Cape May, $139,871; Cumberland, $214,039; Essex, $1,473,143; Gloucester, $95,128; Hudson, $33,902,818; Hunterdon, $403,477; Mercer, $714,207; Middlesex, $2,539,680; Monmouth, $436,156; Morris, $550,921; Ocean, $133,811; Passaic, $578,265; Salem, $39,189; Somerset, $208,669; Sussex, $125,389; Union, $1,678,418; Warren, $576,627.

PEOPLE IN SORROW.

Said a young woman in my hearing: "I never know just what to say to people who are in sorrow, so I never say anything if I can help it. And the more I feel the less I can say. I can write a note of condolence quite easily, for the stilted phrases slip glibly from the pen, even when I know that they are useless, for they never comfort the least little bit. But when I am face to face with bereavement I am dumb, although my heart may ache. Still it makes little difference; words don't help people in grief. And, if they did, all I could say would be 'I am sorry.'" As if it were not the best thing to say! That simple phrase carries with it more true sympathy than dozens of stilted expressions. When we were in sorrow and felt as if we were numbed by the awful loneliness of our grief that seemed ours and ours only what did it mean to us when our friend came and, putting her arms about us, sobbed: "Oh, my dear, I am so sorry! so sorry!" That genuine, unpremeditated outburst brought sympathy that softened grief, although nothing could lessen it. It is a mistake to think that so-called letters of condolence do no good. Of course, they cannot relieve sorrow, but to the grief-stricken, there is great comfort in knowing that somebody cares; that the thoughts and prayers of friends are with her who walks in the Valley of the Shadow of Death. And to one in sorrow, the world in general seems such a heartless, careless place! Let us not feel that, because dozens of other people have written letters or spoken phrases of pity to the bereaved friend, our little word or note is unnecessary. It may be just the touch of sympathy that will soften the rebellious grief and bring much-needed tears; it may be just the drop of sweet in the cup of bitterness that, but for that tiny drop, would be intolerable.—Exchange.

Grand Council to Meet Friday Night—to Discuss the Increase in Rates.

What gives promise of being the liveliest gathering of Royal Arcanum members ever held in this State will be the special session of the New Jersey Grand Council, next Friday in Columbia Hall, New Brunswick. The meeting has been called on request of nearly all the councils of this jurisdiction for the purpose of considering the new schedule of assessment rates adopted by the Supreme Council at its last session held at Atlantic City, and to instruct the representatives from this State to the Supreme Council as to what action they shall take when they attend the special session of the Supreme Council, the date of which the members are waiting to hear announced.

The Jersey representatives of the Grand Council will go on record as opposing the action of the Supreme Council in the raise of rates. They will instruct the supreme representatives of this State to urge and vote for the adoption of table A at the age of entry, instead of the attained age, as the table now states, as the standard and only rate of assessment plan of the order. Table A is one of the five optional tables of rates which has been presented to the members for their acceptance on or before October 1.

The session will likely be an exciting one from beginning to end, especially so if the present supreme representatives endeavor to change the views on the situation that are held by the majority of the representatives to the Grand Council. Should the plan be adopted and carried out by the Jersey representatives to the Supreme Council, and later the Supreme Council reject it, the New Jersey members say they will put up a fight for each State caring for itself, as far as rates and beneficiaries are concerned, claiming that New Jersey has, at all times, paid more in the general fund than it has received in death benefits, and is capable of caring for its members. The session will be called to order by Grand Regent James Rodgers.

Just what action the Supreme Council will take when it meets, possibly in September, is keeping thousands of members in suspense. The call for a special meeting was signed by thirty-nine of seventy-seven supreme representatives. The Supreme Council has about 115 members. Seventy-seven are elected delegates from the various Grand Councils, and the others are men who hold office and are members of committees.

During the last week scores of members resigned or were dropped from their respective councils in Newark and vicinity. In one instance the vice regent of a council turned in his books to the council accompanied by his resignation as a member of the order. The same council also lost twenty-seven members at its last two meetings, while forty-five were saved from suspension by the council paying their assessments out of the general fund. Another council lost eighteen members at one meeting.

The action of the Grand Council on Friday, and the support that will be pledged by the supreme representatives who will attend the meeting of the Supreme Council, will largely determine how many more resignations will go into effect in the next few weeks.

An Adirondack Picture.

The islands of Raquette Lake add to the beauty and intricacy of its shore-line. Some of these are no more than huge rocks, in the clefts of which seedling pines cling tenaciously; others rise, rock girded, in graceful rings of foliage, from the clear water. A whole fleet of them lies in the lily-dappled reaches of the North Bay. The five islands lying between the east and west shores form the most beautiful group, and create the dominant impression of the lake which survives the merging of the whole in a general recollection. St. Hubert's Isle is the loveliest of them all. One lingers long, with trailing oar, around its graceful shores. Seen, as the point of Osprey is rounded, it forms a glimpse of surpassing loveliness that never passes from memory. Nature worked here with a gentle hand. Within its little area is contained every element of wild beauty, but softened and subdued. Gray rocks stained with creeping lichen, cushioned with cool mosses; little dells and ferny hollows; lofty, shadowy pines, in which the squirrels scold; delicately poised boulders under the white birches; with many a sunny slope on which and catch glimpses through the woven fretwork, of dancing water, hills and sky.—From "A Mountain-Lake Idyl," by W. Brown-Serman, in Four-Track News for July.

CLUNG TO THE REINS.

Thrown From Carriage, Driver Still Holds Fast to Runaway Horse.

A horse attached to a carriage in which Rev. Father Frederici, of Sterling, was driven into town by William Harding, ran away from Park avenue and Front street this forenoon. Harding was in the carriage alone.

The horse went down Park avenue. In front of J. R. Blair's store the runaway collided with another carriage and Harding was thrown out. He held on to the reins, and went along with the runaway on his stomach. The horse was stopped in front of William Feiring's barber shop, a few doors below; and Harding was helped to his feet. He was dazed, but his hands still held the reins. His clothes were a sight.

A rest straightened him out, and he drove Father Frederici back to Sterling.

HATCHES ECGS WITH BEE.

Ohio Man Shows That No Sitting Hen Is Needed If You Have a Hive.

Ashtabula, O.—A most remarkable discovery made by an aged farmer of Ashtabula county has been attracting a great deal of attention of late in this section and is of particular interest just now during the poultry raising season of the year. Henry Decker, of Rome township, has proved that the heat generated in a hive of bees can be depended on without fail as a substitute for setting hens or incubators

THE LATEST INCUBATOR.
(Ohio Man Hatches Eggs by Placing Them in a Bee Hive.)

in the hatching of chickens. Not only this, but he has demonstrated repeatedly that instead of the 21 days required by a hen in hatching eggs only 19 days are necessary under the new regime—a saving of two days.

Mr. Decker, who is 70 years old, has long raised both poultry and bees. Previous to his discovery he used an incubator. One day while handling a swarm of bees he recognized that the temperature of the bee hive was similar to that which he maintained within the incubator. Subsequently a thermometer proved this supposition to be correct. The idea of making his bee hive do double service then dawned upon him. Accordingly 20 eggs were placed within the hive as an experiment. Opening the top of the hive the eggs were placed on a cotton cloth, thus separating them from the bees. Around the sides a cushion made from a quilt was placed and over the eggs another cushion was put in before the cover of the hive was returned to its position. Out of the first 20 eggs 18 chickens were hatched. The proportion in many subsequent experiments has been similar. The claim is made that one hive in this manner may be made to do the work of eight setting hens and at the same time yield 100 pounds of honey in one season. Since Mr. Decker's experiment has become known, he has been flooded with inquiries from farmers and beekeepers.

Under the new plan the number of eggs placed in a hive is not restricted as in the case of the hen. Although but a dozen eggs are shown in the photograph, there is no reason why several dozen could not be hatched at the same time. As far as is known here no one has ever tried this plan of hatching chickens except Mr. Decker.

FINEST FLOATING TARGET.

Sixty-Ton Floating Steel Box Provided for Use of Navy Launched at New York.

New York.—The new steel target that cost the government $60,000 to build and that is to be torpedoed, mined and smashed at with coast-defense guns off Sandy Hook, was launched the other day in the Wallabout basin by the crane tug Hercules. It will be delivered to the army officials, and this summer will be attacked with all the vigor that would be directed against a hostile battleship.

NEW FLOATING TARGET.
(Built at a Cost of $60,000 for Use of the United States Navy.)

The target is a floating steel box 32 feet in length, and weighs 110 tons without ballast. It is to be sunk until only 12 feet of its sides show above water, 320 pigs or iron, each weighing 125 pounds, being required for the purpose. It is supplied with gauges to register the velocity of impact of shot against its sides, and with pumps to keep it afloat if a shot perforates it below the water line. So far as is known no country has ever constructed so expensive a target nor one with which so many useful experiments can be made.

Army and navy officials will use it to demonstrate the effect of torpedoes, mines and projectiles, and to determine the effectiveness of land batteries and harbor mines. The target was built at the Brooklyn navy yard.

Food Kitchens in New York.

Food laboratories similar to the one recently established in New York are to be established in Boston, New Orleans and San Francisco.

DRYNESS OF ATMOSPHERE.

Health Endangered by Lack of Moisture in the Air of Many Houses.

Indoor humidity has again been discussed by a member of the medical profession, who takes the stand also that the excessively dry air of houses during the heated season is injurious to the human organization, because the dry air in passing over the membranes of the respiratory passages and the skin calls for an enormous output of the fluid elements of these tissues, says the Engineering Record.

This physician, Dr. Henry Mitchell Smith of Brooklyn, N. Y., holds that this leads to glandular overactivity and its consequent evils, but he does not offer the specific proofs which, it has been asserted, are lacking to show that direct deleterious effects are thus produced. In his contribution, which was made to the Brooklyn Medical society, he mentions, however, some tests he had conducted with a radiator having an experimental moistening apparatus attached, and he obtained results which concur with general beliefs as to the relation of the humidity and temperature.

He found that with a relative humidity never below 50 per cent. nor above 70 per cent., 70 degrees Fahr. was uncomfortably hot, 68 degrees was warm and 65 degrees comfortable. It was determined by repeated experiments that a temperature of 65 to 68 degrees and a relative humidity of 60 per cent. produced the most comfortable conditions, which were in marked contrast to a temperature of 72 degrees, with a relative humidity of 30 per cent. The former felt warm and balmy, he said, and the latter, notwithstanding the higher temperature, chilly and dry and apt to leave the impression of draftiness. He did not describe the moistening apparatus, but said that the mechanism was such that the control of the temperature and of the moisture was independent.

HE STOPPED THE PAPER.

That Is His Copy of It, But the Metropolitan Daily Continued Publication.

An acquaintance met Horace Greeley one day, and said: "Mr. Greeley, I've stopped your paper."

"Have you?" said the editor. "Well, that's too bad." And he went his way.

The next morning Mr. Greeley met his subscriber again, and said: "I thought you had stopped the Tribune."

"So I did."

"Then there must be some mistake," said Mr. Greeley, "for I just came from the office and the presses were running, the clerks were as busy as ever, the compositors were hard at work, and the business was going on the same as yesterday and the day before."

"Oh," ejaculated the subscribed, "I didn't mean that I had stopped the paper; I stopped only my copy of it, because I didn't like your editorials."

"Pshaw!" retorted Mr. Greeley. "It wasn't worth taking up my time to tell me such a trifle as that. My dear sir, if you expect to control the utterance of the Tribune by the purchase of one copy a day, or if you think to find any newspaper or magazine worth reading that will never express convictions at right angles with your own, you are doomed to disappointment."

AS TOLD BY THE SAILOR.

Changes in Ways of Steamship Passengers in the Last Few Years.

"Throughout the last ten years," said one of the oldest steamship passenger agents the other day, "there have been many changes, but one that seems to have been wholly overlooked.

"Now you may observe," continued this graybeard, as he produced a bundle of old passenger lists of the early nineties and spread them out before him, "that in all of these there is only here and there a sprinkling of folks who go and come with maids or valets as attendants on one ship than were carried during six months ten years ago, relates the New York Herald.

Another thing; these old-time lists show that Americans when they went abroad 'most always inscribed their names as John Smith, William Jones and so on. Now You will find a great majority of the outgoers, and for that matter the homecomers, simply Mr. Smith or Mr. Jones."

All of which seems to prove something though just what is not quite clear.

Oyster Imbedded in False Teeth.

The directors of the Smithsonian institution received a novel addition to their collection of curios the other day. It was presented by the foreman of one of the Potomac river oyster boats. As one of the big scoops unloaded its quota of oysters from the deck of the boat the foreman's eye caught something glistening white in the dark-brown mass. He leaned over curiously and poked it with a stick, and out rolled a set of false teeth. Imbedded between the opened jaws was a young oyster. The bivalve in its odd house was sent to the Smithsonian institution, where the teeth were cleaned and the whole thing mounted on a little stand. One of the curators put this tag one it: "Ostria Virginica, growing on artificial teeth. Dredged off Point Lookout, Maryland."

Proud Moment.

NOTICE!
"In behalf of your proprietory article called AZIENZA CREAM, as a remedy for diseases of the skin, I desire to add my appreciation of its wonderful properties as a cure in a case of Bone Tumor or Abscess of five years growth on my husband's back, which I have cured in less than five weeks time by constant application, and now it is as well as any part of his body. It was cut out once by a specialist and had again grown to a large size, was as hard as a bone and of a very dark purple color. The AZIENZA at once allayed the pain and began to soften it, and in less than eight days, by my pressure upon it, suddenly to my surprise it discharged a quantity of pus, impregnated with a hard, cheesy substance. I kept it open and cleansed it as it discharged and every day would dress it with a plaster of AZIENZA CREAM, until it was entirely healed up. I cannot speak too highly of AZIENZA CREAM and its merits. For inquiry regarding this case you may apply to Mr. and Mrs. James, Embury Ave., care Hiller, Ocean Grove, N. J. ABOUT STAINS.

Yellow stains left by sewing machine oil on white fabrics may be removed by rubbing the spot with a clean rag wet with ammonia, before washing with soap.

Ribbons and other silks should be put away for preservation in brown paper, as the chloride of lime used in manufacturing white paper frequently produces discoloration. If anything has taken out the color in spots, a little hartshorn applied with a very soft rag will usually restore it, or if any application has slightly altered a delicate shade, hartshorn should be tried.

Sometimes it may be necessary to use one remedy for a stain and hartshorn for restoration of color. Blood stains may be removed from an article that you do not care to wash by applying a thick paste made of starch and cold water. Place in the sun and rub off in three or four hours. If the stain is not entirely removed repeat the process and soon it disappears.

To remove iron rust spots from fabrics place a bright tin over a kettle steaming with boiling water. Moisten the goods with water and hold the iron rust spots closely to the tin and rub them with oxalic acid. As soon as you see the rust disappear rinse in cold water to remove the acid, as it tends to rot the material, but if the process is performed quickly there is no danger of this.

The removal of grease stains may generally be accomplished in washing if the material has fast color. Ether is a very good thing for removing grease.

If the material is cloth, powdered French chalk should be used. It should be placed on the stain, and then held over a heated iron. The heat will melt the grease and the chalk will absorb it. Apply spirits of turpentine with a sponge, and rub with a clean rag. Extract of lemon will correct the smell of the turpentine.

HINTS AND SUGGESTIONS.

Don't dry the face with a rough towel if you want to keep the skin smooth; instead use a fine damask one, and "dab" the face with it. This preserves the delicate appearance of the skin.

For dry hair an effective wash is one part of glycerine and three parts rosewater, with five grains of salt or tartar to about one-half pint of the lotion. All lotions must be well shaken before using.

Clean windows in damp weather with a little methylated spirit, and you will have no difficulty in polishing them.

Stains on the hands can be removed by rubbing with salt moistened with lemon juice.

A grease spot can be removed from leather by applying a little benzine. It may make the surface dull, but you can restore the polish with the white of an egg.

Never rinse white lace in blue water under the impression that this will improve the color. Real lace should be finally rinsed in skim milk, which will give it the soft, creamy tint so much desired.

Try rubbing a mirror with a ball of soft paper slightly dampened with methylated spirit, then with a duster on which a little whiting has been sprinkled, and finally polish with clean paper or a wash leather. This treatment will make the glass beautifully bright.

Shabby dark leather will look like new if rubbed over with either linseed oil or the well beaten white of an egg mixed with a little black ink. Polish with soft dusters until quite dry and glossy.

See that the sides or walls of your refrigerators are occasionally scoured with soap or soap and slacked lime.

AGREEABLE COMPANY.

She was stylish and handsome, and she was on her way to spend a week-end with her dearest friend on the south shore of Long Island. There was no parlor car on the train, so she was forced to ride in the day coach. She kept her own window closed to protect herself from the dust, but the man in front of her had his open, and the cinders bothered her.

"Will you be kind enough to close your window?" she asked.

"No, I will not," he replied brusquely.

She was not accustomed to being refused, and for a moment was stunned. Then rallying her sweetest tones she explained that the cinders were not only unpleasant but dangerous to her eyes.

"Then you can change your seat," said the brute, hardly giving her a glance.

There was no other desirable seat, so she told the guard what the situation was, and he promptly closed the man's window. The man growled and made himself as unpleasant as possible for the ensuing hour.

When the young lady reached her destination she was warmly greeted by her hostess, who introduced to her the man who had been her fellow passenger. He had been invited to help make the week-end agreeable for the hostess' dearest friend.—Philadelphia Telegraph.

IN THE BISHOP'S CARRIAGE

By MIRIAM MICHELSON

(Copyright, 1904, by The Bobbs-Merrill Company).

Well, the old duffer whose watch was ticking inside my waist that very minute! Yes, sir, the same red-faced, big-necked fellow we'd spied getting full at the little station in the country. Only, he was a bit mellower than when you grabbed his chain. Well, he was Edward.

I almost dropped the cup when I saw him. The dowager took it from me, saying:

"There, dear, don't be nervous. It's only—only—"

She got lost. It couldn't be my daddy—the bishop was that. But it was her husband, so who could it be?

"Evening, bishop. Hello, Henrietta, back so soon from the opera?" roared Edward, in a big, husky voice. He'd had more since we saw him, but he walked straight as the bishop himself, and he's a dear little ramrod. "Ah!"—his eyes lit up at sight of me—"ah, Miss—Miss—of course, I've met the young lady, Henrietta, but hang me if I haven't forgotten her name."

"Miss—Miss Murieson," lied the old lady, glibly. "A—a relative."

"Why, mummy!" I said, reproachfully.

"There—there. It's only a joke. Isn't it a joke, Edward?" she demanded, laughing uneasily.

"Joke?" he repeated, with a hearty bellow of laughter. "Best kind of a joke, I call it, to find so pretty a girl right in your own house, eh, bishop?"

"Why does he call my father 'Bishop, mummy?'

I couldn't help it. The fun of hearing the dowager lie and knowing the bishop beside himself with the pain of deception was too much for me. I could see she didn't dare trust her Edward with my sad story.

"Ho! ho! The bishop—that's good. No, my dear Miss Murieson, if this lady's your mother, why, I must be—at least, I ought to be, your father. As such, I'm going to have all the privileges of a parent—bless me, if I'm not."

I don't suppose he'd have done it if he'd been sober, but there's no telling, when you remember the reputation the dowager had given him. But he'd got no further than to put his arm around me when both the bishop and the dowager flew to the rescue. My, but they were shocked! I couldn't help wondering what they'd have done if Edward had happened to see the bishop in the same sort of tableau earlier in the afternoon.

But I got a lucid interval just then, and distracted their attention. I stood for a moment, my head bent as though I was thinking deeply.

"I think I'll go now," I said at length. "I—I don't understand exactly how I got here," I went on, looking from the bishop to the dowager and back again, "or how I happened to miss my father. I'm ever—so much obliged to you, and if you will give me my hat, I'll take the next train back to college."

"You'll do nothing of the sort," said the dowager, promptly. "My dear, you're a sweet girl that's been studying too hard. You must go to my room and rest—"

"And stay for dinner. Don't you care. Sometimes I don't know how I got here myself." Edward winked jovially.

Well, I did. While the dowager's back was turned I gave him the littlest one, in return for his. It made him drunker than ever.

"I think," said the bishop, grimly, with a significant glance at the dowager, as he turned just then and saw the old cock ogling me, "the young lady is wiser than we. I'll take her to the station—"

The station! Ugh! Not Nance Olden, with the red coat still on.

"Impossible, my dear bishop," interrupted the dowager. "She can't be permitted to go back on the train alone."

"Why, Miss—Miss Murieson, I'll see you back all the way to the college door. Not at all, not at all. Charmed. First, we'll have dinner—or, first I'll telephone out there and tell 'em you're with us, so that if there's any rule or anything of that sort—"

The telephone! This wretched Edward with half his wits gave me more trouble than the bishop and the dowager put together. She jumped at the idea, and left the room, only to come back again to whisper to me:

"What name, my dear?"

"What name? What name?" I repeated, blankly. What name, indeed. I wonder how "Nance Olden" would have done.

"Don't hurry, dear, don't perplex yourself," she whispered, anxiously, noting my bewilderment. "There's plenty of time, and it makes no difference—not a particle, really."

I put my hand to my head.

"I can't think—I can't think. There's one girl has nervous prostration, and her name's got mixed with mine, and I can't—"

"Hush, Hush! Never mind. You shall come and lie down in my room. You'll stay with us to-night, anyway, and we'll have a doctor in, bishop."

"That's right," assented the bishop. "I'll go get him myself."

"You—you're not going!" I cried, in dismay. It was real. I hated to see him go.

"Nonsense—'phone." It was Edward who went himself to telephone for the doctor, and I saw my time getting short.

But the bishop had to go, anyway. He looked out at his horses shivering in front of the house, and the sight hurried him.

"My child," he said, taking my hand, "just let Mrs. Ramsey take care of you to-night. Don't bother about anything, but just rest. I'll see you in the morning," he went on, noticing that I kind of clung to him. Well, I did. "Can't you remember what I said to you in the carriage—that I wished you were my daughter. I wish you were, indeed I do, and that I could take you home with me and keep you, child."

"Then—to-night—if—if when you pray—will you pray for me as if I was—your own daughter?"

Tom Dorgan, you think no prayers but a priest's are any good, you bigoted, snickering Catholic! I tell you if some day I cut loose from you and start in over again, it'll be the bishop's prayers that'll do it.

The dowager and I passed Edward in the hall. He gave me a look behind her back, and I gave him one to match it. Just practice, you know, Tom. A girl can never know when she'll want to be expert in these things.

She made me lie down on a couch while she turned the lamp low, and then left me alone in a big palace of a bedroom filled with things. And I wanted everything I saw. If I could, I'd have lifted everything in sight.

But every minute brought that doctor nearer. Soon as I could be really sure she was gone, I got up, and, hurrying to the long French windows that opened on the great piazza, I unfastened them quietly, and inch by inch I pushed them open.

There within ten feet of me stood Edward. No escape that way. He saw me, and was tiptoeing heavily toward me, when I heard the door click behind me, and in walked the dowager back again.

I flew to her.

"I thought I heard some one out there," I said. "It frightened me so that I got up to look. Nobody could be out there, could they?"

She walked to the window and put her head out. Her lips tightened grimly.

"No, nobody could be out there," she said, breathing hard, "but you might get nervous just thinking there might be. We'll go to a room upstairs."

And go we did, in spite of all I could plead about feeling well enough now to go alone, and all the rest of it. How was I to get out of a second or third-story window?

I began to think about the correction again as I followed her upstairs, and after she'd left me I just sat waiting for the doctor to come and send me there. I didn't much care, till I remembered the bishop. I could almost see his face as it would look when he'd be called to testify against me, and I'd be standing in that railed-in prisoner's pen, in the middle of the courtroom, where Dan Christensen stood when they tried him.

No, I couldn't bear that; not without a fight, anyway. It was for the bishop I'd got into this part of the scrape. I'd get out of it so's he shouldn't know how bad a thing a girl can be.

While I lay thinking it over, the same maid that had brought me the tea came in. She was an ugly, thin little thing. If she's a sample of the maids in that house, the lot of them would take the kink out of your pretty hair, Thomas J. Dorgan, Esq., late of the house of refuge and soon of Monamensing. Don't throw things. People in my set, mine and the dowager's, don't.

She had been sent to help me undress, she said, and make me comfortable. The doctor lived just around the corner, and would be in in a minute.

Phew! She wasn't very promising but she was my only chance. I took her.

"I really don't need any help, thank you, Nora," I said, chipper as a sparrow, and remembering the name the dowager had called her by. "Aunt Henrietta is too fussy, don't you think? Of course, you won't say a word against her. She told me the other day that she'd never had a maid so sensible and quick-witted, too, as her Nora. Do you know, I've a mind to play a joke on the doctor when he comes. You'll help me, won't you? Oh, I know you will!" Suddenly I remembered the bishop's bill. I took it out of my pocket. Yep, Tom, that's where it went. I had to choose between giving that skinny maid the biggest tip she ever got in her life—or Nance Olden to the correction.

You needn't swear, Tom Dorgan. I fancy if I'd got there, you'd got worse. No, you bully, you know I wouldn't tell; but the police sort of know how to pair our kind.

In her cap and apron I let the doctor in and myself out. And I don't regret a thing up there in the square except that lovely red coat with the high collar and the hat with the fur on it. I'd give— Tom, get me a coat like that and I'll marry you for life.

No, there's one thing I could do better if it was to be done over again. I could make that dear little old bishop wish harder I'd been his daughter.

What am I mooning about? Oh—nothing. There's the watch—Edward's watch. Take it.

CHAPTER II

YES, empty-handed, Tom Dorgan. And I can't honestly say I didn't have the chance, but—if my hands are empty, my head is full.

Listen.

There's a girl I know with short brown hair, a turned-up nose and gray eyes, rather far apart. You know her, too? Well, she can't help that.

But this girl—oh, she makes such a pretty boy! And the ladies at the hotel over in Brooklyn, they just dote on her when she's not only a boy, but a bell-boy. Her name may be Nancy when she's in petticoats, but in trousers she's Nathaniel—in short, Nat.

Now, Nat, in blue and buttons, with his nails kept better than most boys', with his curly hair parted in the middle, and with a gentle tang to his voice that makes him almost girlish—who would suspect Nat of having a stolen pass-key in his pocket and a pretty fair knowledge of the contents of almost every top bureau-drawer in the hotel?

Not Mrs. Sarah Kingdon, a widow just arrived from Philadelphia, and desperately gone on young Mr. George Moriway, also fresh from Philadelphia, and desperately gone on Mrs. Kingdon's—money.

The tip that lady gave the bad boy Nat! I knew I couldn't make you believe it any other way; that's why I passed 'em on to you, Tommy-boy.

GULLIBILITY OF SHEEP.

Ewe That Has Lost Her Lamb Will Unhesitatingly Take to Strange Young One.

The utter stupidity of sheep is perhaps nowhere more strongly evidenced than in the perfect satisfaction with which a ewe that has lost her lamb will take to a strange lamb, around which has been fastened the skin of her dead offspring.

Considering that the skin of the dead lamb is often merely thrown loosely over the back of the living lamb, sometimes hanging almost to the ground on one side or the other, and making the lamb appear the quaintest kind of animal imaginable, the ewe's gullibility in this respect is remarkable. There can be no other explanation of her satisfaction than that she really thinks the muffled little stranger is her own progeny, otherwise she would give it no attention whatever.

Its appearance does not seem to count, nor even its voice. Its smell is something, which may be seen in any flock of ewes and lambs, for while the mothers certainly appear to know the bleating of their own children, the identification is always completed by the ewe sniffing the coat of her lamb.

I have been looking at two such quaint families in the lambing pens, says a writer in the London Express, and the picture of a sedate ewe placidly attending to the two weird little creatures which look as if they have been half-flayed was the most comical study of animal stupidity which could be imagined.

NEWS FROM SIOUX ELITE.

Society Notes Reporting the Movements of Redskinned Notables of the Reservation.

Charlie Dog Eyes hauled a cord of wood to the school this week, reports the Rosebud Indian Agency News.

Mr. Pup is not feeling at all well now. He was bleeding from the lungs.

Mr. Wasmud and family spent Saturday at He Dog's camp, visiting with Mr. Ege's.

It is reported that Spider Brave Bird and Rose Crow Head are married without the services of a preacher.

Circle Fool, one of our most thrifty Indians, died after a brief illness.

Eagle Elk, who is visiting Never Miss a Shot, went to the agency Sunday.

Two Teeth visited the school Monday a. m. and Little Bald Eagle ditto Monday p. m.

Kate Hunts Horse has been sewing for two weeks at the school.

Oliver Yellow Hair, policeman, returned last Saturday from a two weeks' visit at Pine Ridge.

Annie Goes to War visited our school last week Wednesday.

Master Harry and Lucy Roan Horse have been visiting at home for a few days.

Aloysius Shooting Cat has left a warm, comfortable house and pitched his tent in a sheltered nook of the hills bordering Spring creek for the purpose of being near school.

VIEWING MARINE WONDERS.

Comical Comments of Youthful Visitors to New York's Famous Aquarium.

The aquarium is an unfailing source of astonishment and delight to all small children, and they make all sorts of odd remarks about the things they see there; such comments being very likely about things familiar enough to their elders, but new to them, says the New York Sun.

"My! what a long tongue!" said a small boy, as he gazed at a soft shell clam lying on the bottom of a tank, with its neck extended from its shell to the length of five or six inches.

A father and his very youthful son were looking in at the tank of cow fishes, those very curious fishes that have projecting from the top of the head two spines shaped like horns, while the profile of this fish's head helps the resemblance and gives to it, with the horns atop, the name of cow fish.

"Do they give milk?" asked this small boy.

"I don't know, son," said the father, and then the two passed on to the next tank of wonderful fishes from the tropics.

Chicken "Played Possum."

Here is a chicken that "played possum." A correspondent writes: "The cat of our household entered my room the other day, dragging a nearly full-grown chicken in its mouth. The chicken made no resistance and was quite motionless, and when I made the cat drop it the chicken lay apparently dead. I chased the cat from the room, and on my return to the chicken I was surprised to see it slowly open its eyes, raise its head and look cautiously round. As soon as it felt sure of the disappearance of its enemy it got up and ran off as fast as it could."

High-Priced Snuff Box.

High prices continue to be paid in Paris for snuff-boxes of the eighteenth century. At the recent sale of a collection made by M. Guilhou, of Bayonne, one box in gold enamel, appraised by the official expert at $1,600, sold for $4,000. One of the interesting items of the sale was a pair of candelabra once owned by Marie Antoinette, which went for $3,000, far less than was expected.

Labor in Vain.

The Wesleyans of Penarth, Wales, held a bazar for the purpose of raising money for repairing their church. The day after the bazar closed the church was burned.

MOLLY BRANT WINS.

Dolly Spanker, Cairngorm and Beldame Trailed Her.

Saratoga, N, Y., Aug. 9—If John Sanford's horses continue to be as successful as they have been at the local race meet, this State Racing Commissioner will head the list of winning owners. His horses, Caughnawaga and Mohawk II, up to yesterday had won the most valuable stakes and yesterday afternoon Sanford added another to his string of victories, when Molly Brant dashed home the winner of the Delaware Handicap in front of Dolly Spanker, Cairngorm and Beldame.

Molly Brant beat her rivals in a canter. With her head in the air and romping along steadily during every fractional part of the contest, she demonstrated that she has speed For a mare that time and again has shown quality, she was treated leniently by Handicapper Vosburg who weighted her with only 113 pounds. Beldame carried top weight, 122 pounds, one pound more than the scale of weights called for.

$10,000 PURSE FOR SADIE MAC.

Miss Wilkes' Trotter Walked Away With Grand Circuit Prize.

Buffalo, Aug. 9—If the light harness enthusiast who is reported to have offered $30,000 for Sadie Mac could have seen the Peter the Great mare walk off with the $10,000 Empire State purse for 2.10 trotters at Kenilworth Park yesterday afternoon he would probably raise hir offer. The mare always was a 5 to 1 favorite.

In each of the three heats Stinson, the driver, looked back and watched the successful fight of Geers, with Zephyr, for second money. Miss Katherine Wilkes, who owns the Cruickstone Stock Farm, at Galt, Ont., applauded each winning heat.

"MARTY" TO TRY AGAIN.

Young "Pro" to Take Part in Tournament.

"Marty" O'Loughlin, the young professional golfer of the Plainfield Country Club, left this afternoon for Deal Beach, where he has been invited to play in a tournament, in which twenty of the best golfers will participate.

Only a month ago O'Loughlin took part in a professional contest at Van Cortland park, and competing with the best golfers of the country, he finished in thirteen place.

DROWNED IN MONTANA.

Telegram Tells Mr. and Mrs. James Touzeau of Son's Death.

A telegram received yesterday apprised Mr. and Mrs. James Touzeau, of Dunellen, of the death of their son, Frank, 26 years old, in Montana by drowning. Details of his death were not given. Mr. Touzeau has wired for information.

Frank Touzeau went West a year and a half ago. He was well known in Dunellen, a member of the Presbyterian church there, and of the Christian Endeavor Society. He is survived by his parents, a brother, Fred, younger than himself, and a married sister, Mrs. Herbert Williams.

EXEMPTS WANT A HOME.

Present Quarters Are Not Large Enough.

The regular emeting of the North Plainfield Exempt Firemen's Association was held last night in the club rooms on Somerset street. Regular routine business was first transacted. Then an informal discussion was held concerning a site for new club rooms.

The rooms in which the club now meets are not large enough to suit the members, and it is probable that at the meeting in September, a committee will be chosen to either look for new rooms or look for a site on which to build a suitable structure.

BRIGHT LITTLE FELLOW DEAD.

Dysentery Adds Edward C. Kelly to Its List of Victims.

Edward C. Kelly, the six years and eight-months-old son of Edward and Catherine Kelly, of Codington avenue, died yesterday afternoon at 1 o'clock after an illness of nine days with dysentery. The little fellow was of a lovable disposition and his presence radiated sunshine wherever he went. His four-year-old sister has been ill with the same complaint but is now doing nicely.

The funeral services will be held from his parents' home tomorrow afternoon at 1:30 and from St. Joseph's church at 2 o'clock. Interment will be at St. Mary's cemetery.

Funeral of Miss Berg.

The funeral of Miss Grace Berg, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Berg, was held from the parents' home yesterday afternoon, with a gathering of relatives and friends in attendance. It was conducted by Rev. Mr. Berg, of Ellenville, N. Y., a brother of Dr. Berg. The floral tributes included a large set piece from the Christian Endeavor Society, of Trinity Reformed church, of which Miss Berg was a member. The interment was made in the Methodist cemetery, six members of Trinity Sunday-school acting as pall bearers. They were Jens Claassen, George Wyckoff, Arthur Caleen, Lloyd Van-Middlesworth, Clarence Hand and Monroe Spuier.

Fine Bathing at Asbury Park.

Saturday is the great day at Asbury Park. The large increase of guests over Saturday and Sunday puts every attraction at its best. Pryor's band plays the finest music. Every show gives its most elaborate program. Even old Neptune has orders to quiet the waves and warm up the water to the best temperature for bathing. Don't miss the chance to spend the day at the shore with the Hope Chapel excursion.

The train leaves Plainfield at 8 o'clock, and returning leaves Asbury Park at 7.45 o'clock.

You Can't Afford to Miss It.

The weather man has promised that clear skies will prevail tomorrow. That means that all who go on the excursion of the local and Dunellen Methodist churches to Asbury Park and Ocean Grove will enjoy themselves as they never did before. The day's recreation at the seashore will bring old and young back with rosy cheeks and sparkling eyes. The train leaves the North Avenue station at 8 o'clock and does not begin the return trip until 7:10 in the evening.

Kane Wins Again.

The third and final hitch in the work of demolishing the old buildings on the McCutchen property, Park avenue, between Aleck Kane, the house wrecker, and Thomas L. Walsh, a fruit dealer whose store was in the group of buildings, was settled yesterday. The trouble hinged over the ownership of the store fixtures. Mr. McCutchen settled it by paying Kane for them, in consideration of a release to Walsh. The latter moved the fixtures this morning

Miss Nettie Weiss, of the borough, is spending the week at Asbury Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gow, of Lee place, will spend the coming week at Asbury Park.

ASBURY PARK WOMEN TO VOTE

Election Likely to Result in Very High Licenses.

Women are to be permitted to vote at the special election to be held at Asbury Park on August 18, when it will be determined whether high license is desired or not, and they may control the election.

This is to be a taxpayers' election and every person by showing a tax receipt, man or woman, is to be given the right to vote.

There will be two election officers at the voting place, and the ballots will read:

"For High License" and "Against High License."

It was decided to let the women vote because some of the hotels are conducted by women, and other women have purchased property at Asbury Park with the understanding that the place would always be a prohibition town.

ELOPING BANKER RETURNS.

Baltimore's Ex-Mayor Is Back Home Again.

Baltimore, Aug. 9—As unexpectedly as came the sensational announcement that Robert C. Davidson, former Mayor of Baltimore and subsequently president of the Baltimore Trust and Guarantee Company, had eloped with a trained nurse, comes the statement that he has returned from Europe and became reconciled to his wife.

The announcement of his elopement about May 23 was made by Mrs. Davidson, who spoke with some bitterness of the woman who had won her husband's affections. The reconciliation was today made known by George R. Whitelock, who was Mr. Davidson's counsel and who stated that Mr. and Mrs. Davidson are now together in New York, having settled their differences in an amicable manner.

INTERSTATE FAIR DOG SHOW.

Directors Authorize Costly Building to be Occupied by New Feature.

The directors of the Interstate Fair Association, at Trenton, have authorized the erection of a building to cost $5,000, which will be used at the fair this fall for a dog show.

This will be another feature of the big annual fair.

About $10,000 will be spent for new buildings and repairs, and the fair this fall seems to be getting in fine shape. The directors have a large automobile touring South Jersey with advertising matter in the interest of the fair.

MISS JANE THORN WEDDED.

Quietly Married to John Turnbull Minugh, of Jersey City.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Jane Thorn, daughter of Frank B. Thorn, of East Third street, to Rev. Charles W. L. Stromborne at the Church of the Transfiguration, New York, on Wednesday, July 26. Only the necessary witnesses were in attendance.

Mr. and Mrs. Minugh will make their home in Jersey City. The former is well known in Plainfield and Somerville.

Fish Biting at Sewaren.

In spite of the poor weather and water conditions, fishing at Sewaren was generally reported as good. The best catch of the day was made by the party composed of James Blair, Elvin Van Name and Charles Cruzin. They returned home with a total catch of eighteen weakfish. The only ones from this city coming home without any catches were William Kenyon and Frank Webster.

Reuben Knox, of Rockview avenue, is spending the week at Atlantic City.

Mrs. L. E. Wilkins and daughter, Miss Eva Wilkins, are at the Surf Avenue house, Ocean Grove.

BRIDES "TO OBEY."

Revised Report on Ritual Does Not Amen Marriage Service.

Pittsburg, Aug. 9.—The revised report of the Presbyterian General Assembly's Committee on Forms and Services contains the rituals of the respective churches, and, while much alike, they show a striking contrast in the marriage service. In the Presbyterian church the woman must promise to obey—in the Methodist Episcopal church she need take no such obligation.

The Presbyterian service goes as follows: "Then the minister shall say to the woman: Wilt thou have this man to be thy troth to him, in all love and honor, in all duty and service, in all faith and tenderness, to live with him, cherish and obey him, according to the ordinance of God in the holy bond of marriage? The woman shall answer, I, will."

The Methodist Episcopal service reads: "Then shall the minister say unto the woman: Wilt thou have this man to be thy wedded husband, to live together after God's ordinance in the holy state of matrimony. Wilt thou love, honor and keep him, in sickness and in health and forsaking all other, keep thee only unto him so long as ye both shall live? Then the woman shall answer: I will."

Corporation Notice.

Public notice is hereby given that at a meeting of the Common Council of the City of Plainfield, New Jersey, held on Monday, the seventh day of August, 1905, an ordinance of which the following is a true copy, to wit:

AN ORDINANCE

For the Construction of a Further Addition to the System of Sewerage Already Constructed in the City of Plainfield

WHEREAS, There has been constructed in said City a system of sewerage and such action in relation thereto has from time to time been taken as is set forth in the several ordinances of said City relating thereto, and particularly the ordinances respectively entitled, "An ordinance to provide for the construction of an addition to the system of sewerage already constructed in the City of Plainfield," approved November 6, 1897, and "An Ordinance to provide for the improvement of Sewage Disposal Works, Beds and Appurtenances of the City of Plainfield," approved April 4, 1901, to which several ordinances reference is hereby made for greater certainty; and

WHEREAS, In the opinion of the Common Council the public good requires that a further addition, as hereinafter described, to the system of sewerage already constructed, should be now constructed in and for said City under the provisions of the acts of the Legislature in such case made and provided, and the Common Council has so determined and does hereby so determine; therefore,

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1 That the Common Council doth hereby direct and order that a further addition to the system of sewerage already constructed as aforesaid, be constructed in and for said City, under the provisions of the Acts of the Legislature above referred to, with all the appurtenances necessary to complete the same, and of such dimensions and material and according to such plan as the said Common Council may hereafter direct, in and through the following described streets, avenues, property, lands and rights-of-way described, mentioned and referred to in this ordinance, to wit:

East Seventh Street, from Leland Avenue 940 feet east;

East Sixth street, from Berckman Street to Central Street;

Columbia Avenue;
Frederick Street;
North Front Street;
Park Terrace;
Park Lane.

was presented, read and ordered to be considered and acted upon by said Common Council at a regular meeting thereof to be held in the Council Chamber, No. 149 North Avenue, in said City of Plainfield, on Tuesday, the fifth day of September, 1905, at the hour of eight o'clock in the evening of that day, and at such meeting ample opportunity will be given to all parties in favor of or opposed to the improvement contemplated by said ordinance, to present their views with reference to the same in writing, or otherwise, as the Common Council may at that time direct, and public notice is hereby given of the intention of the Common Council to cause said improvement set forth in this ordinance to be made, and such persons or corporations as may object thereto, are requested to present their objections in writing at the City Clerk's office, No. 151 North Avenue, in the City of Plainfield, N. J., at or before the expiration of ten days from the date of this notice, or to the Common Council at its first meeting held after the expiration of the said ten days, and said Common Council at such meeting to be held on the fifth day of September, 1905, as above stated, or afterwards, may proceed to consider and pass such ordinance notwithstanding any objection.

By order of the Common Council.

J. T. MacMurray, City Clerk.

DEMOCRATS HAVE SLOGAN

City Committee Decides to Make Municipal Ownership Chief Issue.

FOR FALL CAMPAIGN

Propose to Pick Strong Men as Councilmanic Candidates—To Put Up a Fight.

Without loss of time, the Democracy of Plainfield has come out in favor of municipal ownership of public utilities. This action is due to the subject being introduced at the meeting of the Common Council Tuesday night. No definite course has been mapped out by the minority party in its proposed fight but at the meeting of the city committee last night it was decided to place a municipal ownership plank in the platform to be built for the fall campaign.

Not only will the Democrats favor public control of the water supply but it will advocate the municipal control of all utilities. Former Councilman Vincent L. Frazee, who is the press committee for the local Democratic organization, declared today that a bold fight would be made in favor of the recommendation of the advisory board of engineers that the water plant be obtained either by purchase or by condemnation proceedings.

In speaking to a representative of The Daily Press, Mr. Frazee said: "We are out to give the local Republican administration a stiff fight at the polls. Many people think the Democrats should be represented in the Common Council. Hoping to obtain some voice there, we intend to nominate the very best men we can find and there are a lot of good men here who vote the Democratic ticket."

It is the plan of the Democratic city committee to have men nominated for Common Council in all the wards. They admit that there is no show to win in some cases but declare that if their candidates make good runs, the effect will be beneficial to the city.

BURNED 180,000 BRICKS.

A. L. Jimerson & Son Test their New Kiln in Netherwood.

The first test burn A. L. Jimerson & Son's new brickyard in Netherwood was completed on Tuesday. It was completely successful and the plant will now be pushed to its full capacity.

The kiln contained 180,000 bricks. This is a small kiln, the burn usually turning out 560,000 bricks, so the test kiln was really only a sort of a baby burn, and not important from the standpoint of numbers, though 180,000 bricks seems a big pile to people who don't work in bricks. This little kiln had only six arches, of 30,000 bricks each. The ordinary kiln comprises fourteen arches, of 40,000 each. A burn takes five days to complete.

The Jimerson arches will be raised, and the kiln enlarged. The firm is highly pleased with the quality of their clay and the success of the initial burn.

ADVISES CONFIRMATION OF THE STERLING SALE

CHAS. J. FURY WILL TAKE CHARGE AS SOON AS COURT SIGNS ORDER.

In Somerville yesterday Vice Chancellor Bergen announced that he would advise a confirmation of the transfer of the Hotel Sterling property, Newton, by the receiver, Colonel John T. Van Cleef, to Charles J. Fury, of Somerville, the consideration being $6,000.

It is held by the vice chancellor, that the receiver acted properly in refusing to adjourn the sale at the instance of John J. Fleming, the former proprietor; O. D. Wilkinson, owner of the building, and others. The request for adjournment he characterizes as being only for the opportunity to apply to the courts for an order discharging the receiver and also to give Fleming the hotel assets.

The vice chancellor contends that the business should not have been continued any longer than was necessary to properly advertise and dispose of it as a going concern, and that it further appears it was being run by the receiver at a loss, a consideration, the vice chancellor declares, which made it his duty to dispose of it at a fair sale to save the creditors further loss.

To a reporter Mr. Fury said yesterday that as soon as the order was signed he would take possession of the hotel, with Edward Mahoney as manager. The latter, however, will not give up control of the Lafayette, on South Warren street, as has been rumored.

Colonel Van Cleef stated yesterday that since the sale, when Mr. Fury paid him down 10 per cent. of the purchase price, he has been keeping his account separate from Mr. Fury's as owner until the sale is confirmed.

Counselor John H. Backes will enter an appeal to the court of errors and appeals as soon as the order confirming the sale is signed. Mr. Backes claims that his clients are not satisfied with the price received for the property.

NEW TROLLEY LINE CONTRACTS ARE SET

NEW YORK-PHILADELPHIA COMPANY'S SHORT ROAD WILL GIVE HIGH SPEED.

The New York-Philadelphia company has just let to Cole & Tonson's a contract for the grading and building of its New Jersey short line. This will extend from Milltown, the present terminus of the Trenton and New Brunswick, to Elizabeth, giving a high-speed line from New Brunswick to Elizabeth, and in conection with the Trenton and New Brunswick railroad, a through high-speed system from Trenton to Elizabeth.

The present route of the through service between Trenton and New York is over the Trenton and New Brunswick "Fast Line" to New Brunswick, and from there a detour is necessary via the lines of the Public Service Corporation, the cars passing through Bound Brook, Dunellen and Plainfield to Elizabeth. With the completion of the New Jersey short line there will be a direct high-speed route all the way from Trenton to Elizabeth, avoiding detours and cutting in half the time consumed for the trip between Trenton and New York will be fully realized with the completion of the Short Line railroad, the work on which will be pushed to completion as rapidly as possible.

THROWN FROM A TROLLEY CAR.

Mrs. Charles L. Jeter Injured Through Conductor's Carelessness.

Mrs. Charles L. Jeter, of Belmont avenue, sustained severe injuries last night by being thrown from a trolley car at West Front street and Grant avenue. She was about to alight, when according to witnesses, the conductor carelessly gave the signal to go ahead and the car started forward with a jerk. She fell heavily to the ground and was rendered partly conscious. The conductor allowed the car to proceed but passengers quickly called to him to stop and return.

Mrs. Jeter was removed to a nearby residence and later taken home. She is in charge of Dr. Cregar, but her condition is such that a complete examination has not yet been made.

Another Cop Shoot.

Another revolver competition has been started by the police, for August. The men will shoot every week, and the highest total will take the prize.

Mayor at Shore.

Mayor Smalley, of the borough, was among the excursionists on the Methodist trip to Ocean Grove this morning.

The Rescue Mission will hold its regular weekly meeting tonight.

DEATH NEWS WENT ASTRAY

Frank Touzeau's Family in Ignorance of Drowning for Two Weeks.

BODY BURIED IN WEST

Father Will Go West and Have Remains Exhumed—Young Man Was to Have Been Married Soon.

Through a mistake in the address of a letter, the family of Frank Touzeau, of Dunellen, whose death by drowning in Montana was made known yesterday, were kept in ignorance of his sudden end for nearly two weeks. Before they had heard of his fatal accident, he was buried in the town where he had lived.

The letter sent from the West to notify James Touzeau of his son's death was misdirected and went astray. It was not received until Tuesday, nearly two weeks after it was mailed.

While the letter was wandering through the mails the people in whose charge the body was in Montana gave up hope of hearing from the dead man's relatives and buried the remains.

Mr. Touzeau will leave for the West today or tomorrow, to have the body exhumed and brought East.

Young Touzeau went West as a home-builder. He had built a house on a homestead, and was settling down to become one of the developers of the Western country when he lost his life. A sad feature of his death is the fact that he was engaged to be married, and his wedding would have taken place within a month.

He was drowned while swimming. A sudden seizure of muscular cramp caused him to sink before assistance could reach him.

TOMORROW NIGHT'S CONCERT.

Eddie Weston and Nic Parker to be the Soloists.

Eddie Weston and Nic Parker will be the soloists at the weekly music fest in Concert Park tomorrow night. The former is a local favorite but Parker is a newcomer. He is well known in the metropolitan district however, and has always made a good impression. His selections have not yet been made known. Weston will sing "The Leader of the German Band" and "My Yankee Irish Girl." The programme in detail follows:

March—"Oyama," Braham; waltz—"Loveland," (new) Holzman; medley—"Up To Date," Lampe; vocal solo—(a) "The Leader of the German Band," Morse, (b) "Yankee Irish Girl," Morse, Eddie Weston; flower song—(a) "Hearts and Flowers," Toboni, (b) "Poppies," Morel; medley overture—"The Star," O. Hare; "Troubles of a Bandmaster," Fahrbach; vocal solo—(a) selected, (b) selected, Nic Parker; march—"Sylvia," M. A. Maxon.

LODGE ANNIVERSARY.

Benevolent Council to Celebrate Its Fifth Birthday.

To see how its godchild has been prospering, George H. Adams Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., of Newark, will come here next week to attend the fifth anniversary of Benevolent Council. Adams Council instituted Benevolent.

The anniversary will be observed by an informal jollification. A programme of entertainment will be presented and a collation will follow it. Adams Council will have at least 100 members at the affair.

The committee in charge of the affair is composed of Horace G. Adams, chairman; J. V. Beekman, R. D. Carver, A. H. Windham and G. Henry Adams.

Seeing is Believing.

Many of the newer New Jersey coast resorts claim to have more attractions and in a larger variety than those to be found at Asbury Park and Ocean Grove, but seeing is appreciating. Those who go to the latter on Saturday with the annual Hope chapel excursion will realize this fact. There are more diversions than ever this year and Saturday is always a special occasion. There is boating, bathing, fishing, band concerts and many other attractions. Beside this the Hope excursion does not leave on the return trip until 7:55 thus assuring a full day's enjoyment.

Record Number at Netherwood Camp

There are now 340 children at the Netherwood fresh air camp, the largest number that has been there since the opening. As a result the sleeping quarters are somewhat crowded, but Miss Curry has contrived to make all her little charges comfortable. The older boys sleep in large waterproof tents while the smaller children are accommodated in the main building.

BOOMING E. R. ACKERMAN

Despite His Refusal to Make Contest, Friends are Advocating His Nomination

FOR STATE SENATOR.

Movement in Elizabeth and Elsewhere—Something About the Man.

Although he declares that he will make no fight for the nomination, friends of Ernest Ackerman, of the Third ward, are industriously at work advocating him as a candidate for State senator. The movement started in Elizabeth and in various other sections it has gained much headway. Plainfield is still looked upon by county leaders as a doubtful quantity, although the administration people have come out for William N. Runyon. It has been stated that Mr. Ackerman will not accept a nomination without the support of his own town and his friends count upon obtaining it before the convention date.

Ernest R. Ackerman has been a resident of Plainfield for the greater portion of his life. He was born in New York city on June 17, 1863, and was educated at the Plainfield Public Schools, graduating from the High School in 1880. He has been a great traveler, and there is hardly a portion of the civilized world but that has contributed to his knowledge of men and things. He has always taken a great interest in local affairs, and in matters of general public interest. He is conservative in his actions and his mind and judgment have been ripened by a wide experience.

Mr. Ackerman fought the "Big Six" in the Common Council of 1891-92, when he represented the Third Ward in that body, and to his efforts was due in a great measure the setback the efforts the "Big Six" received and their final overthrow. He was a Presidential Elector and was Secretary of the New Jersey Electoral College in 1897. He is a member at large of the New Jersey Geological Survey. Fellow Republicans have frequently sent him as a delegate to city, county and State conventions of the party, and he was the chairman of the last county convention. He has been chairman of the Republican City Executive Committee, and is the present vice chairman, and is also the treasurer of the Third Ward Republican club.

In business matters Mr. Ackerman has always taken a leading part. He has been a large employer of labor and frequently has had from fifteen hundred to two thousand men on the pay roll. He is president of the Lawrence Cement Company, the pioneer of the cement industry and one of the largest producers of cement in the world. He is also president of the Feltville Water Company and is connected with many other business enterprises. He is a director of the Plainfield Trust Company, a member of the New York Chamber of Commerce, the Union League Club of New York, the Lawyers' Club, the McKinley Club, the Collectors' Club, the Building Material Exchange, the American Society of Testing Materials, the National Association of Manufacturers, an Associate Society of Civil Engineers, the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the American Museum of Natural History, and a Fellow of the American Geographical Society.

For twenty years Mr. Ackerman has been a director of the Y. M. C. A. He is a member of the Board of Trustees of the Crescent Avenue church, of the Advisory Board of the Plainfield Relief Association, and is second vice president of the Muhlenberg Hospital. He is vice president of the Plainfield Country Club, and is an exempt fireman, having been a member of the Alert Hose company in the days of the volunteer firemen.

FUNERAL OF MRS. WORK.

Dr. W. C. Snodgrass and Dr. McCrea the Officiating Pastors.

With a large gathering of relatives and friends in attendance, funeral services were held yesterday over the body of Mrs. F. S. Work from her late home on Prospect place. They were conducted by Rev. Dr. W. C. Snodgrass, of Perth Amboy, former pastor of the First M. E. church, and Rev. A. C. McCrea, the present pastor. Two selections, "Nearer My God to Thee" and "Abide With Me," were sung by Miss Bertha Willis of the First M. E. church choir. There were numerous floral tributes.

The interment was made at Hillside cemetery and the following acted as pall bearers: James R. Joy and William Chambers of this city; Mr. Campbell and Mr. Druse of Roselle.

Uncle Tom's Cabin.

Sterling's Uncle Tom's Cabin Co. will be in Plainfield on Monday, August 14, and will show under canvass on the Darrow avenue grounds.

VAN NUIS TO LOSE ALL

Local Police Will Not Even Give Him Some of the "Salve" Money

FARMER EXPLAINS.

Alleged He Hesitated to Inform on Long Through Fear of Murderer's Vengeance—Still Hopes for Reward.

If the Long reward is turned over to the local police, as it is expected to be when the county and city officials at Trenton formally decide the matter, Franklin Van Nuis, the Piscataway farmer who claimed the blood money, will not receive a cent even for his acknowledged assistance in making the capture possible on the morning it occurred.

"When we got hold of Long," said Chief Kiely yesterday, "I told Van Nuis that the money would be divided between the Trenton policemen, the Plainfield officers who took part in the capture, and himself, and that he would get the lion's share. I told him that particularly, that he would get the lion's share. Now he wont get a cent. To my mind his actions since the arrest do not entitle him to any consideration in disposing of the money, and I will act and advise Officers Higgins and McCarthy accordingly."

The chief denied that Van Nuis' tip was necessary to locate the murderer. He said it was notoriously known in the whole neighborhood that the negro had been at work on the place, and he had himself told Van Nuis the night before the capture that Long was again in his neighborhood and would undoubtedly appear on the farm.

The chief said he warned Van Nuis then that he must not continue harboring the murderer.

It is not at all unlikely that Van Nuis will find himself compelled to explain his conduct and attitude toward the officers of the law while the hunt was on in court. The Trenton police are very angry over his alleged assistance to the murderer, and they have not definitely decided not to take criminal action against him. Prosecutor Crossley, of Mercer county, has declared that if the officers have any evidence that Van Nuis did harbor and warn Long they should have him arrested.

Van Nuis, it is said, explains his position in shielding Long from Acting Chief Cleary's men by saying that if he betrayed Long to the police Long might come back and burn down his barn and house out of revenge.

Van Nuis said that he knew Long to be a quiet and peaceable man, but that under the circumstances he feared that Long would turn on the first man who betrayed him to the police, especially when the hangman's noose was dangling in his vision.

Van Nuis told Acting Chief Cleary that he felt entitled to the reward, as it was on his information that the man was caught, and that had he not feared the man he would have informed the police as soon as he learned that Long was in the vicinity of his farm.

OFF TO ASBURY.

Combined Methodist Excursion Takes Sixteen Carloads to the Shore.

Lowering clouds failed to dampen the enthusiasm of the members of the Plainfield and Dunellen Methodist churches when the time came for them to start on their annual excursion to Asbury Park this morning. They gathered at the North Avenue station in large numbers and when the Dunellen contingent came in with a train of fourteen cars, some of the Plainfielders looked in vain for seats. At the time for departure enough were standing to fill up two more cars and these were added at Roselle. Conductor Frank Webster was in charge of the train.

The churches which joined in the excursion were the First M. E., Grace and Monroe Avenue, of this city, and the Dunellen M. E. Samuel Bingaman, of the First M. E. church, was chairman of the supervising committee.

Shocked By Tree.

A tree that stands near Fire Chief Doane's house on West Fifth street, became charged with electricity during the rainstorm yesterday, and several people who touched it in passing received severe shocks. The tree is probably charged by contact with a lighting wire, and the current goes through the bark whenever it becomes wet.

Housewrecker Sues.

Aleck Kane, the housewrecker, has sued Max Michaelson on contract, in Justice Smalley's court. Kane alleges that he sold Michaelson iron and woodwork taken from the old Grace church parish house and the defendant refused to accept all he contracted for. Kane sues for $34. F. J. Blatz is his lawyer.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT AT SOUTH PLAINFIELD

WENT THROUGH ON A LEHIGH SPECIAL THIS MORNING.

South Plainfield was honored by the presence of President Theodore Roosevelt, for the space of thirty-five seconds this morning, or to be exact, the time it required to whirl him through on a special train over the Lehigh Valley. Though the fact of his coming was practically unknown, quite a delegation was at the station in the hope of seeing the chief executive, and they were not disappointed. He was seated in the rear of a handsome observation car and waved his hand in recognition of the cheers that greeted him.

The train left Jersey City at 10 o'clock and for four hours previous to that time not a train moved over the westbound track of the eastern division. Its destination was Wilkes-Barre where the president is to make an address at the miners' convention. The special passed South Plainfield at 10:35 and reached Easton at 11:40 ten minutes late.

CENSUS SHOWS QUEER POLLING PERCENTAGES

CAMDEN HAS ONE VOTE TO EVERY 3.99 PERSONS, 20 CITIES AVERAGE 5.24.

With the issuing of Bulletin No. 12, today, from the office of the Secretary of State, all the unofficial census bulletins are finished, and there will be none issued until the complete tabulation of the census figures is issued in one document.

Many surprising things are coming to the surface, now that politicians have received the figures for many of the big municipalities. It is not understood how Camden, with a population of 82,912, cast a Presidential vote last fall of 20,777, or one vote for every 3.99 persons—men, women and children.

Essex county, with a population as disclosed by the present State census, of 409,625, cast 80,510 Presidential votes, while Hudson county, with a population of 449,896, cast 79,009 votes. It is claimed that Essex county had 8,000 more votes than she was entitled to under the census returns, as compared with Hudson county.

The present population, the Presidential vote in 1904, and the percentage to population of this vote, in the twenty principal municipalities reported so far, is interesting, as it shows that there are queer things in Jersey politics, hard to reconcile with the fact that a man must be 21 years old to vote, and that women and children may not vote. In tabular form this condition is shown as follows:

	Population 1905.	Vote in 1904.
Newark	383,289	53,433
Jersey City	232,699	44,317
Paterson (estimated)	115,000	21,891
Trenton	84,147	18,394
Camden	82,912	20,777
Hoboken	65,468	10,533
Elizabeth	60,569	11,978
Bayonne	42,441	6,630
Passaic	37,837	4,679
Atlantic City	37,593	6,768
West Hoboken	29,082	4,328
Orange	26,101	5,939
Perth Amboy	25,895	3,601
East Orange	25,175	5,509
New Brunswick	23,133	5,110
Plainfield	18,469	3,850
Town of Union	16,872	3,038
Bridgeton	13,624	2,875
Phillipsburg	13,352	2,752
Millville	11,884	2,759

As will be seen the reports vary from one voter for every 3.99 inhabitants in Camden, to one to every 8.08 inhabitants in Passaic. Passaic has a very large foreign population working in the textile mills there, and Perth Amboy also has the same, although the ratio of population to voters is 7.19.

The total population of the twenty cities is 1,245,481, and the total vote cast in them last year was 239,661 or one vote to a fraction less than 5.24 inhabitants.

Higgins Goes to Europe.

B. J. Higgins, of Elizabeth, who is the chairman of the municipal ownership committee of the Elizabeth Council, has sailed for Europe on a business trip. Elizabeth is interested in a scheme to purchase the water works from a private corporation and an important meeting was arranged for tonight between the water company officials and the councilmanic committee. The absence of Mr. Higgins, it is said, places the matter in an awkward position.

OFFICERS OF ELECTIONS

List of Minority Party Made Up at City Committee Meeting

FOR ALL WARDS.

John P. Owens Selected As a Member of County Committee—Another Session on Monday Night.

Selecting election officers was a feature of the Democratic City Committee meeting last night. A complete list was made up and will be filed with the proper authorities immediately. Few changes have been made in the various districts, the former officers being approved for further duty in most cases.

The men chosen are: First ward, first district—Vincent L. Frazee and Michael DeCourcy; second district, William L. LaRue and Richard Kearns; Second ward, first district, Joseph Harrigan and Charles Messersmith; second district—James B. Guttridge and J. V. F. Dilts; Third ward, first district—W. A. Boone and Frank McInerney; second district—William H. Harding and M. J. O'Keefe; Fourth ward, first district—John F. Casey and Leroy Day; second district—James J. Kane and Clinton Shannon; third district—John J. Kinnery and Ira G. Hurlburt.

The lists of candidates for nomination as delegates to the city and county convention will be made up at a meeting of the city committee to be held Tuesday night. In addition lists of candidates for nomination as councilmen, constables and justices of the peace will also be completed at that time. These lists must be filed with City Clerk James T. MacMurray before Saturday night, August 26. The primaries will be held ten days from that time.

John P. Owens was elected last night to fill a vacancy from the first ward on the county committee.

HORNETS WERE AVENGED.

Fire Farmer Started In Yellow-Jackets' Nest Spread to Wagon.

In destroying a hornet's nest, Harry Moore, of Millington, brother-in-law of S. C. Mundy, of Stone street, and well known here, set fire to a wagonload of hay this week. Hay and wagon were consumed, and the horses were barely saved.

Moore was loading the wagon when he saw the yellow-jackets' nest on the ground. He fired it and went on loading hay. While his back was turned the flames travelled from the nest to the wagon, and when Moore's attention was drawn to it the load was blazing too fiercely to be saved. The flames threatened the horses and Moore had to cut the harness to save them.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

A move in the Chestnut street crossing gate matter has at last been made by the railroad. An agent has been detailed to watch the crossing, to take account of the amount of travel, vehicular and foot, and on his report the company will decide whether the gate is needed or not. Those who are interested in the gate for the borough's sake have been quietly urging all their friends and neighbors to swell the tide of travel at that point. This expedient is hardly necessary, however, as the normal amount of traffic over the crossing is certainly sufficient to demand the protection asked by the citizens. The agent was sent in response to representations made to the road by the councilmanic committee appointed to urge the matter on the Central's attention. The committeemen were not very cordially received, but the road officials were impressed with the strength and determination back of the demand, and have been moved against their will to take action.

A new flower bed is to be cultivated in the depot park. This announcement has been made times innumerable, but it is actually true this time. A gardener has been looking over the park, laying out the bed, and it will be put in shape for fall planting, so that it will begin to look like something next spring.

Something like a record for an afternoon's work was established at I. J. Stites' blacksmith shop Tuesday afternoon. At one time there were nine horses waiting to be shod. There was no particular reason for the rush. It "just happened so."

P. M. Ising spent yesterday in Coney Island.

The Hotel Pines' annual clambake, the fifth in number, will be held next Wednesday. As usual the affair has aroused a good deal of interest among the bake followers in the borough and village, and a number of them will attend it.

Charles Wyhuskey, who was so terribly injured in a bridge crash in Newark several months ago, is steadily regaining his health and strength. It is not believed that he will suffer any permanent after-effects from his hurts whatever.

Nearly two hundred boroughites went on the Methodist excursion to Asbury Park this morning. The local church went jointly with the Methodist churches of Plainfield. They will leave the Park at 7 o'clock tonight.

The Reformed church at South Bound Brook will hold a harvest home festival next Wednesday. A number of local people will attend it.

Among those who went on the excursion from Bound Brook to Willow Grove, Philadelphia, yesterday, were Henry Kirchner and John Campbell.

The loop waiting room is practically completed. It adds much to the attractiveness and business-like aspect of the terminus.

A new crushed stone roadbed has been laid at the depot tracks. The bed looks much neater and cleaner than the old one.

The foundation to Barney Siriski's new building on North avenue has been completed.

C. D. Taylor has entirely recovered from the effects of the severe injury to his leg.

Miss Ella Francis, of Irvington, is visiting friends in the borough for a few days.

Judge Campbell is doing office work for Garretson & Gray temporarily.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD

The local baseball team will have another try at the Berkeley Heights team Saturday afternoon. The Berkeleys defeated the locals Saturday of last week by the score of 6 to 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gray have started housekeeping in the Henry C. Meyers cottage on Prospect avenue.

George Berry, who has been visiting relatives and friends in town has returned to his home in Brooklyn.

Samuel Parsells, of New Brunswick, has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. William Bartle at Glenside.

The Township Committee met last night to revise and correct the assessor's duplicate.

Thomas Farrell, of Garwood, has been visiting Jacob Shackleton, of Park avenue.

Miss Ruth Dunn is spending several days with relatives and friends in Newark.

Twilight Council, Jr. O. U. A. M. meets tonight in the Library rooms.

Mrs. Frederick Clark and children spent yesterday at Midland Beach.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The late rains have enabled the farmers in the township to complete their plowing for winter grain.

The Board of Education recently decided to employ four teachers instead of five as formerly in the New Market school.

A large company from here joined the excursion to Bellwood Park yesterday; also about three carloads from Woodbridge.

NEW METHODIST HYMNAL.

Result of Six Years' Work—Kipling Among the Authors.

Pittsburg, Aug. 8.—The new hymnal of the Methodist church and the Methodist Episcopal church South has just come from the press, and a copy of the work was received yesterday at the Methodist Book Depository in Pittsburg, Pa. The hymnal has been in course of compilation for more than six years, its preparation having been authorized by the General Conference of the two churches in 1900. Instead of containing 1,100 hymns, as did the old Hymnal, the new book contains but 717, in addition to 10 doxologies and 20 chants.

Among the new authors whose names appear in the book are Rudyard Kipling to whose "Recessional" a place of honor is given; Dr. Richard Watson Gilder, the Rev. Washington Gladden, Bishop William C. Doane, of the Episcopal diocese of Albany, and Harriet Beecher Stowe. Of the compositions, there are 13 from Beethoven, 7 from Handel, 7 from Mendelssohn, 3 from Haydn, 3 from Gounod, 17 from Sir Arthur Sullivan, and only 1 from Ira D. Sankey.

A Popular Coast Trip.

There can be no doubt that the water trip to the New Jersey coast greatly enhances the popularity of the resorts of that state. The three handsome steamers "Asbury Park," "Monmouth" and "Sandy Hook," plying between Atlantic Highlands and New York are the fastest boats of their type in the world. From the time the sky-scrapers are left behind, points of interest are thick along the route. Castle William, the Statue of Liberty and Robbins Reef Light are close to the course, and passing between Forts Hamilton and Wadsworth the boat emerges from The Narrows into the lower bay. The quarantine stations on Hoffman and Swinbourne Islands; and West Bank Light are passed in quick succession on the right. Romer Beacon, locating the treacherous shoals of that name, lies toward the ocean, and soon after it is left behind the boat passes within the beacons of Sandy Hook. The landing was formerly made at this point before the peninsula was acquired for the United States ordnance proving grounds and other military and government purposes. From Atlantic Highlands an express train service is maintained to all the principal resorts. At Long Branch the all rail route to New York joins the sea-board line. Well appointed hotels are to be found along the entire coast and facilities for all the seashore recreations are at command. A hotel book and seashore time-table will be sent to any one, free of charge, upon application to C. M. Burt, General Passenger Agent, Central Railroad of New Jersey, New York.

Lake Excursion.

The beauty spot of New Jersey is Lake Hopatcong and one who visits the place is charmed with the diversified entertainment afforded. The surroundings are delightful in every respect and a day spent in the rarified mountain air of the Jersey foothills will do wonders for the tourist. There are ample facilities for fishing and boating and one who enjoys the rambles in wooded paths and the quietness of the natural pines, to him Lake Hopatcong is the gem of places. On August 13, 1905, the New Jersey Central is going to run one of its famous low priced and popular excursions to the Lake. Round trip $1, and special train leaves Plainfield at 9:20 a .m.

Broken Belt Shuts Shop.

The big Levering & Garrigue's plant in Dunellen was shut down yesterday afternoon in consequence of an acicdent to one of the main belts. The leather broke without warning, but no damage to the machinery ensued and none of the workmen were injured. The accident occurred at 3.40 o'clock, and as the break could not be repaired inside of two hours, work was suspended.

Mrs. Bissell, from Pittsburg, is a guest at the home of C. C. Tompkinson, of Grove street.

Mrs. Peter A. VanFleet, of East Third street, is entertaining Mrs. John H. Rhodes, of Shamokin, Pa.

Mrs. Emmel, of Salem, N. J., is visiting at the home of her sister, Mrs. Reuben Knox, of Rockview avenue.

Among the recent arrivals at the Manhattan Beach Hotel, L. I., are F. W. Wedell and William L. Saunders.

When you wish to rent a house or buy a lot, see G. F. Brown, on Somerset street. He will also write you up some insurance.

When you have been notified within short notice to get dinner ready, 'phone to John Wirth to send you your cake and confectionery.

Now is the season when the freshest fish may be caught. Ivamy, on West Second street, will supply you with such at lowest market prices and in any quantity.

S. Hirsch, the Watchung avenue tailor, is now busy with late summer and fall gowns. He employs none but experienced men and guarantees perfect fitting garments.

Harper's Park avenue stationery store is the place to get your papers, magazines and periodicals. If it is not convenient for you to call for them they will be delivered.

The Stillwell Milk and Cream Co., of Watchung avenue, will supply you the whole year through with fresh milk at six cents a quart. Consider the offer. Fresh eggs and butter are also on hand.

R. W. Barnes, the Park avenue grocer, makes a specialty of picnic and excursion delicacies. Before fixing up your lunch basket let him suggest something to put in it. He can be reached by 'phone.

Harry K. Lister receives new phonograph records each month. He will mail lists upon application. Those for August comprise some of the latest vocal and instrumental selections that should be in every repertoire.

E. M. French & Co., of North avenue, have real estate bargains in any part of the city. They have an especially large number of lots in the West End that would pay investors to look at. They also handle all lines of fire insurance.

Be sure your money and valuables are in a safe place by placing them in the safe deposit vaults at the First National Bank. The principles of the bank protect and benefit its many depositors. Accounts of corporations, firms and individuals respectfully solicited.

Scribner & Taylor, of Watchung avenue, are making a feature of souvenir postal cards. They have some new Plainfield views that will please your friends. Their store is headquarters for everything in the line of stationery, newspapers and magazines.

Because they have to buy for so many different stores and in such great quantities, the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co. are in a position to quote you the lowest prices on everything in the grocery and tea and coffee line. This week especially prices are so low and so many stamps are being given that it will pay every housewife to look at the ad. and visit the store.

She Warns Police of Burglary.

A woman, name unknown, with a quick wit and a knowledge of how to accomplish things, caused the arraignment in Butler Street Court today of Arthur Alleamune, of No. 57 Warren street, on a charge of burglary, and probably prevented a dozen burglaries in Brooklyn. While Sergeant Patrick Sullivan was at the desk in the Fifth avenue police station, Brooklyn, last night a woman called up on the 'phone: "I live opposite No. 491 Fourth street. The family in that house—Mr. John Bade's—has gone to the country. From my window I can see a light in the house and can see men moving about. I feel certain they are burglars. If you hurry you may be able to catch them. My name? No, that doesn't make any difference. Goodbye." The patrol wagon was sent down Fourth avenue to Fourth street and up the park slope, through one of the finest residence sections of Brooklyn, between Seventh and Eighth avenues. In the wagon were Patrolmen Holtz, Gannon and Clancey. There was no light in Mr. Bade's house. In order to get in the men quietly forced an entrance at the basement door. Then they went upstairs on tiptoe with drawn revolvers. The parlor floor was in disorder and in a corner asleep on a canvass bag filled with plunder, was the man arraigned in court today He had bric-a-brac and jewelry and silverware worth about $600 in the bag, and his pockets were bulging with plunder. When searched at the police station a memorandum book was found on him containing some fifty addresses of houses that are closed for the summer. Three of these noted in the book have been recently entered and ransacked. The police say the houses listed were to be "touched off."—New York World.

AMUSEMENTS.

"Fantana" will have its 300th performance at the Lyric theatre on the evening of Tuesday, September 12. The termination of the run has not yet been announced. Matinees, Wednesdays (at popular prices), Saturdays and Labor Day.

Margaret Anglin will be seen at the Princess theatre on September 18 in a new play, entitled, "Zira." Miss Anglin will be supported by a special company under direction of Henry Miller. "Zira" is to be followed by other dramas of like character.

"The Earl and the Girl," in the hands of a cast including Eddie Foy, Georgia Caine and Amelia Summerville, will be the initial attraction at the new Casino. The house will be opened on or about September 4.

OLD ELIZABETH DWELLING.

Stone House On Elizabeth Avenue Has Stood in Three Centuries.

One of the oldest dwelling-houses in Elizabeth is the stone building on Elizabeth avenue, near Reid street. It was erected in 1759 by Moses and Mary Ogden, a stone tablet on the east end stating this fact. During the Revolutionary War it was occupied by the family of Colonel Francis Barber, and one day, while the British were in the occupancy of the town, several drunken soldiers entered the house. Mrs. Barber, being alone and without protection, was greatly frightened at the conduct of the ruffians, who roamed through the mansion at their own sweet will and pleasure.

The British soldiers had gathered many articles of value which they intended carrying away, when they entered a room and found a picture of General Wolfe at the siege of Quebec. The surprise of the hero and his red-coated men was so great that they stopped the work of pillage doffed their shakos, saluted and retreated from the place, leaving their plunder behind. The house was never again visited by the enemy.

After the Mexican War the house was occupied by the Angus family, and by them kept in a good state of repair. Of late years it has been occupied by Professor James, the musician.

Recently the house was purchased by Mr. Miller, who has greatly improved the appearance of the place, an iron fence ornamenting the front yard.

CLOSE TO THE PEOPLE.

Welcoming the Editor.—George W. Miller, who for the past two and a half years has been local editor of the "Warren Tidings," has resigned and is succeeded by Louis I. Bennett late of the "Evening Post," of Bridgeton, Conn. Editor Bennett will also become the treasurer of the Tidings Publishing Company. The "Tidings" is one of our most interesting exchanges and under the local guidance of Mr. Miller it has been greatly improved, a fact which its editor and proprietor, Hon. J. B. R. Smith, generously admits in a leading editorial in its last issue. We feel sure that the well known perspicacity of Brother Smith has added to the ranks of New Jersey journalism a man who will be fully able to take up the work where his predecessor left off and not allow the progress of the "Tidings" to be retarded. Editor-in-Chief Smith has set the political position of the "Tidings" too high to admit of any "wooden nutmegs" in Republicanism to be inaugurated, and Brother Bennett will no doubt conform to the pure and unadulterated G. O. P'ism that has marked the past history of the paper. Here is your hand, Brother Bennett may you live long in New Jersey, the best State in the Union, though a little out of place just now in its political bearings, but in Warren county you may be saved.—Hunterdon County Democrat.

A Marvelous Enterprise.

Every day the expression is heard, "It is marvelous how a Sunday newspaper can give to its readers free of charge such a beautiful color magazine as is given with The Philadelphia Sunday Press." This magazine is equal to any ten cent magazine and is given absolutely free with The Sunday Press, a Sunday newspaper which costs only five cents per copy. The Sunday Press also has two other beautiful color magazines, consisting of a women's magazine, which is unexcelled, and a comic magazine, equal to the best. Such wonderful and valuable parts of a Sunday newspaper which is ably edited throughout, constantly add thousands of copies to the circulation of The Philadelphia Press. Do you read it? If not, notify your newsdealer at once to begin serving you with this newspaper.

The Vacation Widower.

The vacation widower is popularly looked upon as a happy man. His family is summering somewhere in the mountains, or at the seashore, in the heart of a peach farm or on the shores of a lake, and he is left to enjoy that boasted liberty which, as he recalls it, filled his bachelor days with gladness. There is none to believe that the vacation widower is not having the time of his life. The real facts in the case are not likely to bear out this belief, and if the full truth were told and acknowledged the vacation widower would likely be found as utterly unsatisfied with life as he is untrammelled by his usual worries as a householder and provider.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

Union County Common Pleas Court.

In the matter of the application of Ann E. Chapin to have a mortgage cancelled of Show Cause. Order to record.

It appearing by due proof that the said applicant, Ann E. Chapin, did, on the twenty-eighth day of March, Eighteen Hundred and Eighty-Two acquire by deed of warranty from Elias R. Pope and Hannah E. Pope, his wife, and Carman Parse and Elisa A. Parse, his wife, certain lands in the City of Plainfield, County of Union and State of New Jersey. And it appearing further that said lands had been acquired by the said Elias R. Pope and the said Carman Parse from Charles N. Hildreth, by deed dated May 1, 1876 both of which said deeds are recorded in the Register's office of the County of Union; and it appearing further that the said Charles N. Hildreth on the twelfth day of February, Eighteen Hundred and Seventy-Four, executed a mortgage on said premises to Ayres Codington, William Mc Nabb and Augustus Codington, partners as Codington, Mc Nabb & Co.; Cora O. Meeker and Robert Anderson, partners as C. O. Meeker & Co.; Morgan Bird, Theodore W. Young and Abraham S. Young partners as T. W. Young & Co.; Alfred D. Cook and Robert Cook, partners as A. D. Cook & Bro. and James S. Carman to secure the sum of Four Thousand and Twenty-Eight Dollars and Forty-Five Cents, which said mortgage is still open upon the records of the County of Union. And it appearing further that the said Ann E. Chapin has been in uninterrupted peaceable possession of said premises since the twenty-eighth day of March, Eighteen Hundred and Eighty-Two, and that no demand has ever been made upon her for payment of any part of the principal or of any interest on said mortgage and that she believes that the said mortgage has been paid and satisfied and should be cancelled of record. It is thereupon, on this twelfth day of July, A. D., Nineteen Hundred and Five, by virtue of an act entitled, "An act providing for the cancelling of record of mortgages by order of a circuit judge or law judge of the County," approved March 10, 1891, ordered, that the said mortgagees show cause before me at the Court House in Elizabeth, on the sixth day of September, next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, why the said mortgage should not be cancelled of record; It is further ordered that this order to show cause shall be served on the said Robert H. Cook by leaving a copy at his usual place of abode within five days from the date hereof and that the same be served on the said Ayres Codington, William Mc Nabb and Augustus Codington, partners as A. Codington, Mc Nabb & Co.; Cora O. Meeker and Robert Anderson, partners as C. O. Meeker & Co.; Morgan Bird, Theodore W. Young and Abraham S. Young, partners as T. W. Young & Co.; Alfred D. WHICH WOULD YOU LOSE?

Relative Value of Thumb and Finger in Various Countries.

The Thumb—The different fingers are far from having the same value with reference to their functional utiligation. Much the most important is the thumb, for within it prehension would be very imperfect. The hand is no longer pincers, but merely a claw, when deprived of the thumb. It may be estimated that the thumb represents fully a third of the total value of the hand. The total loss of the thumb is estimated by Brouardel, secretary of the Societe le Medecine Legale, as 15 to 35 per cent. for the right and 10 to 15 per cent. for the left hand, except for workers in art, when estimates 40 to 50 for the right and 25 to 40 per cent. for the left hand. The Austrian schedule gives 15 to 25 per cent. In Germany, 20, 25 and up to 33.3 per cent. has been awarded. On account of the great difference resulting in our opinion from the use of both hands, we prefer, in the professions not requiring special hand skill, 30 per cent. for the right and 20 per cent. for the left. The percentage is based on 100 as the total industrial value of the hand previous to the accident, a loss of 50 per cent. representing half of that value and a loss of 25 per cent. one-fourth, etc.

The Index Finger—The total loss of the index finger causes an incapacity estimated at 10 to 15 per. cent. in Germany; 15 to 23 per cent. by Thiersch; 20 per cent. for the right and 15 per cent. for the left by the Italian courts; 15 per cent. by the French tribunals; 10 to 15 percent for the left by Brouardel, except for workers in art. These figures differ but little from one another, and the figures from 10 to 20 per cent., according to the side, may be adopted.

The Middle Finger—The total loss of the middle finger is regarded by Golebiewski as often more prejudicial than that of the index. This is an isolated opinion; almost all the authorities ascribe less importance to the middle finger than to the index. Yet a great loss of force is observed in the hand when the finger is amputated. The following are estimates: The Austrian tariff, 5 to 10 per cent.; Brouardel, 5 to 15 per cent., except for workers in art; Thiersch, 10 to 20 per cent.; the Italian law, 5 per cent. The figures 8 to 12 per cent. ofter are nearest the truth.

The annular (ring) finger is the least important. Its total loss often does not cause incapacity. The Austrian tariff assimilates this finger to the middle one. Brouardel estimates the loss at 5 to 10 per cent.; the Italian law, 8 per cent. The French and German judicial decisions are often in accord in refusing indemnity, considering the incapacity resulting from the loss as very slight.

The articular (little) finger may be compared to the annular, except in the professions, in which it serves as a point of support for the hand.—From Accidents of Travel.

WATER EXPERIMENT.

Use of Sulphate of Copper Adjudged a Success.

State Entomologist John B. Smith, who is president of the New Brunswick Board of Health, is satisfied that the experiment made by treating the source of the water supply of that city with sulphate of copper has resulted highly successfully. The popular opinion is that the drinking water has greatly improved in taste and odor during the week. For two weeks prior to the treatment of Lawrence brook, the source of the water supply, the water had had a disagreeable and fishy taste and smell.

The method of applying the treatment was simple. Employes of the Board of Health and a water commissioner simply rowed the entire length of the brook and back again, trailing two bags containing 300 pounds of the sulphate of copper from the boat. They kept in the centre of the stream, so as to assure general distribution of the sulphate throughout the body of water.

It was Wednesday before the effects of the treatment was noticeable and Thursday before the treated water was sent through the pipes to the consumers. Repeated tests of the water were made, with the uniform reports that expectations had been realized and that the water had been purified. This single treatment will suffice for the season.

Professor Smith says that the effect of the solution is to kill off the algae only, and to this extent purify the water by improving the taste and smell.

SPRINGFIELD'S FIRST TRAIN.

Road to be Open on Monday Next.

Springfield Township, Union county, had Tuesday its first passenger train, when a trip was made over the Rahway Valley Railroad, a line from Aldene to Summit, through the eastern and southern portion of the township.

The tracks are laid a part of the distance and at the invitation of Supt. H. F. Dankel and J. N. H. Cornell, the chief engineer and contractor, twenty-five citizens of Millburn and Springfield took the first ride. The special train consisted of an engine and combination car.

At Aldene the road connects with the Central Railroad of New Jersey, at Roselle Park with the Lehigh Valley and at Summit there will be a connection with the Lackawanna. It is expected to open the road Monday.

MRS. FRASER TELLS OF WOMEN WHO SMOKE

COUSIN OF MRS. FLORENCE H. HALL SPEAKS OF EXPERIENCES ABROAD.

Mrs. Hugh Fraser, the authoress, cousin of Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, of this city, and niece of Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, who was recently in Plainfield, and who sailed last week for Japan, in a talk about her life abroad told of the universality of the custom of smoking among upper class women of all nationalities.

"Strange as it may seem, though," she said, "among the Japanese women, I have never seen one of the nobility smoke. No Japanese woman of the nobility, in fact, has ever admitted to me that she smoked. I presume that they do in their own homes. They may not have spoken of it, feeling that a Western woman would object, and it would not be courteous to do so.

"But if the upper class women are not seen smoking, the middle and lower class women smoke constantly. On long railroad journeys you will always see the women smoking. They smoke the three whiffs of tobacco that the little pipe contains, and then fill and light it again. They have told me that they smoke in this way because it is the first whiff of the tobacco which is agreeable. For my part I think their tobacco is very bad. I believe it is home grown, and it is not at all agreeable.

"My little Japanese maids always smoked, though never in my presence. They used to sit on their steps and smoke, but that was in their own quarters. I once raised the wages of my personal maid, and the first thing she did was to engage a maid for herself, and the duties of this little girl were chiefly to prepare her tea and make ready her pipe.

"All the upper class women abroad smoke—English, French, German, Italian and Russian. In many circles in England it is expected that cigarettes shall be passed to the women after dinner, and we have a peculiar rule there about smoking in public. At after-theatre suppers one always smokes.

"All Russian women smoke, and smoke a great deal, and I presume that it is through them to a great extent that the women of other countries have taken up the practice. They have an excellent tobacco which they use, and which is difficult to find, though it is to be had in London in some of the Russian shops.

"Turkish women, of course, smoke constantly, and they use a very good tobacco. French women I know less about than those of other nationalities, and they vary, some using tobacco and others objecting to it. German women smoke, also the Italians. A woman of the upper class; a Roman, would be surprised not to be offered a cigarette after dinner.

"But in speaking of smoking, the women who smoke most of all are the Australian women. They smoke cigars. I shall never forget a dinner that was given to the Prince of Wales by the British Embassy in Vienna, Sir Henry Elliot was the Ambassador, and my husband was secretary of the Embassy. The guests for this dinner had been selected with great care; they were distinguished people, and all the most beautiful women had been brought together. The Viennese women are charming and they wear exquisite gowns. The dinner passed off as it should, and at its close Sir Henry rose to conduct the prince to the smoking room; when, to our surprise, every woman at that table rose and trouped after them. Those beautiful women in their comely low-cut gowns and covered with diamonds disappeared into the smoking room to finish their dinners with cigars.

"Lady Elliot and I said that there was nothing for us to do but to sit down and have a friendly chat together, for we could not possibly stand the smoke of that room.

"I have seen fine old white-haired ladies in Vienna sitting tired out in a ballroom waiting to take home the daughters they were chaperoning each with a great cigar in her mouth.

"An Austrian woman is never expected to smoke until she is married, though I suppose the young girls do it in their own apartments. There was one little Austrian duchess, whose name I have forgotten, who was burned to death while attempting to hide a cigarette in the pocket of a light frock when her governess came unexpectedly into the room when she was smoking.

"In America I have found that women who have traveled often smoke, and otherwise there has been very little objection, and no one minds if I open my cigarette case after dinner where they are not accustomed to using them. The most rigid objections I have found in Maryland and Virginia. There people are horrified by the custom."

Edison to Buy Old Homestead.

Thomas A. Edison intends to purchase the house where he was born near Milan, Ohio, nearly half a century ago. Mrs. Mary Ristline, of Chicago, is the owner, and negotiations with her for a transfer to the inventor are now under way. Mr. Edison expects to visit Milan soon.

Miss Hazel Patrick, of Somerset street, left yesterday for a visit with friends in New York State.

The Daily Press takes a deep interest in the King's Daughters Baby Camp and consequently is gratified at the way the contributions are coming in. Since yesterday's acknowledgements, several more donations have been sent to this office and have been transmitted to those in charge of the work. Mrs. M. C. Schoonmaker has sent five dollars and from "S. C. H." a similar amount has been received. Mrs. M. B. Morgan has added two dollars. The list of contributors to date will be found in another column.

The whole world eagerly reads every line regarding the deliberations of the Peace Envoys at Portsmouth, N. H., though it is perfectly well known that the few people in the chamber where the negotiations are taking place are pledged to absolute secrecy. The matter sent out by the correspondents is just about as reliable as that coming from the seat of war, or to be more accurate hundreds of miles away from it, before the fall of Port Arthur. The correspondents made that stronghold do the tumbling act about fifteen times before it actually fell. Now the public hears through a morning paper that the peace conference will come to no results, only to learn again in an afternoon paper that all the envoys are anxious for peace and that it will be brought about without fail. This news is repeated daily, in the absence of any definite news from the envoys themselves.

Benjamin S. Church, one of the committee of three that investigated the advisability of the city buying the water supply plant, is a former Plainfielder, but a surprisingly few residents seem to be aware of the fact. He lived until last fall on Watchung avenue at Hillside and commuted regularly for years. As an engineer he stands among the foremost men of his profession in the country and some of his achievements have attracted world-wide attention. His most notable engineering feat, perhaps, was the building of the Quaker dam at New York's Croton aqueduct and a thirty mile subway leading from it to the city. In most places it is 200 feet below the surface and at one point, where it drops below the Harlem river, it is 300 feet. The manner in which this was done was little short of marvellous, and the New York Board of Aldermen passed resolutions commending Mr. Church and afterward had all his plans, drawings and specifications elaborately lithographed and handsomely bound. He is considered an authority on water sheds and water supply but at the present time is devoting his attention to the perfection of a steam turbine wheel designing. Mr. Osgood and Mr. Saunders, the other members of the committee, are also men of unquestionable ability who have been successful in their respective callings. The former is the chief engineer of the New Jersey Central and the designer of its unique bridge in the draw over Newary bay. Mr. Saunders is president of the Ingersoll-Rand Drill Company, the largest concern of its kind in the world. It manufactures machinery used in mining and engineering, and at times the head of the concern is of a necessity called upon to assist in the devising of a new bit of mechanism to meet some unforeseen problem. He is considered an expert in engineering matters. The people of Plainfield were indeed fortunate in securing the services of these three men to investigate the public ownership of its water supply.

R. R. PROPERTY IN UNION CO. SHOWS BIG INCREASE

VALUE $99,028 MORE THAN A YEAR AGO.

Trenton, Aug. 10—The State Board of Assessors yesterday, under the provisions of the Duffield act, chapter 91, laws of 1905, certified to the various taxing districts of the State, the assessed valuation of the railroad and canal property other than "main stem" or "waterway" located in such taxing districts respectively.

The report gives in detail the assessment on all the different railroads and canals. Each county is taken separately. The counties are divided into cities, townships and boroughs. In each place the name of the railroad and a description of the property assessed is given with the assessment. The tax assessments on canals and feeders are reported in like manner.

The total assessment on second-class property in the State, according to the figures given out yesterday, is $46,699,496. The assessed valuation last year was $42,837,051, an increase of $3,862,445.

The increase is principally in Hudson and Essex counties. In the former county it is $3,014,208. In Essex it is $178,950.

Union county, however, has given to it a large increase, $99,028. In 1904 the assessed valuation in this county on second-class railroad property, as the table shows, was $1,579,390, and this year the figures are $1,678,418.

Cape May and Mercer counties are losers by the assessment.

This valuation may have an effect on the tax rate. The increase on the amount collected on railroad property will go into the sinking fund.

THE POLITICAL TIPSTER.

Aleck Ayres never misses a Council meeting.

J. S. Higham is letting no grass grow under his feet.

"Col." Frank Randolph occasionally drops in at a Council meeting.

Councilman Murphy found a very fine point for argument in that measure.

President Daniel is putting up a stubborn fight against his own renomination.

My, what a waste of shoe leather there'll be when that saloon district bill goes into effect.

It is reported that the delegates to the Somerset county Republican convention will go uninstructed.

A dethroned leader can always be depended upon to let it be known that he is "out of politics." How is that?

Some seem to think that Charlie Randolph signed his political death warrant when he voted "aye" on the "saloon quarantine" ordinance.

From one quarter comes a criticism of Bob Lee because he did not use influence with Steve Higham to oppose that quarantine measure.

The Union County Board of Election, at a meeting in Elizabeth this morning, elected S. Rusling Ryno, of Rahway, as its clerk. He is also clerk to the Union County Board of Freeholders.

A Tramp's Haven.

It was a queer freak of sentiment that led the late Mrs. Kramer of far-famed Kalamazoo, Mich., to set aside in her will $10,000 as a fund for feeding tramps. That the money will go to the proper persons there is little doubt, as the trustee of the will is Senator Julius Caesar Burrows, who drew it. Having lived in Washington practically all the time for many years, Mr. Burrows is an expert, and recognizes a tramp on sight. It may be pertinently remarked in passing that Kalamazoo is noted, among other good points, for being the seat of the State insane asylum.—Exchange.

—It has been definitely decided by the Y. M. C. A. to discontinue the canoe club permanently. The distance of the city from navigable water makes the club impracticable.

CHIDSEY SALE WAS POSTPONED.

Not Enough Buyers Present to Bid For Effects.

The sale of the effects of the Chidsey New York Free Delivery, which was scheduled to take place at Elizabeth yesterday morning, for the benefit of the creditors of the company, was postponed. There were not enough big buyers present, and in addition to this some new legal complexities have arisen which it is desirous to settle before conducting the sale.

It was stated today that the property of the company was encumbered by numerous liens. On this account it is a question after the property has been sold whether there will be anything left for the creditors when the holders of the liens have been satisfied.

There is difficulty being experienced in disposing of the effects at a price comparable to their value. The reason is that the property has a particular use and could not be converted for general purposes without the expenditure of money. The company operated wagons in this city.

GAS FOR WASHINGTON, N. J.

Union Railway Supply Company, Behind Movement.

Washington, N. J., Aug. 10.—From present indications Washington will soon number a gas plant among the borough's assets. J. H. McNeal, an attorney for the Union Railway Supply Company of Philadelphia, and Charles A. Starr, also a representative of the company, have been here several days, and last night conferred with business men of the borough. The result of the meeting will be the organization of the Washington Gas Company.

It is expected that articles of incorporation will be filed today for a $40,000 company. The Union Railway Supply Company has erected large plants at a number of South Jersey towns. Application will be made to the Common Council for a franchise at the next meeting, and there is no doubt that it will be granted. The company is anxious to have the plant completed before the cold weather sets in.

N. J. VOICE IN SUPREME COUNCIL

Likely to Be in Favor of Table A Rates.

There seems to be very little question that the New Jersey representatives to the special sesison of the Supreme Council, Royal Arcanum, will go there instructed to oppose the recent raise of rates. It is probable that when the Grand Council meets in New Brunswick, Friday, those who will represent the State at the supreme body's conclave will be directed to urge the vote for the adoption of table A at the age of entry, instead of at the attained age, as the table now states, as the standard and only rate of assessment plan of the order. Table A is one of the five optional tables of rates which have been presented to the members for their acceptance on or before October 1.

More than 200 representatives to the Grand Council will attend the session Friday.

Held on Disorderly House Charge.

Cranford, Aug. 10.—Andrew Bertram, keeper of the roadhouse at Aldene, was arraigned yesterday afternoon before Justice of the Peace W. W. Mendell, charged with keeping a disorderly house. The complainant, Michael Masso, an Italian, of Cranford, swore that there was pool playing and liquor selling last Sunday afternoon, and in a fight that took place while he was there, he was badly used up. Masso failed to appear at the trial, but sent a letter requesting an adjournment. The police say that Masso was bought off. Justice of the Peace Mendell refused to grant an adjournment and held Bertram in $300 bail to await the action of the grand jury.

To Investigate Accident.

Albany, Aug. 10—The collapse of the John G. Myers Company department store Tuesday, which resulted in the death of thirteen persons and probably the fatal injury of two others, will be investigated by a special commission.

J. F. O'Keefe, of New York, a former Plainfielder, has returned home after a visit to friends here.

BREAD RIOT REIGNS.

Mob Wrecks Stores—To Starve People.

Riot reigned throughout New York's east side yesterday. The "Kosher" baker strikers, angered at the action of their employers in closing their stores rather than surrender, assisted by men, women and children driven almost to desperation by the scarcity of bread wrecked stores and held up bread wagons on the streets.

There are fears that serious results may follow the open-air mass-meeting called for either in Hamilton Fish Park or Rutgers Square tomorrow night. The strikers are without funds and with families dependent upon them, they have become desperate. One hasty word on the part of their leader may result in widespread rioting and bloodshed.

The strike leaders, particularly Samuel Kurtz, do not deny that it is their intention to starve out the people on the east side. According to Kurtz, it is the only way to win their fight against the employers.

"We'll make the people starve," said Leader Kurtz, "and the strikers are willing to starve with them. When the hundreds of thousands on the east side are at starvation's door our triumph will be at hand. The streets will be filled with cries of 'Give us bread! Give us bread!' Then the bosses will surrender."

WILL BURN BELCHER'S BOOKS.

Office Property Thrown in Dump and Name is Removed From the Door.

All the office property of William H. Belcher was yesterday removed by order of his law partner, Allen Chambers. Piles of old books, circulars and law reports and even the campaign pictures that decorated his own and adjoining law offices were taken in charge by the janitor and transferred to the dump, to be used as fuel. Belcher's name was removed from the office door.

"This is something we did not even dream of little more than a week ago," tearfully remarked an old employe of Mr. Belcher. Since the departure of the Mayor his private secretary, Robert Burke, has refused to open his mail, and he will not permit others to open it unless by order of the prosecutor. Mr. Burke intends to resign when David Young assumes the duties of acting Mayor, on Friday morning.

TRAIN KILLS BOY PLAYMATES.

Mob Threatens Engine Driver on the Jersey Central Road.

At Perth Amboy yesterday a passenger train on the Jersey Central Railroad ran down and instantly killed Joseph Martzin, aged eight, and Julius Laskey, aged ten. The boys were playing on the northbound track and crossed to the southbound to escape a train and were hit by the southbound. It was several hours before the boys were identified, although hundreds of persons thronged the tracks.

C. M. Bittenger, engine driver, was threatened with violence, and a policeman rode in the cab with him as the bodies were taken to the freight station and held until the arrival of a coroner. The two boys lived side by side on Penn street. Laskey was the last of five children.

STRENUOUS LOVE MAKING.

Wife Could Not Stand It and Left Aged Husband.

Before Vice Chancellor Stevens appeared, through their attorneys, late yesterday afternoon at Newark, Mr. and Mrs. Israel Britten, of New Brunswick. Mrs. Britten, it seems, could not abide by the strenuous love-making of her spouse, who is 71 years of age and a cripple, and so she left him on July 1 last.

She asked the court to allow her a sum of money consistent with her husband's earnings, and after taking cognizance of the affidavits presented, the sum of $12 a month was granted to her.

The Brittens were married at Metuchen in 1862 and have two children living.

Three-Legged Chicken.

Joseph Drumm, of Sayreville, is the proud possessor of a three-legged hen. The fowl is now three months old and flourishing. In appearance it looks like any other chicken, with the exception that from the rear of its body hangs a third leg, well developed and properly equipped with claws, spur, and other essentials to a complete limb. The third leg is not a shrunken appurtenance but is of sound, healthy flesh that grows with the chicken, and the freak is attracting considerable attention among Mr. Drumm's neighbors.

Ten Hurt at Coney.

Ten persons were injured in a rear-end collision of trolley cars of the Smith street and Hamilton ferry lines on Coney Island avenue, near the creek, at 9 o'clock last night. Though the accident was known to be due to the negligence of the officials of the Coney Island and Brooklyn Company the inspectors so well succeeded in bottling up the facts and kidnapping the employes that the police were unable to make an arrest.

Yellow Fever Kills Prelate.

New Orleans, Aug. 10.—Placid Louis Chapelle, Archbishop of New Orleans and Apostolic Delegate to Cuba and Porto Rico, died at 12:50 o'clock yesterday afternoon of yellow fever at the palace in Esplanade avenue. He was sixty-three years old.

Lodge Men to Give Skin.

Pleasantville, Aug. 10.—Skin-grafting will be tried to save the life of Engineer Isaac Neveling, who was severely scalded by the bursting of the boiler at the water works. Over a dozen volunteers from Kinnewauga Tribe of Red Men, of Pleasantville, and a number of Fidelia Lodge of Odd Fellows, of Linwood, have agreed to bare their arms for their fellow-lodgeman's benefit.

Aug. 13: "The Building of Character"—II Pet. i, 1-11; Jude 20, 21.

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, Ph. D.

This matter of character is really of much more importance than many suppose it to be. We expect preachers and teachers and certain kinds of good books and papers to talk about it, but most of it passes as mere talk done professionally, the proper thing to have done, but not to be made too serious after all. Yet this is a matter, candidly, which each of us should give some quiet thought to. It is actually the most important matter we have to deal with. It not only has some effect on our future pleasure and getting along in the world; it is, in fact, the decisive facts of all. What we all settle is the question largely of what we shall get and what we can enjoy.

Of course we are masters to a great extent of what we are and will be. If we are not what we would like to be the very fact that we would like to be what we are not yet gives the chance for us to be that same thing wished for; not that we can by wishing merely become all at once what we long for, but we cannot make the necessary struggle and attain the end unless there is a deep seated appetite for the betterment.

Many are very anxious to have a reputation, to be known by others for some accomplishment. This has some value, but has this drawback: Often the people who applaud have almost no real knowledge of the matter, and their praise is a matter of empty flattery, a still noise, joining thoughtlessly with the crowd who applaud. We always know better than others can the merits and defects of our work—that is, if we have in fact come to any knowledge of a subject and ability to perform a certain work. Only the few who are our equals are competent to appreciate and praise or correct.

Character is worth more than reputation; our own approval is of more worth than the opinion of any except those who have attained more than we.

Our pressing need, then, is to determine to be the best possible to us. Then we must see the vision of self in the highest selfhood. This image of what we are to become must fill us with passion for its actualization. Then we must take account of stock. Learn our own powers and defects. See what we have inherited that can help and what hinder. Face all fearlessly and in cold truth. We are like no one else. We must use what we have.

Now, put every power at work in its proper place. Love of ease must give way to application. Irritability must be disciplined to courtesy. Impulsiveness must feel the curb of bit. Know what you have, clearly define what you would be, persistently practice, and character shall develop such as it should be. Is there no other way? Yes, surely.

Let matters take their own course. Go with the stream and not against it. Be on the alert to catch the pleasant and popular current, and you shall ride on the crest of the wave—for awhile. For how long? Who can tell? Till the wave breaks on the long sand beach, and you are caught in the undertow and pass from sight, not greatly missed nor mourned long.

It is worth something to get knowledge, to get wealth; power in the world of men and make things go; social recognition and enjoyment and a score of things. But after any or all are mastered one may not find that the finest and most satisfying manhood or womanhood has been acquired. The reverse will likely result, and in bitterness of soul one will confess to self and God, if to no others, "it is all a dead loss." Better learn in His school who cried, "Be of good cheer; I have overcome the world!" Build beside Him, and you will build satisfactorily.

A Forward Look.

Every man is a new starting point for good or for bad in the history of the human race. I am heir of all the ages past. I am also a starting point for ages to come. I have inherited forces without having been consulted. I shall also transmit to other ages by the effect of my life today and by the influence that I am exerting upon those who touch me at every point forces which will either make or mar the human race, which will be for the uplifting or degradation of untold thousands of my kind.—Rev. G. Campbell Morgan.

Living With Sorrow.

It is a thousand times more heroic to live with one's sorrow than to die from it. Into young lives often an agony comes that seems too great to bear and live. Here is where true heroism comes in, and the soul that takes up the burden nobly and battles through wins in the end a more abundant and beautiful life even here and a fullness of reward hereafter.—Feuillet.

A Brother to Men.

Not his the vision of the seer or sage
Nor dreamy gaze of one who follows art,
But eye, whose steadfast sight can ever gauge
The path that straightest finds his brother's heart!

Not his the hearing, lent alone to all
The mysteries of music's joy and pain,
But ear so swift to catch the faintest call
His brother's need could never cry in vain!

Not his the master gift of speech, to sway
With eloquence, like organ's mighty roll,
But words that waken into song each day
Some silent chord deep in his brother's soul!

Whose eye and ear and voice blend all their skill,
Whose every pulse plays in the noble strife
To make the gold of the divine good will
Love's current coin within his brother's life!

—Edith H. Kinney in Christian Work and Evangelist.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Aug. 13.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—The building of character.—II Pet. i, 1-11; Jude 20, 21.

Character is what we are, not what we seem. What we seem is but reputation, but what we are as God sees us deep down in our hearts is character. Character is the all important thing in life. To some riches is the supreme thing, but the wise man has well said, "A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches." To others worldly pleasure is the chief concern of life, but the apostle does well to enjoin us: "Neither the things that are in the world, * * * for all that is in the world, the lust of the flesh and the lust of the eyes and the pride of life, is not of the Father, but is of the world. And the world passeth away and the lust thereof, but he that doeth the will of God abideth forever." The things of the world are temporal—character is eternal. The supreme importance of character, therefore, can be clearly seen, and we should prize it above silver and gold and whatever else we may win or lose in life. We should make sure that life itself is what it ought to be, for life is character.

The building of a human character is no child's play. Many people who are most careful about everything else in life that has a value are most careless when it comes to their own lives. If building a home, they are very particular and want the very best things that it is possible for them to procure, but in erecting the tabernacle of life, which is to be "eternal in the heavens," they are careless and indifferent. Would that all could appreciate the real values of life! Then the gold would not so frequently be mistaken for the dross and the dross for the gold.

The elements that enter into character building are well illustrated in those that go to make up the buildings we see about us in life.

1. The materials out of which we build our character are important. We may well ask ourselves most seriously what makes us what we are? The materials of which any structure is composed have much to do with the building. So it is with life. Many important elements enter into our making: (1) Heredity. It must be admitted that we do inherit the dispositions of our ancestors. A man has been likened to "an omnibus with all his ancestors on the inside," and again it has been said that "the training of a child should begin a hundred years before it is born." But the evil influences of heredity can by the grace of God be overcome. (2) Environment. Our circumstances in life have much to do with the development of our characters. The surroundings of our home life, the place where we do the work of life, the work itself, our associates—all these are important factors in character building. But when necessary a man can control his circumstances rather than allowing them to control him. Our lives should be founded upon Jesus Christ, the only true foundation, and should be built upon Him. Possessing His spirit by the new birth, we should gradually add to the free grace in us until we possess in as large a measure as possible a full rounded, symmetrical Christlike character. Then, and then only, shall we possess the character that is worth striving and sacrificing for.

BIBLE READINGS.

Prov. xxii, 1; Eccl. vii, 1, 13, 14; Isa. xl, 29-31; Matt. vi, 33; vii, 24-29; Ps. cxxvii, 1; Acts xx, 32; Eph. ii, 19-22; vi, 1, 2.

Advantages of Christian Endeavor.

Rev. C. E. Randall, who founded the first Christian Endeavor society in Jamaica and is president of the Jamaica Association of Christian Churches, thus forcibly states what he considers the chief advantages of Christian Endeavor work. The first, he says, is "the special opportunity which it affords to the pastor of a church to win the affections of the young people. It will be seen at once how great is the advantage thus gained in church work." The second is "the judicious, gradual development of nascent talent in Christian work, which is a blessing to the worker and a force for securing the prosperous activity of the individual church." And thirdly, "it serves as a bond of union in Christian fellowship and calls for co-operative service; and as its opportunities are taken advantage of it supplies most valuable protection against the seductive tendencies of the world and the attractions of worldly companionship and pleasure, in which the spiritual life cannot continue to exist."—Christian Endeavor World.

With Foreign Flavor.

The Baptist Endeavorers of England have completed their undertaking, the building of a ship, the Endeavour, for the use of Baptist missionaries on the Kongo. The ship was recently launched at Oxford and will be followed on this long journey and its future work by the prayers of many thousands of British Endeavorers.

The Welsh National Christian Endeavor convention recently held found the societies flourishing as never before and more numerous. Seventy new societies have been formed during the year. Many are disorganized by the revival, as the members join in the evangelistic services held every night, but after awhile they will be reorganized with a largely increased membership.

The Christian Endeavorers in Hilo, on the island of Hawaii, have lately formed a Christian Endeavor union upon the suggestion of Rev. E. G. Silva, an active worker. It is composed of four nationalities—viz, Hawaiians, Chinese, Portuguese and Japanese. Rev. E. G. Silva is president and Wong T. Choug secretary.

NOTICE!
"In behalf of your proprietary article called AZIENZA CREAM, as a remedy for disease of the skin. I desire to add my appreciation of its wonderful properties as a cure in a case of Bone Tumor or Abscess of five years growth on my husband's back, which I have cured in less than five weeks time by constant application, and now it is as well as any part of his body. It was cut out once by a specialist and had again grown to a large size, was as hard as a bone and of a very dark purple color. The AZIENZA at once allayed the pain and began to soften it, and in less than eight days, by my pressure upon it, suddenly to my surprise it discharged a quantity of pus, impregnated with a hard, cheesy substance. I kept it open and cleansed it as it discharged and every day would dress it with a plaster of AZIENZA CREAM, until it was entirely healed up. I cannot speak too highly of AZIENZA CREAM and its merits. For inquiry regarding this case you may apply to Mr. and Mrs. James, Embury Ave., care Hiller, Ocean Grove, N. J. Signed, July 12, 1906: Mrs. C. W. James, Mr. C. W. James." Leading Druggists, 25c-50c

STORK SWIFTEST OF BIRDS

Makes a Journey of 2,400 Miles at the Rate of 100 Miles an Hour.

There are certain species of ducks that are given the credit by naturalists of being the fleetest of winged creatures. Recently, however, it has been ascertained that the learned men were in error, and the stork is found to outstrip by far all denizens of the air in speed. After an exhaustive survey of the field it is now declared that no living thing, not even a scared jack rabbit, can travel with the speed displayed by such birds as the stork and the northern bluethroat. Not only do these birds fly with a speed that can hardly be conceived, but they keep up their rapid flight for 1,000 or 2,000 miles at a stretch without apparently tiring.

Evidence has been collected recently which shows that the bluethroat flies from central Africa to the shores of the North sea, a distance of 1,600 miles, in less than a day and a night, and making it, moreover, in one uninterrupted flight.

The storks which spend their summers in Austria-Hungary and their winters in India and Central Africa are also marvelous travelers and make their journeys twice a year in unbroken flight each time. From Buda-Pesth, in Hungary, to Lahore, in India, is 2,400 miles in an air line, and the storks make the journey in 24 hours, thus traveling at the rate of 100 miles an hour for the whole distance. The storks which spend the summer in central Europe and winter in central Africa travel with the same rapidity.

EFFICIENCY IN THE NAVY.

Every Other Consideration Set Aside on England's Warships for Perfection of Personnel.

Vigorous minds are essential in any navy, but in the British navy the matter is vital, as the prosperity of millions of people and the existence of the nation itself depend upon naval power. Hence, says American Medicine, every other consideration must give way to naval efficiency, and the personnel receives the major share of attention to eliminate the unfit. The alcoholics are invariably thrust to one side without pity, for they are really a menace to the nation's welfare. The government has gone to the extreme of elaborating a system whereby an officer is retired even if he does not attain promotion before a certain age, whose maximum is fixed for each grade. The results are most excellent, for it secures a wonderfully vigorous body of men, fully accounting for the proverbial efficiency of the British navy. In every grade, from the boyish midshipman to the experienced admiral, there are no men too old to do the duties, and none whose mental powers are not healthy and vigorous. It is expensive, of course, to secure this survival of the fittest, as the eliminated ones must be cared for, and there is a tremendous list of healthy retired officers, but it is necessary.

BUFFALOES OF PABLO HERD

Largest Band of the Animals in the United States Soon to Be Scattered.

"With the opening of the Flathead Indian reservation in Montana to settlement the coming summer the last large band of buffaloes in the United States will be scattered to the four winds or else removed to the Blackfeet reservation, further north, or into the Milk river country of the Canadian provinces."

This is the statement made by Howard Eaton, of Wyoming, who is interested in the largest herd of buffaloes in the world, mostly belonging to Michael Pablo, who has a herd of about 350 on the Flathead reservation, according to the Helena Independent.

"The Pablo herd is the largest in existence," said Mr. Eaton, "and comprises one-third of all the buffaloes in the world. A few years ago, when 'Buffalo' Jones went broke on a big irrigating scheme, he sold his bunch, which was then in Kansas, to Pablo and Allard, making the largest herd of pure bloods now in the world, and carrying the strains of the old herds of Texas, Indian Territory, western and northern Montana, North Dakota and Manitoba."

FRANCE'S ART TREASURES.

Vast Number, Estimated at $1,200,000,000 in Value, Are Being Inventoried.

The French prefects have received instructions to make inventories of the art treasures of all the prefectures. The exact value of these is unknown, but it is immense, and has been computed at $400,000,000, reckoning only the reliquaries, pictures, tapestries and things of like kind, says a London report to the New York Sun.

If the statues, altars, stained glass windows, etc., are included, it is estimated that the figure will reach $1,200,000,000. The treasures in one small church in the department of Aveyron, which were on view at the exposition of 1900, drew an offer of $6,200,000 from a syndicate.

At Beauvais the tapestry in one room in the bishop's palace is worth $60,000. The Rheims cathedral has one reliquary worth $40,000. The present duke of Norfolk's father offered $800,000 for the chasuble and stole of Becket, which are preserved in Paris.

Sure Winner.

Gyer—There goes a man who has made a fortune out of the racing game.

IN THE BISHOP'S CARRIAGE

By MIRIAM MICHELSON

(Copyright, 1904, by The Bobbs-Merrill Company).

The hotel woman, you know, girls, is a hotel woman because she isn't fit to be anything else. She's lazy and selfish and little, and she's shifted all her legitimate cares on to the proprietor's shoulders. She actually—you can understand and share my indignation, can't you, Tom, as you've shared other things?—she even gives over her black tin box full of valuables to the hotel clerk to put in the safe; the coward! But her vanity—ah, there's where we get her, such speculators as you and myself. She's got to outshine the woman who sits at the next table, and so she borrows her diamonds from the clerk, wears 'em like the peacock she is, and trembles till they're back in the safe again.

In the meantime she locks them up in the tin box which she puts in her top bureau-drawer, hides the key, forgets where she hid it, and—O Tom! after searching for it for hours and making herself sick with anxiety, she ties up her head in a wet handkerchief with vinegar on it and—rings the bell for the bell-boy!

He comes.

As I said, he's a prompt, gentle little bell-boy, slight, looks rather young for his job, but that very youth and innocence of his make him such a fellow to trust!

"Nat," says Mrs. Kingdon, tearfully pressing half a dollar into the nice lad's hand, "I—I've lost something, and I want you to—to help me find it."

"Yes'm," says Nat. He's the soul of politeness.

"It must be here—it must be in this room," says the lady, getting wild with the terror of losing. "I'm sure—positive—that I went straight to the shoe-bag and slipped it in there. And now I can't find it, and I must have it before I go out this afternoon for—for a very special reason. My daughter Evelyn will be home to-morrow, and—why don't you look for it?"

"What is it, ma'am?"

"I told you once. My key—a little flat key that locks—a box I've got," she finishes distrustfully.

"Have you looked in the shoe-bag, ma'am?"

"Why, of course I have, you little stupid. I want you to hunt other places where I can't easily get. There are other places I might have put it, but I'm positive it was in the shoe-bag."

Well, I looked for that key. Where? Where not? I looked under the rubbish in the waste-paper basket; Mrs. Kingdon often fooled thieves by dropping it there. I pulled up the corner of the carpet and looked there—it was loose; it had often been used for a hiding-place. I looked in Miss Evelyn's boot and in her ribbon box. I emptied Mrs. Kingdon's full powder box. I climbed ladders and felt along cornices. I looked through the pockets of Mrs. Kingdon's gowns—a clever bell-boy it takes to find a woman's pocket, but even the real masculine ones among 'em are half feminine; they've had so much to do with women.

I rummaged through her writing-desk, and, in searching a gold-cornered pad, found a note from Moriway hidden under the corner. I hid it again carefully—in my coat pocket. A love-letter from Moriway, to a woman 20 years older than himself—'tain't a bad lay, Tom Dorgan, but you needn't try it.

At first she watched every move I made, but later, as her headache grew worse, she got desperate. So then I put my hand down into the shoe-bag and found the key, where it had slipped under a fold of cloth.

Do you suppose that woman was grateful? She snatched it from me.

"I knew it was there. I told you it was there. If you'd had any sense you'd have looked there first. The boys in this hotel are so stupid."

"That's all, ma'am?"

She nodded. She was fitting the key into the black box she'd taken from the top drawer. Nat had got to the outside door when he heard her come shrieking after him.

"Nat—Nat—come back! My diamonds—they're not here. I know I put them back last night—I'm positive. I could swear to it. I can see myself putting them in the chamois bag, and—O my God, where can they be! This time they're gone!"

Nat could have told her—but what's the use? He felt she'd only lose 'em again if she had 'em. So he let them lie snug in his trousers pocket—where he had put the chamois bag, when his eyes lit on it, under the corner of the carpet. He might have passed it over to her then, but you see, Tom, she hadn't told him to look for a bag; it was a key she wanted. Bell-boys are so stupid.

This time she followed his every step. He could not put his hand on the smallest thing without rousing her suspicion. If he hesitated, she scolded. If he hurried, she fumed. Most unjust, I call it, because he had no thought of stealing—just then.

"Come," she said at last, "we'll go down and report it at the desk."

"Hadn't I better wait here, ma'am, and look again?"

She looked sharply at him.

"No; you'd better do just as I tell you."

So down we went. And we met Mr. Moriway there. She'd telephoned him. The chambermaid was called. the housekeeper, the electrical engineer who'd been fixing bells that morning, and, as I said, a bell-boy named Nat, who told how he'd just come on duty when Mrs. Kingdon's bell rang, found her key and returned it to her, and was out of the room when she unlocked the box. That was all he knew.

"Is he telling the truth?" Moriway asked Mrs. Kingdon.

"Y—es, I guess he is; but where are the diamonds? We must have them—you know—to-day, George," she whispered. And then she turned and went upstairs, leaving Moriway to do the rest.

"There's only one thing to do, major," he said to the proprietor. "Search 'em all, and then—"

"Search me? It's an outrage!" cried the housekeeper.

"Search me, if ye loike," growled McCarthy, resentfully. "Oi wasn't there but a minute; the lady herself can tell ye that."

Katie, the chambermaid, flushed painfully, and there were indignant tears in her eyes, which, I'll tell you in confidence, made a girl named Nancy uncomfortable.

But the boy Nat, knowing that bell-boys have no rights, said nothing. But he thought. He thought, Tom Dorgan, a lot of things and a long way ahead.

The peppery old major marched us all off to his private office.

Not much, girls, it hadn't come. For suddenly the annunciator rang out.

Out of the corner of his eye, Nat looked at the bell-boy's bench. It was empty. There was to be a ball that night, and the bells were going it over all the place.

"Number Twenty-one!" shouted the clerk at the desk.

But Number Twenty-one didn't budge. His heart was beating like a hammer, and the ting—ing—ing of that bell calling him rang in his head like a song.

"Number Twenty-one!" yelled the clerk.

Oh, he's got a devil of a temper, has that clerk. Some day, Tom, when you love me very much, go up to the hotel and break his face for me.

"You!—boy—confound you, can't you hear?" he shouted.

That time he caught the major's ear—the one that wasn't deaf. He looked from Powers' black face to the bench and then to me. And all the time the bell kept ringing like mad.

"Git!" he said to the boy. "And come back in a hurry."

Number Twenty-one got—but leisurely. It wouldn't do for a bell-boy to hurry, particularly when he had such good cause.

Oh, girls, those stone stairs, the servants' stairs at the St. James! They're fierce. I tell you, Mag, scrubbing the floors at the Cruelty ain't so bad. But this time I was jolly glad bell-boys weren't allowed in the elevator. For there were those diamonds in my pants pocket, and I must get rid of 'em before I got down to the office again. So I climbed those stairs, and every step I took my eye was searching for a hiding-place. I could have pitched the little bag out of a window, but Nancy Olden wasn't throwing diamonds to the birds, any more than Mag here is likely to cut off the braids of red hair we used to play horse with when we drove her about the Cruelty yard.

One flight.

No chance.

Another.

Everything bare as stone and soap could keep it.

The third flight—my knees began to tremble, and not with climbing. The call came from this floor. But I ran up a fourth just on the chance, and there in a corner was a fire hatchet strapped to the wall. Behind that hatchet Mrs. Kingdon's diamonds might lie snug till evening. I put the ends of my fingers first in the little crack to make sure the little bag wouldn't drop to the floor, and then dived into my pocket and—

And there behind me, stealthily coming up the last turn of the stairs, was Mr. George Moriway!

Don't you hate a soft-walking man, Mag? That cute fellow was cuter than the old major himself, and had followed me every inch of the way.

"There's something loose with this hatchet, sir," I said, innocently looking down at him.

"Oh, there is? What an observing little fellow you are! Never mind the hatchet; just tell me what number you were sent to answer."

"Number?" I repeated, as though I couldn't see why he wanted to know. "Why—431."

"Not much, my boy—331."

"'Scuse me, sir, ain't you mistaken?"

He looked at me for full a minute. I stared him straight in the eye. A nasty eye he's got—black and bloodshot and cold and full of suspicion. But it wavered a bit at the end.

"I may be," he said, slowly, "but not about the number. Just you turn around and get down to 331."

"All right, sir. Thank you very much. It might have got me in trouble.

"YOU LITTLE WRETCH."

The ladies are so particular about having the bells answered quick—"

"I guess you'll get in trouble all right," he said and stood watching—from where he stood he could watch me every inch of the way—till I got to 331, at the end of the hall, Mrs. Kingdon's door.

IMITATIONS OF LEATHER.

Tricks of the Tanner Make It Difficult to Tell the Substitutions from the Real.

Leather is becoming more and more of a puzzle to retailers. Substitution of leathers is now so deftly practiced that undoubtedly many a buyer is completely fooled, says the Shoe Retailer. The tricks of the tanners are innumerable, and as these are masked behind the practices of the shoe manufacturer, the shoe retailer has a tough proposition to ascertain whether or not he is getting real or imitation goods.

Cowhides and sheepskins are among the cheapest of hides and skins in the market, but by a few clever manipulations tanners make them valuable. A cowhide is tanned. Then it is put through the splitting machine, which machine is so delicately adjustable that it will shave off leather as fine as tissue paper.

For the tanner's practical purposes it splits leather into any weight desired; a fine kid for a woman's shoe, a heavier calf weight for boys' and men's shoes, or even heavier stock for workingmen's shoes. The light weight split is given a vici kid finish the medium a velour calf, while the heaviest weight may be grained. Other splits may be chrome tanned and given a patent finish, and may be sold as patent colt.

A sheep leather, especially cabretta stock, is made into imitation of kid, and large quantities of it are sold as such. Sheep leather is even given a patent finish and sold as colt and kid.

THE CRUELTY OF FASHION.

Slaughter of Waning Species of Bird for the Decoration of Women's Hats.

The splendid snow-white heron, known as the American egret, one of the few kinds which bear the aigrette plumes of millinery and commerce, is among the waning species of America—a victim of inexorable fashion, says Herbert K. Job, in Country Life in America.

In 1903 the price for plumes offered to hunters was $32 per ounce, which makes the plumes worth twice their weight in gold. There will always be men who would break any law for such profit. No rookery of these herons can long exist, unless it be guarded by force of arms day and night.

Mr. Job tells how he visited what is perhaps the last large remaining egret rookery in North America.

It should be remembered that these plumes—which are variously called by milliners "aigrettes," "stubbs" or "ospreys," and are dyed to whatever color is fashionable—are borne only during the nuptial season and can be secured only by shooting the birds when they have assembled in colonies to breed, when their usual shyness has departed, owing to the strength of the parental insitnct. Returning to their nests, they are shot down and their young are left to starve.

DOGS USED AS CARRIERS.

Pressed Into Service by the Poorer Classes in Some Parts of Europe.

But there are many countries and many circumstances where the possession of a horse or even a donkey is beyond the means of those who serve as carriers. I am not considering, of course, those mighty carriers, the elephant, the dromedary and the camel, writes Gerrish Eldredge in "Queer Carriers" in St. Nicholas. These are exceptional animals, as are also the ox of our own land, the Egyptian buffalo and the zebra of India, which are employed under unusual conditions, where great strength or endurance is required. In Germany and other parts of Europe dogs are in very general use among the poorer classes as carriers; and, indeed, many New Yorkers can remember how, more than forty years ago, the dog was very largely used by the ragman and traveling peddlers of New York. Every morning the little wagons, some with two and some with four wheels, would come down the street, drawn by one or two dogs, and guided by a woman and sometimes by boys.

THE BIG ALASKAN BEAR.

His Skin Highly Valued by Sportsmen of the World as a Trophy.

Alaska is particularly rich in bears; and most of them belong to a group known as the Alaskan brown bears, of which the Kodiak bear is one. So wide is his reputation that sportsmen from all over the world spend thousands of dollars in order to add a skin to their collection of trophies, says J. Alden Loring, in Recreation. The weight of a well-known Kodiak bear is not known, although specimens have been killed that were estimated to weigh between 1,500 and 1,800 pounds, and some hunters claim that they they will go as high as 2,200. While at Kodiak several summers ago, I measured the skin of one of these huge animals which stretched the tape nine and a half feet from the nose to the tail, and ten and a half feet across the outstretched front paws. Mr. A. C. Goss, who handles all of the brown bear skins that pass through the hands of the Alaskan Commercial company at Kodiak, told me that he had seen skins that were three feet longer.

PERSIAN BOY WIDE AWAKE.

British Diplomat Relates an Instance of His Acute Observation.

Sir Mortimer Durand, the British ambassador at Washington, is a student of child life, and wherever he is stationed he never fails to gather some interesting data about the manners and methods of the juvenile population. He has found infinite amusement in observing the street gamin of New York, particularly the venders of papers, and even in the staid and quiet American capital the diplomat has discovered young arabs to study.

But Sir Mortimer gives the palm for infantile intelligence to the little folks of Persia. For many years the present envoy to the United States represented the kingdom of Great Britain at Teheran, and he is loud in praises of the modern descendants of the fire worshipers. Sir Mortimer has embodied his impressions of Persia in a clever book, and Lady Durand, his wife, has written a dainty sketch called a "Dairy of Travels in Southern Persia." Both volumes show deep sympathy and intimate knowledge of the people and pay high tributes to the qualities of the children of Iran.

The other day, however, the British ambassador told some friends an anecdate not included in his memoirs. One day the British folks determined on a picnic and the cook was told to get up a luncheon. That functionary is as important in Teheran as he is elsewhere on earth, and he told milord that his children would pack the baskets—that they knew the ways of the British just as well as he. Sir Mortimer was willing and a tempting array of sandwiches and fruits was set forth when luncheon time arrived.

Sir Mortimer himself unpacked the drinkables, in which claret and brandy figured, and securely tied to each bottle was a package of peppermint drops, bought of the English druggist in Teheran. Sir Mortimer says he felt very uncomfortable for a time to think how carefully those youngsters had studied his ways.

TWO CLASSES OF OAK TREE

One Notable for Its Wood, the Other for Its Brilliancy of Coloring.

The great oak family might be divided into two classes, writes Edwin W. Foster, in "Our Friends, the Trees," in St. Nicholas; those that ripen their acorns in one season, such as the white, post and mossy-cup oaks, and those which require two full years, such as the red, scarlet and black oaks. To the first class belong the chestnut oak and the live oak of the south. This latter tree for generations played an important part in ship building, but has now been superseded by iron and steel. The leaf, which is an evergreen, is entirely without indentations, and is thick and leathery. The wood is very heavy and strong, has a beautiful grain, and is susceptible of taking a high polish. At one time this wood was so valuable that our government paid $200,000 for large tracts of land in the south, that our navy might be sure of a supply of live oak timber.

To the second class of oaks we are largely indebted for the gorgeous colors of our autumn leaves. The red, scarlet and pin oaks, with their brilliant reds, scarlets and browns, are close competitors with the maple in giving our American landscapes the most wonderful autumn colorings to be found anywhere in the world. These three trees are quite similar, but by careful examination may always be distinguished.

RAIN WHEN COW SNEEZES.

Tennessee Negro Discovered Remarkable Accuracy of the Act as a Weather Sign.

"There was an old negro slave on my uncle's farm down in Tennessee who was a peculiar chap, and of whom the youngsters about the place—white as well as black—stood in fear," said Senator Carmack, in conversation with a group of friends, relates the Washington Post.

"This aged Senegambian, Uncle Tom by name, could give all the modern weather sharps cards and spades and beat them, for he could predict with almost unerring accuracy what the elements would be doing. One day I was standing out in the cow pen beside the old man, when he suddenly exclaimed: 'Did you hear that?'

"'Hear what, Uncle Tom?'

"'Hear that old speckled cow sneeze. Sho' as yo' am libin', boy, it am a-gwine ter rain befo' morning, kase whenever you hear a cow sneeze dat means rain.'

"Sure enough, it poured down from the skies, as Tom had foretold. Prior to that I had never taken note of a cow's sneezing, and there may be skeptical folks who would doubt that this was a bovine habit, but my own belief in it is firmly established, and I am equally sure that old Uncle Tom had good cause to establish a connection between it and wet weather."

New Korean Railway.

Japan subsidized a company to build the Corean railway lately opened. All the rolling stock came from the United States—the locomitives from the Baldwin works, Philadelphia, the cars from the various American car factories, and the 90 pound rails from the Carnegie steel works. The cost of the Seoul-Fusan line, 276 miles, has been about $50,000 a mile, or $13,800,000. There are 26 tunnels, 96 long bridges and about 500 smaller ones. The two chief construction engineers were Japanese.

VAMPS MARCH IN THE RAIN.

3,000 Firemen in Long Branch Parade.

More than 3,000 uniformed men, representing thirty-one different companies, marched in the rain for two hours over the seven mile course laid out for the firemen's parade at Long Branch today. It was a holiday in Long Branch.

The first prize for the best appearing company went to Phoenix Company, of New Brunswick. The first prize for the best appearing Long Branch company went to the Phil Daly Hose Company. John A. McCall's company, Shadow Lawn, with seven men, was in line. Mr McCall hired a Broadway cottage to review the parade with his family and friends.

Following the parade the tournament was held. The contests were won as follows: Hose contest, run one-quarter mile and lay 200 feet of hose, Atlantic Fire Company, Long Branch. Time, 1 minute, 25 seconds. Hose and ladder contest, run 200 yards, raise ladder and put man on top rung, Seabright Hose and Ladder Company. Time, 1 minutes, 22 seconds. Running hose contest, 200 yards and lay 150 feet of hose, Red Bank Fire Company. Time, 1 minute, 20 seconds. First prize for best decorated carriage went to Seabright Hook and Ladder Company.

Miss Brock's Funeral.

The funeral of Miss Elizabeth Jane Brock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Brock, of Mountain avenue, was held from the parents' home yesterday afternoon. It was in charge of Rev. Dr. E. M. Rodman and was attended by a gathering of relatives and friends. Interment was made at Hillside cemetery, those who acted as pall bearers being John Peacock, Harrison Coddington, J. W. Mundy and Philip Currin.

Trolley Victim in Serious Condition.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

Speculation is Premature.

Speculation concerning the succession to the head of the Chancery Court is at this time premature. It is doubtful whether Chancellor Magie would accept another reappointment to the office, the duties of which are arduous and perplexing. He is 73 years of age, and, while he is vigorous, both mentally and physically, it is said that he has expressed to some of his near friends a desire to be relieved of the responsibilities of the office, and an opportunity to seek the rest that he has earned by half a century of hard work, half of which has been spent in the Chancery and Supreme Courts.—Trenton Times.

The Value of Canals.

Shall New Jersey sacrifice its canal transportation system which rightly conducted, is essential to the development and progress of the State? Shall the State commit the monumental folly of making a gift of the assets of the wrecked canal to the wreckers, who have been plotting and scheming for five years to get private possession of the property, and who have not hesitated to use corrupt means and agencies to that end? Can we learn nothing of the great economic public value of canals from the examples of other states and other nations and see no utility in the enterprise of Europe, which is expending hundreds of millions in new canals? Does not the semi-centennial of the Sault Ste. Marie Canal teach something?

Sportsmen and the Game Laws.

At this season of the year, when New Jersey is visited by thousands of non-resident fishermen, there is a great demand for copies of the State fish and game laws. The State being too parsimonious to pay for publication of the laws in the newspapers, private enterprise has met the popular quest for information by printing, in various forms, a compilation of the fish and game statutes a revision being made annually as soon as possible after the legislative adjourns. This year sportsmen have been kept in ignorance of changes in the laws because of unusual delay in the Executive disposal of legislative measures, so that it has been impossible to publish a complete and accurate compilation of the fish and game laws of the State. Visiting sportsmen will have to consult their old game manuals and trust to luck that they do not through ignorance become violators of the law.—Camden Post-Telegram.

Made a Good Deal.

Deal is to be congratulated that it has at last consummated the purchase of its own beach front. Municipal ownership of this right will be the making of Deal and that resort will doubtless blossom forth with new splendors.—Asbury Park Journal.

Attention Girls

It is hoped that a crusade against naughty and overly-frank bathing costumes can be averted this season. These crusades are always embarrassing, both to the authorities and the wearers, not to speak of the onlookers. But even Mayor Stoy, who does not like to stir up these delicate questions, admits that the line must be drawn somewhere. He does not say exactly where, but leaves it to be inferred that it should be at least a foot or two below the waist line. The Press of yesterday morning told of a "dashing" young woman who appeared on the beach on Sunday clad in a handsome costume of brown that attracted considerable attention from the fact that a ruffle was worn as a substitute for a skirt. Now, everyone must admit that in such a case the line was drawn too high, and the young lady herself gave tacit consent to this judgment by returning to her bath house on the advice of a beach guard to "let out the hem a foot or two." Ballet skirts are proper and appropriate when worn on the stage by a ballet girl. But they are entirely out of place when worn on the beach by a society belle. Girls should study appropriateness in bathing costumes, as well as in gowns for the street, the golf course, or the ball room. If they don't they are liable to get mixed and appear in a combination ball gown and bathing suit, and might result in a panic and a general alarm of fire.—Atlantic City Press.

Boston at Pittsburg.
Philadelphia at Cincinnati.

Westfield will take on Rahway on Saturday.

Hard hitting by the locals is what will tell Saturday's tale.

Beck, who held the All-Cubans to seven hits last time, will probably face them again.

Batamanto, who hurls a ball with terrific speed, will again be seen at short for the Cubans, on Saturday.

The Cubans are just the kind of a team to put the locals on edge for the Westfield game the following Saturday.

Armbruster, who formerly caught for the Alls Club here, continues his good work with the Boston Americans, both in the field and at bat. He is hitting the ball at something over .300.

Unless "Wally" Cosgrave shows a great improvement on last Saturday's form, it would be advisable to put "Tuck" Turner in center garden. Many fans think this should have been done long ago.

Many Plainfielders are of the opinion that "Warry" McLaughlin, who is doing fine work at New London, will be pitching for the Bostons, in the American League, if he can secure his release from New London.

FAST TENNIS.

Rain Saved Seaver by Stopping Brilliant Match.

Boston, Aug. 10—Rain shortly after noon yesterday interfered with some of the sharpest tennis seen this week at Longwood. Nine matches, eight in singles and one in the doubles, were completed when the down pour came. In the singles event six of the matches, including an unfinished match, were fought through four or five sets. There was only one default, but that removed from the doubles W. A. Larned and W. J. Clothier, favorites for the Eastern championship.

The most brilliant tennis of yesterday was in the Leroy-Seaver match, which the rain stopped in the fifth set with the games four to two in Leroy's favor. Many of the games went to deuce five or six times. In the third set the score went to 13—11 before Seaver won.

The effort, however, exhausted him so that he lost the fourth set and seemed on the verge of dropping the match entirely when the rain saved him.

Battle Axe Won.

Saratoga, N. Y., Aug. 10.—The form of this season's two-year-old colts became more complicated than ever when Battle Axe, belonging to Harry Payne Whitney, won the $10,000 Grand Union Hotel Stakes at the Saratoga track yesterday. Although he had gotten out of the maiden class only a short time ago, he won easily, beating such stake winners as Accountant and Vendor.

DIVIDEND NOW SURE.

Orange Settles Bills With Public Service and Telephone Company.

Stockholders in the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company and the Public Service Corporation can rest easier regarding the next semi-annual dividend, for the Orange Board of Education has ordered bills paid which will swell the total receipts. The telephone company's bill was for five cents, the charge for a call to Newark, while the Public Service will receive 11 cents, the price of 130 cubic feet of gas, minus a discount of one cent for payment within five days of the presentation of the bill.

The bills were approved by the Superintendent of Schools, and bear his signature, as well as the signatures of ten members of the board composing the buildings and finance committees, and the warrants will be approved by the City Auditor, signed by the Mayor, and checks for the payment will be signed by the Mayor and City Treasurer. Officials of each company must also take an affidavit that the bills are correct, and that the service charged for has been rendered, and that no bonus or other consideration has been given.

Seat Sale Opens.

The sale of seats for the opening of the new theatre was opened last night at the session of Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E., which was instrumental in getting the playhouse in the city and the members bought up a large number. One enthusiast took a block of fifty in the orchestra circle and several others took five each. Today the diagrams were placed in Schreiner's and Rowley's pharmacies and the calls for seats have continued steadily all morning.

SOME ONE PUT APPLEJACK IN LEMONADE AND ICE CREAM—NOW THERE'S TROUBLE

Annandale, Aug. 10—An investigation, the outcome of which may cause the arrest of several young men in this vicinity, is being conducted by the committee in charge of a church festival recently held near here, at which, it is said, a number of young men and women became intoxicated by drinking lemonade and eating ice cream into which some one had poured a quantity of apple whisky. The guilty persons are said to be young men of this neighborhood. The festival was held one evening last week under the auspices of a church society. Ice cream, cake and lemonade were among the good things offered for sale. Several young women, who live hereabouts, partook of one or more plates of cream, after which they began to act in an unusual manner, while others became very sick. Four or five young men were affected in a like manner, and it soon became evident to the staid old farmers that their sons and daughters were under the influence of liquor. As the girls and young men are respectable, and of good families, great surprise was expressed by the town people when they began to act strangely, and an investigation revealed the fact that a large quantity of apple whisky had been poured into a tub of ice cream, while a washtub containing lemonade had been doctored in a similar way. Nothing was said about the matter at first, but the father of one of the girls that ate the cream has thought the matter too serious a one to be passed over lightly, and has demanded that the guilty parties be located and punished. The incident has created a sensation that will keep the village gossips going for some time to come.

MAYORS TO SPEAK AT OPENING OF THEATRE

Heads of City and Borough Governments to Make Addresses.

OFFICIAL RECOGNITION

Impromptu Remarks To Be Made By Prominent Citizens at First Performance In New Playhouse.

As well as being an important event from a dramatic standpoint, the opening of the Plainfield theatre, on August 24, will be an auspicious occasion. Manager Counihan has been shaping his plans with the idea of having the citizens take a personal interest in the affair and there will be a "programme" in addition to the performance.

Mayor James F. Buckle has consented to make an address some time during the evening, and Mayor Smalley and other well known officials will speak briefly. The members of the local lodge of Elks have bought the majority of the orchestra seats and they will be on hand to extend an ovation to George Thatcher. It will be the latter's first public appearance in Plainfield since his Christmas vaudeville at Music Hall seven years ago.

Residents of Somerville and Westfield are also interested in the opening and both places will send large delegations. A well known politician from the former place was in town yesterday and went away with ten choice orchestra seats. The house is to have six boxes and two of these were taken yesterday by Marcus Hoyt and George J. Tobin. A feature of the sale as it has already advanced is the fact that the call for the gallery seats has been very heavy and but few are left.

Carpenters, electricians, plasterers and decorators are now crowding one another in their hurry to have everything in apple-pie order by August 21 when it is proposed to allow inspection. Several gangs are working nights, but the progress has reached such a stage that there is no doubt as to the time limit being met. The center of the building is now occupied by a maze of scaffolding but this is for the benefit of the decorators and will be knocked away a week from tomorrow.

The cost of the alteration work for the playhouse has already gone about $3,000 over the original estimate. As it now stands the reconstruction will represent an expenditure of about $20,000. This has all been borne by Mr. Counihan and shows that he has not stinted any in giving Plainfielders a theatre that will rank with any in the State.

DATES FOR RIFLE PRACTICE.

New Order Setting Forth Days For Visit to Sea Girt.

Sea Girt, Aug. 11—In order to give ample facility for the rifle practise of those who are not able to attend on dates assigned to organizations, the provisions of general order No. 2, May 1, and circular, June 22, have been amended to read as follows:

A. Those desiring to practise at own expense may do so on August 12, 19, September 11, 12, 13, 14, 15 and 16.

B. Those included in the classes named in the circular of June 22, 1905, may also complete practise on the above dates.

In order to prepare for the large number of teams expected for the national and other matches (about forty), which is of itself a great compliment to Sea Girt, the range will be closed and there will be no class or own expense practise on August 21, 22 and 23. The Governor's Champion Marksman's match will not be open August 21, 22 and 23, but will be open instead September 11, 12, 13, 14, 15 and 16.

Miss Ursala Colvin, of this city, is visiting relatives at High Bridge.

STOKES TO WELCOME BOOKER WASHINGTON

COLORED CITIZENS OF UNION AND ESSEX WILL GIVE HIM A RECEPTION.

The Colored Citizen's Committee of Essex and Union counties met last Wednesday evening at Orange and further perfected arrangements for the reception of Booker T. Washington, and the National Negro Business Men's League. At the barbecue to be held at Glenwood Park, Saturday August 19, an address welcoming Mr. Washington and the league to the State will be made by Governor Stokes. Mayor Fisher of Bloomfield, will deliver an address of welcome to the county. Others to make addresses are Congressman Wiley and Mayor Doremus, of Newark, and Mr. Washington. The reception will begin at 3 o'clock p. m., and will be interspersed with vocal and instrumental music. The reception committee will consist of A. B. Cosey, C. E. Hill and C. R. H. Hawkins.

At the close of the reception a picnic will follow.

PARKWAYS THROUGH LOIZEAUX PROPERTY

FOUR WIDE THOROUGHFARES PLANNED FOR NEW RESIDENCE.

Steps for the improvement of the tract at Randolph road and Park avenue, just purchased by J. D. Loizeaux, have already been taken. Accompanied by Civil Engineer F. J. Hubbard, Mr. Loizeaux went over the property yesterday, mapping out the general plan for the conversion of the tract.

When the engineers, street builders and contractors get through with the tract it will be a most attractive addition to the handsome residence sections of the city. Four streets are to be cut through the tract, one running parallel to Randolph road and the other three parallel with Park avenue.

Each of the streets will be sixty-six feet in width, which is considerably wider than ordinary wide streets. The roads will be laid out like parkways, with floral beds in various design, such as diamonds and horseshoes, in the center. It is expected that some of the handsomest residences in the city will be erected on the property.

AUTO TAKES FIRE.

Dr. Giddes' Machine Narrowly Escapes Destruction.

Dr. Elmer A. Giddes' Oldsmobile narrowly escaped total destruction by fire last evening, through carelessness on the part of an employe in filling the gasoline tank. It was quite dark at the time and the man placed a lantern near the machine in order to see better. The flames caught the gasoline fumes and communicated to the tank. In an instant the vehicle was ablaze and but for prompt measures would have been consumed.

The flames were put out with pails of water but not before the auto was badly damaged. The top covering was consumed, the seat burned and many other portions were badly scorched.

In Shore Festival.

Six young Plainfielders took part in the musical extravaganza held at the Asbury Park auditorium last night in connection with the seventh annual children's festival. They were Alfred Manley, Raymond Manley, Evelyn Manley, Dorothy VanWinkle, Jubilee Rowley, Irving Manley. The extravaganza, an elaborate production, was witnessed by a full house, and scored a great success.

Bishop Vincent and his son, Dr. George Vincent, both former Plainfielders, were among the committee to receive President Roosevelt at Chautauqua today.

MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP IDEA AS VIEWED BY MAYOR BUCKLE AND MAYOR SMALLEY

In order to ascertain the opinions of the executive heads of the local governments, regarding the advisability and feasibility of the proposed municipal ownership of the local water supply, a representative of The Daily Press interviewed them today.

Mayor James F. Buckle, of Plainfield, said: "I favor municipal ownership where it can be demonstrated that it is for the best interests of the people. So far as the proposition to obtain control of the water supply is concerned, I would prefer to investigate the matter thoroughly before expressing my opinion."

Mayor Newton B. Smalley, of North Plainfield, said: "Plainfield's proposition ought to be brought about. I believe it is a good thing and I am convinced that North Plainfield will do its share. In my opinion the plan is practicable and the people will profit by it."

CHARGED EXCESS FARE

P. S. C. Called to Time by Dunellen For Violating Franchise.

EXTORTION AT LOOP.

Free Transfer Denied Passengers From Main Line to Bound Brook Cars—Charge Children Under Age.

Reports that the P. S. C. has been charging two fares between Dunellen and Bound Brook since the much-contested loop in the extreme west end of the borough has been in operation, contrary to the franchise under which cars run through the town, has called forth prompt action on the part of the Dunellen Council. Complaints that the conductors are not only making transfer passengers pay another fare, but are charging children under eight years old, another breach of franchise regulations, have been made.

Investigation convinced the borough authorities that the complaints were well founded and this week the Council informed the company that the overcharge must cease. In a letter to Col. E. W. Hine, the general superintendent of the P. S. C., the Council demanded that the conductors be notified to stop collecting the excess fare, and that a system of transfers be put in operation between the two lines.

The Council asks further that the company send a copy of the instructions issued.

The letter to Col. Hine reads as follows:—

"Col. E. W. Hine,

"Dear Sir: Will you please instruct your conductors who pass through or run into our borough regarding section 22 of the ordinance as amended April 2, 1900, granting the Brunswick Traction Company permission to construct, operate and maintain an electric street railway in the borough of Dunellen, which ordinance was passed and approved March 7, 1898.

"Section 22 as amended reads as follows: 'The fare from any part of Dunellen to the city of Plainfield or to any part of the borough of Bound Brook or so far as the said traction company's railway shall run to or in said borough of Bound Brook, shall not exceed the sum of five cents for the adult passengers, and no fare shall be charged for children under eight years of age; and said traction company shall issue school tickets for a sum not to exceed three cents per ride for school children and school teachers and said school rates shall apply to children going from Dunellen schools to Plainfield schools and to Bound Brook schools.'

"We are in receipt of advice that fare is being demanded of children under eight years of age, also that a five-cent fare is being demanded of adults east of the trolley loop without offering or giving transfers beyond to Bound Brook, contrary to the ordinance as amended, and the agreement thereto.

"A system of transfers must be arranged or these demands for excess fare must cease.

"We would appreciate a copy of the instructios which you issue to your conductors on this subject.

"Your kind offices and prompt attention to this matter will be much appreciated.

Respectfully Yours,
"Borough Council of Dunellen.
"Joel D. De Groff,
"Borough Clerk."

A reporter for the Daily Press boarded a Bound Brook car at the loop yesterday with seven other passengers from the Dunellen car. They were not asked for another fare.

PAYS FOR EARLIER MURDER

Italian Wanted in Jersey Sentenced In Italy.

Trenton, Aug. 11—The Trenton police have learned the Giuseppe Rossi, who stabbed and killed Vincencio Gomoeto, on South Main street, Lambertville, April 22 last, has been captured in Italy and sentenced for life for killing a man there.

It is also learned that Rossi killed his man in Italy and escaped to this country. When he killed the Lambertville man, Rossi escaped, and thinking that the affair in Italy had been forgotten he returned and was arrested and sent to prison for life.

Miss Nettie Stillman, of West Fourth street, was tendered a pleasant surprise last evening in honor of her sixteenth birthday. The evening was passed with games and music. At a late hour refreshments were served.

Mrs. David Prescott Hall, of Madison avenue, has joined her mother, Mrs. Julia Ward Howe and her sister, Mrs. Maude Howe Elliott, in Oak Glen, near Newport, R. I.

HE STOPPED THE FREIGHT

Joseph Sullivan Makes It Easy For Himself In Getting Off.

IS NEARLY DEPORTED

Crew Run Him Down and Insist On Taking Him To Jersey City Until Detective McCarthy Interferes.

Joseph Sullivan, sixteen years old, of John street, took a ride on an Eastbound Central freight train early last night. Just beyond Grant avenue Joseph decided to get off. The train was going too fast for comfortable debarkation so Joseph reached down over the side of a car and pulled out the lever that sets the air brakes. The train slowed up and Joseph got down.

So did the conductor and the rest of the crew. The sudden stoppage of the train surprised them, and when they saw Joseph leaving they promptly put two and two together. Joseph didn't wait for questions. As soon as he saw the crew coming his way he ran as fast as he could go.

The railroad men ran him down at Liberty and Third streets. The conductor grabbed Joseph and told him to come along. Joseph started, but when the conductor announced that he was going to take him to Jersey City the boy rebelled. He was willing to go to the Plainfield jail but not to a foreign dungeon. The conductor insisted on taking him to Jersey City, and an argument ensued that attracted a big crowd.

Detective McCarthy, on his way home, was attracted by the crowd and shouldered his way through to the conductor and his prisoner.

He quashed the deportation place in short order.

"I'll take the boy to the jail here," he said, and that settled it. The conductor grumbled, but McCarthy kept the boy.

Joseph was arraigned before Mayor Buckle an hour later. With the shadow of deportation still on him, he was penitent and full of fine promises. Mayor Buckle lectured him, and suspended sentence.

Chief Dougherty, of the Central railroad police force, came here this morning to see about the case. The police told him that the incident was closed.

"COUNT" VAN NEST HAS EMPLOYE ARRESTED

MIRED LOAD OF SAND GETS THEM IN AN ALTERCATION.

"Count" J. K. VanNest, the "man of many troubles," appeared as complainant in Justice Clark's court at Scotch Plains yesterday, against Patrick Kinney, one of his employes. He charged him with threatening his life, using profane language and several other infractions of the law. The Count's eagerness to have Kinney punished for all these offenses failed to impress the court and the prisoner was discharged.

Kinney's arrest by Officer Pangborn afforded no little amusement for the residents of the village. The charges grew out of an altercation the two men had following their inability to get a load of sand out of a mire on Park avenue where Kinney had driven it. The warrant was placed in Pangborn's hands to serve but Kinney refused to let the officer lay hands upon him. Pangborn drew his revolver and bracelets but Kinney backed away from him and continued to back all the way to Justice Clark's home. The distance is about half a mile and the trip was marked by repeated attempts on Pangborn's part to get hold of Kinney but without effect. He called upon several citizens to help him but all suddenly had business in another direction and he had to go it alone.

Peaches and Cream.

Arrangements for a peach and ice cream festival to be held Friday, August 18, in the basement of the church, were started by the Ladies' Aid Society, of the German Reformed church, at a special meeting yesterday. The committee in charge consists of Mrs. Angerbauer, president of the society; Mrs. Jacob Blimm, Mrs. J. Schorb, Sr., Mrs. P. Bach and Mrs. Scheegas.

BARELY ESCAPED DEATH

Many Persons Grazed By Huge Boom of Falling Derrick.

DROPPED IN STREET

Accident At Trust Company's New Building Today Caused $1,000 Loss to Contractors.

Several workmen and onlookers had narrow escapes from injury or death and fully $1,000 damage was occasioned by an accident that occurred shortly before noon today at the new building of the Plainfield Trust Company at Park avenue and Second street.

While a section of one of the huge limestone columns, weighing nearly four tons, was being held nigh in the air by the steam derrick, a connecting pin broke, allowing the forty foot boom to drop. It came down with a crash and but for the fact that it gave an ominous creak at the start and struck a part of the completed stone structural work for the doorway, would have crushed a number of persons beneath it.

The boom fell outward toward the street, the top end dropping directly in the center of Park avenue. Several workmen who were arranging to place the section of column were just grazed by the heavy mass and a group of bystanders on the sidewalk saved themselves only by jumping. Lawyer Charles M. Dolliver and Oswald Love, a young boy, were passing by on bicycles and the timber came so near them both fell from their wheels. Letter Carrier Daniel Shea, Eugene O'Reilly and Ernest Millard comprised the sidewalk group which leaped to one side barely in time.

When the piece of column dropped it struck the outer edge of a circular base on which it was to rest and broke off a large section. It also jarred and shook the foundation at that point. The boom followed after it and caught the top of the ornamental stone coping that is to grace the doorway and wrecked a part of the projecting ridges. The column itself was damaged though it finally landed on the ground. All these pieces will have to be replaced and in addition a new boom will have to be secured before the work can proceed.

The construction of the building has hitherto gone ahead rapidly and the delay comes just at a time when the contractors were confident of making great progress.

IN KNUCKLE FIGHT FOR A GIRL'S LOVE

FIVE ROUNDS HAD BEEN FOUGHT WHEN POLICEMAN STOPPED CONTEST.

A mounted policeman spoiled Wednesday night a fight between two young men in a lonely spot between Elizabeth and Rahway. The fight was to have been to a finish, the loser to relinquish all claims to the affections of a girl who is described as a very pretty blonde, twenty-two years old, and a recognized belle of Rahway. All those concerned refuse to tell the girl's name.

The two fighters were Henry Listner, of Elizabeth, and Walter Desmond, of Rahway. Both have courted the young woman and she seemed about equally divided in her affection for them.

The rivalry became so keen that recently neither man spoke to the other, although once they were friends. Matters became so strained that friends met and it was arranged that a fistic bout was the only means of settling the question.

A spot near a district camp was selected, off the main road, between Elizabeth and Rahway. Wednesday night was agreed upon as the time for the fight. Each of the two men was accompanied by his followers. No gloves were used.

The fight had gone about five rounds and Desmond seemed to be getting the worst of it when a policeman on horseback appeared and scattered the crowd, but did not succeed in making any arrests, as all disappeared in the darkness.

Listner bears no marks of the fight but Desmond is cut about the eyes and is minus a couple of teeth. The friends decided to call it a draw. It is said they soon will meet again and have it out.

ALL-CUBANS MARKED FOR SLAUGHTER

DAABSTERS TO TACKLE THEM TOMORROW.

Realizing that Saturday's game will be a closely contested one, the All-Cubanss will present their strongest line-up against the locals. The Daabsters are in to win so that the series may stand even and no chances will be taken. Everyone who witnessed the last game between these two teams knows well of the fast fielding the Cubans are capable and how by the remarkable work of the Cuban short-stop, Batamanto, the locals were prevented from tying the score in the ninth.

Manager Daab will probably pitch Beck, in whom he has implicit confidence. Beck let these same heavy hitters down with seven singles in the last game, and Mr. Daab thinks he can turn the trick on them again.

The locals line-up will be unchanged from last Saturday's, Brogan again playing second instead of Dalton who is still unable to play. The Cubans will line up again on Saturday in the same way as on their last appearance here.

The line-up will be: All-Cubans: Batamanto, ss., Valdes, 2b., Almeyda, 3b.; Palamino, rf.; Garcia, c.; Heldago, cf.; Marzan, lf.; Cabrera, 1b.; Perez or De Meza, p.

Plainfield, Kiernan, ss.; Cograve, cf.; Brogan, 2b.; Connolly, rf.; Cregan, lf.; Leonard, 3b.; Driscoll, 1b.; O'Neill, c.; Beck or Deegan, p.

ENEMIES OF RUNYON HOLD A CONFAB

SECRET MEETING IN ELIZABETH RECENTLY.

The Elizabeth Times said yesterday, "At a secret session of the 'Men Behind the Guns' in this county held one moonlight night recently, a conference was held in the Cory building on Broad street for the purpose of discussing the Runyon boom up county and of doing what can be done in the way of Ossterizing the ambitions of Captain Robert J. Kirkland for the office of sheriff.

"Present at the meeting were Chas. H. K. Halsey, Police Commissioner John C. Rose, and a number of others who are known to be strong factors in Rpublican matters in this end of Union county. Now it was understood that this meeting was to be entirely secret for it was merely a formal heart-to-heart discussion on the local and Plainfield situations, the former on behalf of George T. Parrott, whose term of office expires in another year as surrogate, and the latter on the interests of Ernest R. Ackerman, presumably, as the candidate for State senator.

"It is known that there is a strong sentiment in this city in favor of Robert J. Kirkland as the candidate for sheriff and he would doubtless make a much stronger candidate in the convention than any of the others who have been named even though Dr. Lawrence of Summit, is being urged forward by his friends with all strenuosity upon a convention promise of a year ago.

"The meeting in the Corey building was, therefore, of importance because it showed that there is a disposition on the part of some of the local Republican leaders to favor the Summit man and to put a quietus if possible on the boom in Plainfield in favor of Judge Runyon.

"The meeting was a short one but these are the subjects taken up for discussion. Mum is the word, among those who were there regarding the result of the session in the moonlight."

GETS RAILROAD TAX.

Dunellen Will Levy on $62,054 C. R. R. Valuation for Local Taxation.

Notice from the State Board of Assessors to add the Central Railroad property to his list for local taxation was receivedd on Wednesday by Borough Assessor John L. Peters, of Dunellen. The notice directed him to add the sum of $62,054 as the railroad's share to local ratables.

Mr. Peters declares that the new rating will reduce Dunellen's taxes by forty cents this year. The announcement of the railroad tax has aroused a good deal of delighted comment from the boroughites. Dunellen is very largely a railroad town, many conductors, engineers and other employees living there. It is one of the terminals of the road and one of the round houses is in its limits.

Miss Marion Linbarger, of Brooklyn, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. P. A. McVoy, of East Front street.

GEORGE VINCENT TO SUCCEED DR. HARPER

Former Plainfielder Probable to Become Head of Chicago University

BISHOP VINCENT'S SON

He Is a Graduate of Plainfield High School—Father Once a Pastor Here.

Recent developments in the malady with which Dr. William R. Harper, head of Chicago University, is suffering makes it probable that Prof. George Vincent, a former Plainfielder, will become president of the great western college. It is said that Dr. Harper will have to undergo another operation, and will be compelled by the state of his health to relinquish the presidency. It is known that he favors Prof. Vincent, who is head of the academic department of the university, as his successor.

In order to place Prof. Vincent at the head of the institution the university constitution will have to be changed. At present only a Baptist can hold the presidency, and Prof. Vincent is a Methodist. Dr. Harper was at Forest Hill, John D. Rockefeller's home near Cleveland, yesterday, and it is said that he brought up the matter of changing the constitution in discussing the situation with the Standard Oil philanthropist. Mr. Rockefeller's word is law with the university authorities, and if he approves of Prof. Vincent for president the latter will be chosen.

Prof. Vincent is the son of Bishop Vincent, and lived here when the bishop, then Rev. Dr. John Vincent, was pastor of the First M. E. church. He is a graduate of the Plainfield High School, and of Yale University.

At Chicago University he holds the chair of sociology. He is head of the Chatauqua Summer school, at Chatauqua, N. Y., which Bishop Vincent founded.

HOPE CHAPEL'S GREAT DAY.

Its Annual Excursion to Asbury Park Takes Place Tomorrow.

The one great event of the year in the West End takes place tomorrow. It is the annual excursion of Hope chapel Sunday school to Asbury Park and Ocean Grove and from all accounts will be larger this year than ever before. Ample accommodations been made to carry a big crowd and the committee will see to it that everyone who goes has a god time.

The train will leave the Grant avenue station at 7:50 and the North avenue station ten minutes later. The return trip will not begin until 7:55 thus giving the excursionists a full day at the shore.

NOVEL MACHINE.

Put Nickel in Slot and Get Cigar.

Numerous mechanical devices for the distribution of chewing gum, candy and other merchandise have attracted considerable attention during the last few years and have proven both a profitable and a convenient method of selling goods, appreciated by both consumer and distributor. The penny in the slot machine is to be found everywhere and a more satisfactory, polite or honest salesman does not exist. A recent invention, for the automatic selling of cigars is a much more remarkable automaton, and solves a more difficult problem. Cigars from their shape and composition require much more delicate handling than a package of gum or candy and it has taken years of experiment to evolve the present machine.

The machine itself is compact, strong, and handsome, consisting of a nickleplated frame, about one foot high and wide enough to admit a square cigar-box holding fifty cigars. On the right hand side is attached a cigar cutter and match box. The sides, front and top are of heavy plate glass, so that the cigars and Government Stamp are in plain sight at all times. As the machine is not opened from the time the box is placed therein until it is empty the customer is assured of clean, well-kept smokes at all times.

The machines are loaded with various grades of cigars, costing from five cents to three for a quarter, and delivers the three cigars as easily as it does one. While none of these machines have yet been put in operation in New Jersey, it is expected that by fall the State will be plentifully supplied, and Plainfield will have about fifty machines installed in a short time. The inventor, Mr. Willard D. Doremus, is the man responsible for the mail boxes now in use by the U. S. Government, as well as the cancelling machine and other important devices.

THE YELLOWSTONE PARK, LEWIS AND CLARK EXPOSITION, AND THE ROCKY MOUNTAINS.

An Attractive Fall Tour via Pennsylvania Railroad.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company has arranged a special personally-conducted tour to visit the Pacific Coast, including the Yellowstone Park, Portland (for the Lewis and Clark Exposition), and the beautiful resorts among the Colorado Rockies. This tour will leave New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, and other cities on the Pennsylvania Railroad Saturday, September 2, by a special train of high-grade Pullman equipment. The itinerary will cover a period of three weeks, the party reaching the East on the homeward journey September 22. The special train will be used by the party over the entire route, except during the five and one-half days in Yellowstone Park, when the fine hotels now in service in the Great Preserve will be utilized. The train will be side-tracked in Portland for occupancy there, and all meals en route, except in the Yellowstone Park and in Denver, will be served in the special dining car.

Round trip tickets, covering all necessary expenses for twenty-one days, $200 from all points on the Pennsylvania Railroad except Pittsburgh, from which the rate will be $195.

The Historic Hudson.

The Hudson River has a renowned reputation in more ways than one. Its business interests are more widely known than any other stream, while for excursions and outings it has no equal. There are sights galore—the palisades—the U. S. Military Academy at West Point—the far famed State Prison at Sing Sing and interesting Newburg. The scenery in every direction is superb and the steamers which convey the excursionists are commodious and comfortable. On August 17, 1905, the New Jersey Central is going to run one of its popular low-rate excursions up the Hudson, the rate for the round trip to be $1, children, 50 cents, and special train leaving Plainfield at 8:46 a. m., will connect at Jersey City station with famous steamer "St. Johns" for the trip. Don't forget date or train time. 8 11 td

Lake Excursion.

The beauty spot of New Jersey is Lake Hopatcong and one who visits the place is charmed with the diversified entertainment afforded. The surroundings are delightful in every respect and a day spent in the rarified mountain air of the Jersey foothills will do wonders for the tourist. There are ample facilities for fishing and boating and one who enjoys the rambles in wooded paths and the quietness of the natural pines, to him Lake Hopatcong is the gem of places. On August 13, 1905, the New Jersey Central is going to run one of its famous low priced and popular excursions to the Lake. Round trip $1, and special train leaves Plainfield at 9:20 a .m.

AMUSEMENTS.

Last evening the regular fall season of the Academy of Music was inaugurated with an elaborate and entirely new production of the greatest of all rural plays—"Way Down East." It has been nearly two years since New Yorkers have had an opportunity to witness this New England gem, as it has purposely been kept out of the city for a year or more preparing for this special opening, and it is now promised by the management that never before in the history of the stage has such vastness, realism and beauty in the way of scenery been seen in any rural play, and it is said to be their intentions to eclipse all past presentations and make this one of the memorable productions in this home of greatness. In the play there is a combination of humor and pathos with incisive dramatic incident, a tremendous amount of human interest. The passions and emotions that sway the simple people of the New Hampshire farm are the same that have governed all people of all ages since the world began.

At Proctor's 58th Street theatre, as the summer draws to a close, the productions seem to increase rather than decrease in importance. Week of August 14 will be no exception to this rule, when Lawrence Marston's powerful drama of heart interest, "A Woman's Sacrifice," will be presented. This production will be most elaborately staged by the author himself, under whose direction beautiful scenery, accurate properties, accessories, etc., are being prepared. All the favorites of the 58th Street Proctor company will be seen in this offering, including Miss Adele Bloch, William P. Carleton, Miss Agnes Scott, Charles Arthur, William Norton, Miss Louise Mackintosh, Robert Rogers, George Howell and others of equal note.

Saturday evening, August 19, at the Majestic theatre, New York, will be a notable occasion: It being the opening of the regular season, and it will also be the first presentation in New York city of that best of all pastoral plays, "York State Folks," with a most elaborate production and a cast that has seldom been equalled. Of course James Lackaye will be seen in his original creation of the part of Simon Peter Martin; Ray L. Royce, as the old organist Myron Cooper; Miss Leilia McIntyre, who was the original in the part of Jennie, has been engaged for this engagement. "York State Folks" is a delightful departure from the conventional rural drama. There are no "Hay-seeds" or exhibits of farming machinery, and there is not even a mortgage, neither is there a villian nor a woman with a story of wrong.

Hammerstein's Paradise Roof Gardens still keep the lead as the most popular attraction in New York these days. The bill changes weekly and in addition to the customary roof show nightly matinees are given daily in the Victoria theatre. Greatly reduced prices are asked at the afternoon performances although the bill is the same as is seen nightly on the roof garden. This week Abdul Kader and his three wives are to be seen. They arrived in this country last week and have made a great hit with the crowd that makes it a rule to visit Hammerstein's weekly. Then Carmencita is to be seen also. Others on the bill are Ernest Hogan and Company, the three Joscarys, Peschkoff's troupe, Hill and Sylvany, Martini and Maximilian, Will R. Rogers and last but not least the Six Cuttys.

Percy Williams' Vaudeville Shows at Manhattan Beach have been the means of diverting the crowds from other resorts where New Yorkers and suburbanites generally spend their evenings during the summer. His big productions are given every afternon at 3 and every night at 8:30 and have been the greatest drawing card in the history of the Manhattan Beach attractions. The show is well balanced and the numbers are all head-liners. So popular have they proven that Mr. Williams has been urged to place the show on the road as soon as the season there closes but he has not made final decision as yet.

'PHONES ON BARBER CHAIRS.

Paterson Shop Tries An Experiment.

Paterson, N. J., Aug. 11—Telephones on barber chairs are the latest innovation in Paterson, and so popular is the plan that before long it is expected other barbers in the city will have telephones installed. The barber shop in the Romaine building is the only one, it is believed, in the United States which can boast of having telephones on its chairs. Through them it is possible for a business man, while being shaved to hold constant communication with his office.

The barber in charge says that he put in the telephones as an experiment, and he has been congratulated by several of his customers, who are unanimous in their opinion that, while the plan is a novel one, it is soon to become popular in other places.—N. Y. Tribune.

—Gas company employes are laying new and larger mains through East Fourth street, between Park and Watchung avenues.

—The Jacob L. Voorhees property at Sixth and Richmond streets, has been sold by Sheriff Coriell to Daniel F. Dugan for $1,700.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

DIAMOND DUST.

Tuck Turner may have a chance to play before his old friends here Saturday.

"Jack" O'Neill's eye for the throw to the bases is as good as many of the big leaguers.

It is about time for us to see "Kid" Brogan make a long hit. Keep your eye on him Saturday, Mr. Fan.

Some interesting coaching may be looked for by the Cubans, Saturday. They coach in their own language.

For a pinch hitter no one of the locals can surpass Dan Connolly. His hitting has been the most consistent of the team throughout the year.

Dunellen will face the Watchungs on Saturday. As both teams have defeated New Market by the same proportions, a lively contest will probably take place.

Rumors are floating about to the effect that "Patsey" Donovan will manage a Tri-State team in Pittsburg next year. "Hey" Barney Dreyfuss thinks there will be no such thing if he can help it.

"Heine" Batch, as he is called in the big league, who played with Scotch Plains last year, knocked out a triple and scored the winning run in the tenth for Brooklyn, who beat St. Louis Wednesday, 5 to 4.

A prominent local fan was heard to remark yesterday: "I think we can beat the All-Cubans on Saturday, whether Mr. Daab puts Beck or Deegan in the box. If Deegan pitches I think we will win very easily, and if Beck pitches we will also win, only by a less margin." Beck has some admirers left, anyway, who are not knockers.

PITCHED TWENTY INNINGS.

"Rube" Waddell Tells How It Feels.

Rube Waddell, the twirling star of the Philadelphia team, looks upon the twenty-inning game in which he beat Cy Young, 4 to 2, at Boston, on the afternoon of July 4, as the crowning feat of his career.

"That game," said Waddell in an interview, "was the best I ever pitched, and I am glad and proud to have taken part in such a fine contest. But it didn't take a feather out of me. I felt just as good after the game as I did during the contest. I knew what it meant, and I felt every confidence that we would win, although Cy Young is the best pitcher in the business even now, and to have won over him is credit enough.

"I must have pitched two hundred and fifty balls in the twenty innings. I averaged about ten to an inning, but in this game I had about a dozen strikeouts, and they counted about five to each man. I wasn't a bit exhausted after it was over, and was no more tired than usual. I slept a little sounder than usual, due to the extra work, but I wasn't tired out and arose at six o'clock the next morning as usaul.

"I have pitched many extra inning games, more than any other pitcher, probably. I never noticed the umpires in this game and I realize that they are liable to make a bad decision. I can't figure that we are benefitted or injured by the umpires. I may have said a word now and then about a strike or a ball, but it was only temporary excitement that caused me to expostulate. I can't claim that I did better work than Young. I had the luck. Of course, I had to pitch god ball all the time and had to work just as hard during each of the extra innings as during the regular innings. It did not require any more muscular effort, although after the game I had my left arm, which is earning my salary massaged.

"There wasn't much difference betwen the two teams, and luck played the important part in the contest. I knew after we had made two runs in the twentieth inning that we had the game won. I knew the Bostons would be easier, as they would be too anxious, so I did not get nervous.

"The no hit no run game in which Young pitched against us last season proved to me that "Cy" was the world's greatest exponent of the pitching art."

ENGLISH PLAYERS COMING.

Football Match to be Played in America.

England's leading Amateur Association football club, the Corinthians, will pay their first visit to America this fall. The team has arranged for matches in Canada, Fall River, Mass., and Philadelphia. The club has also accepted an invitation from the Staten Island Cricket Club to play a match against an all-New York team on the Livingston grounds, September 13, at 4 o'clock. The all-New York team will be captained by A. Warren Smith, and will be impartially selected from all New York clubs of strictly amateur standing.

The Corinthians will bring over with them several players of international fame—among them G. O. Smith, who, although now somewhat past his best days, probably has no superior as centre forward.

Association football has made such great progress in popular favor during the last few years that the visit of the Corinthians will arouse considerable interest, and local players are looking forward to the opportunity of comparing the styles of play which prevail on both sides of the water.

Plainfield, N. J., August 11, 1905.

The President of the United States moved among the swaying, crushing mass of mine workers at Wilkesbarre yesterday and received a tremendous ovation. Without the least disrespect to the miners it can be said that no other chief executive of any nation on earth could feel so free from attack on such an occasion. Roosevelt is looked up to as a good man and a good President, and the miners, as a rule, are intelligent men and good citizens.

THE FORUM.

Curse of Strong Drink.

Editor, The Daily Press:

The case of a former Plainfielder, L. F. Durand, which was published a few days ago, is only another instance of the curse of strong drink. People who lived in the neighborhood of his home in this city, where he resided seven years, in one house, can testify that no one could be more devoted to his family or more honorable in his dealings than he was, but like many other men here and elsewhere he thought a glass of beer would do him no harm and the Plainfield saloons are largely responsible for his downfall. He is not here to defend himself, but for the sake of his little children, let us exercise Christian charity, and "Let him that is without sin cast the first stone."

Mrs. DeForest.

THE POLITICAL TIPSTER.

Irving Hoagland is the only one mentioned by Somerset county Republicans for the assembly nomination.

According to the Democratic organ of Elizabeth deep laid plots are being made against Runyon down that way.

The fact that J. Stephen Higham has gone to Maine for his vacation does not mean that he has "taken to the woods."

An exchange says that the temperance question will be the political issue in Plainfield this fall. That's news to Plainfield.

And there are some politicians in North Plainfield who declare that Mr. Frelinghuysen will never be State senator. "If he's nominated, we'll lick him," said one Republican yesterday.

Major Carl Lentz, boss of Essex county, puts Assemblyman Everett Colby, the reformer, on the defensive by challenging him to cite a single instance when he was requested by the county committee or the leaders to support any measure favoring a corporation.

Mayor Newton B. Smalley met Governor Stokes by chance yesterday at Asbury Park. They drew up chairs close to each other and pow-wowed for a short time over the political situation in Somerset county. The Mayor had to hurry for his train before the conference was ended and the Governor asked him to come to Trenton and take dinner with him. The conference will be renewed at that time. Somerville Unionist-Gazette please copy.

Priest Dead In Bathtub.

Rev. T. J. MacDonald, pastor of St. Cecilia's Roman Catholic church, Englewood, was found yesterday dead in his bathtub. The body was discovered by Father Fink, one of the parish clergy. Death was ascribed to heart disease. Father MacDonald was seventy-one years old. He was born in Kilkenny, Ireland. He was to have celebrated next St. Patrick's day the fortieth anniversary of his pastorate of St. Cecilia's. He was an influential priest in that part of New Jersey. A year ago he established a large parish school.

Miss Ida Firman, of Craig place, has returned home after a visit to relatives in Englewood.

Mrs. Clarence Mundy, of West Fourth street, is entertaining her mother, Mrs. William Gray, of Elizabeth.

NEW PHYSICAL DIRECTOR

Charles A. Bordman Will Succeed F. A. Henckel at Y. M. C. A.

WIDELY EXPERIENCED

Has Studied Medicine for Two Years —Will Take Charge on September 1—Mr. Henckel's New Place.

Charles A. Bordman, a graduate of the Springfield training school of the Y. M. C. A., will succeed F. A. Henckel, resigned, as physical director of the local association. The new director will take charge on September 1, when Mr. Henckel will leave for Brooklyn to assume the assistant physical directorship of the Central Y. M. C. A. of that place.

Mr. Bordman's acceptance of the call extended to him a week ago by the committee appointedd to fill the vacancy was received by General Secretary Manning yesterday. Mr. Bordman has had wide and successful experience in physical department work. Two years ago he discontinued his association labors to take a short course in medicine at Tufts College, and brings a highly useful knowledge of medical science to his departmental work.

The committee in charge of the appointment considered a half a dozen different eligible men, and the choice finally narrowed down between two men, of whom Mr. Bordman was one. It fell on him after the committee had convinced itself that he was the best available man for the place.

The committee was made up of Dr. Norman H. Probasco, chairman of the physical work committee; President J. W. Gavett, A. C. LaBoyteaux, C. M. Thorp.

Mr. Henckel's new position is a post of some honor in Y. M. C. A. physical department work. Although he gives up a directorship for a junior position, the size of the Central Branch, the largest in the city of Brooklyn, makes the change actually a promotion. The change will be particularly agreeable, because John H. Scott, the physical director, is a personal friend of his. Should Mr. Henckel fill his new position successfully, as his friends here are sure he will, he would stand in line for the directorship of the Central association whenever that might become vacant.

To Asbury Park Tomorrow.

Hope chapel has engaged fifteen cars to take its members and its friends to Asbury Park tomorrow. The weather bids fair to favor the excursionists with a delightfully pleasant day. This is your one chance to take Saturday off for an excursion to the seashore to enjoy the ocean breezes and a salt water bath. You will be happier and healthier for the outing. The train leaves Plainfield at 8 o'clock. A baggage car is attached to give free accommodations for baby carriages.

JAPAN'S TERMS HARSH

Demands Made Known to the Czar and Answer Awaited.

Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 11.—Japan has handed to Russia her terms for peace. They are very severe, but subject to discussion. The matter of an indemnity is mentioned, but no specific sum is named, although Japan makes it clear that she expects to be reimbursed for her expenditures during the war.

These are the great facts of today's session of the peace conference. They mean that a treaty of peace is much more probable than a continuance of the war.

From the moment a peace conference was suggested until yesterday the Russians insisted they would not pay an indemnity and they would cede no territory. Since the first, from good Japanese sources, it has been stated that the minimum of Japan's demand would be two billion yen, or one billion dollars. Instead, no specific sum is asked, but it is made clear that there must be an indemnity.

Bearing on these facts there are two further facts showing that Russia wants peace and will get it, if possible, on the best terms she can.

First—After the Russians had the Japanese terms and before any communication of them was made to the Russian Foreign office or to the Czar they sent cablegrams to the Rothschilds in Paris and to a banking house in Antwerp.

Second—Every Russian in authority has said tonight that, while the Japanese terms are harsh, they "are subject to discussion."

Those facts show the position of Russia as clearly as it can be shown without an actual knowledge of the communication to St. Petersburg and the Czar. Mr. Witte and his colleague, Baron Rosen, are here to get a treaty of peace if they can get it on any terms Russia can possibly withstand. They want peace. All their pessimism, all their ominous forebodings, all their protestations that they must be humiliated, count for nothing.

DOUBTS CONSTITUTIONALITY.

Supreme Court Justice Questions One-mile Limit Law's Legality.

Asbury Park, Aug. 11—In an opinion given by former Supreme Court Justice Collins, of Jersey City, yesterday, he questions the constitutionality of the prohibitory one-mile limit law. The act forbids the granting of a liquor license within a mile of any campmeeting, organized anywhere in New Jersey.

Mr. Collins, in his opinion, says the one-mile limit law is invalid because its title does not express a purpose to prohibit altogether the granting of licenses in places within its province, and therefore the enactment is void under article 4 of the Constitution.

COMPLAINS AGAINST WIFE.

Farmer Says Woman and Son Attacked Him in the Night.

New Brunswick, Aug. 11—With blood dripping from the back of his head, Frederick Neumann, a farmer and blacksmith living at Piscataway, aroused Justice of the Peace Sedam early yesterday morning and, getting him out of bed, made complaint against his wife Clara and oldest son, Frederick Neumann, Jr., charging them with atrocious assault. The warrants were issued to be served yesterday.

Neumann says he and his wife have been married twenty-six years. Wednesday a young son of his, thirteen years old, while aiding him in plowing a cornfield, drove the horse so that it knocked down a good many peaches from trees scattered about the cornfield. He sent the boy home, and he did not return Wednesday night. At 9 o'clock the barking of dogs led to the boy's discovery in the blacksmith shop and he strapped him for his conduct.

The boy's mother and brother, it is said, resented the father's treatment of the lad and when he entered the house, he declares, they stood at the top of the stairway and hurled heavy four-pound drinking bowls at him. He was badly gashed upon the head and back of the neck.

The farmer says his wife in her night dress, with the son, then ran to the house of a neighbor and soon several angry farmers were about the house. He says he repelled his wife and son and showed the neighbors his wounds when they retired. Neumann hitched up and drove here, where his wound was dressed by Dr. Meacham after he had sworn out the warrants.

LAST PRELIMINARY SERVICE.

Final Ceremonies Prior to Opening of Campmeeting.

Mt. Tabor, Aug. 11—The fourth and last of the services preliminary to the regular campmeetings will be held here today, and will be in charge of the Newark Conference Epworth League, being the annual midsummer rally. The morning session will be conducted by Rev. H. P. King, and words of welcome will be given by Dr. A. B. Richardson, president of the Campmeeting Association. Rev. W. J. Hampton, C. W. Demmings and W. B. Fleming will also speak at this meeting.

Rev. C. L. Scudder will conduct the devotional services of the afternoon session and Rev. C. L. Mead will make the address, his subject being "Spiritual Power in Evangelism." The devotional service at 6:30 p. m. will be conducted by Miss Annie Agnes Smith. "Decide for Yourself—for Your Friends" is the subject on which Rev. J. H. E. Schultz will address the evening session.

THIEVES ROB FREIGHT CAR.

Steal Lumber Left at Carteret for New Depot.

Carteret, Aug. 11—Thieves broke open a freight car standing at the Central Railroad depot here Wednesday night and stole the greater part of a consignment of lumber window frames and sash that arrived here Wednesday afternoon for the new depot that the railroad company is building here. It is thought the robbers are river pirates.

They took a wagon from the yard of one of the chemical factories, in which they carted their plunder to the sound shore and loaded it on a boat. From footprints on the sand, it is thought there were several in the gang. Some of the lumber was found yesterday morning lying on the beach.

Jersey City Wins.

Trenton, Aug. 11—Jersey City wins out in the opinion of Vice Chancellor Bergen filed yesterday advising the enjoining of suits commenced by the Jersey City Water Supply Company to force Jersey City to pay the full contract price of $1,595,000 for their new water works. The Vice Chancellor says that until the equity claims of Jersey City to deductions for lack of thoroughness in the fulfillment of contract are settled the suits of the Jersey City Water Supply Company must be enjoined.

Miss Emily Duvier, of West Fifth street, has returned home after a six weeks' visit to relatives in Brooklyn.

NOTES AND INCIDENTS.

The highest elevator in the world has been opened on the Burgenstock, a mountain near Lake Lucerne. It lifts tourists 500 feet to the top of a vertical rock.

The London City Council is likely to establish a system of automobile ambulances.

Thirty-seven rabbits which had been inoculated with the typhoid bacillus have been stolen from the bacteriological institute at Saarbruck, Prussia.

The London Lancet says a German doctor has discovered a new and valuable anesthetic. It is called "hydrochlorate of benzoyltetramethyldiamonoethyldimethylcarbinol."

Harry Lander, a Scottish comedian, is so popular in Great Britain that he is booked at the music halls till Christmas, 1912.

There is an animal hospital at Lodepur, near Calcutta, where there are usually about a thousand animals under treatment—horses, oxen, mules, elephants, dogs and even sheep, all comfortably housed and looked after by a staff of eighty native "nurses" under the orders of a British veterinary surgeon.

At the end of June there were 41,340 Chinese coolies at work in the Transvaal mines. The number of families is two—two wives and twelve children.

"How long is an egg 'fresh laid?'" asked a London judge of a witness the other day. "As long as it is good," replied the witness. The London newspapers duly record this incident, but what pleases them most about it is the name of the Judge who asked the question is Bacon.

A resident of a London suburb who thought he had a sure tip on the race for the Stewards' Cup turned in a fire alarm, so that he might communicate the good news to as many of his neighbors as possible. But the officers of the fire department were not sporty and turned him over to the police.

M. Caverau, of France, has discovered that the eggs of insects contain the same characteristic poison venom as the sting of the insect. So also the eggs of serpents. The discovery is important in its bearing on the phenomena of heredity.—N. Y. Evening Sun.

SLAMS AT NEW YORK.

"Society journalism" in New York promises to make the yellow brand seem comparatively desirable.—Washington Star.

New York is now so highly civilized that men whose unmarried daughters were slandered in Town Topics waited until the paper got into court before seeking their "revenge." At this rate of "progress" New York will die as a rose in aromatic pain.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Five skeletons have been found on an island near Hammond, Ind. Don't ship them to New York. The family trade there is all supplied.—Chicago Journal.

"New York's population is now a little less than 4,000,000," says the Brooklyn Eagle. This includes the convicted, indicted, or suspected life insurance officials and the subscribers to Fads and Fancies.—Washington Post.

New York's society swells now have their great minds centred upon the important task of pulling off a race between a coach dog and a bull pup.—Chicago News.

NOTICE!

"In behalf of your proprietary article called AZIENZA CREAM, as a remedy for diseases of the skin. I desire to add my appreciation of its wonderful properties as a cure in a case of Bone Tumor or Abscess of five years growth on my husband's back, which I have cured in less than five weeks time by constant application, and now it is as well as any part of his body. It was cut out once by a specialist and had again grown to a large size, was as hard as a bone and of a very dark purple color. The AZIENZA at once allayed the pain and began to soften it, and in less than eight days, by my pressure upon it, suddenly to my surprise it discharged a quantity of pus, impregnated with a hard, cheesy substance. I kept it open and cleansed it as it discharged and every day would dress it with a plaster of AZIENZA CREAM, until it was entirely healed up. I cannot speak too highly of AZIENZA CREAM and its merits. For inquiry regarding this case you may apply to Mr. and Mrs. James, Embury Ave., care Hiller, Ocean Grove, N. J. Signed, July 12, 1905: Mrs. C. W. James, Mr. C. W. James." Leading Druggists, 25c-50c

FOR THE GENTLER SEX

WORTH KNOWING.

White serge has been revived, and bids fair to become extremely popular, as it is considered newer than the embroidered linen which has had such a run.

The new serge is of French make, very soft and used mostly for coat suits—not many using it for a blouse. The preferred shades are ivory and cream rather than white, and with it are worn belts of cream or white, blouses, gloves, hats, parasols, stockings and shoes of white. Can you fancy anything prettier? Color is rarely introduced in these white costumes and then only by some color introduced on the hat.

Lace is not used on serge unless it be a bit of real Irish crochet lace; but hand embroidery is often used with excellent effect.

The suits of serge are unlined, and the skirts are worn over full, well-fitting white petticoats—silk petticoats not being much worn at this season.

Braid is used on the white serge suits, and especially on the skirts; often used in graded widths, and in groups of narrow braid at the knees and above the hem, with straight lines of wider braid between.

The skirts are quite short as are all the skirts for out-door wear. In many instances the whole shoe and instep is shown. Nothing could be prettier for a yachting costume than white serge, white cap and shoes of white.

For bathing ther are a variety of fabrics, and they are made with as much care as to fitting well as for any other costume. Wash silks, brilliantines, mohairs, and pongees all are adapted to this purpose.

A new fashion is that of wearing the Scotch cap with feather at the side and two ribbons behind with tennis suits. The most popular tennis suit consists of white cloth skirt and a white tussore blouse with Irish lace collar fastened with knot of red plaid silk like that on the velvet cap.

Much is being said about women wearing separate waists in decided contrast from her skirt on the street. This is considered very bad taste unless one wears a coat. Many are putting elbow sleeves in fine white waists and these are to be worn in the house with any kind of skirt. It is better to count on having sleeves elbow length in all blouses, and adding elbow cuffs of sheer material whenever they are wanted.

GOOD BREEDING.

One's ailments are never matters of public interest, and one's trouble annoy those whom they do not sadden.

Guests should not allow their hosts to incur needless expense on their behalf. When visiting city friends they should pay their own cab hires, car fares, express charges and telephone tolls, if messages are sent at long distances; but, if the host will not permit, it is better taste to yield the point than to prolong a discussion.

In order that children may learn politeness they must be treated with courtesy—thanked when they do little services, and spoken to in a controlled voice when reprimanded. Above all else, parents and elders must treat one another with well-bred politeness before them, for children are very imitative little creatures.

The behavior of father and mother toward each other sets an example that will probably serve as the standard of conduct in the households of which the children in their turn will be the heads.

It is no longer customary at the tables of those socially well-placed to serve the hostess first. It is an old fashion, a survival of the times when for the hosts to taste wine or food first was the assurance to the guests that it was not poisoned.

At church weddings every woman, including the bride, should wear a hat—unless she wears a veil. This is according to custom and precedent.

In well-regulated households no caller is ever told at the door that the servant "will see whether the mistress is at home or not." Instructions to that effect should be given in advance so that a caller's time may not be wasted in such investigation.

In going upstairs a woman is given precedence by a man, but in descending a staircase he goes first, to avoid stepping upon her gown, or, in case of a misstep, to afford her support.

In nothing does a girl show herself unbred so much as when lacking in respect and deference to her mother, except when such affront is offered to her father. If such a one had the gift of seeing herself as others see her she would feel nothing but disgust.

It is very bad form not to return a first call, unless the caller be a really objectionable person to know. But the first call returned, none other need follow and the acquaintaince may be allowed to drop. For the person, however, who makes the first call not to make a second after the former one has been courteously returned would be indefensible unless for some very cogent reason. Why begin an acquaintance only to drop it?—Newark Advertiser.

IN THE BISHOP'S CARRIAGE

By MIRIAM MICHELSON

(Copyright, 1904, by The Bobbs-Merrill Company).

And the goods still on me, Tom, mind that.

My, but Mrs. Kingdon was wrathy when she saw me!

"Why did they send you?" she cried. "Why did you keep me waiting so long? I want a chambermaid. I've rung a dozen times. The whole place is crazy about that old ball to-night, and no one can get decent attention."

"Can't I do what you want, ma'am?" I just yearned to get inside that door.

"No," she snapped. "I don't want a boy to fasten my dress in the back—"

"We often do, ma'am," I said, softly.

"You do. Well—"

"Yes'm." I breathed again.

"Well—it's indecent. Go down and send me a maid."

She was just closing the door in my face—and Moriway waiting for me to watch me down again.

"Mrs. Kingdon—"

"Well, what do you want?"

"I want to tell you that when I get down to the office they'll search me."

She looked at me amazed.

"And—and there's something in my pocket I—you wouldn't like them to find."

"What in the world—my diamonds! You did take them, you little wretch?"

She caught hold of my coat. But Lordy! I didn't want to get away a little bit. I let her pull me in, and then I backed up against the door and shut it.

"Diamonds! Oh, no, ma'am. I hope I'm not a thief. But—but it was something you dropped—this."

I fished Moriway's letter out of my pocket and handed it to her.

The poor old lady! Being a bell boy you know just how old ladies really are. This one at evening, after her face had been massaged for an hour, and the manicure girl and the hairdresser had gone, wasn't so bad. But to-day, with the marks of the morning's tears on her agitated face, with the blood pounding up to her temples where the hair was thin and gray—Tom Dorgan, if I'm a vain old fool like that when I'm three times as old as I am, just tie a stone around my neck and take me down and drop me into the nearest water, won't you?

"You abominable little wretch!" she sobbed. "I suppose you've told everybody in the office."

"How could I, ma'am?"

"How could you?" She looked up, the tears on her flabby, flushed cheek. "I didn't know myself. I can't read writing—"

It was thin, but she wanted to believe it.

She could have taken me in her arms, she was so happy.

"There! there!" she patted my shoulder and gave me a dollar bill. "I was a bit hasty, Nat. It's only a—a little business matter that Mr. Moriway's attending to for me. We—we'll finish it up this afternoon. I shouldn't like Miss Kingdon to know of it, because—because I—never like to worry her about business, you know. So don't mention it when she comes tomorrow."

"No'm. Shall I fasten your dress?" I simply had to stay in that room till I could get rid of those diamonds.

With a faded old blush—the nicest thing about her I'd ever seen—she turned her back.

"It's dark to-day, ma'am," I coaxed. "Would you mind coming nearer the window?"

No, she wouldn't mind. She backed up to the corner like a gentle little lamb. While I hooked with one hand, I dropped the little bag where the carpet was still turned up, and with the toe of my shoe spread it flat again.

"You're real handy for a boy," she said, pleased.

"Thank you, ma'am," I answered, pleased myself.

Moriway was still watching me, of course, when I came out, but I ran downstairs, he following close, and when the major got hold of me, I pulled my pockets inside out like a little man.

Moriway was there at the time. I knew he wasn't convinced. But he couldn't watch a bellboy all day long, and the moment I was sure his eyes were off me I was ready to get those diamonds back again.

But not a call came all that afternoon from the west side of the house, except the call of those pretty, precious things snug under the carpet calling, calling to me to come and get them and drop bell-boying for good.

At last I couldn't stand it any longer. There's only one thing to do when your chance won't come to you; that is, to go to it. At about four o'clock I lit out, climbed to the second story and there—Mag, I always was the luckiest girl at the Cruelty, wasn't I? Well, there was suite 231 all torn up, plumbers and painters in there, and nothing in the world to prevent a boy's skinning through when no one was watching, out of the window and up the fire-escape.

Just outside of Mrs. Kingdon's window I lay still a minute. I had seen her and Moriway go out together—she all gay with finery, he carrying her bag. The lace curtains in 331 were blowing in the breeze. Cautiously I parted them and looked in. Everything was lovely. From where I lay I reached down and turned back the flap of the carpet. It was too easy. Those darling diamonds seemed just to leap up into my hand. In a moment I had them tucked away in my pants pocket. Then down the fire-escape and out through 231, where I told the painter I'd been to get a toy the boy in 441 had dropped out of the window.

But he paid no attention to me. No one did, though I felt those diamonds shining like an X-ray through my very body. I got downstairs and was actually outside the door, almost in the street and off to you, when a girl called to me.

"Here, boy, carry this case," she said.

Do you know who it was? Oh, yes, you do, a dear old friend of mine from Philadelphia, a young lady whose taste—well, all right, I'll tell you: It was the girl with the red coat and the hat with the chinchilla fur.

How did they look? Oh, fairly well on a blonde! But to my taste the last girl I'd seen in the coat and hat was handsomer.

Well, I carried her suit-case and followed her back into the hotel. I didn't want to a bit, though that coat still—wonder how she got it back!

She sailed up the hall and into the elevator, and I had to follow. We got off at the third story, and she brought me right to the door of 331. And then I knew this must be Evelyn.

"Mrs. Kingdon's out, miss. She didn't expect you till to-morrow."

"Did she tell you that? Too bad she isn't at home! She said she'd be kept busy all day to-day with a business matter, and that I'd better not get here till to-morrow. But I—"

"Wanted to get here in time for the wedding?" I suggested, softly.

You should have seen her jump.

"Wedding! Not—"

"Mrs. Kingdon and Mr. Moriway."

She turned white.

"Has that man followed her here? Quick, tell me. Has she actually married him?"

"No—not yet. It's for five o'clock at the church on the corner."

"How do you know?" She turned on me, suddenly suspicious.

"Well—I do know. And I'm the only person in the house that does."

"I don't believe you."

She took out her key and opened the door, and I followed her in with the suit-case. But before I could get it set down on the floor she had swooped on a letter that was lying in the middle of the table, had torn it open and then with a cry had come whirling toward me.

"Where is this church? Come, help me to get to it before five and I'll—oh, you shall have anything in the world you want!"

She flew out into the hall, I after her. And first thing you know we were down in the street, around the corner, and there in front of the church was a carriage with Moriway just helping Mrs. Kingdon out.

"Mother!"

At that cry the old lady's knees seemed to crumble under her. Her poor old painted face looked out ghastly and ashamed from her wedding finery. But Evelyn in her red coat flew to her and took her in her arms as though she was a child. And like a child, Mrs. Kingdon sobbed and made excuses and begged to be forgiven.

I looked at Moriway. It was all the pay I wanted—particularly as I had those little diamonds.

"You're just in time, Miss Kingdon," he said, uneasily, "to make your mother happy by your presence at her wedding."

"I'm just in time, Mr. Moriway, to see that my mother's not made unhappy by your presence."

"Evelyn!" Mrs. Kingdon remonstrated.

"Come, Sarah." Moriway offered his arm.

The bride shook her head.

"To-morrow," she said, feebly.

Moriway breathed a swear.

Miss Kingdon laughed.

"I've come to take care of you, you silly little mother, dear. It won't be to-morrow, Mr. Moriway."

"No—not to-morrow—next week," sighed Mrs. Kingdon.

"In fact, mother's changed her mind, Mr. Moriway. She thinks it ungenerous to accept such a sacrifice from a man who might be her son—don't you, mother?"

"Well, perhaps, George—" She looked up from her daughter's shoulder—she was crying all over that precious red coat of mine—and her eyes lit on me. "Oh—you wicked boy, you told a lie!" she gasped. "You did read my letter."

I laughed; laughed out loud, it was such a bully thing to watch Moriway's face.

But that was an unlucky laugh of mine; it turned his wrath on me. He made a dive toward me. I ducked and ran. Oh, how I ran. But if he hadn't slipped on the curb he'd have had me. As he fell, though, he let out a yell.

"Stop thief! Stop thief! Thief! Thief! Thief!"

May you never hear it, Mag, behind you when you've somebody else's diamonds in your pocket. It sounds—it sounds the way the bay of the hounds must sound to the hare. It seems to fly along with the air; at the same time to be behind you, at your side, even in front of you.

PROVINCES OF VAST EXTENT

Alberta and Saskatchewan About to Be Organized by the Dominion of Canada.

F. A. Lawrence said in a recent speech in the dominion house of commons:

"We are informed that each of these provinces will comprise no less an area than 275,000 square miles. The mind of man almost fails to grasp the significance, the vastness, the greatness of the figures. We can only faintly do so by comparison, and I may be permitted to say that each of these provinces will be nearly six times as large as the great state of New York, with its population of 7,250,000; each of them will be five times as great in point of area as the large state of Illinois, with its population of 5,000,000; each will be six times as large as the large state of Pennsylvania, with a population of 6,500,000; each of them will be seven times as large as the state of Indiana, with its population of 2,500,000.

"In point of fact, each of them is larger in area than the states of Massachusetts, New York, Illinois, Iowa, Maine, Michigan, Delaware and New Jersey all combined together. Each of them is twice as large as England, Wales, Scotland and Ireland, with their immense population of 42,000,000 people; each of them is much greater than the German empire in Europe, with its population of 55,750,000; each of them is much greater than the republic of France in Europe, with its population of 39,000,000.

"By a simple comparison of that kind we are enabled to realize the immensity of the heritage which we as Canadians have in our great northwest."

FLOGGED AUTOMATICALLY.

New Machine Adopted in the Russian Army for Use on Unruly Soldiers.

The spanking machine has been used in farce comedy as a mirth provoker, but the flogging machine now adopted in the Russian army is a more complicated and serious affair, states the New York Herald.

The whipping has always been done by other soldiers under the command of an officer, and the punishment has varied according to the feeling of the soldier toward his victim.

The new machine is automatic in its action, and as soon as the culprit is fastened in position a spring is tightened or loosened to gauge the exact force of the blow. A pointer is moved over a dial to the requisite number of strokes and the mechanism is started.

With perfect regularity the victim's back is scourged by the throngs, the handle of the whip being moved by a screw device after each stroke so that the lash does not fall upon the same spot throughout the punishment.

Each blow is of uniform severity and as soon as the required number have been given the machine comes to rest, and the offender is released, with the assurance that the exact punishment ordered has been meted out to him.

HAD ALL QUALIFICATIONS.

Career for Which Young Graduate with Protruding Chin Was Eminently Fitted.

"Professor," said the young graduate with the protruding chin, "I am about to start in life and perhaps you could suggest some fitting career."

"Well, my dear sir," said the professor, relates the New York Sun, "that's a hard question. There's law, medicine, journalism, business, science—"

"But I have no liking for any of those ordinary pursuits. You see I am rather husky and powerful, but yet I dislike to use my strength in any kind of labor."

"Well, I won't suggest that you become a policeman or a pugilist, though those are the qualifications. Tell me further of your ambitions and I will advise you definitely."

"Ah," said the husky youth, "my ambition is to be a ruler of men, to hold some autocratic position, where people will bow to me respectfully and fear my power, and—and—"

"Ah, my boy, you are eminently fitted to be the janitor of a flathouse," said the professor, decisively.

UTTERS AN AWFUL THREAT

Dire Measures Threatened by Saloonkeeper When Patrons Became Disorderly.

Down on the West side there is a little beer saloon run by a little old-fashioned Irishman. The saloon proper, says the New York Sun, is about as big as a good-sized hall bedroom, and is furnished with a few tables and rickety chairs and a small stove. Nearly every night a lot of Irishmen of the neighborhood gather here to play 45 and drink mixed ale. A few nights ago there was a row over a game. They broke the tables and chairs, tipped over the stove and put the place in a bad way generally.

The proprietor took the shindy quietly for about half an hour. Then when two of the bunch were in a corner trying to pound the life out of each other he spoke up and said:

"Here, now! Ye b'ys will have to quit ye'r foolin' or I'll take the cards away from ye."

MISS FROEHLING DEAD.

Cousin of Mrs. C. F. Stout Passes Away at Her Home.

Misses Jennie Edna Froehling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julia Froehling, of Liberty Corner, died last evening at the home of her cousin, Mrs. Chauncey F. Ctout, of Madison avenue. She came to Mrs. Stout's for a visit last Sunday and was taken ill with a severe bilious attack shortly after. Her condition was serious. She rallied, however, and it was thought she was recovering but neurosis of the heart followed and resulted fatally.

Miss Froehling was in her sixteenth year and was an unusually bright young woman. She graduated from the Liberty Corner school last June, and was to have taken a post graduate course previous to entering the Trenton Normal school. She was a talented musician and was well known in Plainfield.

The funeral will be held at her parents' home Sunday afternoon at 2:30 and the interment will be at the Presbyterian cemetery, Liberty Corner.

The Hope Chapel C. E. Society led a spirited meeting at the Netherwood Camp, Tuesday night. Miss May Voorhees led the song service and Walter Firstbrook had charge of the topic.

Miss Delia Dufford, of West Second street, is spending her vacation at the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Elijah Dufford, of Middle Valley, N. J.

Emil Jahn, of Scotch Plains, will leave for Camp Nervana, conducted by Lindsey Best, a member of the P. H. S. faculty, on Monday, to remain until September 1.

Damageless Runaway.

The clatter made by falling beams and plaster scared a horse attached to one of the housewrecker's trucks into running away from in front of the buildings Aleck Kane is tearing down on Park avenue, early this morning. The runaway turned into Second street, ran to Liberty street, turned southward, and was stopped, unharmed, at St. Mary's church. The truck narrowly missed several other wagons on the run, but the runaway's luck held good.

Methodists Encounter Rain.

The Methodist excursionists had a good time at Asbury Park yesterday afternoon despite the fact that it rained all afternoon. There were no accidents.

SIX HOLIDAYS NOW FOR RURAL CARRIERS

AN ORDER ISSUED ALSO MAKES THEM PAINTERS.

An order has been issued at Washington that will gladden the hearts of all the rural free delivery carriers of the mail department all over the country. They have been given six holidays during the year.

Postmaster General Cortelyou recently issued the following order: "Ordered, That hereafter service on all rural free delivery routes be suspended on New Year's day, January 1; Washington's birthday, February 22; Memorial day, May 30; Independence day, July; first Monday in September known as Labor day, and such day as the President may set apart as Thanksgiving day in each calendar year."

The postoffice department has inaugurated a new policy in the matter of painting rural letter boxes. The rural letter carriers are now to become knights of the paint brush, and receive additional compensation for their extra work, which, by the way, will be compulsory.

There are 3,000,000 rural boxes in the country, and before the close of the summer these boxes will be resplendent in a coat of brilliant green paint, which will be furnished to the carriers by the department.

A few days ago the postmaster general asked the comptroller of the treasury if he could employ the rural letter carriers to paint the rural boxes. The comptroller decided that the postmaster general could contract with the carriers to paint the boxes, provided it does not interfere with the mail service and the men were willing to do it. The comptroller also suggested that it would be only proper to see that the work was done at a uniform price.

In a few days the letter carriers will be notified by the department that they will be allowed so much per box, the price not yet being fixed by the postmaster general, the department furnishing the paint.

No more lists of patrons on rural free delivery routes will be posted in postoffice lobbies.

Under an order issued in 1902 the postmasters at rural free delivery offices were instructed to prepare a list of all patrons of rural routes and post it in a conspicuous place for the information of compilers of directories and others desiring the addresses of such persons.

The continuance of this practice being deemed inadvisable instructions have been sent to the postmasters that the rule is no longer in force and that the lists which have been posted shall be torn down.

The postmaster has also been prohibited from furnishing information concerning mail matter except to the person addressed or his authorized agent or an authorized representative of the department, because such information as is in the possession of postmasters and other employes of the postal service as agents of the department is regarded as confidential. The names and addresses on mail matter are there for the sole purpose of enabling the department agents to effect the delivery.

In Professional Tournament.

Though he made a good showing, "Marty" O'Loughlin, the Plainfield Country Club's golf expert, failed to win a place in the professional tournament at Deal Beach yesterday. Some of the best known cracks in the country took part and he finished ahead of several old timers. Rain fell nearly all day and greatly bothered the players.

Dinner Party.

Mrs. Mary Wyckoff, of Richmond street, entertained a number of friends at dinner last night in honor of her return to this city after an absence of three years. Mrs. Wyckoff is a nurse and has been travelling about the country with a wealthy invalid woman. The dinner was followed by a card party. Twelve guests were present.

Funeral of Edward Kelly.

Funeral services over the body of Edward Kelly, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kelly, of Codington avenue, were held yesterday from St. Joseph's church. They were conducted by Rev. Father Miller and interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery. Four young boys acted as pall bearers.

Back From Fishing Trip.

Former Freeholder Andrew Lutkins and John T. Case, of the borough, returned last night rfom a fishing trip to Barnegat. Before they went the fishermen promised a barrel of fish to the North Plainfield Exempts. Nothing like a barrel was in their baggage.

POLITICAL ECONOMIST WILL WATCH SALOON ZONE EXPERIMENT, NEWARK EVENING NEWS

The Newark Evening News said editorially last night:

"The vote of the Common Council of Plainfield to establish a 'saloon zone' in that town marks the beginning of an experiment in this section of the country that will be watched with much interest not only by temperance people, but by all interested in municipal government. Only two other cities in the United States have tried the plan, which, in brief, draws a boundary line around a small section of the city and provides that no liquor licenses shall be granted to territory outside of that line. Minneapolis was the first municipality to adopt such a scheme some seventeen years ago, and five years later Atlanta, Ga., followed the example set by the flour milling metropolis. The almost universal testimony of those who have made a study of the operation of the law in question is that it has proved beneficial by decreasing the amount of liquor drunk and in reducing drunkenness and crime. Minneapolis has 351 saloons, all confined to the business section of the city, and the license fee is $1,000 per annum. Atlanta's saloons number 119, and the rate for licenses is the same as in Minneapolis.

"Plainfield is the only municipality in New Jersey that has fixed the saloon license rate at $1,000, the nearest approach to such high license being in the city of Passaic, where the rate is $501. The new saloon zone as now defined by ordinance includes the business section of Plainfield, and, with two exceptions, no licenses are to be granted in any residential district. The exceptions are in the case of old-established drinking places which have been well-conducted for many years, and the ordinance provides that those licenses shall be extinguished with the retirement from business of the present owners. In case the ordinance becomes effective by the signature of the Mayor, or is passed over his veto, as seems likely to be the outcome, Plainfield's liquor dealers will be regulated as stringently as those of any place in the country, and it will become notable in that regard. Political economists and other students of municipal conditions will devote much attention to the results of the new regulations, and there is every reason to believe that the fresh experiment in an eastern town of the character of Plainfield will either give an impetus to such regulation elsewhere or will bring about a condemnation of the whole plan."

STANDARD OIL CO.'S PROJECTED STORAGE PLANT AT HAMILTON, NEAR BOUND BROOK

The Standard Oil Company has bought three farms in the vicinity of Hamilton, seven miles west of Bound Brook on the Reading Railroad, and is negotiating for others, with a view to locating there some of the plant now at Bayonne.

The pipe lines from the oil fields run through this section, and it is understood that the company intends erecting large storage tanks at Hamilton to relieve the pressure at the Bayonne plant, and, incidentally, to reduce the likelihood of disastrous conflagrations by separating the amount of oil storage.

Wells are being driven for the water for the engines, which will be used to force the oil to the distribution point at the seaboard.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. John P. Owens, of Richmond street, is improving from a serious illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford McGee of Willow avenue, are home from their summer outing.

W. R. Cock, of East Fifth street, has returned home from a stay at Beach Haven, N. J.

Mrs. George Reighton, of West Second street, has returned from a stay at Ocean Grove.

Miss Lucy Aalholm, of Second place, has returned from a visit to friends in Asbury Park.

Miss Helen Stephens, of this place, is registered among Americans at the Paris office of the New York Herald.

Miss Mary Thompson, of Yonkers, is spending her vacation at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Thompson, of Rockview terrace.

D. J. Sisk, engineer at the Levering & Garrigues plant, has returned after a week's stay at "Gilt Edge" camp, Lake Hopatcong. He spent most of the time fishing and landed some beauties.

RAILS FOR CUBA.

500 Tons are Now at Elizabethport Docks.

That the improvements which the Central Railroad has made along the waterfront will be in time destine Elizabethport to be one of the biggest shipping centres in the East is being evidenced more and more every day. The statement that was recently made, that shipmnts would be made from the local wharves for all foreign ports in the course of a year or so has materialized already and at the Elizabethport wharves there are waiting for shipment to Cuba, thirty carloads of steel rails, 500 tons which it is said, will be loaded aboard a steamship at the Pig Iron dock in the course of a few days.

The rails are from the Carnegie Steel Works in Pittsburg and are destined for Havana where they will be used by the Havana-Matanzas railroad concern in the building of a railroad across the island. At the present time there are little or no railroad facilities in the island. The cars arrived at the old Central yards on Front street a few days ago. They were shipped direct from the Carnegie Works in Pittsburg via the C. R. R. of N. J.

Judge Strong's Successor.

The New Brunswick "Home News" says that Judge Woodbridge Strong will not be a candidate for reappointment next winter, as he has announced his desire to retire at the end of his term as county judge next April. Judge Strong is getting along in years and is entitled to retirement. It is said that one of the Middlesex District Court Judges will succeed him. Both are well-known and well-liked and both have served in the Assembly. Either Judge Hicks or Judge Lyon would be satisfactory to the majority.—Jersey City Journal.

CAPTAIN CLARK RETIRES.

Hero Who Helped Sink Spanish Fleet.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 11.—"Clark of the Oregon" retired yesterday.

The naval hero retired as a rear-admiral, but he will always be known as "Clark of the Oregon." Just as Faragut is remembered for Mobile and Sheridan for Winchester, Jackson for New Orleans and Sherman for his march to the sea, so Clark will be known for his great run with the Oregon.

He was Captain Charles E. Clark, a veteran, with a record in the navy in the Civil War that included the fight at Mobile, when in command of the Battleship Oregon. When war with Spain seemed certain it was decided to reinforce the Atlantic fleet with the Oregon.

It was 13,000 miles from the Pacific to the station to which he was ordered, and for the whole distance Clark made speed. He brought the battleship around the Horn, and from the hour he reached Southern Atlantic waters his nights were night without lights, with little sleep, and with full steam ahead and a lookout for the flag of Spain.

Without a bolt strained, able to fight for the honor of a nation that trained him for the emergency, he brought the Oregon to Sampson in time.

When Cervera made his dash from the harbor it was the Oregon and the Brooklyn that hung on like bulldogs. The battleship with the speed of a cruiser, the armor of a fort and the guns that reached, hung to the Spanish Admiral's flagship until the flag of castile was lowered.

After the war Clark was appointed to represent the navy at the coronation of King Edward, but declined.

Graduated from Annapolis as a cadet from Vermont in 1863, he was on the Ossipe in the Mobile blockade. He saw the evolution of the navy from the old windjammer with triple decks and a gun at every port to the magnificent fighting machine that he commanded at Santiago. He was one of the links of the service connecting the old navy with the new.

To the American people he will always be "Clark of the Oregon."

Exhibition of Chinese Pool.

Charles E. Blodgen, known as the world's champion exponent of Chinese pool, gave an exhibition of the game at Madden's parlor on North avenue last night. It calls for a familiarity with the cue that few men possess and Blodgen's dexterity is little short of marvellous. He afterward explained the origin of the game in detail.

Charles Englehart, of Roselle, has returned home after a visit at the home of A. J. B. Clement, of Central avenue.

FORMER MAYOR RANDOLPH OUT FOR REFORM

Appeals For Non-partisan Co-operation Against "Boss-administration."

INDEPENDENT MOVE

Inefficiency, Extravagance and Machine Domination Permeates Municipal Government, He Declares.

L. V. F. Randolph, of East Front street, president of the New York Consolidated Stock and Petroleum Exchange, former Mayor and a heavy taxpayer in this city, addresses the following self-explanatory communcation to this paper:—

Editor, The Daily Press:—

During the summer holidays our assiduouss political leaders are thoughtfully planning out and distributing public offices in advance of election day, so that the plain voter may be saved all trouble in the premises except that of confirming the selections thus made by dropping the ballot kindly prepared for him by these same philanthropic leaders.

Still, there is danger of their overlooking some public needs and requirements; and here and there doubts are even expressed as to the genuineness of the solicitude of these leaders for the public welfare.

Just now, for example "lest they forget," it is earnestly hinted that assistance should be given to these leaders in the selection of candidates by property holders and other citizens whose real interests are at stake, and that independent action may well be taken by such interested folks in such a way as to be likely to promote the public welfare—whether or not such action pleases the said past masters in politicss.

The feeling grows that Plainfield in particular needs reform—that boss administration may have been carried too far—that inefficiency and extravagance infest at least several departments of municipal administration, and that there is large room for reform even along lines of purity, morality and respectability.

Since the facts regarding the non-enforcement of the ordinances and the high cost of the present administration were brought to the attention of the public—through remarks made before the Board of Trade and otherwise—I have been repeatedly aproached by worthy citizens and taxpayers and asked to lead, or, at least, further to urge a movement for reform.

This tendency toward reform is abroad in the land. Let us be thankful for so much! The Folks, the Jeromes, the Colbys, and many others are taking ground for clean and independent government and for efficient administration. It is time that citizens of Plainfield join this procession.

Our ordinances are not enforced; our police are far from reaching a high mark of efficiency; more tax monies are expended each year, and the results are not those to which the taxpayer is entitled. The fire department and building inspection are also far from reaching a standard proportioned to their high cost; and as a recent and particular instance of waste within the last few days the council has made two considerable appropriations for the junketings of certain officers under the name of convention expenses. Precisely this same sort of unauthorizd extravagance the Governor of this State has just refused to countenance or permit. The irresponsible administration by Councilmanic committees goes on; and, of late, so arrogant has become the political tyranny of a few men claiming to control the politics of the town that they do not hesitate to state positively that certain persons who have fallen into disfavor with them shall no longer be elected to office or receive nominations. On the one hand we have amongst some of those who hold office an element of mingled inexperience and gentility not over anxious to take trouble in checking abuses or extravagance; and on the other hand we have a seasoned political expertness and an acrobatic alertness which can always be counted on to see that in every tussle "number one" is "on the top" and in readiness for the next deal or manoeuvre. Large questions await careful and intelligent attention; questions relating to the singular tax law enacted apparently under corporate influence by the last legislature; —questions as to the local monopolies with which we are afflicted— questions as to the local official appointments—questions as to taking better care of our tax monies and reducing the taxes—questions as to the improvemnt and enforcement of our ordinances. Who shall be sufficient for the these things? Evidently no such sufficiency now exists. It remains for the people to choose for office clean and capable men. How shall they find and choose them? The question is alike momentous and urgent.

I am not especially desiring to become active in political life, but I am willing to co-operate with my fellow citizens to accomplish reform; and I shall esteem it a favor if such are like-minded on this subject (to whatever party they may belong) will address me—indicating their willingness to join in an independent movemnt for the public good. It is not too late to accomplish something this year. Next year and in other years considerably more can be accomplished.

WIDOW GETS DAMAGES FROM PUBLIC SERVICE

CORPORATION LOSES CASE IN COURT OF SPECIAL SESSIONS.

Judgment has been secured in the Court of Special Sessions this week in favor of Mrs. Mary Brown, of East Third street, in her suit against the Public Service Corporation on account of the death of her husband William Brown, who was killed on Broad street, Elizabeth, August 17 a year ago.

Brown was motorman on a Plainfield-Elizabeth trolley. While changing a fender on one of the cars at the trolley station at Broad street, Brown was run into by another trolley and crushed to death. Mrs. Brown brought suit through a Newark lawyer and lost the case. She then took the matter to Coddington & Swackhamer, of this city. This was but a few weeks ago. According to law in such cases, the action must be taken within a year after the accident. The year is up on August 17, so the greatest haste had to be taken in the matter. S. S. Swackhamer filed a declaration at the Supreme Court last week, and on Wednesday a judgment in favor of the plaintiff was granted.

The amount of the judgment was not made public. The proceedings were conducted quietly, and it was not known that the case was resumed until a week ago. The trolley company was represented by John A. Bernhardt, of Elizabeth.

ANOTHER BIG CROWD.

Good Music and a Silvery Moon Draw the People.

Ideal weather conditions and a good programme brought out another record-breaking crowd at last night's band concert. Both stands were filled to their capacities and more than the usual number of people stood about.

The soloists were Eddie Weston, who gave three numbers, and the popular Bert Fitzgibbon. The latter sang "That's What the Brass Band Played," "Jasper," and with Mr. Weston, "Keep a Little Cosy Corner in Your Heart for Me." They made the usual big hits with the crowd.

For next week Bandmaster LaVere has plans in view for one of the best programmes of the year. He will again have John Leick, the cornettist; "Billy" Murray, "Billy" Redmond, "Lew" Leever and perhaps, a young woman vocalist. All will give brand new songs and will introduce novel trio and quartette effects not yet heard in this vicinity.

'PLAINS GOLD HUNTING

Village Gets the Fever Again After L. B. Coles Finds Shiney Metal.

LOCATES VEIN OF IT

Discoverer Thinks He Has Discovered the Mother Lode of Precious Metal—Find to be Assayed.

The gold fever has struck Scotch Plains again. As on the other occasions the fevered ones are certain that a rich deposit or vein is on the point of being discovered.

Louis B. Coles, who lives on the Coles homestead on Front street, near Terrill road, started the excitement. An old well caved in on his place Thursday and he started in to dig it clear. Fifteeen feet below the surface he saw grains of glittering substance in the dirt. Coles put some of the glitter specked dirt in water and the shiney particles immediately separated themselves from the dirt.

Coles took a fresh grip on his shovel and dug deeper. A few feet further down he struck a small vein of the shining material, running south across his property. Coles knocked some of the rock off and took them, with some of the dirt, to a jeweler here. The jeweler said he had strong suspicion that the substance was gold, but advised Coles to have an assay made. The samples will be sent to an assay in New York.

Without waiting for the result of the assay, the Plains people have accepted glittering particles at face value. Everybody who has had digging to do since Thursday has looked every shovelful of dirt over carefully. And those who haven't had to dig have dug just the same. Even the small boys are digging along the side of the roads.

It is known for a fact that traces of gold—undoubted traces—have been found in the Scotch Plains neighborhood, near the mountain. It is also a fact that gold—in traces—is to be found prety much all over Pennsylvania and New Jersey. Hundreds of attempts have been made to find it in paying quantities, but nothing like "pay dirt" nas ever rewarded the farmer prospectors.

But Coles thinks he has struck the mother lode under East Front street. The mother lodee of even small veins might pay to work.

ANOTHER CANDIDATE FOR THE SHRIEVALRY

G. E. VAN VOORHIS, OF ELIZABETH, THE LATEST ASPIRANT.

George E. Van Voorhis, of Elizabeth, deputy collector of internal revenue, publicly declared himself a candidate for the shrievalty nomination yesterday. He is the fifth man who has given out that he would like to succeed Sheriff Coriell.

Van Voorhis is a former member of the Elizabeth City Council, and at the present time is a member of the Republican City Central Committee.

In announcing his candidacy Mr. Van Voorhis said that the Fifth ward in which he resides, is the only Republican ward in the lower part of the city, and is therefore entitled to recognition if any of the nominations are to go to that section.

Two new names have been mentioned in connection with the assembly. Frederick J. Faulks, of Lindabury, Depue & Faulks, is being boomed by friends in the organization. Robert L. Patterson, of Elizabeth, is also mentioned prominently in connection with an assembly nomination.

Young Professional Makes Good Showing in Golf Tournament.

While Marty O'Loughlin, the professional at the Plainfield Country Club, was not an important factor as regards the distribution of prize money in the windup of the two days' professional golf tournament at Deal Beach, yesterday, his work was excellent. He was matched with Crosby, of Arsdale, who was ill, but despite this they returned a score of 81, 82—163, which was equal to some of those posted by the older professionals. Marty has performed well in every open tournament in which he has taken part and his friends predict a leading place for him in the near future. He is constantly improving his game, and a feature of his work at Deal was that he beat a number of contestants who took prizes in the professional tournament at VanCortlandt Park, recently.

TO END STREET FLOODS

Union County Freeholders Co-operating With the Common Council.

TO PROVIDE INLETS

East Seventh and Richmond Streets and Plainfield Avenue Suffer From Effect of Heavy Rains.

In connection with the improvements planned by the city to relieve the flooded condition of Richmond street during heavy rains, an ordinance which was adopted on second reading at the meeting of the Common Council Monday night, the Board of Freholders has decided to assist in the work.

Members of the Board visited the section yesterday and it was decided that by placing two large inlets, 24-28 at East Seventh and Richmond streets, one on each side of the street, that a surplus amount of water would be carried away more easily and would probably do away entirely with the flooding at that point.

These two large inlets will be placed near the bridge over Cedar Brook and will lead into the stream. In addition the city will locate a number of other inlets in Richmond street and the separate drains will all lead into the ones to be built by the freeholders.

Mr. Gavett, the street commissioner, has given considerable time and attention to this improvemnt, for the purpose of giving the residents in the vicinity of Richmond and East Sixth and Seventh streets the relief desired. In every heavy rain the streets there are entirely covered and practically impassable. With the co-operation of the freeholders the city feels sure that the proposed improvement will accomplish the desired end.

A similar condition exists in Plainfield avenue, and it will not be long before the street committee will take up this improvement. There is a large section there which needs proper drainage of surface water and larger drains will be installed. It will be only a question of time when Grant and West End avenue will have to be taken care of in the same way, and as soon as possible the committee will take it up.

New Real Estate Office.

Edward E. Nelson, of this city, will open a real estate office in the First National Bank Building on Monday.

Four rare volumes by Rolands have been purchased by S. S. Swackhamer. The books are: "Among Great Masters of Literature"; "Among Great Masters of Music,"; "Among Great Masters of Painting," and "Among Great Masters of Oratory."

YOUNG WOMAN DEAD.

Miss Theresa Haynes Succumbs to Dysentery.

Miss Theresa K. Haynes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Haynes, aged seventeen years, died last night at the Plainfield Business College, where she had been living since the college opened this year. She was ill three weeks and death was due to dysentery.

Miss Haynes prior to coming here lived at Trenton. She was graduated from the Plainfield Business College at the conclusion of the spring term and secured a position as typewriter and stenographer in the office of C. W. Spicer at his machine shop on South Second street. She was a member of the Seventh-Day Adventists church, of Trenton, and met with the local branch of that religious organization here, where she served as organist and secretary of the Sabbath-shool.

The casket will be opened at the undertaking parlors of A. M. Runyon & Son, in Park avenue, Monday morning, from 8 to 11 o'clock to give friends an opportunity to view the remains. The body will be taken to Groveville, six miles from Trenton on the 11:44 train, where a service will be held in the Adventists' church at 2:30 o'clock Monday afternoon Rev. C. H. Keslake, the pastor, will officiate, and the interment will take place in the cemetery near the church.

Miss Rachael Smalley Dead.

Miss Rachael Smalley, daughter of the late Randolph Smalley, died yesterday morning at 3 o'clock at her home in Westfield. Funeral services will be held tomorrow morning at 10:30 from the Mt. Bethel church and interment will be in the Mt. Bethel cemetery. Rev. Peter Gibbs will officiate.

Faced Recorder.

Charles Cashin, who was arrested in the borough on Thursday for being intoxicated, obtained his freedom yesterday, James Mair, of Mountain avenue, furnishing the necessary $5 bail. Last night he was given a hearing before Recorder Doud, and fined $3. He paid.

WANT $12,500 SCHOOL

Piscataway Township People to Vote on the Proposition.

BOARDS DECISION.

School Directors Hope to Receive Approval of South Plainfield by Lessening the Cost.

Another vote on the New Market school proposition, to take the place of the one thrown out as illegal by the attorney general, will be held next week. Arrangements for the meeting at which the proposition will be submitted were made by the Piscataway Board of Education at a meeting held Thursday night. This proposition will call for a building to cost not more than $12,500, which is considerably less than the cost of the building originally proposed.

The limit in the cost of the structure was decided at the meeting after a general discussion of all the aspects of the question. The original proposition awakened a bitter opposition from the South Plainfield voters, who declared that $20,000 was too much to pay for a school in New Market. They campaigned against the proposition, and the balloting was as hot as at a closely contested fight for office. It was the hard feeling engendered in the campaign that led to the protest to the State authorities, and resulted in the annulment of the proceedings.

With the reduction in the cost of the proposed building it is hoped by the board that the opposition from South Plainfield will not recur, or lessen to such an extent that the proposition will not be in danger of defeat.

The proposed structure is to have four rooms. If the proposition is passed, contracts for the building will be let immediately and the work on it will be hurried to completion. The need of a new building is keenly felt, and the New Market voters have been criticising the board for the delays that have marked the matter.

At the board meeting it was announced that James Metz, of Piscataway, had been appointed supervising principal of the New Market schools, to succeed H. S. Wilson, resigned. Mr. Metz's acceptance was received by the board last week.

WHILE CHINK SLEEPS HIS WAD IS TAKEN

BUT IT WAS NOT A WIFE THAT RIFLED HIS TROUSER POCKETS.

When Charlie Ham, a Chinese laundryman, placed his flowing trousers over the back of a chair in the little sleeping apartment beside the washroom at the back of his store on Somerset street, last night, there was between $75 and $100 in bills in one of the pockets. The bills were missing when Charlie put on the trousers this morning. An open window at the rear of the room, leading to the open ground between his back stoop and the raceway to French's Mill, and muddy footprints on the floor, explained the disappearance of the roll.

Charlie reported the theft to the police. The rear of Charlie's place is the favorite stamping ground of a half dozen shiftless, hard-drinking, jail-scarred loafers, and the suspicions of the police promptly turned in their direction.

A general round-up of the gang was ordered, and the members will be arrested on sight. The police believe they can fasten the crime on them.

Charlie says the entrance and operations of the thief or thieves did not disturb him. It is probably a good thing for him that they didn't. The raiders must have known that the chances were all in favor of Charlie's awaking, and they probably had something handy for silencing him if he stirred.

Last But Not Least.

"Last but not least" is a term that will apply to the excursion of Warren chapel to Asbury Park and Ocean Grove next Wednesday. It has been arranged with the idea of giving those who attend one of the best times of their lives as it will wind up the excursions of the summer with the exception of those on Labor Day. The train leaves the North Avenue station at 8 o'clock and returning starts for home at 6 in the evening. It will stop at Netherwood both ways.

Dr. Dickinson to Preach.

Rev. Dr. Dickinson, formerly of Orange, but now of Rochester, N. Y., will occupy the pulpit at the First Baptist church, tomorrow morning and night, also on Sunday, August 20.

WARRANTS NOT SERVED

W. R. Stanbery and Oscar Harrison Not Molested by Constable.

BOTH WITHIN REACH.

Harrison Seen on Front Street and Stanbery on Park Avenue—Civil Hearing Set For Monday Morning.

Neither of the warrants for manslaughter against William R. Staanberry and Oscar Harrison have yet been served. Constable Pierce of New Market, has both papers. They were issued four days ago.

Prosecutor Berdine, of Middlesex county, has become interested in the criminal actions. He was expected in the city yesterday, but it was impossible to learn this morning whether or not he did come. He is watching the progress of the legal duel closely, because his office was engaged in an investigation designed to fix the responsibility for the fatality when the charge and counter charge were made. The prosecutor's investigation is entirely apart from any line that the lawyers privately retained may follow, and the Middlesex authorities may step into the case at any minute and give one or the other of the lawyers a fresh complication to work over.

Nobody but the lawyers and the constables knows why the warrants have not been saved. Justice Von Minden, before whom the Stanberry warrant was sworn, says he cannot understand the delay. Stanberry was seen by a reporter on Park avenue this morning, and he did not appear to be worried over the prospect of a sudden descent by an officer of the law.

Harrison, up to last night, was generally supposed to have left the State. A lawyer who knows him told F. J. Huff, counsel for W. A. Westphal, who swore out a warrant against the runabout driver, that Harrison passed him on Front street the night before.

Mr. Huff says he is indignant over the delay in serving the warrant.

"I cannot understand why that warrant has not been served," he said to a Daily Press reporter. "There is something queer in this thing."

Th warrants against Harrison and Stanberry hold them open to arrest at the hands of any officer or citizen of the State who may know them by sight well enough to be sure he has the right man.

Under the law a man charged with manslaughter may be arrested by anybody anywhere in the State.

If the civil suit which Harrison has brought against Stanberry in Justice Von Minden's court for $200 comes to a trial Monday morning, the date the hearing is set for, the warrants will probably be served then. The suit could hardly be carried on without the presence and testimony of the principals, and if they appear in court they will have to confront Constable Pierce, because he is in charge of the jury that is to try the suit.

The hearing is set for 10 o'clock in the morning. Counsellor S. S. Swackhamer, the defendant's lawyer, announced this morning that he would have Herbert Knight, of Newark, stenographer to the Supreme Court, at the trial to take down all the testimony. The hearing promises to be an unusually interesting one.

HOPE CHAPEL'S DAY.

West End Presbyterians go to the Shore Under Darkened Skies.

Thirteen carloads of pleasure-seekers went on the Hope chapel excursion to Asbury Park this morning. The weather man had promised occasional showers and the skies were as glum as the morning after, but the excursionists were optimistic and refused to be in the least cast down. They thought of the occasional sunshine between the showers and gave no thought at all to the petulance displayed by the weather man who is a sour old man and hates excursionists.

Most of the passengers boarded the train at the Grant avenue station, from where the cars started at 7:55 o'clock. Between 200 and 300 people boarded the train at North avenue. It pulled out from there at 8:10.

The committee in charge of the excursion consists of I. W. Travell, chairman; John H. Cose, Thomas Muir, David Bowden, Mr. and Mrs Donald McInnes, Walter Bradford, Mrs. Henry Hoffman, Mrs. Johnson Miss Anna Smith, Miss Agnes Muir James Penny, Benjamin Evans and Charles Vincent.

The return trip from the shore will start at 8 o'clock p. m.

In Visitors' Honor.

The Misses Madeline and Margaret Debele, of Pine Grove farm, gave a party last night in honor of their guests, Miss Carrie Howe, of Jersey City; Miss Jessie Heine, of Hoboken, and Charles Wiggans, of Newark.

R. A. RATES REPUDIATED

New Jersey Grand Council Declares Increase in Insurance Wrong.

A HEATED DISCUSSION

Clash Between Preamble and Resolutions May Cause Some Trouble —Plainfield Councils Represented.

Representatives to the New Jersey Grand Council of the Royal Arcanum in special session at New Brunswick decided last night by an overwhelming vote to repudiate the action of the Supreme Council in raising the rates of insurance in the order.

Clarence Goss, regent of Plainfield Council, No. 711, was present. Greenbrook Council was also represented.

This action was unqualified and no substitute solution of the plan was suggested. The result was arrived at shortly before 7 o'clock, after scenes of disorder and heated discussion. It was a complete surprise even to the side which won, for it had been expected that there would be an evening session and perhaps another session today.

The committee on resolutions composed of Col. E. C. Stahl, of Trenton; J. N. Van Benthuysen, Bayonne; L. P. Nettleton, Hoboken; O. W. Mark, Arlington; W. G. Nelson, Jersey City; B. C. Austen, Camden, and Rev. W. T. Dorward, Stelton, presented three reports. There was a majority report signed by five members, a minority report from Col. E. C. Stahl, and a minority report from Rev. W. T. Dorward.

Mr. Dorward's resolution indorsed the action of the Supreme Council. This was briefly discussed, but it was voted down.

Col. Stahl's resolutions suggested that the action of the Supreme Council be held in abeyance, pending the discovery of some more suitable plan. This was discussed for nearly an hour, but is was defeated as a substitute for the majority report.

The majority report comprised three resolutions with a preamble submitted by Germania Council, of Hoboken. The first resolution was submitted by Bayonne Council and the two others were submitted by Frederick Cahs, of East Orange.

The preamble and resolutions were contradictory in that the preamble called for a readjustment of the rates while the resolutions instructed the State's representatives to the Supreme Council to demand and work for a repeal of the Supreme Council's new schedule of rates.

The discussion was most earnest. Supreme Council Representative McDowell wanted to know what the representatives were to say when the resolutions asked for the repeal of rates without suggesting some substitue. He was howled down. The preamble and resolutions then were passed.

The action of the council is the more surprising in view of the fact that the grand officers were in favor of the action of the Supreme Council, and the address of the Grand Regent was an ardent plea in favor of an increase of rates.

One of the members of the Grand Council declared in debate that the action in adopting a preamble so contradictory to the resolutions which followed it was little short of ridiculous.

The council adjourned immediatly after adopting the resolutions.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Gyp, the trick dog owned by Arthur Vail, had an exceedingly narraw escape from being ground under the wheels of a trolley car yesterday afternoon. The dog darted under the front end of a slowly moving car after a ball he was chasing. The car started ahead suddenly and Gyp in some way was jammed on top of the axle. He hung on, amid the excited shrieks of several children and the horrified exclamations of the grown-up onlookers, until the motorman stopped the car a half block beyond. Then Gyp dropped off and scampered out. He was unhurt, but his coat was a sight. It fairly dripped car grease. George Apgar, who cares for Gyp when Vail isn't around, had a job scraping the dog into a semblance of cleanliness.

An automobile touring car was stopped on North avenue by a puncturned tire yesterday. A nail from a small box lying in the roadway punctured the tube and the tire collapsed with a noise like a small cannon. Automobilists say that North avenue is the worst bit of roadway for minor accidents in the whole stretch between Somerville and Newark.

Fagley, the Watchungs' third baseman, will probably go back into the Brooklyn Nationals' uniform in two weeks. He had a talk with Manager Hanlon, of the Brooklyn team, yesterday, and the baseball chief told him to hold himself in readiness to report within two weeks. He will cover third sack, his regular position.

Rev. R. F. Young, of Thiells, N Y., will occupy the Methodist pulpit tomorrow. Next Sunday Rev. B. F Brocroft, of Asbury, will preach Rev. Mr. Doolittle, the pastor, is a Mt. Tabor.

Several improvements have been made to Charles Tappan's house on North avenue. New shingling has been put on, and a new fence and additions to the porch are to be built.

Work on the foundation of Bernard Siriski's new building on North avenue was begun yesterday. The base is to be concrete and the other sections of brick.

Rapid progress is being made with the construction of the Sanford loop building. A tarred paper roofing was put on yesterday.

W. N. Dunham, of the borough, is the engineer in charge of the Hope chapel, Plainfield, excursion to Asbury Park today.

William Giddes was among the spectators at the New York-Chicago game in American League Park, New York, Thursday.

The resurfacing, grading and macadamizing of Washington avenue has been completed by Contractor Huff.

Frazee Laing suffered a slight stroke of paralysis yesterday. Dr Brakeley attended him.

LeRoy Jennings has entered on a position in the freight claim office of the Central railroad.

Eugene Runyon is building a new house on his South side property.

The trees around Stanley Day's house have been thinned out.

Edgar Starker has resigned his position with Apgar Brothers.

James Sheenan has secured a position in the brickyard.

Valentine McLaughlin was on the sick list yesterday.

Edward Starker has returned from a stay in Newark.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD

The trial of the three Plainfielders charged with being drunk and disorderly two weeks ago, was adjourned last night until Friday night of next week, owing to the illness of Counsellor George Ball, who will defend the trio.

There is a lull today in the Westfield-Plainfield series for the county championship. The Daubsters are playing the All Cubans, while Manager Denman is shattering Rahway's hopes for a look-in at the champion ship.

Services tomorrow at the Baptist church will be as usual: Sunday-school, 9:30 a. m.; morning preaching by pastor, Rev. T. Moore-Smith 10:45; B. Y. P. U. meeting, 7:15 p. m.; evening sermon, 7:45.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard P. Robison, who have been visiting Mr. Robison's parents, Freeholder and Mrs. John Robison, of Forest avenue, have returned to their home in New York.

Past Regent J. Edward Ruth was the representative from Fanwood Council, R. A., at the Grand Council meeting held at New Brunswick yesterday.

A number of the friends of Hope chapel here are attending the chapel's annual excursion to Asbury Park and Ocean Grove today.

Miss Kate Munroe, of Washington street, spent Friday with Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Munroe of Park avenue.

Roger Haskard, of Boston, Mass., is visiting his mother, Mrs. John R. Haskard, of Grand street.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Meyers have returned from a visit with friends in New York.

Rev. Mr. Richards will lead the weekly prayer meeting at the Methodist church tonight.

Fully fifty lovers of music from here attend the Friday night band concerts regularly.

Miss Elsie Long, of Murray Hill, has been visiting Miss Annie Ryno of Park avenue.

The Misses Florence and Nancy Wade have returned from a stay at Asbury Park.

Miss Minerva Squier, of Rahway was the guest yesterday of Miss Susie Parse.

AMUSEMENTS.

Waldo Lewis, the soldier, who originated the Boer War spectacle now at Brighton Beach, is an unique figure in the snow world. His successful reproduction of the decisive battles in the South African war will be followed soon by a spectacle of still greater magnitude. His rise from a trooper in a regiment of irregular Canadian cavalry to a magnate of the show business in a comparatively short time won for him the confidence of those whose assistance he requires for the new project which is now being planned. Captain Lewis succeeded where others failed to secure the services of the Boer War heroes who now enact the battles in which they took part five years ago. Botn armies scoffed at his proposals to present a war spectacle to the American people. The British thought the Boers might entertain the proposition but were almost positive in their assertion that Tommy Atkins would never consent to take part in the lesson to humanity who little know of the real vicissitudes of war and who calmly read of events in the Far East with admiration for the victor and perhaps pity for the dead and wounded but with no conception of the suffering of the fatherless, childless and homeless.

NATION'S WHISKY SUPPLY.

Almost all the Kentucky distilleries have closed for the season, and will likely not reopen until December or January, unless the public thirst develops unusual proportions. There are, according to authoritative figures given, more bonded goods in the warehouses, both in this State and elsewhere, than in many years. On April 30 of this year the following amounts of whisky were in bond: Kentucky, 118,606,933 gallons; Pennsylvania, 36,910,370 gallons of rye whiskies, and Maryland, 20,150,854 gallons of rye. There need be, therefore, no apprehensions regarding the distillers' ability to provide material for all the juleps, punches and other life-savers that may be desired. On the other hand, the assurance is given that the distillery men have no cause for fear, as the population of America is growing so rapidly that they are able to cope with any amount of whisky that the stills of the country may produce. Only two distilleries are now running in Jefferson county.—Louisville Herald.

An Ancient Indian Observatory.

At Jeypore, the pleasant, healthy capital of one of the most prosperous independent states of Rajputana, India, is the famous Jautra, or observatory, the largest of the five built by the celebrated royal astronomer, Jey Sing, the founder of Jeypore, who succeeded the Rajas of Amber in 1693. Chosen by Muhammad Shah to reform the calendar, his astronomical observations were formulated in tables which corrected those of De la Hire. He built five observatories—at Delhi, Benares, Muttra, Ujjain, and Jeypore. It is not under cover, but is an open court yard, full of curious and fantastic instruments invented and designed by him. They have been allowed to go out of repair and many of them are now quite useless, it being impossible even to guess what purpose they served in the wonderfully accurate calculations and observations of their inventor; but the dial, gnomons quadrants, etc., still remain of great interest to astronomers.—Scientific American.

Forty Good Stories.

Do you like to hear a good story? The New York Sunday World offered prizes for the best short stories World readers had heard. Forty of the best of them are published in next Sunday's World, and every one of the forty is well worth reading. There is also a good Sherlock Holmes story and O. Henry story, not to mention several timely vacation features.

Mrs. Fred J. Dixon, of West Fifth street, has returned from a two weeks' stay at Asbury Park.

Mrs. Isaac P. Runyon, of Somerset street, has gone to Pluckemin to spend her outing with relatives.

Is it Right?

Is it right that a property owner should lose $4.20 to let a dealer make 50 cents? A dealer makes 50 cents more on fourteen gallons of ready-for-use paint, at $1.80 per gallon, than our agent does on eight gallons of L. & M. Paint and six gallons of linseed oil, which makes fourteen gallons of the best paint in the world, at $1.20 per gallon; the property owner loses just $4.20. Is it right?

It only requires 4 gallons of L. & M. and 3 gallons linseed oil to paint a moderate sized house.

HE NEVER BLAMED THE BOOZE.

He took a bottle up to bed,
Drank whiskey hot each night,
Drank cocktails in the morning,
But never could get tight.
He shivered in the evening,
And always had the blues,
Until he took a bowl or two—
But he never blamed the booze.

His joints were full of rheumatiz.
His appetite was slack;
He had pains between his shoulders,
Chills ran down his back.
He suffered with insomnia,
At night he couldn't snooze,
He said it was the climate—
But he never blamed the booze.

His constitution was run down,
At least, that's what he said;
His legs were swelled each morning,
And he often had swelled head.
He tackled beer, wine, whiskey,
And if they didn't fuse,
He blamed it to dyspepsia—
But he never blamed the booze.

He said he couldn't sleep at night,
And always had bad dreams;
He claimed he always laid awake
Till early sunrise beams.
He thought it was malaria,
Alas; 'twas but a ruse;
He blamed it onto everything—
But he never blamed the booze.

His liver needed scraping,
And his kidneys had the gout;
He swallowed lots of bitters
Till at last he cleaned them out.
His legs were swelled with dropsy
Till he had to cut his shoes;
He blamed it on the doctor—
But he never blamed the booze.

Then he had the tremens,
And he tackled rats and snakes,
First he had the fever,
Then he had the shakes.
At last he had a funeral,
And the mourners had the blues.
And the epitaph carved for him was
"He never blamed the booze."

5,000 YEARS LIFE OF NIAGARA FALLS

POWER GRABBERS PERFORMING MIRACLES IN ENGINEERING.

Man in his attempts to harness Niagara would fail utterly if he imitated the slow processes by which nature is causing a recession of the great cataract. These are at the rate of five inches a century for every one hundred miles of the lake region which supplies the volume of water that rushes over the precipice at the rate of 222,000 cubic feet per second.

Geologists say that at the present rate of recession the falls will disappear in from 3,500 to 5;000 years. As even the shortest of these periods is a hundred generations ahead, we who now cherish Niagara as the grandest of out national spectacles, need borrow no trouble about its passing from human sight and ken.

Before that remote period, "the great globe itself and all who inherit it" may have dissolved. The worry of the present generation in regard to Niagara must be the future devastations of the great power companies, five of which, American and Canadian, are now organized, while scores of others are clamoring for legislative franchises.

The miracles being wrought at Niagara by engineering and electricity are almost past belief. They have made this famous spot the engineering centre of the world, the Mecca of throngs of visitors who come in the interests of science or are led by curiosity to explore the victories man is achieving over the giant forces of nature.

One among many of these triumphs is a tunnel 158 feet below the Niagara River, 1,935 feet in length and so wide that a coach and four can pass through it. These many feats of subterranean engineering, bold in conception and wonderful in execution are explained learnedly and at length in the Review of Reviews.

Niagara harnessed as the servant of man will place at his disposal 180,000 horsepower, furnish electric light plants for distant cities, prope' railways, turn the wheels of factories near and far, and keep in motion many industries, some of which are now in successful operation.

As its volume of water is one hundred million tons an hour, the canals tunnels, conduits and other engineering miracles already completed have had no perceptible effect on the cataract. But the would-be power grabbers are many, and if their ambitious schemes were carried out, even this colossal force would at last give way.

In order to prevent this calamity the people, both of the United States and Canada, are protesting against the granting of further franchises.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

The Southern restaurant, on Madison avenue, has a fine 25c. dinner. Stop and try it some time.

If the recent rain has caused your roof to leak it is high time you saw J. J. Leahy, the Richmond street plumber.

The freshest fruit of all kinds and hot roasted peanuts have always pleased Alex. Lusardi's customers. They will please you also.

You cannot beat the large assortment of new spring shirts, which O. M. Dunham carries. Drop in and look over his line of goods.

When you contemplate buying a horse, whether for driving or truck use, you'll find it at Jackson's sale stables. They'll treat you right.

H. Solomon, the Somerset street tailor, is having a special sale for the month of suits. A great reduction has been made in all goods.

A. Bohren, Greenbrook road, is one of the few dealers in this vicinity who sells Breidt's Brown Stout for medicinal purposes. If you are suffering, try it.

Belts at twenty-five cents and hose at fifty for women and children, are specials at Putnam & DeGraw's this week. Everything is first-class and reasonable there.

When you happen to spot up your clothes or they begin to look dusty and wrinkled, call up G. O. Keller and tell him to call for your suit to be cleaned and pressed.

Timbo, restaurateur, caters to the inner man and in such a way that your pocket is bored in the least possible manner. The best food for the least amount of money.

One of the best places in the city to procure bicycles, sporting goods and musical instruments is at S. Frucht's store on West Front street. A big stock always on hand.

J. C. Hansen has as an attractive a line of new 1905 wall papers as there is on the market. Then he only hires first-class paper-hangers. Consider him when you're ready.

W. W. Dunn, the Park grocer, solicits a share of your trade. He is confident that once he fills an order for you that you will be prefectly satisfied and continue with him.

For everything in the hardware line the place to call is Worth & Marsh's place on Somerset street. They carry farm and garden implements, cutlery, seeds and household goods.

While packing up for your vacation trip don't neglect to take along some of those fashionable wash ties that James R. Blair is showing. They are just the thing for summer wear; cool, showy and stylish and yet not costly.

In the many years that they have been in business in Plainfield, Smalley Brothers, of North avenue, have never failed to give satisfaction. They know how to buy at wholesale in order to give their customers the benefit of good meats at low prices.

During this warm weather we hear nothing but the cry "Oh, how hot it is." This could all be avoided if you would stop in Randolph's and drink one of his cooling concoctions. Try one of his many good drinks. Macedon sundae or anansia.

Shirley & Johnson, in the corner store of the Babcock building, will discuss carpets, mattings and awnings with you at any time. They deal in all three; also rugs and curtains and can give you bargains not to be had in the metropolis. A visit to their establishment is sure to repay you.

The Historic Hudson.

The Hudson River has a renowned reputation in more ways than one. Its business interests are more widely known than any other stream, while for excursions and outings it has no equal. There are sights galore—the palisades—the U. S. Military Academy at West Point—the far famed State Prison at Sing Sing and interesting Newburg. The scenery in every direction is superb and the steamers which convey the excursionists are commodious and comfortable. On August 17, 1905, the New Jersey Central is going to run one of its popular low-rate excursions up the Hudson, the rate for the round trip to be $1, children, 50 cents, and special train leaving Plainfield at 8:46 a. m., will connect at Jersey City station with famous steamer "St. Johns" for the trip. Don't forget date or train time. 8 11 td

Lake Excursion.

The beauty spot of New Jersey is Lake Hopatcong and one who visits the place is charmed with the diversified entertainment afforded. The surroundings are delightful in every respect and a day spent in the rarified mountain air of the Jersey foothills will do wonders for the tourist. There are ample facilities for fishing and boating and one who enjoys the rambles in wooded paths and the quietness of the natural pines, to him Lake Hopatcong is the gem of places. On August 13, 1905, the New Jersey Central is going to run one of its famous low priced and popular excursions to the Lake. Round trip $1, and special train leaves Plainfield at 9:20 a .m.

A MOSQUITOLESS STATE

New Jersey is Now Aspiring For the Title.

Professor John B. Smith, the state entomologist, has been studying the condition of the mosquito crops in this and seashore vicinities during the summer. Speaking of the matter and commenting on the two chief reasons for the scarcity of the pests—the character of the season and the meadow drainage, Mr. Smith said:

"The general scarcity of mosquitoes along shore has been quite generally commented upon in the press, and while in some cases the tendency seems to be to credit the work done by the State with this satisfactory condition, in others the character of the season is made responsible. It is quite as important that undue credit should not be given for a favorable showing as that the importance of what has been really accomplished should be recognized. Undeserved praise is bound to be followed by blame as undeserved when changed conditions bring changed results. Hence a few words of explanation may not be out of place.

"The spring of 1905 started dry and all the salt marshes along shore drained to a lower point than they reached at any time during the season of 1904. A spring tide in May flooded the marshes, and, helped by a little rain, filled all available depressions and favored the hatching of mosquito eggs so that in a few days millions of wrigglers were present. On the Newark marshes the water drained off rapidly in most places, the pools disappeared and with them the wrigglers; even in the Ebeling tract the work of the special inspector appointed by the board of health, assisted by Mr. Behme, cleared out all the danger spots and practically no adults merged from the entire brood.

"The drainage scheme worked perfectly. But on the marsh areas to the south and east matters were different and millions of mosquitoes emerged. From these sources Newark received a scant supply of migrants, and some even came from Staten Island. But at no time was there any approach to the condition found in May, 1904, nor were matters anywhere nearly as bad as at other points. This first brood laid its eggs on the marsh, scattered and gradually disappeared. Then came the long dry spell, which gradually evaporated all the surface pools on the marshes and left the ground in such condition that such rains as fell were completely absorbed. The same condition prevented the formation of surface pools and the activity of the board of health abated many stagnant areas that in past seasons bred local and malarial species. The park commissioners aided by dealing with the catch basins and broods were killed off by oil before they had any chance to mature. I feel safe in saying that up to this time not a mosquito developed anywhere within the Branch Brook park. Collections were made at short intervals, and almost without exception the specimens were salt marsh migrants from meadows to the south.

"July 30 the very heavy downpour of rain was accompanied by a storm tide which flooded the marshes, and within twenty-four hours Mr. Behme was investigating conditions. At Newark the area was already dry in most places, young wrigglers were found in some of the deeper pools, required longer to drain; but in forty-eight hours there was not a single lava remaining except at the Ebeling tract. Here Mr. Erhardt, from the board of health, was at work opening way for the water to get out, and again the whole area is free. Elizabeth began work on her marsh lands after the first brood was out and has cut close to 100,000 feet of machine ditches on one of the worst breeding sections. That area also is now safe; but there is, unfortunately, another large section on which a heavy brood is now in the larval stage. They are due to mature by the end of the current week, and next week there will be a flight, which may or may not reach well into Newark.

"Nothing has been done on the Linden or Rahway marshes as yet, and nothing on Staten Island. The Staten Island marshes have an appropriation of $17,000 and work will probably begun before many weeks. On the east a large portion of the Kearny marshes have been filled, but the eastern section carries a good series of breeding pools. The output from these however, is more likely to reach Jersey City and to extend north along the line of the Hackensack. Examinations have not yet extended further; but, while some salt marsh specimens will almost certainly come in from the south next week, they will be nothing like the heavy swarms of a year ago. The heavy rains have also filled pools in the low lots in the city and there is also a chance for local breeding in any old tubs, pails or other receptables. House mosquitoes are, therefore, likely to increase, and as against these householders should be on the lookout. A single neglected tub will develop specimens enough to infest a square.

"As to the balance of the season it is impossible to predict; but there is yet time for two heavy shore broods."

S. C. Mundy, of the borough, returned yesterday from a two weeks' stay at Asbury Park.

The Ancient Kettle

The great kettle of our grandmothers', boiling and bubbling over the hearth, was picturesque, but the modern Gas Water Heater is comfortable. The old way meant a long wait for hot water, ashes, smoke, an over-heated room, and a kettle black with soot to clean. The new way insures hot water speedily, no ashes, no smoke, a cool house, and no extra scouring. We sell heaters for $8.50, and connect them free.

FOREST CULTIVATION.

State Geologist Says the Work Can Be Made Profitable.

Trenton, Aug. 12.—State Geologist Kummel, of the State Forestry Commission, said yesterday that the commission had received many propositions for the sale of woods. The commission had made no purchase, and would not make any until all offers were in.

He said the commission would endeavor to show what could be done by forest cultivation, and added:

"It is believed that such cultivation can be made decidedly profitable, especially in those parts of the State where the lands cannot be profitably employed in agriculture. Forty-six per cent. of the area of New Jersey is in forests, and there are hundreds of thousands of acres of these lands in South Jersey and in the mountains of Sussex and other northern counties where nothing else can be grown. They have not heretofore been developed to anything like their possible resources as forest growing areas, because of want of knowledge and the yearly ravages of the forest fires.

"Forest preservation and cultivation by the State, it is believed, will overcome these adverse factors."

An Idyl of Summer Pleasure Travel.

Tourists declare that the most charming inland water trip on the American continent is the Hudson river by daylight. It is the favorite connecting link for travelers between New York and scenic America, including the Catskills, Saratoga, the Adirondacks, Niagara Falls, the Thousand Islands and the St. Lawrance river. But the general public, that great mass of thrifty citizens who cannot afford extended pleasure at mountain resorts have put the Hudson River by Daylight Route to another use. They find in the trip a delightful day's outing. It gives them an opportunity to see West Point, Newburgh and Poughkeepsie as well as other old places. The cuisine is superior, a la carte and table d'hote both being specialities, and for a full course dinner the nominal charge of one dollar is made. From the broad decks of the palatial steamers, which glide majestically through the waters of the Hudson, can be seen historic points made famous by the Nation's greatest men in times of war and peace. Both the "New York" and the "Albany" are modern in every respect. They cannot sink. They cannot burn. And while you enjoy the cool breezes and charming scenery you find additional pleasure in the concerts given twice daily.

Mrs. William M. Walsh and children are staying at Cape Cod.

—On Monday, Sterling's Big Uncle Tom's Cabin Co. will exhibit on the Darrow avenue grounds. Watch for the big parade at noon.

Plainfield, N. J., August 12, 1905.

Answering the challenge of Mayor Lentz, Assemblyman Colby declares that an Essex county leader attempted to pursuade him to kill one of his bills in the interest of a corporation and failing in this "reached" members of the Legislature. They "were seen," according to Mr. Colby, and and bill was killed. The Essex county reformer does not charge that they were bribed, but leaves that as the logical deduction. Accusations of this kind are hard to prove in courts of law. Testimony which would be accepted by the average man is not admissable for such purposes. As a consequence the value of the statement depends upon the character of the man who makes it together with the possible objects he has in making it. That is the way in all cases and the Legislature is no exception.

THE POLITICAL TIPSTER.

Storm clouds gather.

Former Mayor Randolph cannot be accused of hiding behind a bush.

What's become of Well-well-well Tune Mellick, the mayor of Pluckemin?

The story that the Plainfield Democracy was dead proved to be a false alarm. It was only "playing possum." Municipal ownership is its slogan for the fall campaign.

"Col." Frank Randolph has gone to Asbury Park. He assured the Tipster before leaving the town of saloon quarantine that his visit had nothing to do with the fight on at Asbury for high license.

One of the attractions at the opening of the Plainfield theatre on August 24 will be Col. Joseph Frelinghuysen. Look for him in a front seat flanked on either side by friends from North Plainfield.

Assemblyman Swackhamer, "the tall sycamore of Somerset county" has purchased a collection of books on oratory, painting, music and literature. No mention is made of joke books or "Lincoln Said."

Plainfield claims the credit of having the most modest public official in the State in the person of the conscientious Street Commissioner Gavett. A year ago the Common Council as a matter of duty offered to raise his salary to $2,500 a year but he stubbornly refused to accept it. Can you beat that?

The Cranford Citizen comes out strongly against Dr. Lawrence for sheriff and Judge Runyon for senator. Its candidate for the shrievalty is Freeholder Emmor K. Adams. To help along its cause the Citizen digs up the political rebellion of two years ago, showing that Plainfield and Summit were the renegades.

A number of candidates have been slated for the chairmanship of the County Board this year. It is probable that, for the first time in fifteen years, the chairman will be a Republican. William Eckerson, who has been chairman during most of that time, was not elected last fall. Among the candidates named are Assessors J. O. Hubbard, of Plainfield; W. A. Mulford, of Roselle; and C. C. Pollard and Theodore C. English, of Elizabeth.

NO CROSS-STATE TROLLEY.

Line from Jersey City to Shore Resorts May Be Substituted.

During a hearing before the Elizabeth Common Council, upon an application made by the Public Service Corporation for a franchise to run a line rfom that city to Rahway, Vice President A. B. Carlton of the company intimated that the cross-state trolley line from Jersey City to Trenton would probably be abandoned.

In its stead the company contemplates running a through line from Jersey City by way of Newark, Elizabeth, Rahway, Perth Amboy and South Amboy to Long Branch, Asbury Park and other shore resorts.

A LOCAL PAPER IN 1838

Some Items of Interest in Copy of "Plainfield Union" 67 Years Ago.

M. F. CUSHING, EDITOR

Contains Message of Martin Van Buren, Then President, and Some Queer Advertisements.

A copy of the Plainfield Union almost black with age, and dated Tuesday, December 11, 1838, has found its way to the office of the Elizabeth Journal. It was once the property of Miss Mary W. Drake, whose father, Ezra Drake, was a former Plainfielder, and a subscriber.

The Union prints the eight column message of President Martin Van Buren, which reached New York in ten hours and fifteen minutes after it was delivered in Congress. The cash in the national treasury was then only $314,068, according to the message, and the revenues amounted to $4,262,145. There were 12,533 postoffices in the whole country.

A few advertisements are printed, including one of the New Jersey Railroad and Transportation Company. The fare from Jersey City to Newark was 37½ cents; to Rahway, 50 cents; to New Brunswick, 75 cents. Passengers who received tickets at the ticket office received a "ferry ticket gratis." There is no mention made of trains running further than New Brunswick. Two were run each day. "Newark night line, leaves every night except Sunday. Fare on the night line, 37½ cents."

Jonathan Osborn, Jr., was sheriff of Essex county and Jacob O. Drake was surrogate. Ezra Fairchild conducted the Green Brook Family School, and the long advertisement calling attention to that institution, said, among other things:

"Much solicitude is felt, and ample provisions are made, to secure, as far as possible, the health, comfort and safety as well as the intellectual and moral culture of every pupil during the hours of school, recreation and rest. The sacred Scriptures are received as the only standard of morals; and religious instruction is given without inculcating the peculiar doctrines of any one class of men."

A Rahway advertisement contained information to the effect that Joseph S. Freeman "respectfully informs the public that the Rahway boats, consisting of three good substantial vessels are now in operation, running daily to and from New York. Mechanic, Captain Wilsey; LaFayette, Captain Vanpelt; New Jersey, Captain Stansbery."

"N. B. Persons are requested to direct the goods in New York to 'Freeman's,' or the 'Old Line,' as there is another line established at Bricktown, some distance down the river."

Zachariah Webster had houses to rent in Plainfield and Scotch Plains. Craig & Shotwell sold wines, brandy, gin, rum, etc., for medicinal purposes only, and Samuel S. Pound sold sperm candles, wrapping yarn, winter-strained oil, etc.

Mr. Cushing announced that "All temperance, political and religious notices will be inserted at half the price of common advertisements."

At the head of the editorial column of the Union is a declaration of Jefferson: "For I have sworn upon the altar of God, eternal hostility against every form of tyranny over the mind of man."

On November 25, 1838, a few days before the issue of the Union, the steamboat, Gen. Brown, was blown up on the Mississippi, just below Memphis, in Arkansas. From forty to sixty lives were lost.

One marriage notice was printed. It was that of Henry Garretson, of Hillsborough, to Jane Field, daughter of Richard Field, of Bound Brook. The following deaths were published:

"In New York on the 27th ult., Mr. Jos. P. Tooker, in the 46th year of his age, formerly an enterprising merchant of Rahway. His remains were brought to Elizabeth Town on Thursday and interred in the Episcopal churchyard in that town.

"Also in New York, on the 30th ult., Mrs. Rebecca Edgar, widow of David Edgar, formerly of Woodbridge, N. J. aged 68 years."

The Union which was edited and published by Milton F. Cushing, was distributed in the vicinity of Plainfield by Mr. Cushing, who took the weekly edition in his own private conveyance. He made quick time over the mountains, and had no complaints in regards to newsboys. Some of the subscribers received the paper when it was two or three days old.

Middlesex Freeholders' Last Outing.

New Brunswick, Aug. 12—For many years the annual outing of the Board of Freeholders has been a pleasant institution, but the board has been legislated out of office, and on January 1 next year will be succeeded by a commission of five members. So the excursion held Thursday to Coney Island was the last excursion the freeholders will conduct. The occasion was signalized by the presentation to Director Asbury Fountain of a souvenir badge, the presentation being made by Theodore B. Booraem, the Republican city attorney of New Brunswick.

Mrs. Winfield S. Schomp, of West Front street, is spending a few weeks at Asbury Park.

BALL AND CHAIN ORDINANCE.

Warren Freeholders Pass Measure to Lessen Number of Criminals.

Belvidere Aug. 12—Warren Board of Freeholders passed an important ordinance before adjournment here Thursday night which promises to lessen the number of criminals and the amount of expense to the county in the future. The ordinance directs that the county is to furnish ball and chain and employ guards, as well as food and clothing, to compel lawbreakers, wife-beaters and others such as have filled the county jail during the past ten years, to work on the streets of Phillipsburg, Washington, Belvidere, Hackettstown, Blairstown and other parts of the country where it is deemed necessary.

The ordinance is presented by Messrs. Kenney, of Phillipsburg; Thatcher, of Washington; Hoagland, of Blairstown; McClellan, of Hackettstown, and Lair, of Belvidere. Mr Kenney, of Phillipsburg, who was the prime mover of the ordinance, stated yesterday that the measure is very necessary from the fact that one-quarter to one-half the bills paid by the county for jailing the outlaws, including fees of justices, constables and sheriffs, have been increasing until the amount reached $800 at this quarter. He added that in other parts of the State, where the ball and chain method is in effect, it has proved a remedy to rid the districts of the outlaws, and the money spent to keep them in jail is now being used to improve the public roads.

It is learned from the leading members of the Board of Freeholders that Phillipsburg has furnished a majority of such prisoners in the county, and many of them have become a permanent expense to the county by being repeatedly sentenced to the county jail each year. The freeholders now urge the co-operation of the town authorities to enforce the ball and chain ordinance.

Tom Butler's Violent End.

Thomas Butler, the bicyclist with Barnum & Bailey's show, who has been doing a loop-the-gap act, known to local followers of the bicycle races in the early days of the sport through his appearances on the old Crescent track, died at Missoula, Montana, last night from injuries sustained at Helena Wednesday. Butler failed to cover the forty-foot gap and struck the platform, falling to the ground and fracturing his skull and sustaining internal injuries. He was known as "Volo," and his wife does the automobile "dip to death" act with the same show. His brother, Nat Butler, rode on the track here with him.

Mrs. H. C. McVoy, of Sandford avenue, left today for a stay at Asbury Park.

NEW JERSEY THIRD.

Among the Clay Producing States In the Union.

New Jersey ranks third among the States as a clay producer. The United States Geological Survey report issued today, shows that the value of the clay products in the entire country in 1904 amounted to the enormous total of $131,023,248. This was somewhat less than in 1903, which was $131,062,421. In the report for last year, Ohio stands at the head of the list, the value of its clay products having amounted to $25,647,783. Pennsylvania comes next with a total of $16,821,863. New Jersey's output is valued at $13,304,047. Of this amount $7,354,294 represents the value of brick and tile and $5,949,753 the value of the pottery.

COLORS AND MOSQUITOES.

Experiments Show That the Insects Are Able to Distinguish Between Hues.

A young girl was talking about mosquitoes. She had spent the summer in a place where they were numerous, relates the New York Herald.

"But I noticed," she said, "that when I wore a yellow dress I didn't get a single bite."

"Did you notice that?" said the young scientist. And then he went on eagerly:

"I am glad you noticed that, for it is a verification of certain experiments that we have made.

"We made these experiments in a gauze tent, and their object was to ascertain the effect on mosquitoes of colors.

"We placed in the tent boxes lined with cloth of different hues, and we found that the little pests crowded frantically into the dark blue box, while the yellow box they would not under any circumstances enter.

"The experiments extended over several weeks. We had in the tent stone vessels for the mosquitoes to breed in. We discovered that, next to the dark blue, the mosquitoes sought the dark red box. After the dark red came brown, then scarlet, then black, then slate gray, then olive green, then violet, then pearl gray, then white.

"Thus we proved that mosquitoes notice colors, and we formulated two helpful hints for the inhabitants of mosquito ridden districts.

"The first hint is to wear yellow to escape mosquito bites and to use yellow netting for bed canopies and window screens.

"The second hint is to use a blue-lined box if you want to trap mosquitoes. With this box, in an infested region, you could easily catch and destroy thousands of the insects daily."

SWEAT-SHOP AND FACTORY

Progress of "Machine Civilization" Relegating Unsanitary Workrooms.

We need not rely upon the poets and poetical historians for knowledge of what the "handicraft" civilization meant. We can study it, writes David Graham Phillips in the Reader Magazine, as it survives practically unchanged in the miserable hovels of Bohemian and Italian and Spanish peasants, where men and beasts rot together in conditions of sanitation that would not long be tolerated in any place where the "machine civilization" has inaugurated its high and over higher moral and physical standards. We need not go so far from home. To get a picture of a prosperous handicraft city of the middle ages, go to New York's east side, where are the fast-disappearing sweatshops that were transplanted from "handicraft neighborhods of Europe. The poets have it otherwise; and so do the historians who like to paint alluring pictures for their readers—and hate to grub for facts. But there is the grisly truth. Contrast the average sweatshop with the average factory. No; contrast the best sweatshop with the worst factory.

"WITTENBERG EXPRESS."

Droll Conveyance Bearing That Dignified Name in the German Town.

Not many years ago, on the highroads about Wittenburg, in Germany, travelers frequently met an old woman trudging slowly along, pushing before her a light wheelbarrow loaded with bundles and parcels, writes Gerrish Eldredge, in "Queer Carriers," in St. Nicholas. The old woman was at least 60, but she was so cheerful and uncomplaining that the people had no hesitation in employing her. She had many knicknacks and parcels to carry to and from the city, into which, three or four times a week, she pushed her barrow, which folks called the "Wittenberg express." This plucky old woman walked with her express wheelbarrow at least ten miles each trip, and her earnings, a small fee for each parcel, served to support herself and her two invalid daughters, who could do only a little sewing. The old woman would allow no one to pity her; she liked the work, she said, and was only sorry that as she grew older she could not make such frequent trips for her earnings were helping herself and her children.

As to Bones.

Somebody said, "The nearer the bone the sweeter the meat." Yet many persons remove the bone before cooking the meat, thereby losing the marrow juices. Li Hung Chang had his chickens cooked with their heads and feet on. Our butchers deprive us of the heads, legs and wing tips, after charging them on the bill. They are welcome to the heads and legs, but the wing tips are a delicacy. The Chinese in Mott street stew the heads and legs in chop suey. Some epicures eat the head of a cod in preference to any other part. Some wise people in this city make bags of the skins of chicken's necks and stuff them with a kind of hash. When baked brown and crisp they are delicious.—New York Press.

Unresponsive.

"So you prefer a horse to an automobile?"

"Yes," answered the irascible man. "A horse doesn't treat threats and blows with the silent contempt that an automobile displays."—Washington Star.

Arranged in Advance.

Nell—I've decided to marry your cousin Jack.

Belle—The idea! Why, Jack never said a word to me about——

"Oh, Jack doesn't know it yet."—Philadelphia Ledger.

DEVELOPING FINE LEGS.

People of Town Built on Hillside Have to Do a Great Deal of Climbing.

It was one of the merits of the feudal system that it developed the legs of princes and people alike. The baron always set his castle on the summit of a hill, so that the capture by an enemy would be a difficult task, says Harper's Magazine. His retainers—ironically so called for the reason that he never allowed them to retain anything of value—built their huts on the slope of a hill outside of the castle walls, where they could hope for the protection of their lord. The mediaeval town was therefore a town that slanted more or less abruptly, and its inhabitants were continually going up or down hill, to the great development of their calves. We sometimes wonder how knights and men-at-arms in the feudal period could have borne the weight of their armor. It was manifestly because of their constant practice of climbing their hillside streets and thus developing and hardening their muscles.

These reflections inevitably occur to the visitor to Subiaco. The town is built on the sides of a steep hill that rises abruptly from the middle of the valley. The hill is crowned by the usual castle. Many of the streets are simply stairways, and most of the others are as steep as coal chutes. Walk anywhere in Subiaco and you see above you the continual passing of legs of all sorts and conditions. It is nearly as hard to descend the streets as it is to climb them. You need not wonder that the typical Subiacan leg is finely developed, and much affected by artists desiring model legs for Samson.

EYES THAT ARE UNCANNY.

Some of the Curious Things Brought Up in Deep Sea Surroundings.

They caught one fish way down in the Caribbean that had no eyes at all, nor any places for eyes, but long antennae ran out from its nose by which it felt its way and found its food, says H. S. Canfield's "In the World Without a Sun," in St. Nicholas. In the next haul was a fish with two convex lenses in place of eyes. These lenses were highly polished, or burnished; they were of a golden hue, and they gleamed in the sunlight like jewels. Another fish, a big fellow, had eyes which grew on stems, or stalks, that stuck out six inches from its head. Then came one with an eye that grew on a long stem like a lily stem, quite 18 inches from the nose, and the professor said that it was an eye made for poking itself into other fishes' business. The stem was flexible and waved backward and forward, or bent with its own weight; and sometimes the fish traveled with the eye doubled under it about the middle of its body, or trailing in the sand or mud.

Some of the eyes when put into seawater in the dark shone like lanterns; others of the fishes had brilliant spots along their sides that emitted a ghostly radiance, and they seemed to have lighted port holes, or windows, like a slender steamer rushing through the seas after night.

COST OF TRIP TO A STAR.

In Money and Time It Amounts to Something Bewildering in Figures.

"Let us suppose a railway to have been built between the earth and the fixed star Centaurl," said the lecturer, according to the Philadelphia Bulletin. "By a consideration of this railway's workings we can get some idea of the enormous distance that intervenes between Centanrus and us.

"Suppose that I should decide to take a trip on this new aerial line to the fixed star. I ask the ticket agent what the fare is, and he answers:

"The fare is very low, sir. It is only a cent each hundred miles.

"'And what, at that rate, will the through ticket one way cost?' I ask.

"'It will cost just $1,750,000,000,' he answers.

"I pay for my ticket and board the train. We set off at a tremendous rate.

"'How fast?' I ask the brakeman, 'are we going?'

"'Sixty miles an hour, sir,' says he, 'and it's a through train. There are no stoppages.'

"'We'll soon be there, then, won't we?' I resume.

"'We'll make good time, sir,' says the brakeman.

"'And when will we arrive?'

"'In just 48,663,000 years.'"

Chestnuts a Paying Crop.

The boys may be interested to know that chestnuts prove a very profitable crop. Experts claim that an orchard of chestnuts will bring greater returns to the owner than an apple orchard of the same size, as the nuts are retailed on the street corners at about six dollars a bushel, while the Italian who sells roasted chestnuts receives pay for them at the rate of at least eight dollars a bushel. The tree is one of the most rapid growers, and has been known to bear fruit at five years of age.—Edwin W. Foster, in St. Nicholas.

Selecting His Part.

"Cy Lyle have writ a tank play called 'A Christmas Eve Jag,' and we are set to take a part in it. If Cy will let us take the roll of the tank, and will give bond to keep us damp all the time, we'll sign with him for the season.—Hardeman Free Press.

The Reason.

The Visitor—I'm surprised to hear you complain that the prison fare is too good.

The Convict—It's dis way, boss. De grub has made me so blame fat I can't get through dat winder, even though I've got dis steel saw.—Boston Traveler.

NOTICE!
"In behalf of your proprietary article called AZIENZA CREAM, as a remedy for diseases of the skin, I desire to add my appreciation of its wonderful properties as a cure in a case of Bone Tumor or Abscess of five years growth on my husband's back, which I have cured in less than five weeks time by constant application, and now it is as well as any part of his body. It was cut out once by a specialist and had again grown to a large size, was as hard as a bone and of a very dark purple color. The AZIENZA at once allayed the pain and began to soften it, and in less than eight days, by my pressure upon it, suddenly to my surprise it discharged a quantity of pus, impregnated with a hard, cheesy substance. I kept it open and cleansed it as it discharged and every day would dress it with a plaster of AZIENZA CREAM, until it was entirely healed up. I cannot speak too highly of AZIENZA CREAM and its merits. For inquiry regarding this case you may apply to Mr. and Mrs. James Embury Ave., care Hiller, Ocean Grove, N. J. Signed, July 12, 1905. Mrs. C. W. James, Mr. C. W. James." Leading Druggists, 25c-50c

FOR THE GENTLER SEX

COME BACK.

Come back, oh, my darling; I need you.
Each hour for your coming I pray—
For favoring breezes to speed you,
For sunshine to lighten your way.
Alone I know nothing but sorrow;
Thy sweet, gracious presence I lack.
I wistfully think on the morrow
That brings you. Oh, loved one, come back!

Come back, oh, my darling; come quickly,
My fast drooping spirits to cheer.
About me the clouds gather thickly;
My life's whole horizon is drear.
You know that to add to your pleasure
I'd cheerfully lie on the rack,
But can you be happy, heart's treasure,
Without me? Then, darling, come back.

Come back, dear. The whole house is looking Like, well, I will say like distress.
My forte, you're aware, isn't cooking—
I've eaten the awfulest mess.
I hate to cut short your vacation,
But; please, on receipt of this pack;
I'll meet you, of course, at the station.
I'm starving; so, darling, come back.

—Chicago News.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

When you pack for your vacation don't pack any worries—you can get them wherever you go.

The juice of onions will quickly allay the intolerable stinging pain from a bee or wasp sting.

A ruffle on the bottom of a work apron, well starched, will prevent spots on the skirt below.

No excuse for fragments to lodge in corners and crevices of the refrigerators when skewers will dislodge them so quickly.

A piece of new matting placed between the mattress and thin pad will give a cooler bed for the summer months.

A few pieces of glue tucked into the earth around house ferns and palms will furnish the soil fertilizer in an unoffensive manner.

Spar varnish is the liquid to use on all furniture for out of door use, as it is weatherproof and lasting.

Grated Irish potato scattered freely, then well swept off, is recommended as a fine carpet cleaner, reviving the colors without injury to delicate shades.

Unpainted wire netting not only makes a god rest for flatirons when several thicknesses are used, but is most effective to clean them on.

Paraffin can be used the second time to cover jelly and jam if it is washed clean and boiled before being turned over the fruit again.

The short ends of candles are most satisfactory to start a fire with, since they burn with a steady flame till the kindling and wood are well lighted.

It is said flies will not congregate on the outside of a screen door if the wod work is rubbed occasionally with kerosene, the odor of which sems to be offensive to them.

The Southern laundress ties a lump of arrowroot in a thick cotton cloth, and boils it with the fine white pieces to give them a dainty odor more beautiful than sachet powder.

The label on a glass jar will keep clean and in place longer if pasted on the inside. Of course this only applies where dry materials are used, such as rice, tapioca, etc.—Pilgrim.

LARGE SALARIES FOR WOMEN.

There is a general impression that women are poorly paid for their services. It might be interesting to make an investigation and find what ground there is for this feeling. Certainly when women begin to draw salaries above the average they are in no way in danger of starvation. As private secretary of Gage E. Tarbell, of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, Miss Anna Amendt received $12,000 a year. Miss Florence Mason Rhett, as household secretary of J. Pierpont Morgan, receives $10,000, and Miss Katherine Harrison obtains a like salary from H. H. Rogers, the Standard Oil magnate. Miss Helen Gould pays Miss Elizabeth Altman $8,000 a year to look after her philanthropic affairs. The Equitable Life Assurance Society gives Miss Florence E. Shall $11,000 yearly to manage the Massachusetts woman's department of the organization. Mrs. Stella E. P. Drake, who is in charge of the woman's department of the Mutual Life Insurance Company, draws a yearly salary of $11,000. In the handicrafts only women do not seem to be receiving as generous wages as men.—From Madam.

A Travelling Hint.

If you haven't a medicine case, pack the necessary bottles into the bag you carry—there's no use taking the risk of their breaking and ruining everything that liquid will ruin. And there's hardly anything that it won't! Over each tray spread tissue paper—several sheets of it—tucking it in carefully all around the edges. When packing, be sure to slip in a soiled clothes bag, one big enough to pack the clothes away in on your return. A large cretonne bag, made with a drawstring, takes up mighty little room and is a big comfort.

IN THE BISHOP'S CARRIAGE

By MIRIAM MICHELSON

(Copyright, 1904, by The Bobbs-Merrill Company).

I heard it bellowed in a dozen different voices, and every now and then I could hear Moriway as I pelted on—that brassy, cruel bellow of his that made my heart sick.

And then all at once I heard a policeman's whistle.

That whistle was like a signal—I saw the gates of the Correction open before me. I saw your Nance, Tom, in a neat striped dress, and she was behind bars—bars—bars! There were bars everywhere before me. In fact, I felt them against my very hands, for in my mad race I had shot up a blind alley—a street that ended in a garden behind an iron fence.

I grabbed the diamonds to throw them from me, but I couldn't—I just couldn't! I jumped the fence where the gate was low, and with that whistle flying shrill and shriller after me I ran to the house.

I might have jumped from the frying-pan? Of course, I might. But it was all fire to me. To be caught at the end is at least no worse than to be caught at the beginning. Anyhow, it was my one chance, and I took it as unhesitatingly as a rat takes a leap into a trap to escape a terrier. Only—only it was my luck that the trap wasn't set! The room was empty. I pushed open a glass door, and fell over an open trunk that stood beside it.

It bruised my knee and tore my hand, but oh!—it was nuts to me. For it was a woman's trunk filled with women's things.

A skirt! A blessed skirt! And not a striped one. I threw off the bellboy's jacket and I got into that dear dress so quick it made my head swim.

The jacket was a bit tight, but I didn't button it, and I'd just got a stiff little hat perched on my head when I heard the tramp of men on the sidewalk, and in the dusk saw the cop's buttons at the gate.

Caught? Not much. Not yet. I threw open the glass doors and walked out into the garden.

"Miss—Omar—. I wonder if it would be Miss Omar?"

You bet I didn't take time to see who it was talking before I answered. Of course I was Miss Omar. I was Miss Anybody that had a right to wear skirts and be inside those blessed gates.

"Ah—h! I fancied you might be. I've been expecting you."

It was a lazy, low voice with a laugh in it, and it came from a wheeled chair, where a young man lay. Sallow he was and slim and long, and helpless—you could see that by his white hanging hands. But his voice—it was what a woman's voice would be if she were a man. It made you perk up and pretend to be somewhere near its level. It fitted his soft, black clothes and his fine clean face. It meant silks and velvets and—

Oh, all right, Tommy Dorgan, if you're going to get jealous of a voice!

"Excuse me, Mr. Latimer." The cop came in as he spoke, Moriway following; the rest of the hounds hung about. "There's a thieving bell-boy from the hotel that's somewhere in your grounds. Can I come in and get him?"

"In here, sergeant? Aren't you mistaken?"

"No; Mr. Moriway here saw him jump the gate not five minutes since."

"Strange, and I here all the time! I may have dozed off, though. Certainly—certainly. Look for the little rascal. What's he stolen? Diamonds! Tut! tut! Enterprising, isn't he? Miss Omar, won't you kindly reach the bell yonder—no, on the table; that's it—and ring for some one to take the officer about?"

I rang.

Do you know what happened? An electric light strung on the tree above the table shone out, and there I stood under it with Moriway's eyes full upon me.

"Great—!" he began.

"Just ring again." Mr. Latimer's voice came soft as silk.

My fingers trembled so, the bell clattered out of them and fell jangling to the ground. But it rang. And the light above me went out like magic. I fell back into a garden chair.

"I beg your pardon, Mr.—was Moriway the name?—I must have interrupted you, but my eyes are troubling me this evening, and I can't bear the light. Miss Omar, I thought the housekeeper had instructed you—one ring means light, two mean I want Burnett. Here he comes. Burnett, take Sergt. Mulhill through the place. He's looking for a thief. You will accompany the sergeant, Mr.—Moriway?"

"Thank you—no. If you don't mind, I'll wait out here."

That meant me. I moved toward the gate.

"Not at all. Have a seat. Miss Omar, sit down, won't you?" I sat down.

"Miss Omar reads to me, Mr. Moriway. I'm an invalid, as you see, dependent on the good offices of my man. I find a woman's voice a soothing change."

"It must be. Particularly if the voice is pleasing. Miss Omar—I didn't quite catch the name—"

He waited. But Miss Omar had nothing to say that minute.

"Yes, that's the name. You've got it all right," said Latimer. "An uncommon name, isn't it?"

"I don't think I ever heard it before. Do you know, Miss Omar, as I heard your voice just before we got to the gate, it sounded singularly boyish to me."

"Mr. Latimer does not find it so—do you?" I said as sweet—as sweet as I could coax. How sweet's that, Tom Dorgan?

"Not at all." A little laugh came from Latimer as though he was enjoying a joke all by himself. But Moriway jumped with satisfaction. He knew the voice all right.

"Have you a brother, may I ask?" He leaned over and looked keenly at me.

"I am an orphan." I said, sadly, "with no relatives."

"A pitiful position," sneered Moriway. "You look so much like a boy I know that—"

"Do you really think so?" So awfully polite was Latimer to such a rat as Moriway. Why? Well, wait. "I can't agree with you. Do you know, I find Miss Omar very feminine. Of course, short hair—"

"Her hair is short, then!"

"Typhoid," I murmured.

"Too bad!" Moriway sneered.

"Yes," I snapped. "I thought it was at the time. My hair was very heavy and long, and I had a chance to sit in a window at Troyon's where they were advertising a hair tonic and—"

Rotten? Of course it was. I'd no business to gabble, and just because you and your new job, Mag, came to my mind at that minute, there I went putting my foot in it.

Moriway laughed. I didn't like the sound of his laugh.

"Your reader is versatile, Mr. Latimer," he said.

"Yes." Latimer smoothed the soft silk rug that lay over him. "Poverty and that sort of versatility are often bedfellows, eh? Tell me, Mr. Moriway, these lost diamonds are yours?"

"No. They belong to a—a friend of mine, Mrs. Kingdon."

"Oh! the old lady who was married this afternoon to a young fortune-hunter!" I couldn't resist it.

Moriway jumped out of his seat.

"She was not married," he stuttered. "She—"

"Changed her mind? How sensible of her! Did she find out what a crook the fellow was? What was his name—Morrison? No—Middleway—I have heard it."

"May I ask, Miss Omar"—I didn't have to see his face; his voice told how mad with rage he was—"how you come to be acquainted with a matter that only the contracting parties could possibly know of?"

"Why, they can't have kept it very secret, the old lady and the young rascal who was after her money, for you see we both knew of it; and I wasn't the bride and you certainly weren't the groom, were you?"

An exclamation burst from him.

"Mr. Latimer," he stormed, "may I see you a moment alone?"

Phew! That meant me. But I got up just the same.

"Just keep your seat, Miss Omar." Oh, that silken voice of Latimer's! "Mr. Moriway, I have absolutely no acquaintance with you. I never saw you till to-night. I can't imagine what you may have to say to me, that my secretary—Miss Omar acts in that capacity—may not hear."

"I want to say," burst from Moriway, "that she looks the image of the boy Nat, who stole Mrs. Kingdon's diamonds, that the voice is exactly the same, that—"

"But you have said it, Mr. Moriway—quite successfully intimated it, I assure you."

"She knows of my—of Mrs. Kingdon's marriage, that that boy Nat found out about."

"And you yourself also, as Miss Omar mentioned."

"Myself? Damn it, I'm Moriway, the man she was going to marry. Why shouldn't I—"

"Ah-h!" Latimer's shoulders shook with a gentle laugh. "Well, Mr. Moriway, gentlemen don't swear in my garden. Particularly when ladies are present. Shall we say good evening? Here comes Mulhill now. Nothing, sergeant? Too bad the rogue escaped, but you'll catch him. They may get away from you, but they never stay long, do they? Good evening—good evening, Mr. Moriway."

They tramped on and out, Moriway's very back showing his rage. He whispered something to the sergeant, who turned to look at me, but shook his head, and the gate clanged after them.

A long sigh escaped me.

"Warm, isn't it?" Latimer leaned forward. "Now, would you mind ringing again, Miss Omar?"

I bent and groped for the bell and rang it twice.

"How quick you are to learn!" he said. "But I really wanted the light this time. Just light up, Burnett," he called to the man, who had come out on the porch.

The electric bulb flashed out again just over my head. Latimer turned and looked at me. When I couldn't bear it any longer, I looked defiantly up at him.

"Pardon," he said, smiling; nice teeth he has and clear eyes. "I was just looking for that boyish resemblance Mr. Moriway spoke of. I hold to my first opinion—you're very feminine, Miss Omar. Will you read to me now, if you please?" He pointed to a big open book on the table beside his couch.

"I think—if you don't mind, Mr. Latimer, I'll begin the reading to-morrow." I got up to go. I was through with that garden now.

"But I do mind!"

Silken voice? Not a bit of it! I turned on him so furious I thought I didn't care what came of it—when over by the great gate-post I saw a man crouching—Moriway.

I sat down again and pulled the book farther toward the light.

We didn't learn much poetry at the Cruelty, did we, Mag? But I know some now, just the same. When I began to read I heard only one word—Moriway—Moriway—Moriway. But I must have forgotten him after a time, and the dark warden with the light on only one spot and the roses smelling, and Latimer lying perfectly still, his face turned toward me, for I was reading—listen, I bet I can remember that part of it if I say it slow—

Oh, Thou, who Man of baser Earth didst make,
And ev'n with Paradise devise the Snake:
For all the Sin wherewith the Face of Man
Is blacken'd—Man's forgiveness give—and take!

—when all at once Mr. Latimer put his hand on the book. I looked up with a start. The shadow by the gate was gone.

Yon rising Moon that looks for us again—
How oft hereafter will she wax and wane;
How oft hereafter rising look for us
Through this same Garden—and for one in vain!

Latimer was saying it without the book and with a queer smile that made me feel I hadn't quite caught on.

"Thank you, that will do," he went on. "That is enough, Miss—" He stopped.

I waited.

He did not say "Omar."

I looked him square in the eye—and then I had enough.

"But what in the devil did you make believe for?" I asked.

He smiled.

"If ever you come to lie on your back day and night, year in and year out, and know that never in your life will it be any different, you may take pleasure in a bit of excitement and—and learn to pity the under dog, who, in this case, happened to be a boy that leaped over the gate as though his heart was in his mouth. Just as you would admire the nerve of the young lady that came out of the house a few minutes after in your housekeeper's Sunday gown."

Yes, grin, Tom Dorgan. You won't grin long.

I put down the book and got up to go.

"Good night, then, and thank you, Mr. Latimer."

"Good night. Oh, Miss—" He didn't say "Omar"—"there is a favor you might do me."

"Sure!" I wondered what it could be.

"Those diamonds. I've got to have them, you know, to send them back to their owner. I don't mind helping a—a person who helps himself to other people's things, but I can't let him get away with his plunder without being that kind of person myself. So—"

Why didn't I lie? Because there are some people you don't lie to, Tom Dorgan. Don't talk to me, you bully, I'm savage enough. To have rings and pins and ear-rings, a whole bagful of diamonds, and to haul 'em out of your pocket and lay 'em on the table there before him!

"I wonder," he said, slowly, as he put them away in his own pocket, "what a man like me could do for a girl like you?"

"Reform her!" I snarled. "Show her how to get diamonds honestly."

Say, Tom, let's go in for bigger game.
